Trujillo Jr. Asks Divorce in Mexico

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Lt. Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., whose romancing of Hollywood stars made headlines, is shedding his wife with a Mexican divorce.

This was disclosed in an interview Saturday with Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, the general's father who has run this country for 28 years.

The generalissimo said his son's divorce proceedings were instituted in April in the civil court of Bravos District in Chihuahua, Mexico. That was before the son broke into the news with his lavish gifts to Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kim Novak.

The three civil courts in Juarez, which is the Bravos District of the state of Chihuahua, said no such suit was on file with them, although it might be pending with an attorney. Neither the attorney for Trujillo nor for Mrs. Trujillo could be immediately located. An uncontested Mexican divorce is sometimes granted almost immediately, but a contested action can drag on for weeks.

White Russian 'Old Believers' Showered with Money, Clothes

Southland Gives China Refugees Warm Welcome

Eighty-two White Russians—refugees from Red China—headed for their new home in Brazil today after a memorable Southland welcome.

Fifteen families of a centuries-old Russian sect, known as Old Believers, were showered with gifts of money, clothing and toys during their brief stopover at Wilmington's Don Hotel.

They were overwhelmed by American hospitality. "How do we thank everyone?" asked the group's elder member and spiritual leader, 74-year-old Avtonom Kulikov, "Whom do we write?"

AN INTERPRETER attempted to explain that no formal thank-you is expected.

The refugees flew into Los Angeles Thursday from Hong Kong, where they had stayed the past seven months after managing to leave the north-west part of China.

In the group are 15 men, 18 women, 14 teenagers and 35 children.

Now they're bound for the interior of Brazil where they will homestead farms. They sailed Saturday night aboard the Brazil Maru.

THEY ARE THE first of 493 Old Believers being moved from China by the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, the United Nations and the World Council of Churches. The others are in Hong Kong.

Friday, the pioneers were entertained at a dinner at the First United Christian Molokan

Seize Man as Arson Suspect

A man with a record of narcotics convictions was arrested near a Long Beach bar Saturday night on suspicion of attempted arson after a waitress said she saw him splashing gasoline about a hallway leading to the bar's restrooms.

Police Sgt. D. K. Goldsmith took into custody Arthur Frank Beard, 28, of 505 Marine Ave., Wilmington, outside the Crow's Nest at 1912 W. Willow St.

OFFICERS EXAMINING the gasoline-splashed premises behind the bar, which was filled with a Saturday night crowd, recalled the death of six persons April 4, 1957, when a bottle of flaming gasoline was thrown into a Los Angeles bar.

Waitress Dorothy M. Woodward told police she first met Beard early Saturday morning in the walk-in refrigerator behind the bar. She said the man refused further drinks and thrown out of the bar after he followed her into the refrigerator.

She told officers she next saw the man Saturday night when she surprised him in the hallway leading to the bar's restrooms as he was splashing the contents of a jug about on the walls.

FROM ANOTHER TIME TO ANOTHER PLACE

Attired in the same regalia worn by their forefathers, the Ivan Kulikovs, one of 15 White Russian families forsaking Red China for new homes in Brazil, pack in Wilmington Saturday for the final leg of their trip. Ivan, 27, is the eldest son of the group's spiritual leader, Avtonom Kulikov, 74. Known as Old Believers, the centuries-old sect has left both Russia and China because of Communist oppression. Like Ivan, wife Marfa, 28, and daughter Olga, 6, are happy about the trip.—(Staff Photo by Skip Shuman)

Nixon Urges Envoys Spend More Time With Masses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, fresh from mob violence in Latin America, feels that U. S. diplomats there have been spending too much time in the drawing rooms of rulers and the socially elite and not enough with the ordinary people, it was disclosed Saturday.

It can be reported on high authority that he returned from his trip convinced that the United States must start devoting more attention to the aspirations of the masses if it is to stave off growing Communist influence south of the border.

One of his major recommendations when he reports to President Eisenhower will be that U. S. diplomats increase their contacts with students, labor leaders, teachers and intellectuals.

IN TOO MANY countries, the vice president has told the friends, U. S. diplomacy is still geared to the old idea of dealing with ruling groups and mingling with the wealthy.

The time has come, he feels, to get diplomatic contact work by the State Department, the U. S. Information Agency, and other American representations out of the social echelon and into the work rooms and the classrooms.

He believes Latin America is a top priority objective of the Communists and that they are concentrating mainly on wooing labor leaders and the so-called intelligentsia. But he feels that the Communists have not yet made major inroads among the Latin American masses.

THE VICE PRESIDENT also was reported greatly concerned about the thorny issue of U. S. dealings with Latin American dictatorships. He has described these relations as a "weight around the State Department's neck in trying to keep the friendship of the Latin American people."

Not even in the U. S. Diplomatic Corps, Nixon feels, is suffering the worst damage.

THREAT OF RIOTING

French Premier Tightens Control

PARIS (AP)—Embattled Premier Pierre Pflimlin told the nation Saturday night he will use all his extraordinary emergency powers to crush the efforts of groups, right or left, attempting a violent overthrow of the French Republic.

With the threat of riot and bloodshed in the air, the new premier:

1. Took to radio and TV to plead anew for unity, law and order.

2. Designated a new chief of staff of the combined armed forces to replace Gen. Paul Ely, popular Army figure and de Gaulle sympathizer. Ely resigned after the arrest of two Air Force generals in a roundup of Rightists.

3. Sent his personal envoy twice to see Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The envoy, Gov. Marcel Diebold of the Haute-Marne Department saw a De Gaulle military aide on his first visit. The second time he talked with De Gaulle, presumably about the war hero's announcement he is returning to Paris Monday to talk about his offer to assume all power in France.

IN OTHER developments, de Gaulle's right hand man and chief Parliament representative, Jacques Soustelle, evaded police surveillance and flew from Switzerland to a thundering welcome in Algeria, hotbed of Gaullism.

Defense ministry sources confirmed the two Air Force generals, Andre Challe and Jacques Martin, were confined to quarters some distance from Paris. This is equivalent to house arrest.

The Defense Ministry officially said only that the two generals had been given a mission which took them temporarily from the Paris region. The ministry would not say where.

This action was believed to have brought Ely's resignation.

PFLIMLIN WENT to the people a few hours after the cabinet session which named the new chief of staff for the armed forces and adopted the first measures under the new emergency powers bill.

Pflimlin issued a call for unity in his radio-TV talk after charging that conspirators against France had turned a demonstration in Algiers into an insurrection by the adroit use of lies and false propaganda.

He said some groups in France sought the violent overthrow of the Republic. One

12 Buildings Scrambled by Twister

WAUSAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A small tornado whistled into this Marinette County village of 600 Saturday and ripped through more than a dozen buildings in less than a minute.

Several persons were reported to have suffered cuts and bruises from flying debris as the twister screamed along U.S. 141, Wausaukee's main street. Electric power and telephone service were blanked in several areas.

The front of the community's bank was ripped off by the tornado and the sheriff's office set up guards there and at other points in the block-long area suffering the worst damage.

Planes Sent to Europe on Standby Duty

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States Saturday sent 18 big C124 transport planes to Europe for possible use in evacuating Americans from revolt-threatened Lebanon.

Another 18 to 22 of the 200-passenger troop transports were standing by awaiting orders to fly in a second wave to U.S. air bases in Germany for airlift use of needed.

The State Department also announced the United States is responding to an appeal by the Beirut government to expedite previously planned military aid shipments and "in some instances to augment these programs."

"IN MAKING this request, to which the United States agreed, the government of Lebanon indicated that the integrity of Lebanon was threatened by persons under alien influence," the statement said.

This presumably referred to President Camille Chamoun's charges that Lebanon's neighbor, the United Arab Republic of Syria and Egypt, has inspired and supported the attempted revolt and anti-Western riots in Lebanon.

Earlier Saturday the State Department said it appears now that assistance by U.S. troops will not be needed to safeguard American lives and property in Lebanon.

A later statement praised the government's "valiant efforts" to maintain internal security.

U.S. AIRLIFT planes already are delivering rifles, gas masks and other "police type" equipment to Beirut under terms of a previous State Department announcement. Tanks are to be provided soon.

Officials indicated the increased aid would involve chiefly more of the same type of equipment.

The statement said: "The additional assistance which the Lebanese government is receiving from the United States has as its sole purpose the augmentation of the capacity of Lebanese security forces to control and prevent ... subversive efforts and to facilitate the restoration of peace and quiet which the Lebanese people desire and to which they are entitled."

THE STATEMENT emphasized that Lebanese political leaders "of varying shades of opinion" have stressed the importance of using only peaceful means for achieving political aims. It said these leaders "have been unanimous in stating to United States representatives that they deplored the resort to violence, the attacks on persons and property and the efforts to disrupt order in Lebanon."

Silky Sullivan did it again Saturday.

City in Nightmare: How L. A. Battled Plague

By BEN ZINSEK

History's Black Death, which once devastated Europe's population, came to Los Angeles one fall day in 1924.

It struck suddenly. Within hours a word of terror sprang from the tongues of Angelenos.

The word: "Plague!"

Specifically the horror was that of bubonic plague and the even more dangerous pneumonic plague.

The nightmare began on Oct. 26. That day a 37-year-old male resident of the 700 block Clara St.—in the old haymarket district—was admitted to County Hospital with what appeared to be lobar pneumonia. He died the same day.

Just one week earlier the victim had attended his wife's funeral. Within the next two weeks 12 of the mourners at those rites were to die of the plague.

Four other members of the family were admitted to the hospital on Oct. 30, all ill with pneumonia. Six other pneumonia patients, all relatives and friends, were admitted a day later.

The dying continued. One of the victims was a 48-year-old Catholic priest. He had administered the last rites to a boy ill with the plague. The priest became ill on Oct. 28. He died of the plague Nov. 2.

A 48-year-old County Hospital ambulance driver who had assisted in moving plague patients became ill Oct. 30. He died of the plague Nov. 1.

IN COUNTY HOSPITAL a nurse fell ill with the plague. She was one of the few who recovered.

Frightened attendants wore emergency masks made of pillow cases with a celluloid window held in place by adhesive tape.

In rapid succession 33 persons succumbed to the Black Death.

Many were persons who had visited the ill-fated family on Clara St.

Most of the bodies were cremated in the county incinerator. Final toll: 31 cases of pneumonic plague, 29 deaths; six cases of bubonic plague, four deaths.

IN THEIR MAD RACE to stop the spread of plague, health authorities found 114 persons who had come into contact with victims but who did not contract the infection.

On Oct. 31 the Los Angeles Health Dept. decided to quarantine an area of about seven blocks surrounding the Clara St. address. The quarantine began at midnight.

None of the 1,600 persons inside was allowed to leave the area, bounded roughly by Alameda St., the Los Angeles River, Macy St. and Alhambra Rd.

At the outset the Los Angeles Police Dept. furnished 75 men to patrol the outskirts of the quarantine area. There were 25 officers on each watch. Eventually 75 officers were assigned to each watch.

The Fire Dept. provided rope to enclose the entire area.

ONCE, WHEN A GROUP of residents tried to go through the lines to the outside world, the Police Dept. sent saved-off shotguns to its quarantine guards. The residents decided to stay and returned to their homes.

Inside the lines, Health Dept. workers set up headquarters in a church. Their job: Find rats and fleas in the quarantine area and destroy them.

The plague is an infectious fever caused by a germ called bacillus pestis. Its carrier is a flea called Xenopsylla cheopis. The flea rides around on rats.

The rat fleas become infected through biting diseased

L.A.C. Says: 'Unfair Approach'

Union leaders opposing the "right to work" initiative which if it qualifies will be known as Employer-Employee Relations Initiative on the November ballot, are attempting to frighten charitable organizations into opposing the initiative. This is shown by a news release by the Greater Los Angeles CIO Council. According to the CIO spokesman the initiative, if passed, would make it illegal for unions and employers to arrange for collection of worker contributions for charitable organizations.

The release is primarily aimed at A I D (Associated In-Group Donors). It names such well known agencies as Cancer, Red Cross, Crippled Children and other agencies which receive funds from A I D. It, therefore, would make it appear that a "right to work" law would deprive workers of the right to donate through payroll deductions to A I D or other agencies.

Actually, the initiative provides only that a worker does not have to belong and pay dues to a union to hold a job. There are many enterprises in this and other areas which now operate part union and part non-union workers. In other enterprises there is no union and in still others a worker must become a member of the union after being employed a certain period—usually a month. In some crafts the closed shop and closed union is effective. That means only union members can get a job—and getting into such a union is very hard to accomplish.

We are not arguing here for or against the initiative. But we are critical of union leadership making a false issue of charitable contributions in an effort to raise opposition to the initiative. It is a smoke screen of the most transparent kind. If it is to be the type of opposition to the right to work initiative by unions, it should be recognized now as what it is.

Right now plants in this area have plans with workers for payroll deductions for A I D and other organizations. In some of these plants union contracts cover all the workers and the check off agreement must be arranged between the union and management. In other plants, the union represents a portion of the workers and has made such arrangements for its members—the other workers are given the same privileges of payroll deduction by management. If a right-to-work law were voted by the people the union position would be exactly the same as it now is in plants where it does not represent all the workers.

It is unfortunate that the CIO injects such an issue into its fight against the initiative. Support of charitable and character building organizations is a responsibility of all who have steady incomes. This attitude has been shown by millions of families who believe in the Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and all the good youth organizations. Certainly the cooperation of union leaders in conducting campaigns among their members has made such campaigns possible. This cooperation is a civic responsibility which should not be used as a political foothold.

There are many facets to the right to work philosophy. It is not a partisan issue, although efforts will be made to make it so. But in doing so, it is unfair to make it appear contributions to charitable organizations are involved. If they are—and if they are reduced—it will be the responsibility of those who make such contributions an issue in the campaign. It is an unfair threat to organizations serving the unfortunate and the young people, which we doubt many union members will approve—L.A.C.

Refugees Receive Presents

Church in Los Angeles. But because of their belief, the group restricted their fare to water, bread and fish. Old Believers deny themselves meat, milk and butter on Fridays.

Their appearance resembles that of their forefathers.

The men and boys wear their shirttails out, bound to the body by a belt. The hair is combed in front to form bangs.

The women wear bulky dresses. Their hair is done in braids—one braid for unmarried women, two for the married. In public the married women always cover their heads with a scarf.

The men never shave.

THE PEOPLE marry only with those of their religion. They do not smoke, or drink alcohol, coffee or tea.

They hope their new life in Brazil will mark the end of their wanderings.

The Old Believers have been seeking a permanent home since the 17th Century when their refusal to accept reforms instituted by the Russian Patriarch Nikon brought oppression.

At that time they fled to the Far Eastern wastes of Russia. They lived in their self-contained communities until Soviet collectivism forced them to flee again—this time to Manchuria and Western China.

BUT HERE THEY also were oppressed by Communism. In 1953 they applied to the Chinese government for exit permits.

Aboard their ship, as they travel to Brazil, are 62 tons of supplies, including tools, machinery, seeds and fertilizers. The supplies were donated by American Protestants through the Church World Service.

The National Council of Churches of Christ has purchased a 6,000-acre tract for the Old Believers in the State of Parana in Brazil. About a tenth of the land already has been cleared and is suitable for farming. There are 40,000 pine trees available for lumber.

"Our desire is to live far away from the big towns on broad stretches of land where we can find farming work familiar to us," one of the group said.

Child Heart Patient Out of Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—Three-year-old Mabel Chin smiled, waved and cuddled a toy kitten Saturday as she left University Hospital less than two weeks after undergoing a televised heart operation.

Mabel's doctor said she was in excellent condition.

She underwent heart surgery May 6 on a TV program sponsored by the New York Heart Association to show the public what great strides have been made in heart operations.

A SPOKESMAN for the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center said Mabel was born with a duct leading into the heart opening. The operation was performed to close the duct. Her life would have been shortened if the operation had not been performed.

group was arrested Friday night in St. Etienne, an industrial center of southeast France, while mounting an attack on the local government building, he added.

Pfifflin conceded constitutional reforms are urgently needed but said these can be drafted and applied only through legal, existing institutions.

"ORDER AND the laws of the Republic are the only safeguard of the unity of the nation," he declared.

Soustelle's flight brought cabinet restrictions to prevent French citizens from leaving France. Border controls were tightened and restriction of movements inside France were hinted.

Soustelle, a former governor general in Algeria and darling of the French settlers there, was cheered wildly by massed thousands in Algiers as he shouted on arrival "Long live Algeria, long live France, long live de Gaulle."

Then Soustelle announced:

"I have no other ambition than to remake the national unity on both shores of the Mediterranean."

IT SEEMED obvious Soustelle had the help of some French officials in escaping. He was under virtual house arrest and the Pfifflin government has forbidden movement of ships or planes to Algeria.

It appeared the Navy might be wavering, and perhaps ready to back the Army. Air Force and security unit sentiment for de Gaulle. The Navy had been ordered to halt a tanker loaded with vital fuel. A reliable source said the tanker slipped into Algeria Friday night despite the orders. The Navy said the weather was bad.

Rightists defied the ban on all public meetings and called for demonstrations at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe, despite the deployment of 35,000 police and security police in the tense capital.

Parisians fearing trouble bought out stores' stocks of canned goods.

Under Pfifflin's emergency powers, Rightists were rounded up in Paris and throughout the country. Arrests are allowed without warrant at any hour.

Buena Park Girl, 4, Chokes to Death in Rare Accident

BUENA PARK—A 4-year-old girl, who had been breathing through a tube in her throat since an operation several weeks ago, choked to death Saturday.

Mrs. Frances Maness of 6071 San Rafael Dr. said she had removed the tube from the throat of her daughter, Scharle Joy, to clean it. This is a regular procedure in such cases, officers explained.

Suddenly, Scharle Joy started to choke. Mrs. Maness tried to insert the tube back into the child's throat, but the opening constricted and she could not fit it in.

A Buena Park rescue unit tried unsuccessfully to revive the youngster.

rats. When the infected fleas bite humans, they transmit the disease.

But the real villain of 1924's plague epidemic is thought to be a California ground squirrel.

C. K. Stewart, now director of pest control for the Los Angeles City Health Dept., believes a flea-carrying ground squirrel came into the haymarket area on a load of hay from Northern California.

It's Stewart's theory that infected fleas left the squirrel in favor of rats in the haymarket area.

Eventually a single flea bit a human, and this person became the epidemic's first victim.

ALL THE OTHERS who caught the highly contagious disease, Stewart says, contracted it by droplet infection—by spray expelled from the nose and mouth of an infected human.

In pneumonic plague there is high temperature. Breathing becomes hurried and the face dusky. There is coughing.

The expectoration soon becomes watery and profuse, with little whitish specks, which contain great quantities of plague bacilli.

The physical signs are those of bronchopneumonia. Death often occurs in three or four days.

Stewart was one of the half-dozen Health Dept. men admitted to the 1924 quarantine area. The little group directed a crew of 400 residents in the fight to stop the spread of plague.

For the first two weeks the volunteers sprayed 1,300 structures with an emulsion of kerosene and soft soap. Object: to kill fleas.

Thirteen structures were burned to the ground to destroy rats.

IN OTHER BUILDINGS the skirting was removed from foundations—most of the houses were built on stilts—to make it difficult for rats to hide. Rats love sheltered underpasses.

Holes in floors and walls were sealed with metal.

Food for residents was brought by truck to the police lines daily.

Other trucks brought a ton of rat poison to the lines.

Little squares of poisoned bread were planted throughout the quarantine area.

"I couldn't sleep at night," Stewart remembers. "The poison was a dark phosphorous paste which looked like molasses. Small children in the district often attempted to eat our 'rat sandwiches.' More than once I slapped a piece of poisoned bread out of a kid's hand."

"Luckily we never lost a child. But we did lose a couple of donkeys and any number of dogs and cats."

Many rat traps were set. All rats poisoned or trapped within the quarantine area were burned and buried.

THE LAST CASE OF PNEUMONIC PLAGUE developed on Nov. 6 and the quarantine was finally removed on Nov. 13. One week is considered the maximum incubation period for pneumonic plague.

But the work of local, state and federal health officials had only begun. From Nov. 4, 1924, until June 20, 1925, Los Angeles health authorities killed 141,356 rats in the city, 111 of which turned out to be plague-infected. Seven plague-infected squirrels also were located.

In the same period, 9,470 buildings either were disinfected or "ratstopped." Ratstopping means opening up the foundation and plugging holes in walls and floors.

Cost of the Los Angeles plague epidemic to property owners: $2,607,975.

By 1948 Los Angeles had trapped one million rats. But since 1924 only four rats have given authorities a scare. In 1932 four rats infected with plague were found in the metropolitan district of Los Angeles. But there was no outbreak.

BECAUSE LONG BEACH IS A PORT CITY, the Health Dept. here constantly surveys the harbor in a program to prevent an outbreak of epidemic plague or of typhus, also transmitted by the rat flea.

Whenever rat infestations are discovered, public health officials put out poison baits. Rat guards are required on all mooring lines.

Throughout the year poison baits are planted in the tops of date palms, a favorite residing place for rats. Periodically the Health Dept. searches the city dump for rats.

The battle against the dread plague continues, even though the last outbreak in the Southland occurred more than 33 years ago.

there enough realization of the depth of Latin American feelings on the dictatorship issue.

He believes this country must support effective anti-Communist regimes—which in some cases are those of "strong men"—but at the same time must not appear to be trying to keep or to put dictators in power.

MEANWHILE, Sen. Styles Bridges proposed that a Senate subcommittee review operations of the super-secret Central Intelligence Agency in the wake of Vice President Nixon's riot-scarred good-will tour of South America.

"Now is a good time for a review," the New Hampshire Republican said.

As a top Republican member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Bridges also serves on the five-man subcommittee which plays a watchdog role in the administration of CIA.

Charges of inefficiency were made against CIA in the favor which followed student riots and anti-U. S. demonstrations which marred the vice president's trip. Bridges did not echo those charges. But he recommended that the subcommittee look into the agency's advance preparation for Nixon's tour.

"We should find out what information was obtained, how it was evaluated, and whether it was acted upon when it was passed to other agencies," he said.

tended to acknowledge that there are many loyal Lebanese elements who oppose the present government of President Camille Chamoun but who are not taking orders from either the Arab nationalists in Cairo and Damascus or the Communist Party.

The Air Force did not formally specify the mission of the transport air fleet, but officials assured reporters that they would be correct in assuming the planes were to be used, if needed, in airlift operations into or out of Lebanon.

The action was taken despite a reassuring statement from the State Department Saturday that the pro-Western Lebanese government appears to be able to maintain order.

However, other precautionary measures were being taken. Police-type small weapons were rushed by air to Beirut Saturday, and the State Department announced that an undisclosed number of U.S. tanks will be sent to the small Middle East nation under the regular U.S. aid program.

The Air Force action caused cancellation of Donaldson Air Force Base's Armed Forces Day celebration.

The C124 transports, each capable of carrying 200 combat-equipped troops, were to land at Rhein-Main Air Base, Frankfurt, Germany.

Lady Docker Asks Delay
on Drink Rap

NAPLES, Italy (UP)—Britain's marble-shooting Lady Norah Docker Saturday asked an Italian court for time to prepare a defense against charges she insulted a customs official while "troublesomely drunk."

The British socialite, who more recently was banned from Monaco and the French Riviera for tearing up a paper model of the Monacan flag in anger against Prince Rainier, did not appear at the Naples tribunal. She sent a cable from London requesting the delay. The three-man court accepted her appeal.

Italy accused her of insulting a customs official while in a state of "troublesome drunkenness" in 1956. At the time, Lady Docker was visiting Italy aboard her yacht. She has denied the charges.

FOREST WONDER

By Clydene M. Adams

Have you ever wandered up a path
Of a forest in the fall,
To admire the shining pebbles
And the pine trees straight and tall?

The frogs are croaking loudly
At the pond around the bend,
They sing a merry symphony
That goes on without an end.

A squirrel chatters gaily
As he stops to look at me,
But when I turn to look at him,
He scampers up a tree.

A buck, in all his splendor,
Stands on a nearby hill,
His majesty overcomes me,
He stands so proud and still.

But I felt an unseen presence
As I walked this forest dim,
For in all its stately grandeur,
There was the holiness of Him.

For His voice was in the pine tree,
His whisper in the leaves,
His touch was in the breeze.

2 Killers Guilty of Murder

LOS ANGELES — Two murderers who Monday attacked and wounded a deputy sheriff at their Superior Court trial were found guilty Saturday of a 1957 killing and attempted robbery.

A jury of nine women and three men returned the verdict in Judge Thomas L. Ambrose's court.

The defendants — 25-year-old Augustine Acosta and 23-year-old Gregory Valenzuela — were charged with the Oct. 14, 1957, murder of East Los Angeles liquor-store owner Joseph Castellanes, 51.

At their trial, the men leaped across a courtroom table and stabbed Deputy Ned Lovretovich with spoons fashioned into daggers. Lovretovich, who was wounded in the shoulder, is recovering.

The jury was ordered to return to court at 9:30 a.m. Monday to determine if the pair will receive the death penalty or life imprisonment.

O'Hara Will Retire

MANKATO, Minn. (AP)—Rep. Joseph O'Hara (R-Minn.), a veteran of 18 years in Congress, announced Saturday that he is retiring from political life and will not seek reelection this year.

Stassen Puts on Untiring Performance

By WALTER RIDDER
Of I.P.T. Washington Bureau

LANCASTER, Pa. — Harold E. Stassen is campaigning for the governorship of Pennsylvania with the same gusto, tireless energy, and boundless personal effort with which he twice sought the presidency of the United States.

From early morning until well after midnight, day after day, the former Minnesota governor is trudging the Pennsylvania countryside as he tries to beat two Republican primary opponents, Arthur T. McGonigle and William E. Livengood, for the post of the Keystone State's chief executive.

NO CITY is too large, no hamlet too small to attract the attention of Stassen. He spent a typical day here in the central part of Pennsylvania. He left Philadelphia—an hour and a half away—to appear at nine o'clock Saturday morning at a coffee hour in the small village of Blue Ball. About thirty persons showed up and Stassen discussed with them the issues of the day—concentrating largely on Pennsylvania matters. At Blue Ball, as he did throughout the day, Stassen stated that because of inept state management—by both Democrats and Republicans—Pennsylvania is losing industry, its unemployment is disastrously high, its tax policies frightening away potential industries, and its political parties dominated by small cliques of professional politicians more interested in holding their offices than in the welfare of the state.

IN DISCUSSING the woes of Pennsylvania, Stassen boldly and pridefully calls attention to his record as governor of Minnesota. Far from playing down his office-holding in another state—a circumstance which prods his opposition to cry loudly "carpetbagger"—Stassen uses his Gopher State governorship to underline his assertion that he is the most experienced of the GOP candidates.

McGonigle, the Republican organization's choice, is a pretzel manufacturer (his campaign slogan—"A New Twist to Government") and never has held public office. Livengood was four times Pennsylvania's secretary for internal affairs, but never governor.

$690 Mystery Gift Now Officially Hers

FITCHBURG, Mass. (AP)—The unexpected and still unexpected mother's day gift Mrs. Bolduc bought it. Neither did the maker of the bag.

Police took the money and told Mrs. Blanch Bolduc she could have it in a year if it was not claimed. It wasn't.

The elder Mrs. Bolduc felt, however, the police deserved something for their efforts to determine the owner of the cash. So she gave some of the money to the Police Relief Fund. She gave some more to charity and distributed the rest among her three children.

"I still have the nice handbag," she said, "but I guess I will spend the rest of my life wondering where the money came from."

Sentenced to Hang, Arab Cannot Appeal

GAZA, U.A.R. (UPI)—A United Arab Republic military court Saturday sentenced Palestinian Arab Saadi el Shawwa to death by hanging on charges of conspiracy.

Shawwa, a landowner, was convicted of plotting "in the interests of imperialism and Zionism" at the behest of Jordan's King Hussein. His possessions were confiscated. There was no appeal from the sentence.

Throngs Visit Army, Navy, Air Force Exhibits at Bases

Tens of thousands of Long Beach-area residents viewed Air Force, Navy and Army displays Saturday at installations ranging from Fort MacArthur at San Pedro to Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

The Air Reserve Flying Center at Long Beach Air Force Base and the Navy will continue observation of Armed Forces Day today.

The Civil Air Patrol Drill team will perform and throughout the day children will be given rides on the Air Force fire trucks at the Air Force Base. At 3 p. m., the Long Visitors will be welcome aboard ships at the Navy's Terminal Island facility. Visitors are asked to enter Gate 9 on Seaside Blvd.

Admiral Reports Prowling Subs

LISBON (UPI)—A British admiral said Saturday that unidentified submarines are prowling the Atlantic in areas patrolled by NATO vessels.

Adm. Sir William Davies told newsmen the submarines have been spotted "in limited numbers."

He refused to say whether they were Russian.

Collegians Reassured by Mitchell

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said Saturday the job outlook for college graduates is "generally favorable" despite the recession.

But he said employers sent fewer recruiters to campuses this spring and are being "much more selective" in hiring.

Mitchell made his forecast in an open letter to the 470,000 collegians who will receive degrees in June. He called the recession a "temporary situation" that would inevitably be altered by forces "already at work within the economy."

High Leaders Urge Ike to Halt H-Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some high government officials are urging President Eisenhower to announce plans by June 30 to suspend U.S. nuclear tests, it was learned Saturday.

They believe the announcement would score a propaganda victory by spelling out American intentions on H-bomb testing before the United Nations Scientific Committee on Atomic Radiation issues a special report July 1. The report is expected to focus world attention on the mounting dangers of atomic radiation.

The decision rests with the President. The actual suspension would come after current U.S. nuclear experiments in the Pacific are completed late this summer.

THE GROUP URGING Eisenhower to act is believed to include Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The administration for some time has been studying the feasibility of agreeing with Russia to halt tests under strict controls to assure "no cheating." But Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, has been arguing for continued testing to develop anti-missile defenses and so-called "clean" H-bombs.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has been reported in favor of a halt.

The issue will likely be discussed when British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan comes here early next month for conferences with the President. MacMillan views could influence his decision. Britain, which still is developing its nuclear arsenal, needs more testing to perfect its weapons.

INFORMED sources said Saturday the trend of the administration study is toward an eventual suspension, but this likely would come only under a firm agreement with Russia which included international inspections.

The United States meantime is trying to get together with Russia and start technical experts, talking about methods to police disarmament agreements. Russia has expressed serious doubts as to the value of such talks but has agreed to begin working on ways to police a nuclear test ban.

The United States is now considering a reply to a Soviet note agreeing to limited technical discussions. It may be sent to Russia this week.

Billy Graham to Testify on Pornography

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham agreed Saturday to testify before a California interim subcommittee studying pornography if he is given time to prepare his testimony.

He commended the committee "for the excellent job it is doing" in bringing public attention to this "national scandal."

The North Carolina evangelist telephoned the San Mateo, Calif., Times Saturday and told the newspaper he would testify next week if the subcommittee chairman, Louis Francis (R-San Mateo), wanted him to do so.

Graham was subpoenaed by the committee Friday night as he prayed before 15,000 people attending his revival in the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Teenage Safe-Driving Road-ee Winners Show Expert Skills

A wide range of driving skills was exhibited Saturday by 46 young motorists participating in a Teenage Safe Driving Road-ee at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The event was sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Long Beach Police Department.

Winners of trophies were: First—Ted Branstine Jr., 17, of 3323 Centralia Ave.; second—Ronnie H. Dulin, 18, of 3704 Gaviota Ave.; and third—Veron Showalter, 18, of 1604 Termino Ave.

Officer Bob Aughton, police department advisor for car and offset driving and parallel parking in addition to a written event, said tests included examination on the state vehicle code.

Asks U.S., Red Arms Monopoly

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan proposed Saturday night a U. S.-Soviet partnership in a pact to withhold arms from the Middle East.

Lebanon is in upheaval there now. And Williams said the area is the most likely tinderbox for another war.

Williams, a possible contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, also urged the Eisenhower administration to break up its disarmament "package" and seek a U. S.-British-Russian monopoly of nuclear weapons. His intent is to reduce the chances of starting a nuclear war by accident.

His suggestion would prevent France, Red China or any other nation now without nuclear weapons from perfecting them.

Williams laid down what might be his personal foreign policy plank in an address at the national convention of the American Jewish Congress.

Robber Binds Jewelry Salesman, Flees Train With $100,000 Gems

CHICAGO (AP)—A jewelry salesman was robbed of $75,000 worth of gems early Saturday aboard a crack New York-to-Chicago train after he was overpowered and bound in his Pullman compartment.

Arthur King, 45, Miami Beach, Fla., was found by train crewmen as the train, the Pennsylvania railroad's "Admiral," passed through Ada, Ohio.

King told railroad police and FBI agents the robbery occurred about 1:45 a. m. (EDT).

AUTHORITIES said a check of the passenger list revealed a man left the train when it stopped at Altoona, Pa., at 2:15 a. m. The man had a ticket to Chicago, police said, but did not use his bed.

King said he left the lounge car of the luxury train about 1:30 a. m. and retired to his Fort Wayne, Ind., where FBI agents and railroad police write some letters. About 15 boarded the train to question him en route to Chicago.

His body bore no signs of violence other than tape burns, authorities said.

King said he opened his door and was confronted by a man who threw a blanket over his head and began taping his legs, arms and wrists. King's arms were bound behind his back, and he was placed on his compartment bed.

THE JEWELRY salesman said he was unable to summon help, and during the interval of almost eight hours before his discovery, he struggled to sound the buzzer and attract the porter. Finally, about 9:30 a. m., King said he reached the buzzer, and the train conductor and porter responded.

King was examined briefly at 1:30 a. m. and retired to his Fort Wayne, Ind., where FBI

Beirut City of Terror, Tranquillity for Americans

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP) — For Americans living in this usually pleasant Mediterranean capital, this week of strife has been a strange mixture of terror and tranquillity.

For some it has meant bombs blown off in the streets outside their homes in the dead of night.

But for others it has been the same life as before—with long hours on the city's warm, sunny beaches and only the faintest of hints of the turmoil that has shattered and divided it.

Girls in Bikini bathing suits took the sun in deck chairs by the side of the lush kidney-shaped swimming pool of the Excelsior Hotel right through the week.

ONLY YARDS away, grim Lebanese troops, dressed in battle fatigues and wearing helmets, stood guard, some hunching over machineguns, with chains of long brass 50-caliber bullets slung around their necks, glinting in the sun.

In the beautiful blue harbor, water skis crisscrossed foaming white wakes all week long, while calm Lebanese and foreign tourists sipped their drinks and watched from the terrace of St. George's Hotel.

In downtown areas of the city, black-veiled country women and shoppers plunged along streets which echoed to the crack of gunfire in nearby areas from time to time.

ON THE EASTERN side of the city, which is mainly christian in population, shops were open all week, many of them displaying pictures of President Canille Chamoun and Premier Sami Es-Solh in their windows.

Heavy Jamaica Rain

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — After the longest drought in years, island-wide rains have drenched Jamaica. In some areas swollen streams damaged bridges and blocked roads. Churchgoers had prayed for rain last Sunday.

But up the southern hill of Basta, leading to the race track, where many moslems are quartered, there were shuttered shops and burning barricades.

Some Americans were in the thick of it.

John and Lillian Craig, of San Francisco, woke up at 4 a.m. on Wednesday to the crash of a bomb shaking their ground-floor apartment and then a rain of shattered glass.

THEY RUSHED to the front of the apartment to find glass spattered on the beds of their two children, Kim, 6 and Sikica, 2. But neither of the children was hurt.

Harry Walker, of Port Arthur, Tex., an employee of the Trans-Arabian Pipeline Co. (Tapline) was told by the company early in the week to move his apartment on the fringe of the Basta Moslem sector. He had been living there, nervous but untouched, in the early stages of the disturbances.

WALKER MOVED to the Hotel Commodore. Two hours after he unpacked his bags, terrorists exploded a bomb outside his hotel room window.

Tapline's vice President

William Chandler, of San Francisco, had to rush his wife, Claire, who was expecting a baby to the hospital in the pre-dawn hours of Tuesday. The city streets, patrolled by police, were deserted following the imposition of a strict curfew. But the police cooperated and passed the car quickly through two roadblocks en route to the American hospital.

It was a boy—born shortly after arrival at the hospital.

L. B. Bar Assn. Provides Legal Aid for Navy Men at Low Cost

Officers Refer Cases to Local Committeemen

By DON MADDOCK

Seaman X walked into Comdr. Geoffrey Carlisle's office recently with a problem.

His wife was running around with another man and he wanted a divorce. Could the commander help him?

Comdr. Carlisle, who is the Navy's legal assistance officer at Terminal Island, couldn't be of direct help. Service personnel, even those admitted to a state bar, can't represent anyone in civilian court.

But, thanks to a cooperative program with Long Beach Bar Assn., the commander was able to tell the seaman where to find competent assistance at a reasonable price.

THERE ARE MANY Seamen X's in this area, and a half dozen years ago the 11th Naval District and the local bar worked out a system to aid them.

Here's how it works:

When a serviceman tells his armed forces legal officer a problem which the officer can't handle, the matter is transferred to the Long Beach bar group's Military Assistance Committee.

The committee's chairman—this year it's Atty. Edwin C. Illiff—interviews each referral without charge.

Then he assigns the case to one of 13 committee members, who handle service cases on a rotation basis.

GROUP MEMBERS, most of whom had service experience, are pledged to represent their military clients at minimum fees and to accept installment payments (most servicemen can't pay lump sums) while providing the best service possible.

Most committee business comes from Comdr. Carlisle, a Kansas lawyer who was legal officer for the 1st Marine division in Korea and later headed the Judge Advocate General's Office International Law Branch in Washington.

But close coordination also is maintained with the other two area military legal officers—Comdr. Ashton Miller, representing Commander, Mine Forces Pacific, and Capt. Roy Adecock of Long Beach Air Force Base.

Comdr. Carlisle's office is a busy one.

In the last six months of 1957, it had 1,179 Navy and Marine Corps members and dependents as clients.

MANY HAD PROBLEMS which Comdr. Carlisle could handle — powers of attorney, drafting simple documents, wills and writing letters to creditors.

The more serious matters, requiring civilian assistance, mainly were domestic problems—divorce, child custody, support, adoptions, etc.

One hundred and forty-one men were referred to the bar association.

Ninety had domestic relations problems. The rest were involved in other civil issues such as suits stemming from auto accidents.

Servicemen naturally can hire any attorney they wish. The legal officers recommend, rather than order, that they go through the committee.

THE LEGAL OFFICER starts the ball rolling by sending a three-part postcard to Illiff.

The top section informs Illiff who is being referred and his general problem.

Illiff sends the middle segment back to the military, confirming the initial interview and reporting which committee member was assigned the case.

The assigned attorney returns the other third. It announces disposition of the case.

ADA Votes Against Red China Entry

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Americans for Democratic Action Saturday defeated a move calling for admission of Red China into the United Nations.

It then approved a statement urging an immediate halt in U.S. nuclear weapons tests.

The ADA annual convention also adopted a statement attacking both major political parties and calling for "bold and liberal proposals to solve our common problems."

THE PROPOSAL to admit Red China to the U.N. came from the floor of the ADA convention. It was offered on behalf of a majority of the New York delegation by Herbert Robinson of New York City.

After brief debate, the motion was defeated by a large majority on a show of hands.

In urging immediate halting of U.S. nuclear tests, the ADA statement said the United States at the same time should move in the U.N. to set up a system of inspection.

'THREE WISE MONKEYS'

State Dept. Suddenly Tongueless, Earless

WASHINGTON (UP)—Strange things are happening at the State Department.

Old friends pass you by. And others act like the three wise monkeys—see no evil, speak no evil, and hear no evil.

The situation, as it concerns keeping the American people informed on U.S. foreign policy, is both grave and ludicrous.

The grave view was taken this week by the State Department Correspondents' Association. This is the group of reporters who have the State Department and foreign policy as their beat.

They protested to the department that new instructions to its officers were restricting and limiting the free flow of news. The department denied there was any gag on news.

DEPARTMENT spokesmen said old regulations, long winked at, had been put back in force. They declined to say why. But it was open secret that top State Department officials were disturbed about recent news leaks.

The old rules:

1. Refer all news queries to the department's public affairs section, if possible.
2. Alternately, have a public affairs officer with you when you talk to reporters.
3. If this is not done, make a memo of all conversations you have with reporters and pass the memo around the department.
4. Don't talk about anything outside your immediate "area of competence."

When these instructions went out, the strange things started to happen. Old friendships waned and the tongueless, sightless, earless made their appearances.

One day a reporter went to lunch with a State Department official. Next day he called him up and was told flatly by the official, "I don't know you."

Drill in Lake Erie

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—New York Natural Gas Corp. Saturday moved a drilling rig into position on Lake Erie and made ready to sink the first exploratory natural gas well ever attempted on the American side of the lake.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR HARD OF HEARING

To all readers of the Independent Press-Telegram the Diagnostic Office will give the first treatment for only $3.00.

According to the Basic Diagnostic Office it is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, "We have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Once they try this new and proved method they are amazed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment."

The treatment is simple, it consists of three steps, and takes about 15 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to a conductive condition, treatment is given. If it is a bone condition, the tympanic oscillations treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing people will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a discovery as insulin was for diabetes.

We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment, including an ear examination, for only $3.00 providing you bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

PLUNGES INTO POLITICS

CONGRESS CALENDAR

Father of The Year Contest Nears Close

Only five days remain to submit entries in the big annual Father of the Year Contest sponsored by the Independent Press-Telegram.

Deadline will be midnight Friday and only letters postmarked on or before that time will be submitted to the panel of judges.

Awaiting the winner are many valuable prizes as well as a big trophy proclaiming the victor as Father of the Year.

Nominees do not have to be residents of Long Beach. They must, however, reside within the area covered by The Independent Press-Telegram.

Letters of 100 words or less must be mailed to the Father of the Year Contest Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

NOMINATIONS should list various reasons why you feel the person named should receive the title. Judges will determine the winner strictly on merit and not on the writing ability of the person making the nomination.

Knowland Picnic Stars Zasu Pitts

By BOB HOUSER

Screen and TV comedienne Zasu Pitts, the 100-piece Long Beach Youth Band, the only baby elephant in the U. S., free ice cream, soft drinks, coffee and balloons are the fare for a "Rollin' with Knowland" public picnic Tuesday at 5:30 p. m. in Bixby Park.

A 30-car motorcade will escort the Knowland bus, bearing Mrs. Helen Knowland and their two daughters, from Santa Fe Ave. and Pacific Coast Hwy. to the picnic site.

Grace Bixby, picnic chairman, said the public is invited and persons are asked to bring their own box lunches.

She said this will be the only major appearance in Long Beach on the part of anyone in the Knowland campaign family.

JAMES H. ROCKE, 41, Compton-Lynwood realtor, Democratic candidate for 23rd Congressional District, said Saturday his opponent, incumbent Clyde Doyle, is a "nice old man" but that "14 years of the same thinking in this important office must be changed for a fresh outlook."

Rocke said district voters should not expect a "man nearly 75 to stand the strain of the fast pace in the nation's capital." He contended that some progressive thinking could easily break the log jam of banks and savings institutions "bulging with money." He said year-to-year planning is antiquated and that "20-year planning should be the order of the day in Washington."

STATE SEN. Richard Richards will spend Monday in Long Beach, capping the day's schedule of appearances with a major address at 8 p. m. in the YWCA Auditorium, 6th St. and Pacific Ave.

Assembly Candidates Joseph M. Kennick and Tom Griffin and 18th Congressional District (Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill) candidate Harry S. May will appear with Richards at the YWCA meeting.

Coy Sanders, president of the West Side Democratic Club,

sponsors of the meeting, pointed out that Richards' 38th District comprises the whole of Los Angeles County with its 5,660,972 people, 31 of the state's 80 Assembly districts and 43 per cent of the state's population.

THREE ORGANIZATIONS have denied endorsements claimed by Assemblyman Herbert R. Klockslem. (R-44th District-western Long Beach).

The Teachers Assn. of Long Beach, the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. and the California Real Estate Board said they did not make such an endorsement.

Klockslem, informed of the denials, issued his apologies and pointed out he had received communications of commendation from the groups and had construed them as endorsements.

TOM GRIFFIN, Democratic candidate for 70th Assembly District (eastern Long Beach), has proposed a tax exemption for the small businessman to repay him for the "bookkeeping he does for the government."

Speaking to the Belmont Shore Business Assn., Griffin said, "After a normal day's work, the small operator must spend hours on keeping books for the government on such matters as sales tax, withholdings, social security deductions and numerous other unproductive tasks."

Deadline May 26 for Tax Declaration on Property

May 26 is a quadruple deadline for Long Beach property owners.

It's the last day for filing claims for veteran's exemption both at the county and city assessor's offices.

And it's also the deadline for filing declarations of personal property at both those offices.

Veterans who fail to file—or have their spouses do so—will lose their $1,000 valuation exemption for the tax year.

And property owners who neglect to enter their own declarations will have arbitrary valuations fixed by the two assessing agencies.

SOME PROPERTY owners filed both papers when deputies called at their homes in recent weeks. These do not need to file again.

Both the county's and city's assessing period ends at 5 p.m. March 26. The county office has virtually completed its work. City Assessor J. R. Cole reported that his special staff will finish the job by Wednesday of this week.

Claims and declarations may be filed at County Assessor John R. Quinn's branch office at 100 E. Ocean Blvd. and at Cole's office in the city hall.

Ex-Justice Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—George M. Sloss, 89, justice of the State Supreme Court from 1906 to 1919 and member of a pioneer California family, died Saturday in his suite in the Cliff Hotel after a long illness.

POPPIES BLOOM AGAIN

Poppy Days will be sponsored here Friday and Saturday by Samuel Thomas Unit of American Legion Auxiliary. Selling the first paper flower to Vice Mayor Virgil Sponberg is Louis Sanders, poppy chairman. Replicas are made by hospitalized veterans and proceeds go to aid disabled ex-soldiers.

LOSES 78 POUNDS

Dieters Honor L.B. Entry

Mrs. Bonnie Hughes of Long Beach, who has lost 78 pounds during the past year, was one of the champion dieters last week attending the national convention in Milwaukee of TOPS, which stands for "Take Off Pounds Sensibly." She didn't even approach the record set by the top reducing champion, Weldon T. Yarbrough of Milwaukee. Yarbrough has trimmed his original 431 pounds down to a comparatively slyph-like 228.

Top weight-loser among the women was Mrs. Anne Buzkowski of Gary, Ind., who weighed 275 pounds last year and only 147 on Saturday.

Norwegians Pay Tribute to Lodgeman

A plaque "for outstanding service" to the Sons of Norway lodge was presented Saturday night to John A. Hadland, 321 E. 6th St.

Hadland is a past president of Fridtjof Nansen Lodge No. 9 of the organization.

The presentation was made in Norway Hall, 683 Redond Ave., at a Norway Independence Day observance.

Karl Reese, social director of the lodge, presented the plaque Hadland's second award of the week. Earlier, Hadland received the "President of the Year" award presented by the lodge national headquarters in Minneapolis.

Hadland has served as lodge president three different years since Norway Hall was opened in May 1953.

Lodge members term Hadland their "dollar a year" man. As a result, a $5 check—for five years of outstanding service—was imbedded in the plaque.

10,000 Purchase Scout Tickets

Ticket sales for the Scout-O-Rama are nearing the 10,000 mark. Chairman Al Code said Saturday.

Boy Scouts from each of the 12 Long Beach Scout districts will take part in the show Saturday in Veterans Memorial Stadium. Gates will be open from 2 to 8 p.m.

Playwright Herbert Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—F. Hugh Herbert, 60, author, playwright and screenwriter, died Saturday of lung cancer.

Two of his biggest successes were "Kiss and Tell" and "The Moon Is Blue." Originally Broadway plays, both were adapted later to motion pictures. Herbert, born in Vienna and educated in England, arrived in the United States in 1920. Three years later he came to Hollywood as a screenwriter.

AN EARLY Broadway success was his play "For Love or Money," which catapulted June Lockhart into stardom.

"Kiss and Tell," which ran for 950 performances on Broadway, was based on the antics of his two daughters, then teenagers. Shirley Temple starred in the movie.

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved techniques," used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates natural in "appearance," better fitting and more more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. 1000 dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

BEACH COMBING
WITH MALCOLM EPLEY

AMONG the sporting gentry, I note, there's quite a hassle going on over the dates for the 1958 deer hunting season in Los Angeles County. The big question is whether it should be an early or a late season.

That there's an argument over deer is not surprising, as deer hunters and game officials are always in hot discussion. But it may be surprising to some that there are deer in this county to argue about.

It's true that L. A. County, which boasts just about the biggest concentration of human population in the western world, also has a lot of deer. Fish and game people estimate there are between 12,000 and 14,000 of the animals in the county. Last season hunters bagged 875 of them in the relatively few areas that are open to shooting.

It all goes to show that Los Angeles County has everything.

IN THE COUNTRY I came from, up near the Oregon-California border, a tremendous battle has raged for a couple of decades or longer about deer.

In particular, the ruckus was about a collection of 25,000 or so deer called the "interstate herd." It wasn't always clear exactly what the issues were, but mention the interstate herd in any company up there and you would touch off a violent argument. Occasionally there would be a big flareup over the legal shooting of does, which some advocated as a means of reducing the herd to equality with the available browse.

Such a battle was raging at full tide when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. For once there came a lull in the fight about deer. The belligerents shut up and joined forces against the Japanese.

WHILE on the subject of wild life, I'm pleased to report results of a query here about recipes for cooking 'possum. It came from a local medical man who acquired a family of young 'possums and has decided to liquidate a few in the pot or roasting pan.

This animal abounds in this area, and in the early days, before the bulldozers and subdividers tore up the countryside, there were millions of them around. A recipe for baked 'possum has been contributed by a woman who remembers how the 'possums ran in herds in the river bottom near the Virginia Country Club.

Here's her recipe for baked 'possum:

Have the butcher skin, peel and scrape the animal, being sure to cut off the rat-like tail and throw it away. 'Possums are very fat and the fat must be removed.

Cut up the carcass like a rabbit, shake the pieces in a bag full of seasoned flour, brown lightly in fat and place in a deep casserole. To this add two cups of milk and three-fourths cup sherry. Cover the casserole and bake about an hour and a half—less for a small 'possum.

"It's simply delicious," said this informant. "Serve it with hominy grits apple sauce and hot biscuits."

This lady happens to be an interior decorator, and says it has been far too long since she has decorated her interior with some luscious baked 'possum.

(Thanks, also, to Mrs. H. H. Gerloff, 4047 Fairman, Lakewood, for another formula for preparing 'possum. I'm sending all contributions along to the doc, and he can let us know how he fares. As for me, I'm going to let the medico eat the 'possum without my help.)

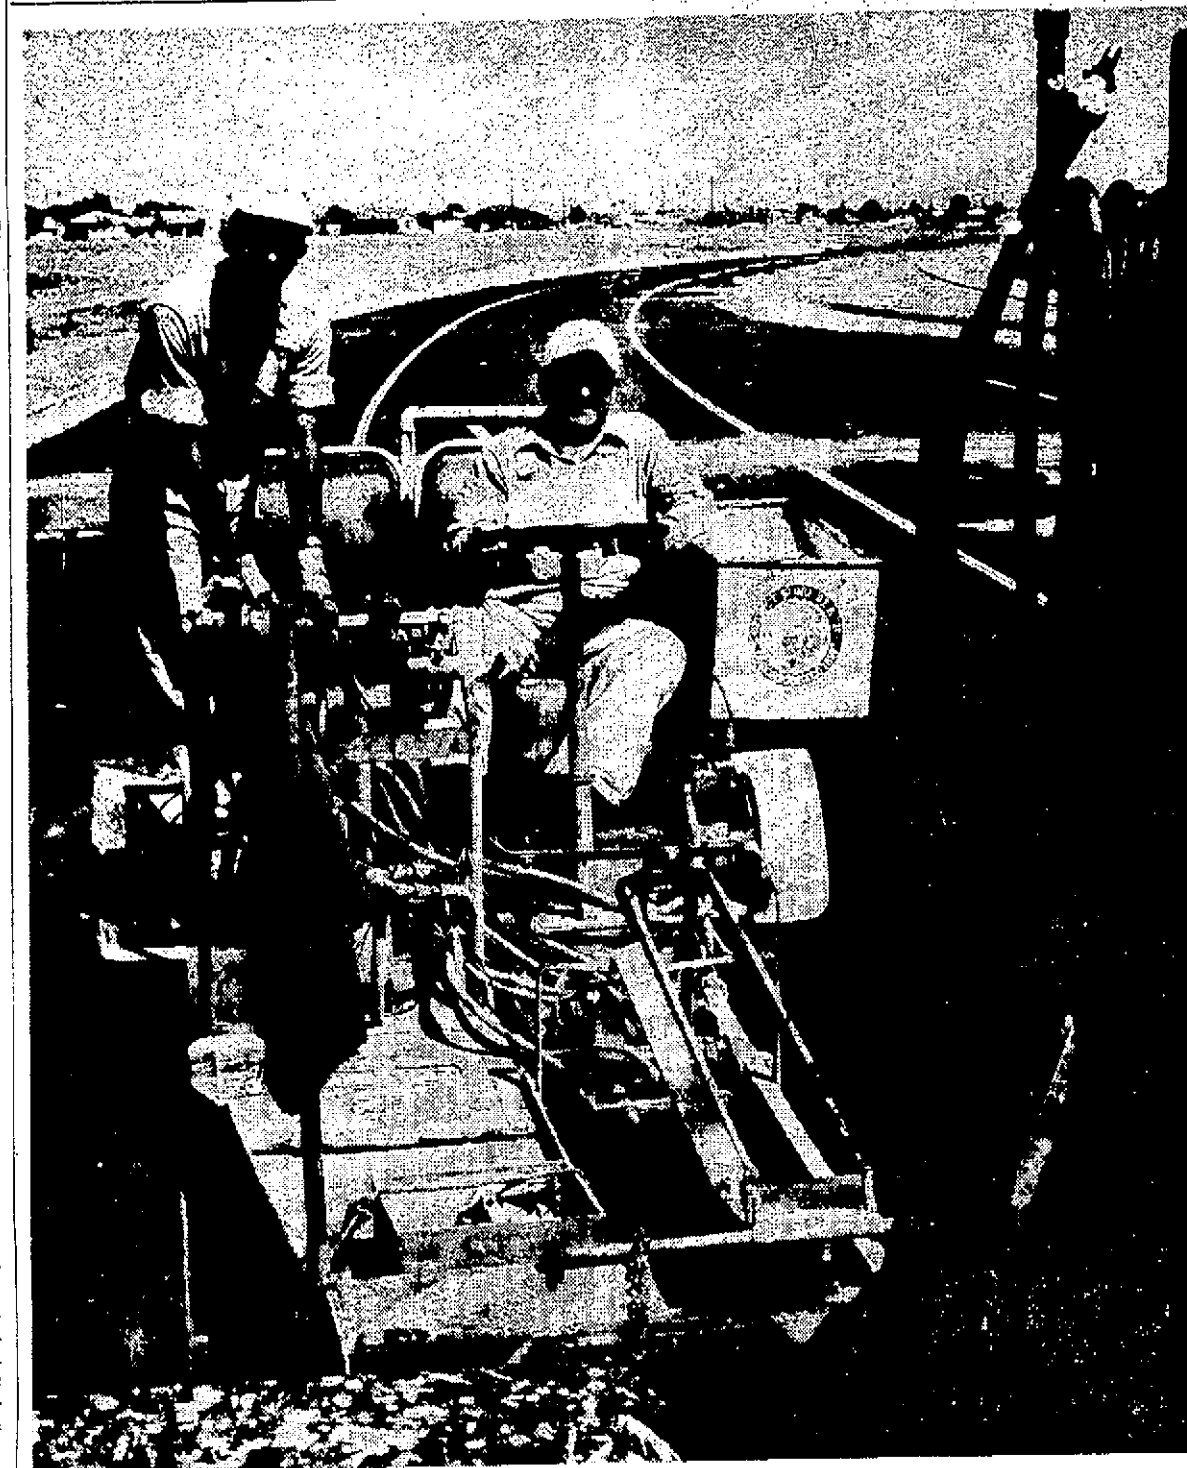

IT'S TIME to wind up the little contest this dept. is sponsoring on the subject, "What's Right About Long Beach." Tuesday, May 20, is the last day for submission of letters, between 500 and 600 words long, on this topic.

There has been a pleasing response to this contest and it is apparent a lot of people think there are many things right about Long Beach, despite the weekly quota of gripes that hit this column.

Our well qualified panel of judges is ready to go to work. The winner will get a $50 U. S. Savings bond, and second place prize will be a $25 bond.

If you're interested, now is the time to write.

Scheduled for June 1 completion is the new Spring St. roadway through a tunnel, companion to the Lakewood Blvd. tunnel in Municipal Airport runway project. DC8 Backlog Assures Long Employment

The backlog of DC8 jet transport orders will assure a "substantial level of employment" in Long Beach for years to come, a Douglas Aircraft Co. official said Saturday at dedication of Municipal Airport's diagonal runway extension.

Work already has begun on the 13th DC8, K. G. Farrar, vice president and general manager of Douglas' Long Beach division, said.

"WITH OUR PRESENT orders, employment will peak at about 20,000 the middle of this year and then stabilize at a somewhat lower level through the rest of 1958 and 1959," he explained.

Farrar expressed the company's thanks to the public for voting the $5,500,000 bond issue which financed extension of the runway. That extension was necessary because big jets need longer stretches for safe take-offs and landings.

As he spoke, the first of the sleek DC8s was parked nearby, attracting crowds of viewers. Saturday's runway dedication was its first full-fledged public appearance.

The plane will be flown to Edwards Air Force Base sometime after May 26 for flight testing.

Extension of the airport's diagonal runway increases its length to 9,280 feet. A second extension, for which a contract will be awarded within a few weeks, will bring the total length to 10,000 feet.

Juvenile Crime Increases Here, But Not at the Nationwide Rate

By FRED BOLINGER

How does juvenile crime in Long Beach compare with that throughout the nation? FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says that juveniles accounted for 47.2 per cent of major crime arrests in 1957.

That is not true in Long Beach.

Here boys and girls under 18 accounted for only 9 per cent of the total of 13,435 major crime arrests. Juvenile Bureau Director Joseph M. Kennick said.

MAJOR CRIMES include murder, robbery, burglary, rape, narcotics, grand theft auto and grand theft.

However, major juvenile crime did increase 15.1 per cent last year over 1956. This is in line with the nationwide gain in that type of crime, Kennick pointed out.

AT THE SAME TIME Capt. of Detectives Lorin Q. Martin said that adult crime was up 10.3 per cent in 1957 over the previous year. In 1955-56, 98 girls and 953 boys were involved in major crimes here, a total of 1,051.

In 1956-57, the figures were 107 girls and 1,103 boys, total 1,210.

Police arrested 11,078 adults for major crimes in 1956 and 12,225 in 1957.

AWARDS WEDNESDAY

12 Students Win Honors

Twelve Long Beach high school students will be presented outstanding boy or girl awards Wednesday by the Exchange Club. Their names were announced Saturday.

The club annually selects the outstanding boy and girl in each of the high schools in the Long Beach area. The selection is made on the basis of a point system compiled from the sophomore year through the first half of the senior year.

CONSIDERED ARE scholastic record, citizenship, school activities, club activities, sports participation and an essay. This year's essay topic was "America's Strongest Weapon—Democracy."

The presentation program begins at noon Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel, with Bernard E. McCune as program chairman.

PRESIDING WILL BE the club president, Ross McKee.

Jordan High School: Hal Stueber, 600 Devon Pl., and Connie Murray, 2925 Cade St.; Lakewood: Robert S. Smith, 3509 Mairman St., and Mary Ann Campbell, 4214 Clark Ave.; Millikan: Richard Conte, 2739 Hackett Ave., and Janice Badgley, 5120 Walton St.; Polytechnic: Stephen Williams, 2651 Lime Ave., and Judy Shell, 2774 Easy Ave.; St. Anthony's: Thomas Patrick Noonan, 1200 E. Tichenor, Compton, and Francine Storey, 600 Olive Ave.; and Wilson: Robert L. Turk, 219 Belmont Ave., and Sandra Steel, 667 Grand Ave.

Woman Erroneously Identified in Fire

A story in Saturday's Press-Telegram erroneously identified Gladys Harris Wertzner as occupant of a room at 612 W. Ocean Blvd. where a fire caused damage earlier in the day.

Mrs. Wertzner actually is owner of the building, and lives off the premises.

The Press-Telegram regrets this error.

Vote Today on Douglas Pact Offer

Members of United Auto Workers, Local 148, will meet in Veterans Memorial Stadium at 1 p.m. today to vote on a new contract proposed by Douglas Aircraft Co.

Three special buses will leave Broadway and Locust Ave. at 12:15 p.m., to carry union members to the mass meeting.

Union officials have urged all 11,000 local members to attend the session. The contract proposal will be submitted to the members without recommendation—but, as one union spokesman explained, "We want the decision to be made by all the members, and not by just a few."

Douglas employees at Torrance, El Segundo and Santa Monica will vote on a contract next Sunday.

In Downey, 15,000 members of UAW Local 887 will vote at 10 a. m. today on North American Aviation's contract offer.

Serving Commerce Chamber, Men of Action Map Progress

By JAMES A. ALLEN

Each Monday, 36 Long Beach business leaders sit down to lunch and discuss the welfare of Long Beach.

These men are directors of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. At their weekly meeting they study reports submitted by 600 other businessmen who are members of the Chamber's 29 committees, which meet at least once a month.

The directors and committeemen represent the Chamber's membership of 2,800, who work together to build a better Long Beach.

John E. Biby, Chamber president for 1958 and controller at the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant here, believes committee work is the most important function of the Chamber.

HE NOTED that many civic improvements which are a reality today got their start in a Chamber committee. For example, in 1923, the committee on Alamitos Bay envisioned a small boat harbor which we see today in the Long Beach Marina.

Before a committee submits a policy resolution to the board of directors it conducts exhaustive study and hears pro and con arguments by committeemen. The directors recently adopted the policy of taking major issues to the entire membership by postcard poll and asking how they think the Chamber should act.

"The method we use in adopting policies assures us that we are getting the viewpoint of all people and that the solution we reach is the best for the progress of the city," Biby said.

WHAT DOES THE CHAMBER OFFER for its members? Biby puts it this way:

"The Chamber of Commerce is a meeting place for people interested in seeing the city go forward. Progressive-thinking people can exchange ideas and follow through to eventual accomplishment. The Chamber gives the man who wants to express his ideas a place to do so."

The Long Beach Chamber began as the Board of Trade in 1891 and changed its name to the Chamber of Commerce in 1918. It was incorporated under the laws of the state of California in 1918.

Today, it is situated in its own building at 121 Linden Ave. and has a staff of 19, headed by general manager D. W. Campbell, who has held the job 13 years.

Each year, the Chamber receives 13,000 to 15,000 letters from persons throughout the U. S. asking about Long Beach and its advantages. The inquiries come from school children who are preparing term papers, from persons who think they might like to live here and from industries.

Two secretaries work fulltime answering general inquiries. Other staff members answer more specific letters from industrial concerns.

THE CHAMBER PRINTS 20,000 COPIES annually of two pamphlets which outline industrial opportunities and give plant site data. These are sent to 6,000 selected industrial concerns, industrial realtors, libraries, banks and other organizations and in answer to inquiries.

A brochure, "Beautiful, Exciting Long Beach IS Southern California," has a run of 50,000 copies annually. It is sent to individuals outside Long Beach and to airline, bus, steamship and railroad offices, travel bureaus and motor associations.

CAMPBELL EXPLAINED that part of the Chamber's program is to train the businessman in the things which affect him, such as new legislation, economic conditions and tax problems.

Thursday, 200 Chamber members will conduct a one-day drive to obtain at least 400 new members to enable the organization to enlarge its activities and meet new demands of next year.

Groundbreak Ceremonies Programmed

Construction of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach gets under way today with groundbreaking ceremonies at Linden Ave. and Columbia St.

The public is invited to witness the program, which begins at 2 p.m.

The new hospital is the largest public improvement ever financed from municipal bond funds here.

The five-story, 400-bed facility is a joint city-community project. Although $6,650,000 in bond money was allotted for the structure, its eventual cost as a completed and fully equipped facility is expected to top 10 million dollars.

THE BALANCE will be financed from public subscriptions sparked over a period of many months by the Inter-Hospital Committee, along with payments totaling $1,400,000 by Seaside Memorial Hospital to the city.

Groundbreaking ceremonies have been planned jointly by city officials, the Seaside Hospital Board (which will operate the new hospital) and the Inter-Hospital Committee.

Hundreds are expected to attend the event, first of a series of hospital programs this week.

Douglas Newcomb, superintendent of schools, will be master of ceremonies. Speakers will include Mayor Raymond C. Keeler; Clare D. Hamman, chairman of the Inter-Hospital Committee; and Earl Burns Miller, former chairman.

THE MAYOR and L. V. Cassidy, president of Seaside's board of trustees, will turn the first spadeful of earth.

Dr. Dwight H. Murray, past president of the American Medical Assn., will address a medical symposium Wednesday in Lafayette Hotel. The symposium will be the first to be conducted by the attending staff of the new Memorial Hospital.

Staff members will present papers and participate in panel discussions in four sections—medicine, surgery, pediatrics and obstetrics-gynecology.

Dr. Murray also will address a luncheon meeting of Seaside's board of trustees Wednesday.

EIGHTH ANNUAL commencement of the Seaside Hospital School of Vocational Nursing will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday in City Health Dept. Auditorium. Forty-nine graduates will be honored.

New officers of the alumnae group of Seaside Hospital School of Registered Nursing, which was discontinued in 1940, will be installed here Tuesday.

Community Hospital will hold open house in its new 50-bed $340,000 Convalescent Bldg. from 2 to 5 p.m. next Sunday, with a formal dedication set for 4 p.m. The new structure will begin receiving patients June 1.

VIE FOR TRIPS

I, P-T Boys in Contests

Seeking expense-paid vacations to San Francisco and Camp Seely, more than 1,900 Independent Press-Telegram newspaperboys have begun a subscription race.

Two-day trips to San Francisco will be awarded to the boys signing up 30 or more new subscribers before June 6.

Boys who write nine or more new subscriptions will be in line for three-day trips to Camp Seely in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Where's Business? It's HERE!

FACT NO. 17...

Automobiles and automotive product sales in the Long Beach-Lakewood area jumped a whopping 18.7% ... from $111,786,000 in 1956 to $132,727,000 ... last year. That's $862 for every family! The business is here! ... for automobile dealers and you, too. But you'll have to go after it with old-fashioned selling.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Manacled Deputy Slays Prisoner

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP)—A deputy sheriff whose wrists were handcuffed behind him managed to reach a concealed pistol and kill a prisoner who was trying to escape from a train Saturday, police reported.

Officers said Sgt. Donald E. Elsworth of the Los Angeles Police Department fired once at his prisoner, James Calvin Jones, 30. The .38-caliber bullet struck Jones in the neck, apparently killing him instantly.

The prisoner had disarmed Elsworth and shackled him with his own handcuffs. Elsworth and another Los Angeles officer were taking Jones from the state penitentiary at Nashville, Tenn., to California where he faced charges of armed robbery.

Gasoline Blast Kills 15

PARIS (AP)—An overflowing gasoline station tank exploded Saturday with a blockbusting fury that killed at least 15 persons, including six children who had run to the scene to watch the excitement.

Police listed 15 known dead, two missing and 35 injured seriously enough to be hospitalized. Five boys and one girl were among the dead. They had gathered at the garage door to watch firemen working to prevent the explosion. Three firemen also were killed.

The wife of the station owner and a garage foreman were missing and believed trapped or buried in the debris of the five-story station building which collapsed with the explosion.

Hungary Executes 4

BUDAPEST (AP)—Hungary announced Saturday the execution of four men convicted of trying to overthrow the Communist regime after the suppression of the 1956 revolt.

They were identified as Laszlo Balogh, Geza Pech, Jozsef Gerlei and Bela Bekesi. Two others were sentenced to life imprisonment and 10 more to jail terms of 1 to 14 years.

Montgomery's Brother Dies

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Harold Robert Montgomery, older brother of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, died Saturday at Kiambu, near Nairobi. His age and cause of death were not announced, but he had been in poor health for a long time. Montgomery formerly was chief native commissioner for Kenya. He retired in 1937.

Woman, 100, Cooks Banquet

OSWEGO, N. Y. (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Bockeno celebrated her 100th birthday Saturday by preparing a banquet for 10 visiting cousins.

She served scalloped potatoes, salad, cold meat and ice cream. A cousin, Mrs. Minnie Donaldson of Lethbridge, Alberta, who is only 89, baked the cake.

Mrs. Bockeno suffered a fractured left hip about a year ago but she gets around without crutches or cane. Her husband, Seeley, is 89.

Author Will Lecture for Adult Group

Mrs. Mamie Krythe will address members of City College General Adult Division writing class at 7 p.m. Monday in Room 419 of Wilson Adult Center. The program is open to the public.

Mrs. Krythe is the author of many magazine articles, the book "All About Christmas" and a biography of Phineas Banning recently published by the California Historical Society.

Two continuing lecture programs are also scheduled this week:

TUESDAY
Exploring the Northwest — Herbert Williams, "The Columbia River and Peaks of Washington," 8 p.m., Jordan High School choral room.

WEDNESDAY
Parent Problems—Dr. Marion Durice, "Building Strength in Our Children," 7:30 p.m., Mark Twain School auditorium, Centralia and Clark Ave.

Youth Will Hear Talk on Rockets

Dr. James E. Meinhard, head of the chemistry section of Hughes Products, will speak on the design and firing of small rockets at an open meeting of the Library Youth Council at 7 p.m. Monday at Alamitos Branch Library, 1836 E. Third St.

High school and college students are invited.

Meinhard, who has been affiliated with rocket societies in an advisory capacity, will show films depicting three launchings of experimental rockets and will exhibit rockets which have already been fired. He will discuss fuels, hazards and the basic chemical processes involved.

Mrs. Doris Watts, coordinator of work with young people at the Public Library, will introduce the speaker.

BALDWIN PARK (AP)—A man in his middle 40s, wearing sunglasses, robbed a service station manager of $2,500 in cash Saturday, police reported.

Alexander Kobel, 50, said the robber followed him into the station, brandished a gun and demanded, "Open the safe if you want to live!"

CHANDLER NO DE GAULLIST

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky Gov. A. B. Chandler said Saturday it would be a bad thing if Gen. Charles deGaulle gained power in France. "You know," Chandler said, "President Roosevelt told me about him. De Gaulle thinks he's Joan of Arc."

Port Wasteland Oasis Drying Up

Last Store to Close in Ghost Town

By GEORGE ERES

The last oasis for the winos in the harbor department's ghost town is drying up.

Rola's Market, 36 Santa Barbara, will close its doors in the next month or so. The building will go the way of most of the other shanty-type structures that have spotted the condemned area between Seaside Blvd. and Water St. west of Pico Blvd.

The Harbor Department policy to purchase the 40-block area was adopted in 1952 and through a maze of title searches, negotiations and court suits all but a few of the properties now have been acquired. There were 254 parcels in the 68-acre area—most of them acquired through negotiations, according to Max Durham of the Harbor Department's right-of-way division.

Theo. Rola, 60, who owns Rola's market is the last private owner-business man to go.

HIS WAS ONE of approximately four markets that served the once heavily congested residential and commercial area that had its hey-day in the mid-20s. It had 100 per cent occupancy during the war, many of the tenants sleeping in "hot beds" on a 24-hour basis by day and night shift workers.

As to the morals of the area, Durham said he couldn't say, but the district's decline started about 1945. Meanwhile, down in the oil zones, things were happening. The land had sunk from 1 to 9 feet by 1952.

People in the area were faced with possible flooding, subsidence had reversed drainage, gas pipes broke creating fire hazard.

The Harbor Department moved to condemn. The structures torn down and to be torn down in many instances aren't worth the cost of removal.

Vinson Eyes Anti-Sinking Action Here

By WILLIAM BROOM
(of I.P.T. Capital Staff)

WASHINGTON—The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee Saturday said he hopes a bill of particulars on anti-subsidence action will prove effective at Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

"The shipyard is an important element of our naval establishment," said Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.). "It would indeed be unfortunate if subsidence continued to such an extent as to make the facility less useful."

Vinson's remarks were released in an exchange of correspondence with Rep. Craig Hosmer (Rep.-Long Beach). His committee on armed services holds the fate of the shipyard in its hands and is expected to begin hearings on the 1959 military construction bill by the end of May.

Hosmer outlined the city's eight-point program in letters to Navy Secretary Thomas A. Gatos, Vinson, Armed Services Committee counsel Phillip W. Kelleher, and Rep. Harry R. Sheppard (D-Calif.), chairman of the Military Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee.

THE EIGHT-POINT anti-subsidence program can be characterized as "prompt, aggressive and effective actions toward solution of the difficult subsidence control problem," Hosmer told them.

When the Armed Services Committee sent an investigation team to the shipyard last year, it recommended against further large scale spending to repair damage caused by land sinkage.

The committee cut back the Navy's 1958 request by $3 million. When this year's budget was submitted, it contained only $500,000 although Navy officials had introduced a supplementary recommendation for upping it to $6 million after the legislature voted subsidence remedial legislation.

The spending slowdown was recommended by the committee "until there is full evidence that every possible action is being taken to prevent subsidence" in the area.

HOSMER SAID he outlined the city's eight-point program in an effort to convince the committee leadership that "every possible action" is being taken. The program as explained to him by city officials consists of:

1. The comprehensive Subsidence Control Law enacted by the legislature.
2. A city charter amendment approved March 4 giving the city legal authority to enter into repressurization agreements in an effort to halt subsidence.
3. Extraordinary legal authority to use immediately public funds to finance repressurization operations on both public and private lands.
4. Intensive expansion of present repressurizing operations by flooding the oil field with underground water.
5. The crash program currently under way among private and public oil operators to compile a field-wide engineering program under the new legislative act.
6. The current negotiations between public and private operators aimed at setting up a unitized field repressurization agreement.
7. Complete community support as evidenced by the petition for anti-subsidence legislation signed by 45,000 individual citizens.
8. The ban on offshore drilling operations voted by the citizen in 1956, which is continuing in full force and effect.

ACKNOWLEDGING the Hosmer letter, Vinson said he was "most happy" to learn of the "extensive actions."

City in New Plea to Present Case on Air Service

The City of Long Beach and the Chamber of Commerce have filed another application with the Civil Aeronautics Board for participation in talks on airline service in this area.

Last week, the chamber filed for permission to participate in such proceedings with the purpose of obtaining transcontinental airline service for the greater Long Beach area.

If successful in its presentation, the joint city-chamber delegation could be credited with frequent direct commercial air service between Long Beach and San Francisco, Sacramento, Reno, Las Vegas, Palm Springs and San Diego.

L.B. Beauty Picked by Harbor Club

Betty Ferguson, 22, 5 feet, 5 1/2 inches tall, with brown hair and blue eyes, is Miss Harbor Transportation Club.

The Long Beach girl will be hostess at the Club's "Miss Universe Night" dinner July 17 at the Lafayette Hotel. Twenty-five contestants will be guests.

Betty is secretary to M. A. Duncan, general production manager of food at the Procter & Gamble plant.

Representatives of shipping and carrying firms and industries make up the Harbor Transportation Club, of which John Patterson is president.

FOREIGN FLAVOR Disneyland Event Opens Trade Week

The 32nd annual World Trade Week beginning today will feature a wide variety of foreign-flavor events, starting off with a program this afternoon at Disneyland.

Miss World Trade, Barbara Stewart, will lead a colorful parade down Disneyland's Main St. to touch off a program of band music, songs, dances and fashions from around the world.

BIGGEST EVENT during the week will be a National Maritime Day luncheon Thursday at the American President Lines terminal in Wilmington. Speaker will be Ralph B. Dewey, president of the Pacific American Steamship Assn., whose topic will be "West Coast Shipping at the Crossroads."

Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors will host the public next Sunday, Harbor Day, with free boat rides, various exhibits and open visiting aboard several vessels. Sponsors are the Junior Chambers of Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Pedro and Wilmington.

Kiel Canal Project to Cost $7 Million

KIEL, Germany (AP) — The Kiel Canal, one of the world's most important man-made waterways, will be renovated in the next 3 1/2 years for more than seven million dollars. The 99-mile canal, completed in 1895, annually handles more than 50,000 ships between the Baltic and North Sea.

Longshoremen Wage Talks Begin

Preliminary contract talks are under way in San Francisco between representatives of the International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union (Independent) and Pacific Maritime Assn., organization representing stevedoring firms on the West Coast.

Formal talks are scheduled to begin June 1. Gordon Giblin, president of the Long Beach-Los Angeles local of the union, is in San Francisco for the negotiations. The contract expires June 15.

The union is seeking renewal of the contract for one year with increases of 16 cents an hour and an eight-hour day. Men now work a nine-hour day, according to an ILWU spokesman here. In addition, the union is seeking fringe benefits.

Involved from ports of Long Beach-Los Angeles are nine stevedoring firms and 3,250 longshoremen, 300 "bosses" and 500 marine clerks.

Dr. Carl Amundson of 2369 Charlemagne Ave., professor of education at Long Beach State College, will be honored June 6, by Shattuck School, an Episcopal college preparatory school for boys in Faribault, Minn. He will be one of 106 recipients of awards for service to secondary education, presented by the school in observance of its 100th anniversary.

A campaign by Naples Improvement Assn. for a city ordinance to govern speed of small boats was questioned Saturday by Elroy Roamer, president of the Alpine Court Memorial League.

"I think the council should take a close look at any such proposed ordinance," Roamer said. "First, what is the definition of the small boat? Does that mean that the toy sailboats of little children will be watched lest they be caught by errant winds? Also, how will the boats be policed? Will Alamitos Bay and the canals of Naples echo with the roar of fleets of police boats? And, finally, will the police use one-man or two-man boats?"

A motion picture, "Tuna Fishing," will be shown by David Davis, local sportsman, at a meeting of the Trowel Club, at 6:45 p.m. Thursday, in the Manhattan Restaurant, 1909 E. 4th St.

Richard Andrews, 17, Poly High School senior and son of Mrs. Ruth Andrews, 1900 Chestnut Ave., has been awarded a four-year scholarship to Columbia University where he will study for a career as a sociologist or college philosophy instructor. Poetry written by Andrews has been accepted for the annual Anthology of High School Poetry.

PAUL RICHARDS, 27, son of Mrs. Alma J. Richardson of 1824 Redondo Ave., has been awarded a $2700 Coro Foundation scholarship to finance a year's field study in public affairs. Richards is a graduate student at San Francisco State College, working on an M.S. degree in business management. He has also this year won a $200 scholarship from the National Office Management Assn.

'Y' Fund Campaign Shifts to High Gear

Action became the password as the YMCA's "million dollar plus" campaign to finance capital improvements here shifted into high gear.

Under direction of Earl Fast, general campaign chairman, hundreds of volunteer committeemen launched a citywide appeal for funds.

Campaign aims are: Modernization and expansion of the downtown Y building, new Y buildings in both Lakewood and Los Altos and redecoration, plus additions, for the North Long Beach Y.

Fast disclosed the following committee activities:

MONDAY NOON the legal section of the professional division will kickoff at the Wilton Hotel luncheon with Stephen A. Pace Jr., chairman, presiding. The downtown district campaign will kick off Tuesday and the North Long Beach district on Thursday.

Last Friday the Lakewood district campaign kickoff was completed at a dinner attended by 150 under the chairmanship of John R. Hills. During the week, the general section of the professional division kicked off under the leadership of Dr. Clarence E. Lundell; the osteopathic physicians took the field under Dr. Melvyn G. Wade and the medical section of the professional division campaigned under direction of Dr. Richard C. DeGolia. The special gifts division, headed by Ernest E. Belcher, has been in action since May 7.

Shipyards on West Coast Threatened

NAVY SHIPYARDS on the West Coast would be as active as tombs if Republican Sen. John Marshall Butler of Maryland had his way.

Sen. Butler is author of Senate Bill 3426, which would require that not less than 75 per cent of Navy funds for repair of Navy vessels be spent in private yards. The measure is charitably described by 18th District Congressman Craig Hosmer (Long Beach-Lakewood) as "an election year bill."

"An election year bill is demagogic legislation designed to please a bloc of voters, a region, or a district. The Butler bill will give legislators from the East Coast something to prime the campaign pump with in East Coast shipping areas."

WEST COAST PRIVATE YARDS capable of handling Navy work are limited in number. Naturally, the effect of the Butler proposal would be to shift the bulk of the repair work to East Coast shipyards, leaving the Navy shipyards on the West Coast little or nothing to do.

A nice trick if Sen. Butler could pull it off. If he does pull it off, he'll do so above the strong objections of Rep. Craig Hosmer, other members of the Washington delegation, and Gov. Goodwin Knight, who recently wrote to the Senate Armed Services Committee:

"I respectfully submit that any arbitrary apportionment of work between Naval and private yards would mitigate against both the best interests of national defense and the well-being of the national economy and of the California economy."

Just as it is vital that our private shipyards be maintained to the greatest possible extent, it is essential that our great naval shipyards, both in California and elsewhere in the Nation, be maintained at optimum readiness to meet the pressing needs of mobilization and national defense.

FOR YEARS LEGISLATORS from the West Coast have fought to breathe new life into the private shipyards here. These efforts have paid off, and the private yards are now getting more work.

Apparently, East Coast lawmakers are disturbed to see at last a more equitable distribution of government projects among the private shipyards. The strategy now is to get back the loss and more besides with a law that takes work away from the West Coast naval yards.

These yards are vital to the national defense program. They employ more than 25,000 California citizens. The threat to the defense program and to the state's economy must be met vigorously.

CAPITOL CHATTER

Knowland Credited With Changing Labor Reform Position Single-Handedly

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM W. BROOM

WASHINGTON—Sen. Bill Knowland is given credit here for accomplishing single-handedly what numerous and powerful-pressure groups have tried and failed to do for a decade—forcing organized labor to change its traditional position on reform legislation.

Separately and since their merger, the AFL and CIO have been dead set against any legislation going beyond the simple tightening-up of policing procedures for union pension and welfare funds. Anything else was "anti-labor" and not to be tolerated. But in the last three weeks, the AFL-CIO chieftains have changed their minds and agreed to support additional moderate reform measures.

IT ALL CAME ABOUT through the Senate Republican leader's insistence on roll call votes on the various unsuccessful Knowland amendments to the welfare fund bill. Knowland's one-man efforts, in which he was supported by only a dozen other Republicans, put the pressure on the Senate Democratic leadership. The Democrats had to promise another, broader, labor bill after the original legislation was out of the way. They, in turn, appealed to the AFL-CIO to go along with some of the other, fairly moderate reforms labor has always opposed in the past. To this, Machinists President Al Hayes, chairman of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices committee, agreed.

The odds now are that the Senate will pass another labor bill, and that it will go far beyond what the AFL-CIO considers far enough. But, however restrictive a new bill might be, friends of the AFL-CIO are counting on the House Labor committee to sit on it for the rest of the congressional session.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is still being criticized for doing both too much and too little to get his programs through Congress.

One day last week Rep. John Blatnik (D-Minn.) publicly blamed Ike's "lackadaisical leadership" for the rough time the administration reciprocal trade bill is having on Capitol Hill.

The same day O. R. Strackbein, leader of the protectionist group which is the chief opponent of the lower tariffs, issued a statement accusing the President of "seeking to dictate" what Congress should do about reciprocal trade.

It's all a question of whose ox is being gored, and whether the ox is half donkey or half elephant.

ONE HIGH-RANKING Republican office-holder says the Democrats would be foolish to run Jack Kennedy, or anyone else, over whom controversy could develop, for the presidency in 1960. "The Democrats will probably be riding so high in another two years," the GOP pessimist tells his friends, "that the safe thing for them to do is put up a ticket like the Harding-Coolidge team of 1920. It wouldn't antagonize anybody on religious or any other grounds, and would be a shoo-in."

Picking a Switch on the Way to the Woodshed

DAVID LAWRENCE

Welcome to Nixon Marred by Partisanship in House

WASHINGTON—Patriotism may be dormant at times, but partisanship never. Thus the wholehearted welcome given to Vice President Eisenhower and by members of both parties in Congress at the airport on his arrival here was later marred by a brief debate in the House of Representatives when a few partisans applauded criticism of the State Department for letting Mr. Nixon go to Latin America in the first place.

The United States government, it was argued in effect, should have yielded to the threats of terror and canceled the visit.

Only a few months ago, on the other hand, there was a lot of talk in Congress about "freedom to travel" and the State Department was denounced because it didn't want American newsmen to take risks inside Red China, whose regime is not recognized by the United States. But now the argument has been switched around. It appears that "freedom to travel" should not be exercised by the high officials of the American government in friendly countries to which diplomatic recognition has been given.

What a cowardly thing it would be for the United States government to refuse to go ahead with a trip previously announced and to give as the reason that it couldn't expect from friendly governments—protection or security for a visiting delegation!

Not only would the governments of Latin America have been offended, but they would have winced under the charge that they couldn't protect the distinguished visitors they themselves had invited.

As for the Communist rulers in Moscow, this would have been grist for their mill. They would have been delighted to read that they had intimidated the United States government. This would have been a propaganda success of transcendent proportions.

INDEED, INSTEAD of standing up for the government of the United States, the word now is that some members of Congress want an investigation to be undertaken to find out what the administration knew of the possibility of outbreaks in Latin America, as if there is blame to be imposed here.

Actually the Communists did openly attempt to bestir their followers in Latin America to make trouble for Mr. Nixon on the trip.

As Daniel Schorr of the Columbia Broadcasting System, formerly Moscow correspondent but now in Washington, noted:

"Any Communist sympathizer in Latin America, listening to Moscow radio for the past two weeks, would know that it was important to the Kremlin that Nixon's tour be turned into an anti-United States demonstration."

THE APPEASERS IN CONGRESS will find that the Soviets will interpret any retreat by the United States in the Nixon affair as a great victory for international communism.

DREW PEARSON

Andy Knutson, Used by His Wife's Political Enemies, Now Contrite

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Drew Pearson is now reporting on what progress Moscow may have made among our NATO allies. While he is abroad the Washington end of the column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—Big, brooding Andy Knutson is sorry now that he stirred up headlines around the world with his public appeal to his golden-haired wife, Coya, to quit Congress and come home to him in Minnesota. The truth is that he was allowed himself to be used by her political enemies because he was sore at her for refusing to pay his bills.

The story behind the incident has now reached this column from the famous Red River Valley whose farm folk sent Congresswoman Knutson to Washington. It is a pathetic story of an alcoholic husband who lived on hand-outs from his wife and threatened to embarrass her politically when the money was cut off. Yet, through it all, he swore his undying love for her.

Andy has an unfortunate weakness for drink that has sent him to the hospital repeatedly for treatment to overcome alcoholism. For years, he blew his wife's money on costly drinking spree and sponged off her between binges. She paid most of his living expenses, bought him a 1955 Plymouth and kept him in cigar money (he smokes 20 a day).

For the sake of his pride, she also painted her husband's name—"Andy's Hotel"—on a small, two-story hotel she owns in Okla., Minn.

however, her patience or her money apparently ran out. Okla. merchants received a letter from her, warning that she could no longer make good her husband's debts.

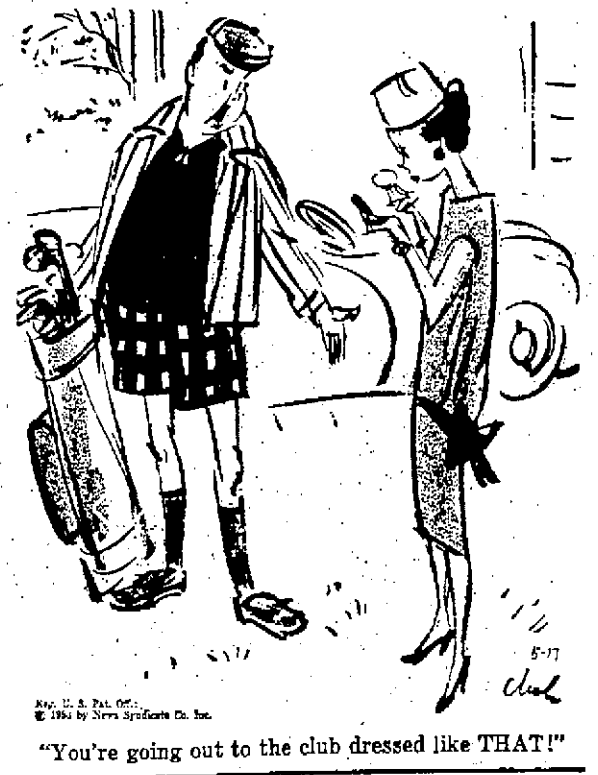

It is no secret around Okla. that Andy threatened to sell out to her political enemies unless she relaxed the purse strings. He was seen huddling with L. J. Lee, husky organizer for the International Union of Operating Engineers, who has been struggling with the congresswoman for control of the Democrat-Farmer-Labor party in the Red River Valley.

Andy made some statements which Lee circulated around the district to embarass Congresswoman Knutson. But she survived the political attack and defeated the Lee faction decisively. Again Lee challenged her leadership at the party's district convention earlier this month at Crookston, Minn. Before the convention, Lee helped Andy draft three appeals to his wife to give up her congressional seat for the sake of their family life. Two were circulated at the political powwow but failed to overthrow the congresswoman and her supporters. It was the third appeal that was released to the newspapers.

Andy is now sorry he did it. To shield him, Coya refuses to say why he did it.

BOB HOUSER

Socialist Senate Aspirant Trolling in Troubled Waters

A 28-YEAR-OLD Albany, Calif., fisherman with the sea-faring name of Fritjof Peder Thygeson is trolling in troubled political waters. Further, he is an underage stowaway on a boat he openly plans to sabotage.

Translation: Thygeson, a Socialist, has filed for U. S. Senate, an office he's two years too young to assume, and on the Democratic ticket, a party he accuses of "incredible paranoia."

Details of Thygeson's efforts for a place in this season's political sun reveal an interesting, little-noted hassle—one over-shadowed in the voters' preoccupation with leading senatorial contenders Goodwin Knight, George Christopher and Clair Engle.

Since the Socialists are not a qualified party according to the state election code, Thygeson's first scuffle was a losing fight to get the party designation used with his name on the ballot. Hence, his name appears with no party designation on the Democratic and also the Prohibition Party ballots. He said he also would have crossed-filleted on the GOP ticket but lacked the third $450 filing fee.

Secretary of State Frank Jordan denied Thygeson's request for the Socialist designation. Thygeson challenged the decision, quoting the 1952 referendum which said the candidate's registered affiliation "shall be" placed on the ballot. Thygeson appealed to the State Supreme Court.

The court also denied his request, presumably because the "qualified party" factor overweighed the language of the referendum.

THEN TWO STATE LEADERS of the Democratic Party, Roger Kent and Joseph L. Wyatt Jr., broadsided Thygeson with a series of points and bars.

Too young, they said. You have to be 30 to take a Senate seat. In league with the Republican high command, they charged. Just a move to split votes away from Democrat candidate Clair Engle. Further, they said, his name could not appear on the November general election ballot even if he won a plurality in the Democratic or Prohibition primary because the Socialist Party is not a qualified party.

Thygeson countered. On age: "The Senate is the judge of the qualification of its own members. In the cases of Henry Clay and Rush Holt, senators were seated who had passed their 29th but not yet reached their 30th birthday, on the grounds that they were in their 30th year. If I were to be elected I could be seated on Feb. 24, 1959, only seven weeks after the beginning of the term."

ON COLLUSION WITH the GOP: This "indicates the incredible paranoia that has overcome the Democratic Party." He charged that Democrats have only themselves to blame for any votes split away from Engle, "an anti-labor and illiberal" choice of candidate. He denied any GOP prompting and listed names of those who put up his filing fees.

On eligibility for November: "The March 26 opinion of Atty. Gen. Brown... clearly states that if a candidate of an unqualified party is successful in obtaining the nomination of a qualified party his name 'will appear on the general election ballot.'"

KENT AND WYATT FURTHER deprecated Thygeson's candidacy, pointing out that in 1950 Bernadette Doyle, a registered member of the Communist Party, received over 600,000 votes for superintendent of public instruction.

"The votes he (Thygeson) does get, with few exceptions, will be as meaningless as those cast for Bernadette Doyle," their statement said.

The Albany fisherman branded their whole fusillade as a symptom of "extreme fear" and realization "that they have a very poor candidate in Congressman Engle."

He said his own candidacy offers the voters a "meaningful alternative" and that there is no real choice between Knight and Engle" as the joint AFL endorsement indicates.

'Box 27103' Article Praised

TO THE EDITOR:

I congratulate you and your reporter Ben Zinser for the article, "Who's Behind Propaganda From Box 27103?" in last Sunday's paper.

In this era of mass communication, the printed word is too often accepted as fact, and the source is seldom checked. Responsible reporters and newspapers who do this checking are certainly contributing a valuable service to the community.

Take Issue With Zinser Article

TO THE EDITOR:

Ben Zinser discussed mailings from "Box 27103" in Hollywood in a front page story last Sunday. But he spent no time explaining whether there was anything unlawful or even unusual in such an activity.

What seems to be important to Mr. Zinser was that Mrs. Seldon didn't sign her name, but only her box number. Well, a stranger's name means nothing, but his address does; if one is interested in finding him. Zinser found that out.

Literature from Box 27103 must be hitting pay dirt when it attracts so much attention. R. J. SMITH. 7051 Thornton Ave., Anaheim.

HAVING launched the campaign here against fluorida-

tion, I would have known if Mrs. Seldon had participated, as she claims. But your mention of her name was the first means of my learning of her.

If Mrs. Seldon helped in any way to defeat fluoridation, she is to be commended. WALTER W. STRONG. 5801 Garford St.

I WAS THE chairman of the Long Beach Committee Against Fluoridation, and I know where all the literature the committee used came from, and Box 27103 did not supply us.

MR. ZINSER did a beautiful job of the interview. Misstatements — half statement — innuendo — invention. Just as I told him he would do. He shouldn't be a newspaperman, but a fiction writer. But why say should be — he is!

Local Roads in Poor Condition

TO THE EDITOR:

Your editorial of May 13 about the relatively poor status of Long Beach in regards to freeways and freeway funds ends with the appeal: "A cooperative and supporting attitude is indicated for all Long Beach citizens interested in a fair share of return from its own gasoline tax investment as well as a fair share of the Southland's bountiful future."

ALL THIS is well, and good, and I believe that Long Beach's citizens should be interested in such matters. It is rather difficult, however, to work up much enthusiasm over freeways, when the very roads on which we travel to and from work are in such poor condition that it is dangerous to use them.

ONE SUCH case in point is the stretch of Willow St. in Long Beach between Cherry Ave. and Redondo Ave. This primitive road is comparable to some which can be found in the most backward countries of the world. Repeated phone calls to the proper authorities only bring desultory promises and, perhaps, road repair consisting of spot patches which are worse than the original holes. People will, I believe, start thinking in broad terms when their personal problems are properly "patched."

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Motorcar Makers Having Busy Times

By BILL VAUGHAN

BUSY DAYS for the motorcar manufacturers, pushing their "Buy It Now" appeal while resisting Walter Reuther's "Sign It Now" campaign.

IN THE schools of our youth, dusting the erasers was a prestige job, comparable, we suppose, to that of dusting the TV screen in today's classroom.

STATION wagons de luxe now come equipped with boats, beds, tents, cooking stoves and camp stools which spring forth at the touch of a button. It would be interesting if one of the kids pushed the button while pop's doing 80 miles an hour on the highway.

THE MEN who are working on the H-bomb fallout problem need not be discouraged—some of the polite versions of ancient barnyard jokes which appear in print indicate that anything can be cleaned up.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Teacher Controversy

TO THE EDITOR:

Why all this controversy about the hiring of teachers in our local school system?

Since when should members of a profession after a few short years of work be placed on an untouchable pedestal where lifetime jobs are assured?

Let's keep in mind the word competition upon which America's economy was founded.

In practically every case when a man or woman is outstanding, or even good, in a profession, he or she can not only retain the job but move upward.

Is there any good reason why teachers at our local State College should be in a special clique and have their jobs assured by taxpayers until their retirement regardless the type of work they perform?

DR. COWEN Says:

Here's why you can now have Better DENTAL PLATES

The advances of Modern Dental Science have overcome many drawbacks of old-fashioned plates. THE NEW ACRYLIC (PLASTIC) MATERIAL used for most modern dentures combines very light weight with unusual strength and durability. THE NEW ARTIFICIAL TEETH for dentures achieve a remarkable resemblance to natural teeth and they are carefully designed to aid healthful chewing and to avoid interference with speech. THE SKILL OF YOUR DENTIST — through constant research and intensive training—has advanced steadily, solving many problems that once made platefitting difficult. Improved Materials, More Natural-Looking Teeth, and the Advanced Techniques of Your Dentist — these are the 3 big reasons why YOU can now have Better Dental Plates.

ALWAYS LOW PRICES

L.B. Notables, All-Star Field Set in City Tee

By JERRY WYNN

The 34th annual Long Beach City Golf Championship was under way at Recreation Park Saturday with the start of handicap flight qualifying, but the first major action won't take place until next Sunday.

Then, more than 150 top golfers (six handicap or less) will vie for 64 match play berths in championship flight trials. The field, headed by defending champion Verne Burnett, will include practically all outstanding players in the Long Beach area.

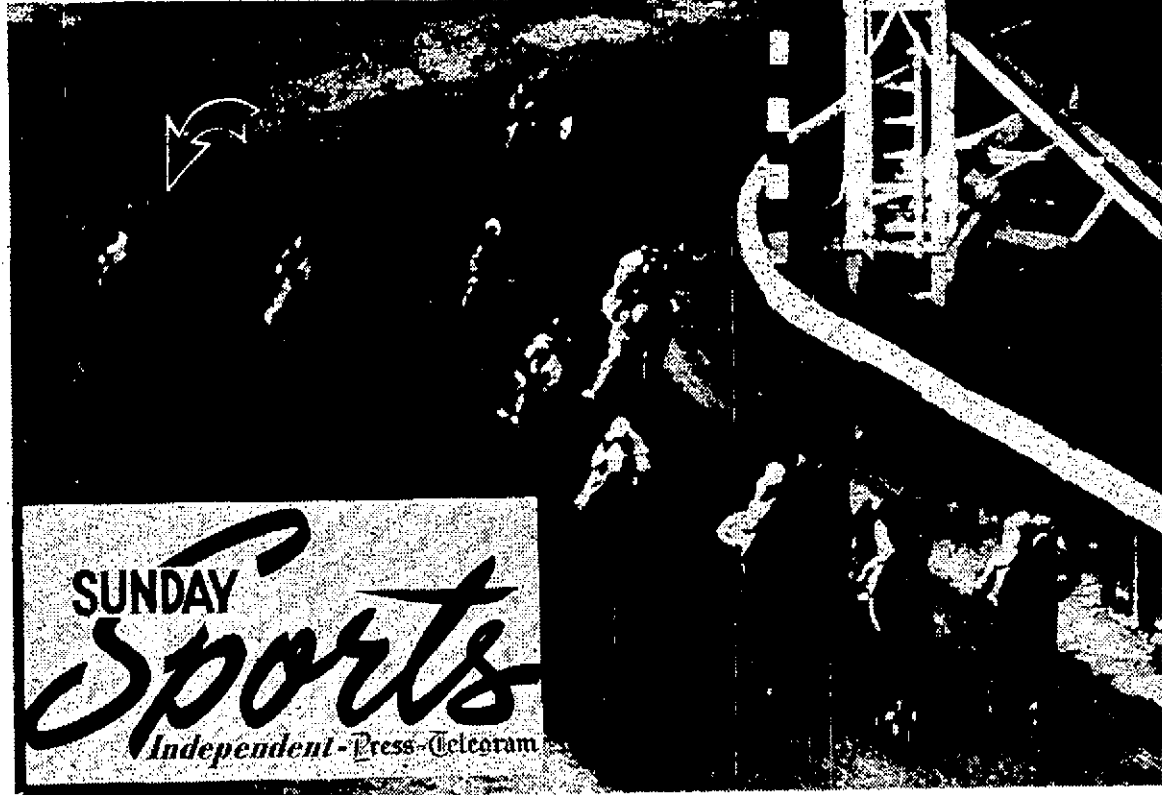

AS A SPECIAL attraction, three "celebrity" foursomes will play strictly for fun.

The first will consist of city officials. Mayor Ray Keeler will hit the first ball off the tee at 8:18 a. m., but will leave all the other shots to city councilmen Lewis Reese, and Bill Dalessi, city auditor John Mansell, and Recreation Park course manager B. K. Jones.

The second, starting at 8:24, will be comprised of Long Beach sports personalities Vern Stephens, former major league baseball slugger; Bill Jessup, San Francisco 49er end and ace punter; Dick Hammer, captain and star of Lockyer's AAU basketball team; and Jimmy McLarnin, former world's welterweight boxing champion.

The third will spotlight Long Beach area club head professionals.

SILKY HAD RUNNING ROOM, BUT NO RUN

Silky Sullivan (arrow, far left) moved to the outside and had plenty of running room on extreme outside, but ran out of run at the stretch turn in Preakness Saturday. Tim Tam (second from right) was just overtaking Lincoln Road (on the rail) when this picture was taken.—(AP Wirephoto)

Silky Poor 8th as Calumet Ace Wins Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—Tim Tam burst between the pace-setting Lincoln Road and Talent Show at the head of the Pimlico stretch Saturday and rolled home a brilliant winner of the $133,950 Preakness Stakes.

But Silky Sullivan, who flopped badly in the Kentucky Derby, won by Tim Tam two weeks ago, again disappointed his thousands of admirers and wound up eighth in a field of a dozen 3-year-olds contesting Maryland's greatest horse race.

Tim Tam, the Calumet hope for another Triple Crown, here, thus became the first Derby winner to cop the Preakness, since Citation—another Calumet—got the job done in 1943. Citation then went on to sweep the elusive triple by grabbing the Belmont Stakes in New York.

WITH ISMAEL VALENZUELA, the Texas-born booter of Mexican parentage in the pilot's seat, Tim Tam overhauled the Sunny Blue Farm's Lincoln Road about an eighth of a mile out.

A crowd of 36,812, second largest for Old Hilltop, was shouting loudly for the favorite, and Tim Tam never disappointed his backers as he stormed to the wire a length and a half ahead of Lincoln Road.

The Llangollen Farm's Gone Fishin', a Virginia-bred and only horse in the race who could not claim Kentucky as a birthplace, wound up in third place. The Main Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward, Kentucky Derby favorite, was a disappointing seventh.

Silky Sullivan, the Santa Anita Derby winner, had floundered around in the mud at Churchill Downs and finished 12th in a field of 14 on Derby day. He had a fast track this time and made a much better run from some 40 lengths off the pace, but the plain fact was that Tim Tam got to the judges long before Silky, who was chugging down the middle of the track to wind up 14 lengths behind the winner.

The time for the mile and three-sixteenths was a so-so 1:37 1/5, compared with the Preakness and track record of 1:54 3/5 set by Nashua in 1955.

Tim Tam, a solid favorite this time, paid $4.20, $2.80 and $2.20. Lincoln Road returned $4.80 and $3.40. Gone Fishin' paid $4.80.

"HE'S A great horse, the finest I've ever ridden," said Valenzuela afterward.

"I knew he had it, but I had to use the whip a lot," Valenzuela said.

Trainer Jimmy Jones, racking up his fourth Preakness victory, said he gave Valenzuela no pre-race instructions.

"WHEN YOU have a great jock like Ismael you don't have to tell him anything," he said.

Chris Rogers, aboard Lincoln Road, said: "He ran a good race, but he just couldn't beat the winner."

Lincoln Road's trainer, Vic Sovinski, who had tears in his eyes after the race, said:

"I want to tackle him (Tim Tam) once more at a different track. I'm gonna take off those blinkers. My colt was coming again at the end and we'll just have to have another try at the winner."

Willie Shoemaker, riding Silky Sullivan, commented tersely:

"He didn't have anything at all. He ran a good furlong and after that had nothing. He made a little run around the far turn and hung in the end."

BOLD RULER TRIUMPHS IN 1ST '58 RACE

NEW YORK (AP)—Bold Ruler, the smooth-striding champion of all thoroughbreds last year, made his 1958 debut a winning effort as he won the $29,050 Toboggan Handicap at Belmont Park Saturday.

Striding down the six furlongs of the Widener straightaway course in 1:09 under the heavy impost of 133 pounds, the Wheatley Stable colt finished a half length in front of Clem. Tick Tock trailed by another two lengths for third.

Bold Ruler was the odds-on favorite, of the crowd of 27,502, paying $2.80, $2.60 and $2.30. Clem paid $6.90 and $4.20. A $2 show ticket on Tick Tock was worth $3.90.

(The Searcher) and Johnny Longden (Seaneen) admitted trouble.

"We were just starting to roll when two horses moved out on us around the turn," said Pete. "I was going so fast I couldn't do anything, but swing wider. I just lost too much ground."

Said Longden: "We got stopped bad on the turn and had to swing wide into the stretch. Otherwise, I don't know exactly what was wrong."

The secondary feature, the $10,000 Olivera St. Purse, went to a once-famous horse on the comeback trail, Holandes II. Holandes closed with a surge to win going away and pay his supporters a modest $6.70.

Cards Rip Dodgers, 10-1

By GEORGE LEDERER (I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—The streaking St. Louis Cardinals sent 12 men to bat in a seven-run fourth inning Saturday and blasted the doormat Dodgers, 10-1, for their ninth victory in the last 10 games.

The Dodgers, who have nearly established voting residence in the National League cellar, went down to their eighth defeat in their last nine outings and have lost twice as often as they have won.

Larry Jackson, making his first start of the year, pitched the distance for the Cardinals and held the Dodgers to five hits. His chance to register the Cards' second straight shutout was ruined in the sixth inning when Peeewe Reese's sacrifice fly scored Junior Gilliam, who had tripled off Wally Moon's glove.

While Jackson's fast ball and sinker sent six Dodgers down on strikes, the losers once more were forced to dig deep into the bullpen and brought five pitchers into action. In the last five games the Dodgers have used 22 pitchers, needing five on four occasions.

Big Don Newcombe, whose last complete game was on Aug. 21 last year, appeared to have found himself when he mowed down the Cards on only one hit through the first three innings Saturday.

But the walls came tumbling down in the fourth when seven Cardinals batted and six scored before there was a single out.

Newcombe trudged to the showers after Irv Noren and Joe Cunningham singled and out a hit in the fifth and sixth, but Curtis Flood opened the seventh with a double and Joe Cunningham belted his first home run of the year into the pavilion.

A WALK to Moon and singles by Boyer and Smith completed the scoring.

Cardinals manager Freddie Hutchinson was ready to lift Jackson in the first inning when he walked Gilliam on four pitches and missed the plate on the first two serves to Reese.

But as the Redbirds' bullpen was stirred into action, Jackson settled down and whiffed Reese and Duke Snider and got Norm Larker to ground out.

Jackson faced only 32 batters, walked one and was helped by two double plays. The Dodgers

NU-PIKE HOST TO FAR WEST SWIM MEET

The Far West Synchronized Swimming Championships were awarded to Long Beach's Nu-Pike Plunge, manager Ron Maury announced Saturday.

The event will be staged July 10-11. Maury said he expects from 60 to 75 competitors from throughout the Western United States.

Maury and his wife, Joanne Royer Maury, will be co-chairmen of the event. Mrs. Maury, now a professional, is a former U.S. indoor and outdoor synchronized swimming champion. She also held the Canadian championship.

Swimmers from as far off as Salt Lake City and Seattle already have submitted entry blanks, according to Maury.

How Now, Harmatz Surprise

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH Executive Sports Editor

A consistent five-year-old gelding which had nabbed a piece of the purse 10 times in his last 11 outings, but was overlooked in the wagering Saturday, scored a smashing one-half length triumph in the $50,000-added Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The ignored gelding was How Now, ridden by Long Beach jockey Willie Harmatz, which paid a handsome $29.30 as the two favorites finished out of the money before 47,367 customers.

Seaneen, which went off at 4-5, finished a well-beaten fourth, while Terrang, a 3-1 choice, was fifth in the seven-horse field. An eighth entrant, Swirling Abbey, was scratched.

The victory was No. 3 during the afternoon for Harmatz and shot him into a tie for the Hollywood jockey leadership with veteran Johnny Longden, who was shut out for the day.

How Now was 8-1 on the morning line and surprisingly was allowed to leave the starting gate at better than 13-1. The George C. Newell horse set a track record for six furlongs last June, touring the route in 1:08 1/2, and had run a bangup race 10 days ago in the Hollywood Premiere Handicap. He finished second in The Searcher in that race.

A 12-1 shot, Golden Notes, nabbed second money, while fast-closing The Searcher (6-1) charged up for third prize.

How Now's time for the seven furlongs was 1:21 1/2, somewhat off El Drag's track mark of 1:20.

How Now sped from the gate like a bee had stung him and led from wire-to-wire except for a brief moment around the backstretch when Golden Cover inched in front of him.

Golden Notes was How Now's only consistent challenger throughout the chase and seemed ready to grab the lead as the horses straightened out for the stretch drive. However, Harmatz flicked his whip a few times and the

King Ranch-bred held his advantage across the wire.

The Searcher, as usual, pulled a "Silky Sullivan" and trailed the field for the first half. The Searcher was picking up ground in the stretch, but just ran out of real estate.

Harmatz said How Now was the gamest little horse he ever rode.

"The ground broke from under us at the start, but he still got the lead at the half-mile pole. I had a snug hold on him and every time Golden Notes came to him, he pinned his ears and moved on out. I don't think they'd have caught me going around again," said Harmatz, adding "It sure was a lucky break for me when Ray York went to Chicago and let me get this mount."

Henry Moreno on Golden Notes and Alex Maese on Terrang, respectively, claimed no excuses, but Pete Moreno

THE DODGERS won't admit it publicly, but they're thinking in terms of losing the June 3 Chavez Ravine referendum. They feel the issue was settled when the Burns got off to that horrible start.

Consequently, they're not going to be caught with their pennants down! So, they've bought options on THREE (3) parcels of land, any of which they could zero in upon within minutes after the referendum voting is decided.

The O'Malley is worried about Chavez Ravine—but, obviously, not to the point where he's going to gulp rat poison.

A DODGER SCOUT who is operating in this territory thinks the Dodger pitching problem can be boiled down to a simple answer: Lack of confidence in the catchers.

"Our Dodger staff has some prize prima donnas," said the scout, "but Roy Campanella could handle 'em all. They loved him for it, too, and had more confidence in Roy than any other catcher in baseball history. I do believe."

"Follows like Walker, Pignatano and Roseboro simply cannot fill Camp's shoes because Roy was too big a man behind that batter. As a result, the pitchers have no confidence whatsoever in the Dodger catchers."

The scout said, too, that Roseboro, 23, was the only present receiver who would go any place in baseball. The others, only fair field generals, can't hit a lick.

SPEAKING OF REFERENDUMS, why is one Long Beach group so dedicated to defeating the Dodgers at the polls June 3? The story behind the story could turn out to be a real eyebrow-raiser!

There's nothing like signatures on a contract to wilt any foe in any court!

EARLY-MORNING TELEPHONE CALL TO DON NEWCOMBE...

'This Is Campy; What's Wrong With The Club?'

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS — It was 8 o'clock Saturday morning and Don Newcombe was still in bed, resting for his afternoon starting pitching assignment against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The telephone rang.

"Is this Mr. Newcombe?" the somewhat distant voice inquired.

"Yes, this is Don Newcombe," was the reply.

"This is Campy. What's wrong with the ball club?"

It was Roy Campanella, the Dodgers' paralyzed catcher calling from his bedside at New York's Bellevue Hospital.

"At first I thought someone was playing a joke on me," Newcombe said. "The voice sounded so far away and muffled, as if it were in another room. But then I recognized it. It was my old roommate."

"Campy sounded pretty cheerful. But he wanted to know why we've been losing. I told him the reason, I said, 'I haven't won a single game and Drysdale is one and six.'"

"Roy told me he'd sure like to have a crack at that screen in the Coliseum and I said that he'd be a cinch to hit 90 homers there. He said he'd be moved into a wheelchair next week, but will have to wear a brace."

"He can move his arms, but still can't move his fingers. He can't hold the telephone and was talking into a loudspeaker. That's why his voice sounded so far away."

"Tell the fellows that I'm with 'em all the way," Campy said. "And I'm gonna beat this thing, too."

Newcombe said some of the Dodgers plan to visit Campanella Monday when the Dodgers move to Philadelphia.

Leave it to the Chamber of Commerce to get the most mileage out of Stan Musial's 3,000th hit. And that's exactly what one C of C figure libert did. He put his slide rule to work and computed that The Man's 3,000 hits covered 116 miles, 3,595 feet.

The super statistician is Foster Eaton, a former newspaperman who was helped in his meticulous mathematics by Paul Rickert of The Sporting News staff.

These gentlemen agreed that the average single covers 125 feet, the average double 300 feet, a triple 400 feet and a home run 350 feet. In figuring a triple travels 50 feet farther than a homer, they found into consideration that a lot of home runs are little more than pop flies, whereas a third-baser has to wiggle his way to a far corner of the park.

Here is the hitometer chart on Stanley:

Singles—1,827 for 43 miles, 1,335 feet.

Doubles—822 for 35 miles, 800 feet.

Triples—185 for 12 miles, 2,640 feet.

Home runs—386 for 25 miles, 3,100 feet.

There is only one thing that Msrs. Eaton and Rickert overlooked. While they charted the distance the ball traveled, they neglected to trace the mileage that Musial put on his ancient legs.

My former geometry teacher may want to retract that last report card because, without help from Univac, I came to the conclusion that Musial has done 87.5 miles of running on hits, or more than three times the distance of the Boston Marathon.

Back to the ball mileage, Ty Cobb sent the pellet into orbit for 114 miles, 230 feet, while Honus Wagner topped Musial with 120 miles, 1,100 feet.

But being generous to a fault, the two statisticians added a couple of miles for the oldtimers because they played in the dead ball era.

Besides, their mileage was handicapped. Cobb and Wagner performed in the low octane days and used the choke extensively on their bats.

Once Over Lightly

The word persists in the baseball fraternity that if the Dodgers don't pick up—at least begin moving a bit more consistently—when they come back to the Coliseum for their next home stand during the month of June, that Wait Alston will find himself listed as an "ex-manager."

The Dodger front office continues to deny that there is any thought of replacing Alston, but as a top-rated baseball man says... "it's got to be that way."

"It's been the practice in baseball from almost the very start to sacrifice the manager when a club is losing in an attempt to keep gate interest up. In firing the manager, the front office is telling the fans in so many words... 'Look, we're taking drastic steps to give you a winner.'"

"But a change in leadership won't help the Dodgers in the overall picture. They'll finish no higher than they would with Alston because the Dodgers are not a solid team."

"They planted Charley Dressen in a coaching berth last November to be ready for such an eventuality. He is the heir apparent, of course, to the managership. It was a sign that the Dodger front office felt even at that stage that such a move might be necessary. And it was done BEFORE Roy Campanella's accident."

"Everyone out here has been expecting too much of the Dodgers. On top of that, the club has not been playing up to its true potential."

"WHAT IS THE TRUE potential? Well, it's far under what most people think. It's on the borderline of being a second-division club... but not as bad as it has looked to date."

"No, the park and the left field screen hasn't much to do with it. The Coliseum isn't as bad as it's made out to be. The home run is a threat in any park today and the screen would be even more advantageous to the Dodgers than the visiting clubs if their right-handers were hitting. The left-handers are no threat now, but if the field was squared away, the lefties would be getting their share of home runs over the right field fence... so it's six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

"The rival clubs wouldn't be hitting so many homers if the pitching was sharp. All they have to do is pitch everything low and away to keep the left field fence from being bombarded, but the Dodger pitchers haven't been able to control that pitch."

"The pitching has been miserable... and the relief pitching even worse. The hurlers are not in shape due to a bad spring, and on top of that, the staff has been greatly over-rated."

Outside of Don Newcombe, who won 27 in '56, and Don Drysdale, a 17-game winner last season, the rest of the pitchers have not been big winners in recent seasons.

Johnny Podres, the Dodgers' "hottest" pitcher to date, got his reputation by beating the Yankees twice in the '55 World Series thanks to a fantastic game-saving catch of Yogi Berra's drive by Sandy Amoros. But during the regular season that year he only had a 9-10 record. He has not been a consistent big winner.

And Carl Erskine has struggled hard to win as many as 12 games in recent years.

"DRYSDALE IS THE BEST pitcher of the lot. He's got much more stuff than anyone else, but he's so tight that he can't do anything. Once he wins a couple, he'll get his confidence back and he'll be tougher than ever. His arm is beginning to come around after reporting late from Army service."

"Clem Labine has just needed work. You don't pitch yourself in shape until the real competition begins and Labine hasn't yet stayed in a game long enough to pitch himself in shape. That 10-inning job in Chicago Thursday will put him well along the road back. He's just had a little control trouble which will come around with work."

"As for Newcombe, he's one of two men I'd get rid of in a hurry. In fact, if I was running the club, Newcombe and Duke Snider wouldn't be around for more than 20 minutes. They've outlived their usefulness with the Dodgers. However, it may be too late now to get much for them on the market. They're 'damaged goods.'"

"I've always thought that Snider would have been just another outfielder if he would have played in some other park than Ebbets Field. He built his reputation in the Brooklyn 'bandbox,' which is an open invitation to lefthanded hitters."

"NOW THAT THE 'BANDBOX' is in the other direction in the Coliseum, the Duke has flattened out. By the time the Dodgers get a new ballpark, Duke will be too old, thus it would be good business to trade him for immediate help because the Dodgers aren't going to improve themselves by bringing up Triple-A players from their farm clubs."

"The same goes for Newcombe. The Dodgers made a big mistake by not dealing him to Cincinnati last winter... if Cincy really wanted him, that is. 'Most baseball men feel that Newcombe's trouble is all mental and it might be a good thing for him if he went to another club.'"

"The catching, meanwhile, is just as good as a lot of other clubs have got... clubs that are winning."

"The only difference between major league ball and the brand of baseball you saw in the Pacific Coast League is the stars on the major league clubs. A big league team is made up of 20 'donkeys' and about five stars. The Coast League clubs are composed of 25 donkeys among whom might be a couple of players destined to become stars."

"The trouble with the Dodgers is that their stars have become just average 'donkeys' the past couple of seasons."

"They say a team should never stand pat, yet the Dodgers, except for a rookie or two, have the same lineup they did a year ago when they started to slide down. The only major difference is that everyone is a year older... and many of them a step slower!"

UCLA Grids Rout Alumni

UCLA's varsity wound up a 20-day spring practice Saturday with a 42-0 victory over an alumni team.

Sparkplugs of the game were converted end Jim Steffin and tailback Donnie Long. Steffin gained 79 yards in 11 plays for a 7.18 average, running 28 yards to score on one play. He also tossed a 19 yard touchdown aerial to end Marv Luster.

Long completed five passes in five attempts, on an eight yard toss to Chuck Berry.

The other scores were made by Kirk Wilson, Skip Smith in seven minutes flat.

SACS WIN ON 3 HITS

Mounties Bow in Mound Duel, 1-0

Vancouver right-hander Russ Heman allowed Sacramento only three hits Saturday night but the third was a double by Harry Bright in the ninth inning following a walk which sent across the only run of the game as the Solons won the Pacific Coast League tilt, 1-0. Carl Greene, allowing seven hits, got credit for the win.

There were five home runs hit in the Portland-Phoenix sluggest which the Giants won 10-7. They got all their runs in the first three innings.

IN OTHER GAMES, Salt Lake City won the first of a late night doubleheader, 7-6, over Spokane and San Diego rattled the fading Seattle Rainiers, 5-1.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Robin Roberts, surviving a pair of sixth inning homers, won his second in a row and his third of the season Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3.

The Phils chased rookie Benjie Daniels with four runs in the first four innings in an attack which included homers by Rip Repulski and Willie Jones and a bases-loaded punt by Roberts for another tally as the Pirates dropped their third straight.

Giants Bury Cubs as Mays Homers

CHICAGO (UP)—Two home runs by Orlando Cepeda and one each by Darryl Spencer and Willie Mays Saturday powered the San Francisco Giants to a 9-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The circuit blows bringing the Giants' team total to 50, accounted for six of the total runs, starting off with Spencer's three-run blast off starter and loser Glen Hobbie.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (UP)—Sammy Sneed fired a five-under-par 65 to tie Ben Hogan who had a 68, for the lead at the three-quarter mark of the Greenbrier Golf Tournament Saturday just before torrential rains prevented young Gary Player from making it a three-man deadlock.

The sudden rain washed out the latter part of the third round with Player on the final hole. All he will need this morning is a par to tie Sneed and Hogan with a 54-hole score of 197.

White Sox Trim Tribe on 4-Hitter

CLEVELAND (UP)—Ray Moore hammered a home run and combined with Gerry Staley to pitch a four-hitter that gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Staley relieved Moore at the start of the seventh inning after the veteran right hander injured his shoulder liming out to shortstop to end the White Sox sixth. Staley shut out the Indians the rest of the way but Moore received credit for the victory, his first of the year.

Moore hit his homer off Cleveland starter Cal McLish in the fourth. Chicago has won seven of its last 10 games.

Banning Ace
Second in Two Events

By JIM MCCUTCHION

Banning High speed merchant Lynn Gaskill failed to win either the 100 or 220 in the City Preliminaries at East Los Angeles JC Saturday but qualified for the finals next week by finishing second in both events.

Dick Ponce joined Gaskill in the finals by placing fourth in his heat of the mile. The two were Banning's only qualifiers. Narbonne placed two men in the finals, high jumper John Sparling and Denny Friesen.

Fremont High of Los Angeles had 14 qualifiers to lead the huge field.

Comeback Try
by Sir Gareth
on Caliente Card

AGUA CALIENTE — Although the Cambridge Handicap over the mile and 70 yards course is top featured, the most interesting event on the Sunday program here appears to be the six-furlong Pompey Purse in which the famous gift horse Sir Gareth returns to the races.

Sir Gareth in his last start eight months ago carried 126 pounds. In the Pompey he gets in with 106 pounds under the conditions. He will be opposed by nine good sprinters, among them So Valiant, Zama, Fallen Market and Reliapon. In 1956 and 1957, the gift horse won 12 or 19 starts and was second five times.

Bullfight Season
Begins in Tijuana

TIJUANA — The bullfight season opens here today at 4, with three of Mexico's top matadors on the card. Sunday's card will kick off a 21-show program for the season, the most cards booked here in one year to date.

Joselito Huerta, rated as Mexico's top youngster, will headline the opening show.

Midgits Race Today
at Gardena Stadium

Midgits autos move into Gardena Stadium today, with a cast of familiar names such as Allen Heath, one-handed veteran; Parnell Jones, Don Cameron, Ray Douglas, Johnny Wood and Jack Rouds.

High light of the eight-event card will be the 40-lap main event. Racing gets under way at 2:30 following 1 p.m. time trials.

Fast Clipper Wins
Caliente Feature

AGUA CALIENTE (AP)—Fast Clipper owned by Thomas Hill, La Jolla, had an easy time Saturday in recording a 4½ length victory over Tony's Reckon in the mile-and-70-yard feature at Agua Caliente. Gay Marvel came on for show money.

Thirty-two persons hit the five-lap handicapping contest for $848 each by picking five out of a possible six winners.

'500' Pole to Dick Rathmann

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Dick Rathmann, elder of the lead-footed Rathmann brothers, won the pole position for the 42nd 500-mile auto race May 30 with a record smashing qualifying run Saturday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The Miami driver, hounded by bad luck in previous appearances at the old brick and asphalt track, had to beat an earlier record run by Ed Elisian, from Oakland, and Dick did it with a 10-mile trial at a smoking 145.974 miles an hour.

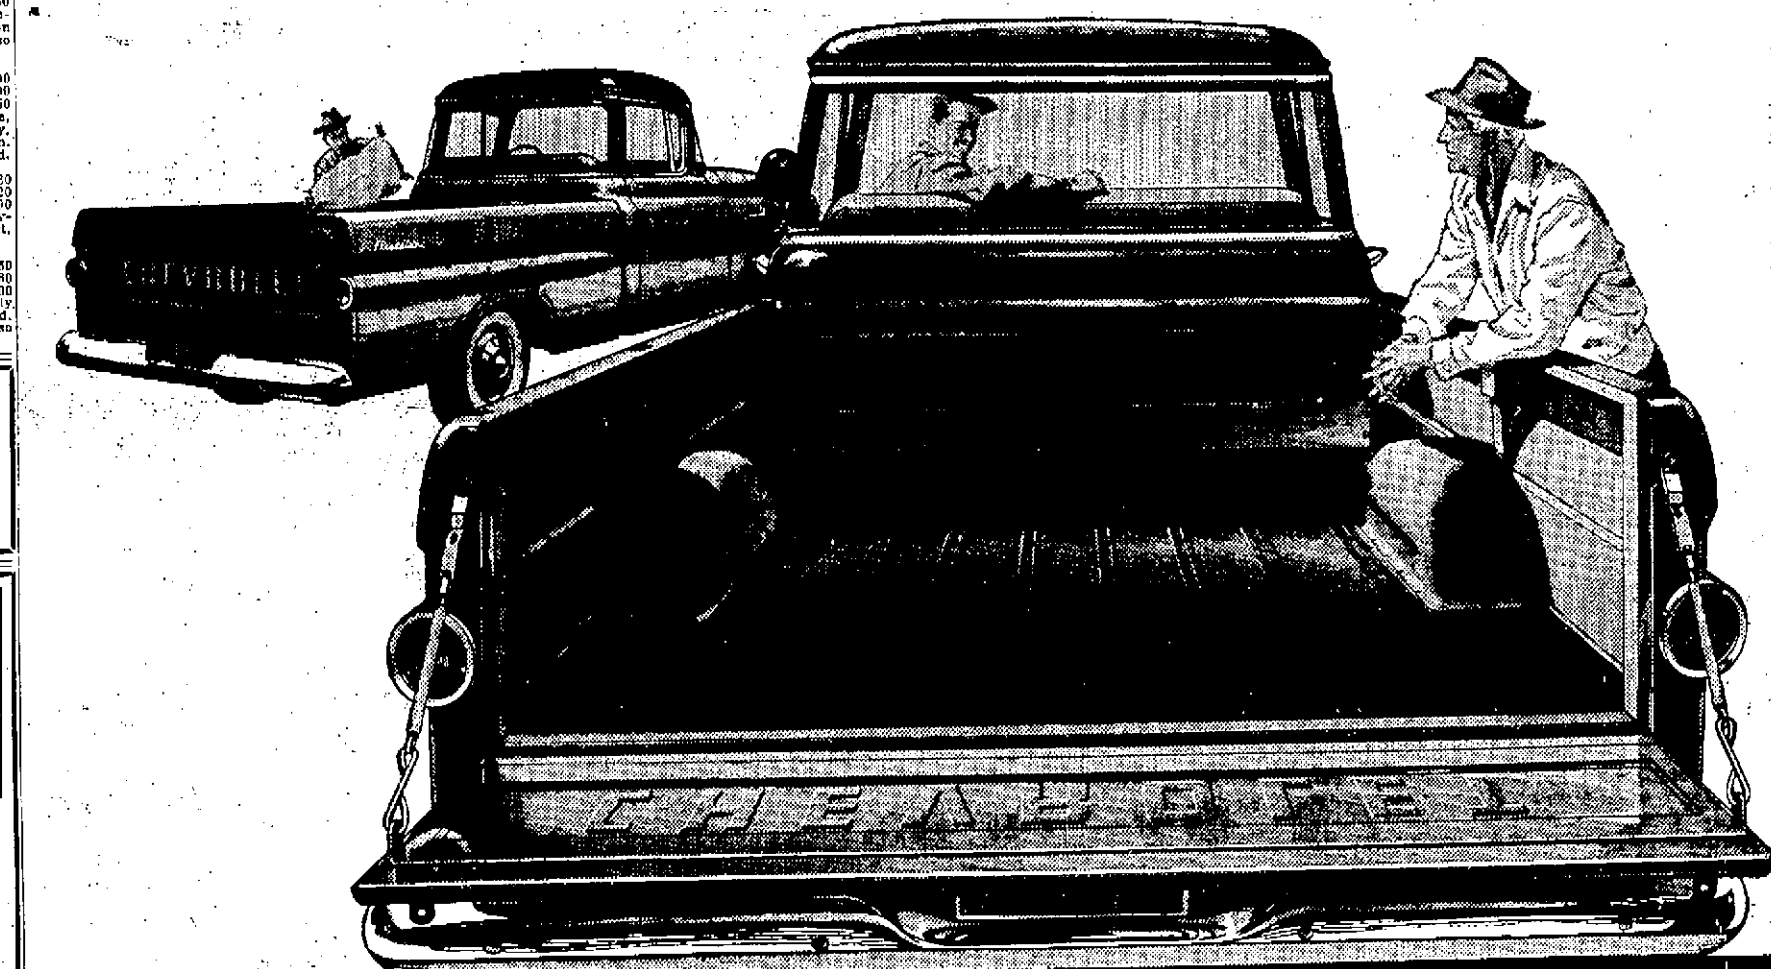

Elisian and his Red Zink Special set a one-lap record of 146.508 miles an hour. It stood up against Rathmann's assault, but the poker-faced Miami driver rubbed out the 145.926 four-lap mark Elisian had hung up a half hour earlier.

A crowd estimated at over 100,000 stood up and roared as Rathmann won the $1,000 top prize of the day. He'll get another $1,000 if his speed is the best of the entire qualifications.

A. J. Watson of Glendale, built all three of the expensive racers which will sit in the front row for the Memorial Day classic.

Ritter Whips Maxim

MANNHEIM (AP)—Ulli Ritter of Germany, who turned professional recently, handed former world's light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim of Cleveland the third straight defeat on his European tour Saturday night by a clear 10-round decision.

Skyliner Visits Borrego Springs

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

... a spring or fountain of the finest water, which runs for about two leagues, having willows most of the way ... there was found much grass and other green plants, as well as wild vines and trees, which announced to us an improvement in the country from here forward."

This was the apt description of Juan Bautista de Anza as this, Spanish military explorer and his party came upon California's Borrego Springs a few days before Christmas in 1775. De Anza was the leader of a group of some 200 men, women and children who were journeying from Fort Tubac in southern Arizona to Monterey and San Francisco to block the penetration of Russian colonists who were drifting down from the Pacific Northwest.

BORREGO—Named for the yearling sheep which abounded in the fertile valley—was a welcome rest haven for the weary colonists who had come the many miles on foot, horseback and on cart.

One hundred and eighty-three years later, our visit to Borrego Springs was by quite a different mode of transportation. With probably little change in the physical contours of Borrego Valley, our motor-log party viewed de Anza's early route from the luxury of a 1958 Ford Skyliner, newest of the very new—the world's only retractable hardtop.

Our combination hardtop-convertible, so ideally suited for a desert weekend, was furnished by McKenzie Ford of 1033 American Ave., one of Long Beach's earliest auto dealers and one of the very first Ford dealers in the entire nation.

It was back in 1905 that Freeman A. McKenzie established his little Long Beach showroom to become today just about the largest Ford dealer in Southern California. Bud McKenzie, son of the founder, who now operates the dealership, put us aboard the gleaming white Skyliner for our desert jaunt. With a few instructions on the simple operation of the disappearing metal top, luggage loaded, Bud flagged us out onto American Ave. and we were Borrego bound.

Leaving Long Beach at 5:30 p.m., Friday, 204 miles and five hours later found our four-some at Borrego Desert Lodge, our luxurious weekend spa. Our outbound route (see map) took us via Palm Springs on to Hwy. 99 to the southern tip of Salton Sea. There a right turn onto Hwy. 78 and Borrego was at hand. Greeted by resident manager Marty Pavletich, we were soon settled for the night in a comfortable air-conditioned suite a few steps from the lodge.

The emphasis on Borrego Desert Lodge living is rest and relaxation we discovered as our party enjoyed a poolside breakfast next morning. The over-all activities of Borrego can be summed up in three words—homes, agriculture and recreation. These we saw first-hand as host Pavletich guided us on a Ford Skyliner tour of the whole valley.

Borrego Valley is about six miles wide in the east-to-west direction, possibly 12 to 15 miles in length and the whole basin is confined by encircling mountains which afford a majestic view in any direction.

As we sped along the valley floor, the lodge manager pointed out the San Ysidro Mountains which guard the western edge of Borrego. To the north we saw the Santa Rosa range and on the east were the valley badlands. Toward Mexico, to the south, the Yaqui Mountains sloped to Borrego's edge.

In addition to the scenic grandeur we were next impressed by the valley's agriculture. The huge Di Giorgio Fruit Corp., a giant in the nation's fruit and produce business, has a sizable chunk of land under cultivation in the northern part of the valley. Grapes—Thompson seedless and Cardinals—are grown by the tons here.

Borrego Springs' abundant water supply and the Di Giorgio Corp.'s latest scientific cultivation methods combine to produce some of the most succulent grapes, which bring top prices in eastern markets.

In addition to fruit trees and ground crops, cotton and alfalfa are prominent valley crops, and the Fortner Ranch is noted for its beautiful gladioli harvest which also finds its way to eastern markets. Most of the blooms had been picked when we were at the "Glad" ranch but enough were still standing to portray a riot of color in contrast to the desert browns and grays.

Pride of the valley at the moment and also in sharp contrast to the bordering desert sand is the De Anza Desert Country Club, a nine-hole course which was opened last year. Designed by Lawrence Hughes, noted golf course architect, the fairways and greens looked most inviting as we drove by. Adjacent to the desert course and beautiful clubhouse are choice homesites which are rapidly being filled with modern homes tailored to desert living.

We pointed our white '58 back toward our lodge now, with a tour around Christmas served very efficiently in the spa's beautiful Ocotillo Room. And the prices aren't bad either, considering the luxury atmosphere one enjoys at Desert Lodge. Dinners were in the $2.50-$4.50 price range, while a big breakfast came to $1.25. Room accommodations seem to be within reason, too, with a tastefully appointed double bringing $12.

Our after-dark activity again found us at ease poolside watching a full moon climb slowly into the clear desert sky. Later we again were joined by host, Marty Pavletich, who reminisced a bit about his wartime weekends in Long Beach. Marty was attached to a blimp squadron which was on submarine patrol from its Santa Ana base and the resort manager was a frequent visitor at our Pacific Coast Club.

It was an enjoyable Saturday evening—rest, lazy conversation and relaxation ... typical Borrego night life.

Noon next day found us back on the road again, with our Skyliner eating up the miles on Hwy. 78 toward the coast. Soon we joined U. S. 395, stopped for a gas-up at Temecula, then a left turn into Elsinore.

With the afternoon still young, we wanted a look at the rejuvenated lake from the high San Ortega Mountain vantage point. Sunday traffic of 101. Another dreds of drivers with the same thought.

A short drive toward the coast again, through the Cleveland National Forest, and we were in mission-famed San Juan Capistrano, and the heavy hour found us back home ... another pleasant weekend in our memory book.

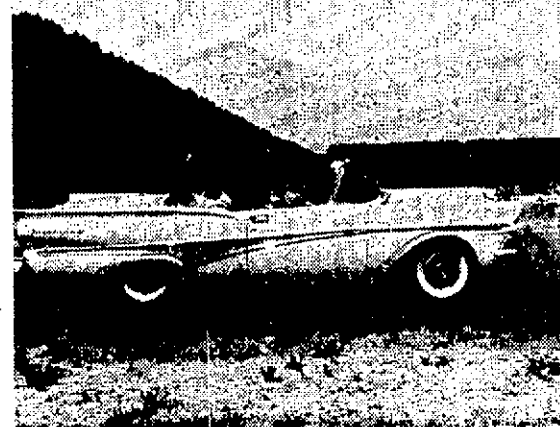

SKYLINER IN THE SKY

On return to Long Beach, McKenzie Ford Skyliner pauses at Ortega summit for view of Lake Elsinore far below. Recent rains have returned once-dry lake bed to popularity as boating and fishing resort.

Liz Bouncing Back From Tragic Shock

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Since March 22, when Mike Todd's private plane crashed in the New Mexico mountains, his beautiful widow has averaged about 2,000 letters of condolence per day.

Each letter is being answered by card or personal note from Elizabeth Taylor herself. Liz, now immersed in work, spends almost all of her spare time on handwritten notes to personal friends who sent flowers or otherwise expressed sorrow.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR
Answers All Letters

Physically and mentally, Liz has bounced back from the tragic shock although she occasionally suffers a bad night reliving the horror of receiving the news. Her work in her current picture, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," is little help; it deals much with impending death.

Among the first scenes when she returned to work was one in which she went to an airport to meet Big Daddy (Burt Reynolds) as he returned in his private plane.

ONE VISIT that cheered her was an unannounced call from Greta Garbo, long an idol. Garbo recalled that the last time she had seen Liz was when both worked on the same lot. Liz was 12 at the time.

Liz has found much solace in her brother, Howard, and his wife, who live at La Jolla. She has spent most of her weekends there.

She had planned to retire from the movies within the next year, but Mike's death has removed the reason for that.

"I only wanted to retire because Mike wanted me to," she says.

She and Michael Todd Jr., have held a series of business conferences about the future of the Todd enterprises. The decision was to carry on in the Todd tradition, even to the production of "Don Quixote," which young Todd first had wanted to forget.

Her Own Show Goes On and On

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Madeleine Sherwood has been pregnant — theatrically speaking — for three years, but that is not what makes her unusual.

Miss Sherwood, a New York actress, pays only $30 a month for her Greenwich Village apartment. She moved in when rent control was on — and it has never been raised.

"It has living room, bedroom, bath and kitchen and three trees in the backyard — and trees come high in New York," she says. The Montreal-born actress has to pay $35 a month for a garage for her car.

Her pregnancy is all theatrical. She's been wearing pads on her dresses for "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," first during the Broadway long run and now during the movie version.

CHERRY TIME NEAR

Beaumont to Hold Festival in June

Under the towering show caps of San Geronimo, the cherries are ripening again.

First come the black sweet Tartarians, in early June, and then the Bings, Royal Annes, Eastern sour pie cherries and Lamberts.

Beaumont-Cherry Valley is looking forward to its annual Cherry Festival June 12-15 with a big parade on the final day.

CHERRY GROWERS ASSN., represents the valley's thousand acres of cherries, re-elected Bruno Weise, president, and named T. Dean Crist publicity director.

Crist, publisher of a weekly newspaper, will try to fill the shoes of the late Guy Bogart.

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

TROUBLES OF A BLONDE

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Nichols stole the show on a recent Jack Benny "Shower of Stars" program—but before that, Jack was a little afraid to use her.

"Barbara," Jack said after he'd first met the dumb-blonde TV and movie comedienne, "you'd be playing my girl friend and I think you're too young to play my girl friend."

"Mr. Benny," retorted Barbara, "you don't know the age of some of the fellows I have to go out with!"

Barbara—who frequently moans, "I don't want to be a star, I just want to get married!"—has been reduced to buying another boy dog, a French poodle named Hi-Fi, for male companionship.

"A dog is the only kind of a male a blonde can latch onto around this town," Barbara told me the other afternoon over a drink at the Beverly Hills.

She had brought Hi-Fi and Samson with her. "These are my steady boy friends—and they're not as conceited and spoiled as some of the men around here!" she said.

Barbara recently got $1,000 for one day's work doing a scene with Gary Cooper in "10 North Frederick." She's worked with Red Skelton and other TV comics, and she tells all of them that it's just terrible the trouble a blonde has around Hollywood, getting a husband.

Once she was discussing it with John Wayne and a friend.

"Mr. Wayne doesn't like blondes," Barbara commented sadly.

"Oh, no, you have it wrong!" shot back Wayne. "I like blondes—but I don't marry them."

BARBARA WONDERS whether ANYBODY marries them. "The men in this town are so spoiled because the women call them up and ask for dates," she said.

"Well, I got spoiled in New York—we never did that. Out here the guys expect it. They give the girls their phone numbers and say 'Call me up sometime!'"

I asked her if she often goes to romantic Palm Springs.

"I'm not about to go with some of the characters that ask me!" she snorted.

While Barbara, the B.W. and I talked, several people—all male people—came to our table and congratulated her on recent acting jobs. The consensus is, "Barbara

1,640-Foot TV Mast for Moscow

MOSCOW (UP)—A 1,640-foot-high television tower made from pre-fabricated reinforced concrete will be erected for the Moscow television center.

The tower will have two elevators, each capable of carrying up to 100 persons to the height of 1,312 feet. A platform at that level will enable visitors to view Moscow and its environs.

The mast proper will be topped with an aerial for relaying TV signals.

Chet Huntley makes a 90-minute report on his trip to Israel over (4) at 4 p.m. to-day in a shift from the original plan. It was expected that Huntley's report would be made on two "Outlook" programs but it is deemed to be so unusual and spectacular that the 90-minute time was arranged.

Titled: "Israel: The Next 10 Years," it is a factual report on the new nation and what it is striving to accomplish. More than 40,000 feet of film were used so this should be exceptional.

(Next Sunday Huntley has an hour devoted to New York's juvenile delinquency problems as a special report.)

DAYTIME DATA
The 28th anniversary service of the Community Presbyterian Church of North Long Beach is observed on "Great Churches" (11) at 11 a.m. ... Topics ranging from recession to Nixon's tour will be discussed on "Comment" (4) at 11:30 a.m. ... Four governors appear on "The American Forum" over (4) at noon.

"The Key," a dramatic story about mental health, is on in place of "Look Here" (4) at 12:30 p.m. It was filmed in hospitals without any professional actors ... George V. Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency, will "Face the Nation" (2) at 1:30 ... Maj. Gen. Bernard Schriever, missile chief of the Air Force, will be on "College News Conference" (7) at 2:30 ... Soccer matches are on (11) at 2:30 p.m. ... Irish poet Sean O'Faolain and Lady Margaret O'Arcy exchange the "Last Word" on (2) at 3 p.m. ... Lillian Roth is on "Cavalade of Books" (2) at 4 p.m.

5 P.M.
"The Great Challenge" (2) discusses the outbreak of anti-American feelings in Latin America and "What Makes an Effective Foreign Policy?"

5:30 P.M.
A "Back-Bay Romance" upsets an aristocratic Boston family's slavish devotion to tradition during the "20th Century-Fox Hour" (11) starring Ann Harding, Raymond Massey and Joanne Woodward.

6 P.M.
Two governors, William G. Stratton, Republican, of Illinois, and Abraham A. Ribicoff, Democrat, of Connecticut, will "Meet the Press" (4) from the Governors' Conference.

6:30 P.M.
Nehemiah Persoff has the starring role in "Where Is My Brother" (4) that replaces "Outlook" for tonight only. Lee Grant and David Opatoshu will be featured in this story of terror under the Nazis and a new life in Israel.

"Air Power" (2) opens to-the Month" and MacArthur (Helen Hayes' son) was excellent on "Studio One" recently. Story concerns a scared young girl, a sailor and a foster father who is mightily mean.

Roscoe Ales doesn't do his stuttering act when he is featured on "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" (2) with Steve Forrest and Joanna Moore. Scene is a graveyard where a corpse in a blue-jean suit is being exhumed by a mercenary but winsome widow.

"What's the Name of That Song?" starring Bill Gwynn will move to this spot on (7) in a switch with "You Asked for It."

Aldous Huxley faces "The Mike Wallace Interview" (7). A spring cold sends the mother of six to bed for the day and the six decide to help her by doing housework. This brings a miraculous cure of a cold during "The Loretta Young Show" (4).

Ralph Bellamy takes a seat on "What's My Line?" (2). Movie on (4) is "The Bull-fighter and the Lady" filmed in Mexico and starring Robert Stack, Joy Page, Gilbert Roland and Katy Jurado.

Weapons, methods and crimes of juvenile gangs will be spotlighted on "Crime Story" (5).

Artist on TV
Ben Messick, Long Beach artist celebrated for his paintings of clowns and circus life, will be interviewed on the Al Jarvis Show at 2 p.m. Monday, Channel 7.

"Ed Sullivan Show" (2) has Sophie Tucker, Maurice Chevalier, Jack E. Leonard, Sally Blair, Carol Lawrence, the West Point Glee Club, George Tapp, Johnny Risko, the Wake Forest College Majordettes and poet Ogden Nash who just signed for 12 exclusive appearances on Ed's show.

COLOR — "Dinah Shore Show" (4) has Ida Lupino and Howard Duff plus Ginger Rogers as the headline guests. Also listed are Mike and Elaine, the newest comedy duo to gain fame.

Penney Co. Sales in L.B. Reflect Business Upturn

By KEN CHILCOTE
Independent, Press-Telegram Business Editor

A definite upturn in Long Beach retail business which saw April sales well exceed those of a year ago, is continuing to gain momentum, reports Vernon Fay, manager of the downtown Long Beach store of the J. C. Penney Co.

"Our store showed a decided increase in business over the previous April and it must be remembered that in 1957 the month of April included the heavy Easter volume while this year Easter came earlier," he continued.

FAY REPORTED that sales so far in May also are running well ahead of the comparative period of last year.

"We attribute most of this sales increase to the wonderful response to the advertising we have been carrying in the Independent, Press-Telegram."

"With the talk of a slowdown in business, we decided it was no time to retract. Instead, we increased our advertising promotion and the response was immediate."

"Perhaps they are a little more value-conscious. I don't mean they are strictly bargain hunting, but they are a little more cautious and want real value for their dollar."

"We launched our advertising program along that line and found the public spending more, than a year ago. We have never had a more wonderful response from advertising that we did with this campaign."

"IT PROVED a definite upturn in business and it showed that the public has the money to buy and is willing to buy if you go after the business," Fay said that most of the many J. C. Penney stores in Southern California report good results from April promotions. Nationally the company's sales declined 2.3 per cent in April.

The national report shows that Southern California is well ahead of most of the nation in a revival of business and improved economy, Fay commented.

Bratt to Ad Agency

R. L. (Dick) Bratt, manager of the Chamber of Commerce Public Relations Department since November, 1955, has joined the advertising firm of Sarver-Witczman, 2292 American Ave., it was announced Saturday.

Bratt will be an account executive and handle several of the firm's many accounts according to John Sarver and Joe Witczman, agency partners.

While at the chamber he handled the public relations, publicity, photography and was secretary for the tourist and public relations committee, Breakfast Forum and the Century Club. He was also editor of the chamber's official weekly publication, Chambergram.

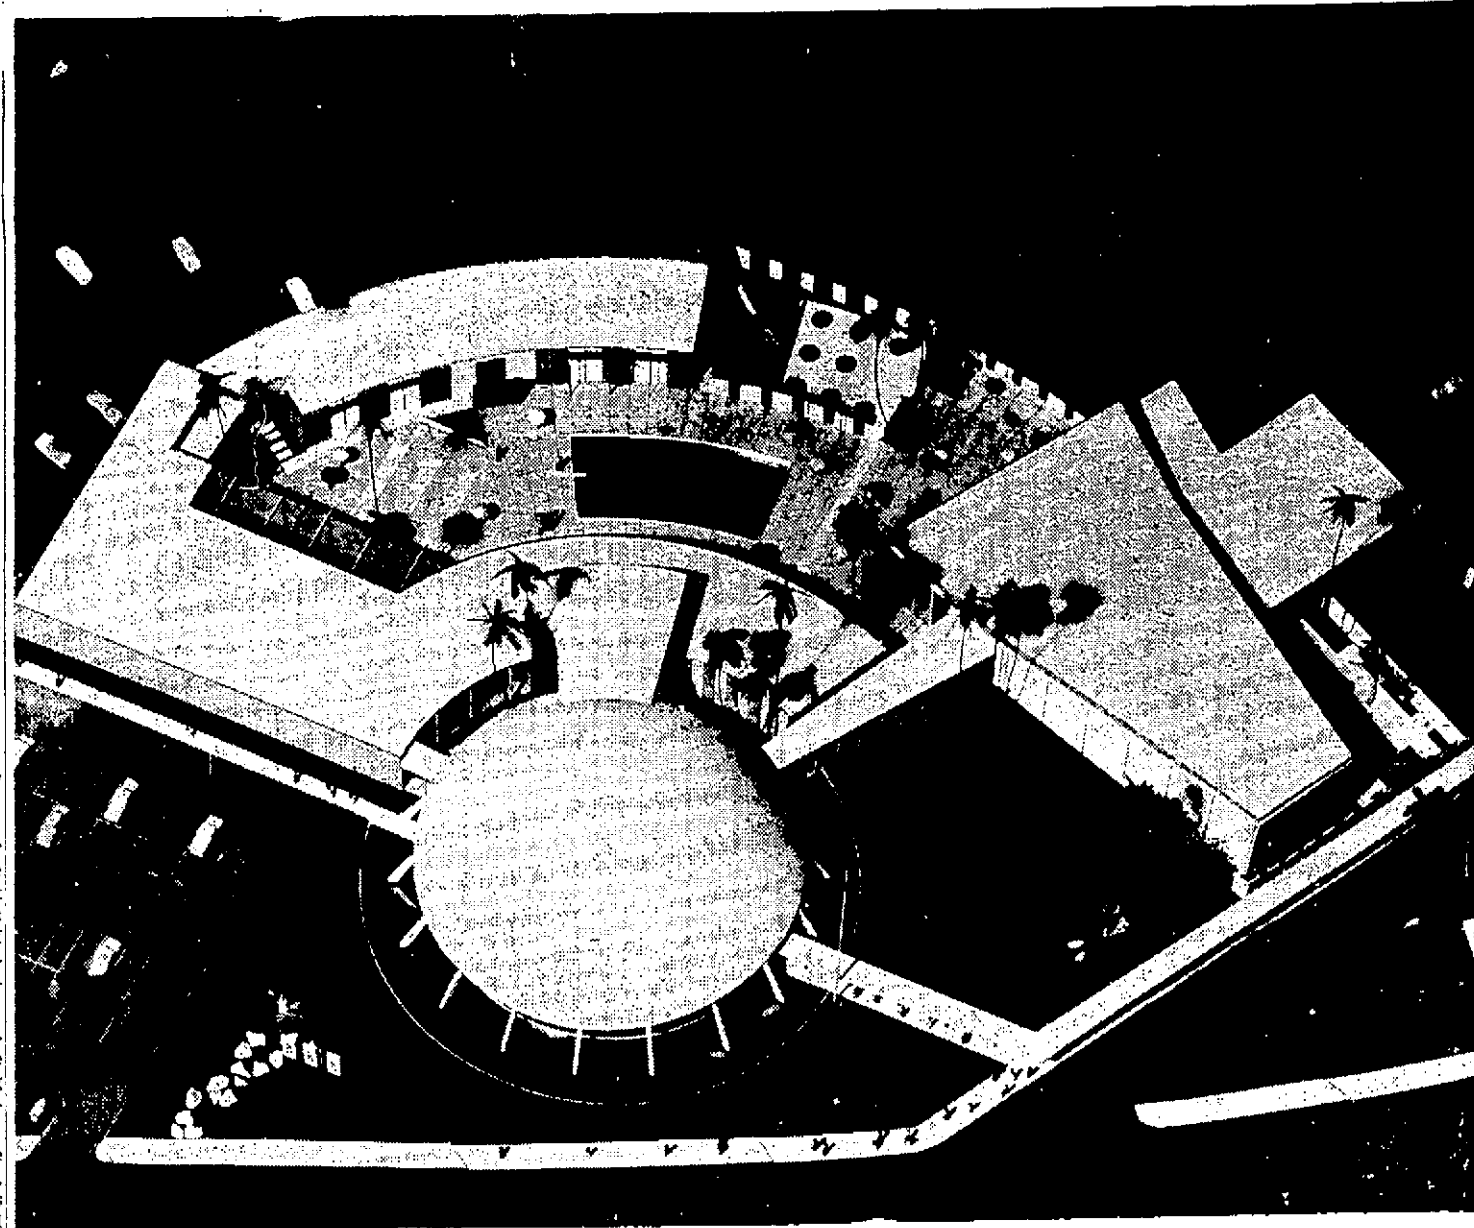

Prior to joining the Chamber of Commerce staff, Bratt was publicity director for the Los Angeles Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

During the Korean War, Bratt was in the public relations office at Camp Pendleton. A native of Duluth, Minn., Bratt attended high school there. He also attended Los Angeles City College, majoring in advertising.

PICTURED IS A MODEL of the planned $1,400,000 new home for Long Beach Elks Lodge No. 888. The lodge already owns the site on the north side of Willow St. between Redondo Ave. and Lakewood Blvd., and is now conducting a big membership campaign to raise additional funds for the project. The lodge, with 5,000 members, is the fourth largest among the Elks Lodges in the nation. Officials said they hope to get construction under way so the big structure can be completed early in 1959. Their present building at Ocean Blvd. and Cedar Ave. will be sold to help defray the cost of the new building.

Proposed New Elks Home One of Finest in Nation

One of the most spacious fraternal homes in the nation is planned by Long Beach Elks Lodge No. 888, an organization of 5,000 members and the fourth largest among all Elks lodges in the nation.

The property already has been purchased on the north side of Willow St. between Redondo Ave. and Lakewood Blvd. It is just one and one-half blocks from the actual geographical center of Long Beach, the building committee points out, making it a convenient location for the big membership.

TO COST $1,400,000 the new home is being planned to care for 6,000 members and the new lodge room will seat 1,000.

The present building owned by the lodge at Cedar and Ocean Blvd., can not meet the needs for attendance is limited to 500 by the Fire Department.

In the proposed new building the wives and families of members have been given much consideration in the designing of the building and grounds. The dining room, overlooking the big patio and swimming pool, is for family dinners in the evenings. There will be a spacious banquet room for dinner dances. The large patio will have tables with umbrellas. The swimming pool has adjoining locker and shower rooms.

The lodge room will be on the second floor of the central portion of the building. It will be of circular design. On the ground floor of the circular section will be the offices of the lodge officials, meeting rooms and a library and reading room.

THE WEST WING of the structure will be for exclusive use of the members and will contain a television room, committee meeting rooms, a large game room, billiard room and space for buffet service for these rooms.

North of the central portion of the building will be a bar and booths in a semi-circle with full glass windows facing the patio and swim pool.

The right wing will contain two small banquet rooms and two large dining rooms which may be thrown together as one large room. They will face the patio with large windows. Adjacent will be a large activity room with a stage and dressing rooms which will be used for banquets, dances or dinner dances. With sliding partitions it may be used separately or in connection with the two dining rooms to give seating capacity of 1,000. Centrally located to these rooms will be the kitchen. All of these rooms will be available for rental to other organizations when not in use by members.

The club now has considerable money available for the building and will realize much more when they sell the present building. Members are now engaged in raising $500,000 to complete the fund.

An organization of 320 committeemen, divided into 5 divisions, is directing the fund drive with Clare McCord as general chairman and Robert Mohrbacker as chairman.

L. B. Man Perfects Driver Training Aid

Eldon Dale, owner of the Dale Engineering Co., 6744 Oriyaba Ave., has developed a machine to test driving skill. One model is now operated for commercial use at amusement centers.

Dale also is developing a model for use in driver education programs to encourage alertness and awareness of safety factors. The operator will face simulated traffic conditions of every nature, including speed zones, intersections and emergencies.

The driver-education device will have a full set of automobile controls as well as a speedometer and instruments to record reaction time for braking. An automatic point system rates the ability demonstrated on each "dry run."

Dale, who has made a study of the habits of American drivers, believes that driver-training should begin at an early age. He feels that if principles of good driving were instilled years before actual operation of a vehicle that the American driving standard would become greatly improved.

Dale has been inventing and developing amusement devices since 1938 and holds six U. S. patents while six more are now pending. During World War II he served with the Special Devices Section of the Navy and developed a rocket-powered aircraft model that was used for anti-aircraft practice.

Dale, who has made a study of the habits of American drivers, believes that driver-training should begin at an early age. He feels that if principles of good driving were instilled years before actual operation of a vehicle that the American driving standard would become greatly improved.

FOR DRIVER EDUCATION

Eldon Dale, right, owner of Dale Engineering of Long Beach, has invented this device which will test the skill of a motorcar operator by simulating actual road conditions. Pictured with the device are Clyde Doron, art designer, and Bill Cassle, production chief of the Dale firm.

How TV Producer STEVE MARTIN—Star of "Open House"—FOUND HIS HOUSE!

3 Bedrooms plus Family Room, 2 Generous Baths and Dozens of other FEATURES

STEVE MARTIN, FAMOUS TV PERSONALITY... presents thousands of homes to the many viewers of his KTTV, Channel 11 television program, "Open House." Off the air, Steve is an active boating enthusiast. "The sea offers fun and sport but even more... a complete way of life like no other," Steve says. Steve first saw Marina Bay while planning a telecast of the resort area development. Realizing that beach property was becoming increasingly valuable as it rapidly diminished, Steve said: "When I discovered... Marina Bay Homes were only 3 blocks from the beautiful, new Long Beach Marina where I dock my boat... were luxuriously designed, affording maximum living area, both inside and out... and were offered on the new, convenient G.I. terms... it didn't take me long to make up my mind that a Marina Bay Home was for me and my family." You, too, can fulfill your dreams... at Marina Bay Homes!

Marina Bay Homes Attract Big Crowd

"Last weekend's boat show at Marina Bay Homes—Brighton-Built planned community 'by-the-sea,' two miles south of Long Beach, drew the greatest crowds of prospective buyers to date," it was announced by James Young.

"The sales recognition afforded these spacious, resort-area homes has been more than encouraging," Young added.

"We have found that a large proportion of Southern Californians desire the full-scale living possible in a home development located just three blocks from the beach and the new, beautiful Long Beach Marina boat harbor. This shore-side community offers family-sized homes priced moderately in one of the nation's fastest-growing resort areas."

These homes feature exterior design in a modern variety of stylings. A wide variety of floor plans, including 3 bedrooms, family room, and 2 baths with all-glass stall showers, is offered. Many "extras" have been added, such as sliding glass doors in the living room, leading to the paved patio, breakfast bar, ash-paneled living areas and a scenic mural wall, built-in O'Keefe & Merritt rotisserie oven and surface units, 2-car garage and connecting boat port, brick fireplace and shake roof, front and rear. Six-foot-high redwood fencing is included, as are Frigidaire washer, dryer, 12.3 cu. ft. refrigerator in color at no extra cost.

The shore-area dwellings are priced from $20,950, and are available to veterans under the new government-insured financing. No down payment is required for veterans who may purchase the homes on 4% per cent interest loans.

To reach the model homes of Marina Bay, take Pacific Coast Hwy. two miles south of Long Beach to Seal Beach and Marina Bay.

ATTRACTIVE HOME

Here is one model typical of the Marina Bay Homes, just south of Long Beach in Seal Beach, where a boat and home show was held last weekend to depict shore-side living. Carolyn Paneri and Charlene Voorhees of Long Beach served as hostesses.

Attractive Entry Court to Windsor Greens Home

A unique feature attracting wide acclaim at the Windsor Greens community in Lakewood Country Club Estates is the spacious garden-like entry court which provides an intriguing prelude to the high-styled interior of each home.

Though widely varied in styling from the Hawaiian Luani design to the traditional Lakeside model, the popular entry courts create a setting of privacy, charm and relaxation for every Windsor Greens home.

The in-town Windsor Greens community enjoys the conveniences of nearby major shopping centers and modern schools, and at the same time has the pleasurable surroundings of the Lakewood golf course.

WINDSOR GREENS' custom-designed 3-bedroom, family room or convertible den and 2½-bath homes are full priced from $29,750. Buyers may make a down payment as low as $4,475 or trade in the equity in their old home. Financing terms are arranged to suit the buyer's needs.

Fashionable interior appointments include massive stone or brick fireplace, full paneled living room wall, stunning lighting fixtures, and marble pullmans in the bathrooms. Kitchens are equipped with built-in electric wall oven and counter-top range in color, automatic dishwasher, and range hood and fan.

Two elegantly furnished model homes are open to the public daily at Windsor Greens. The models are located on Carson St., between Lakewood and Cherry Aves., in Lakewood's Country Club Estates.

HERE'S ONE MODEL

Windsor Greens' distinctive Lakeside model, boasting elegant pillared entry court, is shown here. Fashionable three-bedroom homes are situated in a premium home location in Long Beach.

BUILT BY LARAMORE

Here is one of the models in Magnolia Manor Unit 7 built by the Laramore Co., and selling from $12,200 on a low payment.

Magnolia Manor's Unit 7 Ideal for Growing Family

Newest designs for enjoyable family life are found at Magnolia Manor No. 7 in Garden Grove, a spokesman for the development declares.

The homes are specifically designed for convenient, easy maintenance and living freedom, state Laramore Construction Co. officials. With the increasing desire for leisure activities, these homes are especially suited to young growing families, says Frank H. McFarland, sales agent. He pointed out that each of the three floor plans contains over 1,300 square feet of living area, plus double garages, and are scientifically planned on efficiency-rated plans.

MODERN housewives welcome the easily adaptable room arrangements which radiate from a convenient central hall. Consideration for large family groupings is evident in the spacious front or rear living rooms with open access to adjoining dining areas. Economy-engineered kitchens offer every working convenience. Features include Formica sinks with disposals, vinyl tile floors, hardwood cabinets and plenty of utility and storage space. Three to four bedrooms with ample closets and large windows are designed to permit utmost comfort and privacy. One and a half or two big baths are finished in non-spotting Lamidall and easy-to-clean vinyl tile.

Moderately priced from $12,200 to $12,500, the homes provide long-term investment protection because of sturdy construction, according to McFarland. He pointed out that the low $195 down payment with only $90 move-in cost permits immediate occupancy for average budgets.

These Orange County homes can be reached in minutes from Long Beach. Drive east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Huntington Beach Blvd., south to Westminster and east to Westminster and east to Magnolia Manor 7.

Rossmoor Sales Continue Over $1 Million Monthly

First-quarter sales at Rossmoor totaled $3,160,000, reports Bill Cheney, of Walker & Lee, sales agents for the 1200-acre community near Long Beach. March was the third consecutive month which accounted for sales exceeding $1,000,000, Cheney noted.

Easy Terms on Sherwood Rancho Unit

With just $490 required to move into the new 3-bedroom family room and 2-bath Sherwood Rancho homes in Costa Mesa, prospective homeowners are touring models and setting the same rapid sales pace noted in previous Buccola developments, including Claredge Park in Anaheim.

Available in a variety of nine elevations with rambling ranch, provincial, contemporary, colonial and farmhouse among the architectural designs, the homes are spacious both inside and out. Living area measures 1544 square feet, it was noted, and the homes are built on extra-wide lots to accommodate a number of outdoor living facilities.

THE PREFERRED east side of Costa Mesa near Back Bay is the location of the new development, conveniently close to new schools and churches, shopping centers and a great variety of famous Southland recreational activities. Just three minutes from the beach and the bay, Sherwood Ranchos are one-half block from a public school and two blocks from a parochial school.

A planned community, the homes contain features usually found in far more expensive dwellings, Buccola noted. These include O'Keefe and Merritt built-in gas range and oven, extra heavy shake roofs, forced air heat, tile drainboards and Pullman, glass shower doors, fireplaces with loglighters, hardwood doors, ash cabinets, colored fixtures, sliding glass doors, abundant closet and storage space, two-car garages and many more.

Open on Orange Ave., Sherwood Ranchos are reached from Los Angeles by driving out Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor, south on Harbor to Newport Blvd., left on Newport to Virginia Pl. and continue to the homes. These luxury homes are priced from $14,950.

Newest Unit of Imperial Homes Open

Public response to the preview showing of Imperial Estates No. 17, Emblem Homes' new community of large-family residences at Norwalk and Centralia Ave., was extremely favorable, according to Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agent for this new development in the Norwalk area.

Available to veterans for no formal down payments except the usual costs and impounds, Chandler said, on long-term VA loans at 4% per cent interest, the homes are fully priced at $12,750, $12,950 and $13,000. Monthly payments, Chandler pointed out, are as low as $66.68, including principal and interest.

ATTRACTIVE California ranch-style residences, offered in a variety of exteriors, have flexible plans designed for comfortable family living. Included are three bedrooms or two bedrooms with den, and there is a choice of front or rear living room. Added convenience factor is the separate service porch.

From Long Beach, model homes are reached by driving east on Carson which becomes Lincoln. Then left (north) on Pioneer to Centralia, then right to Norwalk Blvd.

Chandler Heads Project Sales

Frank C. Chandler, general sales manager of the Key Land Co., has been appointed to handle sales of a portion of Salton Sands development, it was announced by Bill Dehn, general manager of the Salton Sands Co.

Dehn pointed out that Chandler heads one of the Southland's most aggressive real estate sales forces and he is pleased to have Chandler's group associated with him to handle Salton Sands sales.

"This is one of the finest investment opportunities I've ever been associated with," Chandler said.

The Key Land Co. office is at 2149 S. Atlantic Blvd. in Monterey Park.

Allot $52,000
to Tourist Bureau
SAN DIEGO (UP) — County supervisors appropriated $52,000 to the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau after turning down the bureau's request for $100,000.
The supervisors noted that the appropriation was the same as that made last year.

BUILT BY HUNSAKER
Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, designed to give home buyers generous living area with three bedrooms and two full baths, are moderately priced and ready for immediate occupancy. S. V. Hunsaker & Sons are builders.

Named to New Post
in Bankers' Assn.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., (UP) — Election of Ben C. Corlett, San Francisco, to a new office of senior vice president of the American Bankers' Assn., was announced by Joseph C. Welman, Kennett, Mo., the president.

Welman, attending the Kansas Bankers' Assn. meeting, said Corlett will take charge of the association's Washington office next month.

Sunshine Homes Offering
High Value at Low Price

Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, designed to give home buyers maximum value at moderate price, can be purchased for $195 total down and monthly payments less than rent, according to Stan Rossi, sales manager.
Families will appreciate generous living area provided, Rossi states. Homes have 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths, large closets, and kitchens that include an extra dining area.
Other provisions Rossi lists as forced air heat, front or rear living rooms, maticork floors, acoustical ceilings, aluminum sliding windows, and Vinyl tile, natural finish birch cabinets, and garbage disposal in kitchen.
Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, built by S. V. Hunsaker and Sons, have furnished models on display daily on Bowen St. and Woodbury Rd., just north of Westminster Ave. They are ready for immediate occupancy.

Vets Asked Nothing Down for Big Home in Park Westminster

"For only $179 total closing costs and imposts to move in, veterans can take advantage of the no down payment GI privilege at Park Westminster — Brighton-Bilt's home development in beautiful Westminster," James Young, vice president announced.

"Located in the heart of the Southland's resort area, these quality-built, moderately-priced homes offer both vets. and non-vets under FHA, real California living at prices they can easily afford," Young stated.
"And with more and more people spending their leisure time in this resort area, our sales are soaring as the summer season approaches."

Veterans need pay only 4% per cent interest on their V. A. loans, and $66 per month (including principal and interest). Non-vets or vets who have used their GI privileges require only 3 per cent down (plus 1/2 per cent mortgage insurance), and 5 1/2 per cent interest on FHA terms. There are no hidden charges, no second trust deeds or balloon payments, and all buyers receive a grant deed. The experience-designed homes are priced as low as $2,495.

THE SPACIOUS, attractive floor plans feature 3 bedrooms and 2 baths. An imaginative range of exterior styles is introduced, offering either 2-car garages or car ports. Many "extras" have been added, including Roper built-in ranges and ovens in matching colors, garbage disposals, confetti kitchen flooring, large linen closets, weather-stripped exterior doors, all natural mahogany doors, maticork flooring throughout, six-foot high tile in showers and tile splash over all tubs. King-size lots offer ample expanse for future outdoor projects. Fencing, side and rear, is installed, plus 2 gates.

Park Westminster model homes may be reached by following Highway 39 to 20th St., in Westminster, turn east to model house at 8315-20th St.

Salton Sands Grand
Opening Set Today

Salton Sands, impressive new all-year community development at Salton City, will place choice residential lots on sale for the first time this weekend as an integral part of grand opening activities at the $20-million, 19,600-acre, 28-square mile desert-sea resort.

Debut of the desert home sites was made official yesterday by Bill Dehn, general sales director, who noted widespread advance public interest in the desert oasis.

"Although first actual sales are just being made, Salton Sands already has reservations for more than 50 per cent of the first unit," Dehn declared.

THOUSANDS OF potential home builders and home-site investors are expected to visit Salton Sands this weekend. The scenic property, on the shores of the legendary Salton Sea, is being developed 32 miles south of Indio and 10 miles south of the Riverside Imperial County line on U. S. Highway 99 in Imperial County, on the west side of the natural, warm salt waters.

In addition to existing attractions at Salton City, plans call for a new golf course, resort hotel, playgrounds and club facilities. Immediate projects such as streets, water, boating and airfield installations are scheduled at an estimated cost exceeding $20 million.

Stress Good Location of Homes in Park Lakewood

New Park Lakewood homes, cabinets, ceramic tile on all two blocks from the Lakewood Center, are within walking distance of all conveniences, report building officials. The new multi-million-dollar development is adjacent to a park, one block from an elementary school, convenient to a high school, near churches of several denominations, a golf course, and the Lakewood Civic Center.

New, low FHA and conventional terms have been acquired and the project features 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes with built-in, color-matched range, automatic oven and triple rotisserie in the kitchens, garbage disposal, natural ash kitchening to furnished models.

A 7-foot fireplace with raised hearth, mantle and log-lighter, oak hardwood floors, sliding glass doors opening onto extra large paved patios and color-matched plumbing fixtures are a few of the features. Only 20 of these custom quality homes are being built at Park Lakewood with immediate occupancy available in a few models. Furnished model homes are available for viewing daily and may be reached by driving North on Lakewood to Candlewood, then turning east on Candlewood to Fidler and proceeding to furnished models.

IN LEMON HEIGHTS WEST

New Section of Exclusive Lemon Heights Now Open

Lemon Heights West in sites, according to officials of Santa Ana's exclusive Lemon Schwartz-Yedor Building Corp. Heights district, new community of distinguished custom homes now nearing completion, invites prospective home owners for an "early bird" inspection and selection of choice.

New community introduces the "custom series" of elegant homes designed by architect George Vernon Russell, winner of the National Award of Merit for Residential Architecture, 1954, and director of the California Council of AIA in 1957.

Built by Schwartz-Yedor, winners of the House and Home Magazine Award of Merit in residential design and construction in 1957, the community will provide luxurious homes for the young executives in a prime residential area. "In other words," the spokesman explained, "a fine custom home with the advantages of volume building."

EVERY HOME is completely engineered and included in the staff of technical experts are a structural, a mechanical and an electrical engineer to assure maximum efficiency of each system.

Varied plans offer 3 and 4 bedrooms, dining rooms, master bedroom suites with private baths, dressing rooms, powder rooms and 3 baths.

Top quality components also include such appliances as deluxe oven and range-top, waste disposer, automatic dishwasher, combination refrigerator-freezer and washer and automatic dryer, all, the spokesman said, by famous name appliance makers.

To inspect the new community-in-the-making, drive Santa Ana Freeway to 17th St. Take 17th St. to Hewes, then north on Hewes to Spaulding, then west on Spaulding to Lemon Heights West.

Sales Are Opened in Salton Riviera

A whole new resort city — Salton Riviera—is coming to life on the shores of Salton Sea, California's largest inland body of water.

"We believe Salton Riviera will be bigger in every way than anything our company has done in the past—in Arrowhead, in Big Bear, in Baldwin Park, Palmdale, Lancaster or Hesperia," announced Joe Karbo, vice president of the company.

"Salton Riviera is the only place in North America where you can swim in warm salt water in January, surrounded by snow-capped mountains. Or bask in the summer sun on the only salt-and-sea breeze air-conditioned desert in the world. Salton Riviera is made to order for a major resort."

Plans for the development actually started years ago, and included from the outset a marina, yacht club, country club and golf club, gun club and riding club. The $2,500,000 recreation facilities will be administered by a non-profit Recreation District in the new city.

Homes and homesites, business and income property went on sale officially Saturday. A free booklet: The Salton Story, has been written and is available to anyone who writes M. Penn Phillips, Dept. NP, 1111 Foothill Blvd., Azusa, Calif.

Hughes House Open for Public to See

Termed one of the most luxurious homes built in the Southland in years, the Hughes of Distinction will be open for public viewing today at 3655 Country Club Dr., adjacent to Lakewood Country Club.

Located in the Country Club Estates where Realtor Gene Nebeker is offering estate-sized lots in about the last of the premium locations in Long Beach, the Hughes House is a showcase for gracious living.

M. L. Hughes, general contractor and builder, has included virtually every ultra-modern convenience and feature to suit the comfort of the most discriminating home buyer.

WITH THIS HOME as a model, he is offering his services in custom building a home for others who purchased the Country Club Estates sites. He will provide the planning, construction and financing for a home suited to the personality and needs of any family, said Nebeker.

The Hughes House has 4 bedrooms, 2 3/4 baths, family room and an extra room that may be used as a private office or sewing room. There is a large 3-car garage. The homesite is fenced, lawn sprinklers installed, landscaped in the front and rear and is about perfection for built-ins.

The massive kitchen has a built-in O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, built-in Servel refrigerator and deep freeze. Each bedroom has so many built-ins that only a bed is needed to occupy each.

Complete carpeting and drapes have been provided by Ray Dudley.

OF GENUINE lath and plaster construction with a shake roof, the home is of only the finest materials and the detailed finishes are eye appealing in each room.

In the kitchen the built-in oven and countertop range, roaster and refrigerator are colored. The double-tile sink has a large work area adjoining. Hood and ventilating fan cover the cooking units. In the cabinets will be found a built-in lazy Susan and there is a large, walk-in pantry.

The utility room has generous built-ins for storage and much work space.

Bathrooms are Pullman styled in a selection of colored tile fixtures with many built-in cabinets and glassed-in tile shower.

THE BEDROOMS have large walk-in closets and there are built-in desks, built-in bookcases and other outstanding features.

The huge living room and adjoining family room make artistic use of stone in the fireplace and planters. Walls are of birch panel with glass sliding doors and view windows.

A dining room is included for gracious entertaining.

A patio and pool, if desired, add to the outdoor living motif.

There is 2800 square feet of living space in the Hughes House. All interior woods in doors and molding are in natural finish.

Thermostatically controlled forced-air heating is provided in each room. Touch-Plate electric switches are used throughout. The wall color or wallpaper show perfection in color coordination.

The home faces the beautiful Lakewood Country Club fairways. It may be viewed by driving on Carson St., midway between Cherry Ave. and Lakewood Blvd., and turning north to Country Club Estates.

Nebeker's office with Robert Budd as sales manager, will be open at the unit to show other big homesites that are available.

Hancock Oil Co. Receives Award

For its work in smog abatement, the Hancock Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Hancock Oil Co., Long Beach, has received a citation from the County Air Pollution Control District. The citation was presented W. T. Hancock, president of the chemical plant, by Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, who is chairman of the pollution control district.

"It is with pleasure to present a Clear Air Award to your firm, which was one of the first to be recognized for outstanding accomplishment in air pollution control," said Dorn.

"The fact that so many of our industries have done such a very fine job further emphasizes the fact that the control efforts of the Hancock Chemical Co., had craft Co., will speak on 'Big Business Needs You,' at the luncheon meeting.

SELLING PREMIUM LOCATIONS

UNIQUE SALES OFFICE

This unique and attractive sales office is the headquarters of the Gene Nebeker Realty Co., which is selling the homesites in Lakewood Country Club Estates. It is at the entrance of the area.

Even Quake Didn't Stop LBCC Pioneers

GLEE DUNCAN assumes pose familiar to multitude of former Long Beach students who took business courses from her at Long Beach City College. She has been chairman of Business Department of the college more than 30 years.

By JEAN B. MOORE

They remember a time when their desks were picnic tables, and maps were wired to trees; when student plays suddenly were switched from a theater to Recreation Park, to the delight of picnickers.

It was a cold spring in 1933, and the tents they moved into from classes under the trees leaked.

But foremost in the recollections of Miss Glee Duncan and Miss Katharyn Kennedy is the cooperation and attendance of students in those hectic days after the earthquake.

These two seldom dwell in the past, for they are too busy with the present.

Their distinction in common is that they are the only members of the original Long Beach City College faculty still teaching on the campus.

Glee Duncan, the "good sport" type, has been head of the Business Department since the college was organized in 1927 in the Wilson High School building.

Slight Katharyn Kennedy, whose delicate features re-pese beneath a torch-brilliant crown, is speech and drama instructor at the college.

IN AN HONEST and sincere appraisal of Long Beach students, Glee Duncan maintains they are superior in mental attitude and social adjustment. She thinks they always have been.

During the earthquake era business students learned debits and credits in the park, with lessons printed on blackboards.

Other classes were relocated down narrow stairs in the basement of the band shell in Recreation Park. Yet rarely was there a grumble.

"From the park we moved to those devilish tents," Miss Duncan recalls.

AFTER THE temporary bungalows, the campus moved to its present Lakewood location, and eventually Glee Duncan's staff grew to about 15, teaching all business subjects. During the years she has taught all business subjects herself.

"The best friends I have are my former students," Glee Duncan says. "No matter what my problem, I almost always can call on an ex-student now in business to help."

"Almost every week former students come to the campus, either on business or to consult with me about courses for their children. I'm on the second generation of students now."

GLEE DUNCAN likes teaching. She especially likes teaching in Long Beach. One reason is that she enjoys people.

"On the college level you're dealing with young, forward-looking people," she explains. "This profession keeps you young and normal, and you feel you're doing something for someone."

Outside the classroom, Miss Duncan sponsors the Kassai Alumnae group. An honorary service group, it gives scholarships and does philanthropic work. Miss Duncan sponsored the the campus Kassai group some years ago, and the nucleus of the alumnae group is composed of these women.

More feathers in the Duncan cap: president of the American Association of University Women, member of City Teachers Club, now called TALB, Delta Kappa Gamma, and chairman several years ago of the state business teachers convention here.

BUT THAT is not all. She's a good cook; plays golf and bridge and swims.

Travel is her middle name. She's been around the world; has visited Europe and Canada, several times, has seen Mexico and Alaska. Her formula: travel alone—you'll have a better time.

But her teaching days are about over, for she will retire June 20.

What will she do? "I don't know yet," she says. "I thought when you retired you didn't have to do anything!"

That's as unlikely a statement as Glee Duncan probably ever has made.

KATHARYN KENNEDY's desk at City College is a tiny

Lady Lions Set Party

All is in readiness for the annual spring meeting of the combined six Lady Lions Clubs in this area. The party, to take place at 7 p. m. Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel, will have as its theme "International Springtime." Lady Lions, an international organization of wives and mothers of Lions International, is organized for community betterment and philanthropic ventures.

Acting as host to the members will be the Lady Lions Downtown Club of which Mrs. Vern Castle is president. She is being assisted by Mmes. Manuel Mayuga, Pat Phelan and George Ezell. The club's major project is in assisting the men of the Downtown Club in support of the Rose Resnik School and Camp for Blind Children.

IN CHARGE of the door awards for the party will be Lakewood Lady Lions. Mrs. R. T. Crawford, president, is being assisted by Mrs. Lowell Robbins. Main activity of this club is hosting a March birthday party for patients at Rancho Los Amigos as well as contributing to the Lakewood Youth Center.

Mrs. George Alexander, assisted by Mmes. Edwin W. Hyka, Ted Byrnes and Laverne Butcher, of Belmont Shore Lady Lions, are in charge of publicity for the soiree. Projects for this club include support of Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the famous Lion Doll that is dressed each year by members.

West Long Beach Lady Lions are busy gathering art

objects as well as dolls of many nations to decorate the dinner tables. Mrs. Earl Akin, president, is being assisted by Mrs. L. B. Stanbaugh. Major project for them is helping with the Boys' Club and in addition they present a bond to the boy that is chosen "Boy of the Year." Each year in August they stage a huau, as a money-raising event.

A PANEL of foreign students, secured through the Long Beach American Field Service, will be presented by North Long Beach Lady Lions as the program for the evening. Students Kai Kruger of Norway, Victor Mueller of Switzerland and Maro Conno of Argentina, were selected by Mrs. Ira Williams, the club president, Mrs.

Exotic Decor of Islands for Dance

The ever-busy GOP Juniors will momentarily forget their many responsibilities and succumb to the call of those far-away places for one glamorous, romantic evening in a Tahitian Paradise next Saturday evening.

In reality, it is the occasion of the club's annual Spring Fantasy Ball, this year a dinner dance at the new Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. Traditionally a head-dress dance, this year's theme of Tahitian Paradise promises to inspire many exotic and colorful head adornments.

The Petroleum Club will be transformed by the unusual decorations created by Mrs. John McNulty and her committee in rich shades of purple, turquoise and yellow. The simple Tahitian motif will be cleverly interwoven with the glamorous glitter of our world to create a spectacular effect through the use of Oriental umbrellas and lanterns, hibiscus, glittering butterflies, colored shells and other island decorations.

Many long hours have been spent by Mrs. C. A. Chandler and her committee to insure the success of the evening. The buffet dinner will feature exotic dishes of the islands.

HIGHLIGHTS of evening will be the Tahitian acrobatic dance, performed by Audrey Castle, known in Long Beach for her specialty dancing, and the unveiling of the valuable mystery headdress which will be won by a lucky dance patron. Its identity is a deep secret known only to the dance committee, its creator, Mrs. Harris Rogers, and Mrs. Jack Augsberger, who will model the headdress. Music for the evening will be provided by Bob Callaway and his orchestra.

Another high point of the evening will be the judging of the headdresses, with Messrs. Floyd Williams, Harris Rogers, Ernest Lockwood, John Roggeveen, and Robert Irwin acting as judges.

HOSTS AND hostesses greeting the guests will be Messrs. and Mmes. Gene Haden, C. A. Chandler, Robert Irwin, Norman Scott and Arnold Romeyn.

GOP Juniors is a political club that has received much notice throughout the state due to the fact that the membership is composed almost entirely of young mothers who are concerned with being better informed and who have done a great deal of outstanding educational and political work.

WHAT IS THE MYSTERY HEADDRESS?

LADY LIONS JOIN IN SPRINGTIME PARTY

The six Lady Lions Clubs in this area are busily engaged in preparing for the annual spring meeting scheduled for 7 p. m. Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel. The event, high light of the year, is being reviewed by Mrs. George Alexander, left, of Belmont Shore Club, and Mrs. Ira Williams of North Long Beach club.

SPRING THEME FOR LADY LIONS MEET WEDNESDAY

and Mrs. Earl Akin of West Long Beach club. The Downtown Club will act as host at the annual event this year, using the theme of "International Springtime." Party is at Lafayette Hotel.

Dinner Party for Peruvian Navy Admiral

Included on the dinner party guest list were members of Rear Adm. Tirado's staff.

Others bidden were Mrs. R. S. Craighill, Rear Adm. and Mrs. G. R. Donaho, Peruvian Consul General J. E. Ego-Aguirre and his wife, Capt. and Mrs. George Eritschmann, Rear Adm. and Mrs. R. K. James, Capt. and Mrs. K. R. Wheland, Capt. W. R. Whitford, Cmdr and Mrs. G. E. Carlisle, Capt. and Mrs. H. F. Stoner and Lt. Cmdr. A. A. Schrimmer.

REAR ADM. TIRADO was in this area touring facilities of the U. S. Navy as guest of the U. S. chief of Naval operations.

Confederate Unit to Meet

Gen. Joe Wheeler Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will convene May 28 at 2 p. m. in Linden Hall.

Mrs. Donald E. Humphreys, chapter registrar and past state registrar, will talk on "Unusual Incidents in the War Between the States."

Mrs. Joe Handy, chapter president, will lead the meeting, and also will be in charge of reservations.

Tea hostesses will be Mrs. Samuel D. Miller, Mrs. John Thurston, Miss Marguerite Patterson and Miss Lulu Bell Newman.

Visiting and prospective UDC members are invited.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

AMERICAN THUGS may look tougher but, after talking to Gertrude (Mrs. Roy) Suydam this week we decided the British variety are meaner! Called Mrs. Suydam to ask about her forthcoming trip to London to visit daughter, Rosemary, and "Doc" (Capt. R. M.) Wilson and she told us Rosemary and "Doc" had had an official visit from professional robbers, the elite second story boys, who stole $10,000 worth of jewelry AND SEVEN TICKETS TO "MY FAIR LADY!"

"Tolks Youse"

Not only are those tickets impossible to replace (the show is sold out for a year) but so is the jewelry which represents a life-time collection plus family heirlooms; things that Rosemary has bought and been given during her world around travels as a Navy wife. Only things those toff footpads didn't get were her engagement ring and a pair of pearl earrings she was wearing.

Actually all this is "bonus" news because we called Mrs. S. to learn details of her trip. Here 'tis. She'll fly away next Saturday and be gone anywhere from a week to six months! If you'd like a little wager we'll offer 10 to 1 if I'll be the latter.

Also bonus information was learning that Mrs. Suydam not only sold her home at 4201 Myrtle Ave. to Norman and Rosemary Stow but moved this very week (Tuesday to be exact) to 3210 E. 1st St. with the help of other daughter, Dorothy Long, who will occupy the new residence with son Stanley and Gertrude's granddaughter, Melinda Suydam, while England is being invaded.

WAVES OF GREEN jealousy come and go this time of year. It's a seasonal allergy which them as stays home suffer when they hear about them as is traveling. June and Lyle Huggins brought on a particularly severe attack with cards and letters mailed from Rome and received this week.

They flew to Italy, bought a car and have been touring all over the place. Right now "grammaw" Mabel Huggins (baby-sitting with the children) estimates they're making like a roller coaster in the Alps en route to or in Switzerland. Next Paris, then the World's Fair at Brussels—London—Copenhagen and finally, when June comes Whistlin' Dixie — and Eatin' Chicken!

Ah say, Colonel, y'all heah about the theah pahty they'all ah havin' come Saturday night? Heah tell theah gonna imphort several y'ahds of Mason-Dixon line to string around foh decorations. Handy to hog-tie any dang-yankie that might be lurk-in the shadows, too.

"Y'all listenin'?"

Gonna be in Magnolia Park Estates and all the folks, whistlin' Dixie as they stroll, gonna go fust to Belle Waters—that's Virginia and Franklin Waters plantation—foh to slip mint juleps. Then they'll jest naturally follow the scent of fraid chicken waffin' out on the evenin' ayah from Gaylord Manor, which, as y'all know, is Virginia (now ain't theah a purty name, sub?) and Charles Gaylord's place.

Finally, theah rebel yells growin' quiet and smothered-like from all that good food, they'll meandah on ovah to Shirley and Chuck Plantings foh pecan pie. Yes suh, Colonel, about 50 gonna sing these lyrics to "Song of the South" includin' Betty and Bob Buftum, Jean and Clyde Dunlap, Harriett and Bob Wood, Merge and Keith Utterback and Margaret and Wayne Frederick.

to an end (not Mrs. Huggins but the month) they'll fly home via the Polar route while their little Italian car follows by freighter.

RIGHT WHEN THE party was going good Thursday night Florie and Dr. Ward DeWitt turned all the lights out. Honest! Then the party got even better because that was the signal for guests of honor Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Long of Ontario to turn on the projection machine and show their wonderful collection of colored slides of medical work in Ecuador, mainly of Dr. Donald Dilworth at the Andean Mission Hospital near Quito. Also special guests were Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Altig, on leave from medical work in Peru, plus such other interested docs and wives as Rufus and Hart Davis, Irene and Frank James, Edith and Homer DeSadeleer, Peter and Lynn Davis and Lois and Bruce Waller.

THE WATER METER at Betty and Bob Godwins never had it so good as it did the other day. They filled their new pool for the first time! Understand the sparkling backyard swimmin' hole was duly initiated first of this week.

THEY'RE GOING to gather gleefully for Glee Thursday night at the Hawaiian Restaurant. What and who dat? Glee Duncan, thaswhofo. The alumni of Long Beach City College are having a big dinner for her to celebrate her retirement. Which doesn't mean they're glad she's getting out of the school business but just glad for her as she begins annual year-long vacations! George Marmion is spearheading the shindig with help from Glenda (Mrs. Archie) Long and Lois Guyser. All CecCoe alums are welcome—just call George.

WISH WE COULD say Ruby Bothwell went to Las Vegas and got lucky. Instead we'll have to admit she went to Las Vegas and got mumps. Doc diagnosed 'em Tuesday; promptly sentenced her to two weeks in bed. Well, unlike a lot of people we know, she did, at least, bring SOMETHING back!

THEY TELL US the boys were handsome and that their girls were positively crazy about them! The boys, all members of Comus Club at Poly, dated their mothers last Sunday morning for Mother's Day, treating them, as they have every May for years and years, to a fashionable breakfast party. Among couples present at the Petroleum Club were Mary and Todd Jagerson, Betty and Bill Barbee Jr., Marie and Dennis Sechrest, Erma and Roger Wheeler, Kay, Gary and Dave Miller and lots of other "guys and moms."

SPEAKING OF THE Cheneyes and the Settles—Julia and Bill and Pat and Ralph should look like they've just been freshly painted by the sun this weekend. Now tans were brushed on evenly during an ocean going fishing trip Thursday and Friday aboard Jean and "Eh" Hadley's beautiful 63-foot yacht, "Ebb Tide." They all met at the Kona Kai Club in San Diego Wednesday night for dinner before boarding the boat for leisurely cruising in search of yellow tail? albacore? rock bass? It didn't matter to the fishermen because no matter what was biting you can be sure they were catching their limits of fun!

AND NOW Barbara Eckert has three men to contend with in her family. Or we could put it another way and say that Warren has two sons to side with him in future decisions on family policy. ("Dad sez we can so too keep the snake we found. He promised!") Robert Walter arrived home from Seaside last Saturday all oblivious to how partisan certain male relatives are secretly counting on him to be come some years' hence on snake, frog, beetle or bee gathering expeditions!

SOME PEOPLE will do almost anything

Dinner Fete for Mothers

Long Beach Bachelorettes Club members honored their mothers at a recent dinner party and fashion show in the Silver Saddle Inn, Downey. Red carnation corsages were presented to each guest.

During a brief recognition time, Miss Joy Seeden, president, awarded bouquets of red carnations and white stock to Alice Solberg, Diane Booth and Virginia Downs for representing Bachelorettes in the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest.

Meet Wednesday

Relief Corps Auxiliary, Grand Army of the Republic, will meet Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. in Veterans Building. After a social hour the business meeting, beginning at 12:30 p.m. will feature a convention report.

WATCH FOR THIS POSTER!

Traditional Spring Dinner Fete

The Third Nighters, local dance group, held its traditional Spring Dinner Dance Friday evening in the Officers Club of the Air Force Base on Spring St., as the guests of Maj. and Mrs. Eugene A. Morath.

Tables were gay with baskets of colorful spring flowers to carry out the theme. Following dinner members and guests danced to the music of Sammie Stone's Orchestra.

Maj. Morath has served as president of the group during the past year; its silver anniversary year. In speaking of the 25 years of organization, the major named those who still are active members who also were charter members. Among them were Mrs. Earl P. Wheeler (Lucille Todd) now of Los Angeles; Mrs. Edmund Sheeran (Lydia Dornbush) of Long Beach; Mrs. Ralph Pillsbury (Bernice Richmond) of Long Beach; Mrs. Herbert Van Daniker (Myra Miller) of Los Angeles; Mrs. E. N. Bailly (Helen Moore) of Long Beach; Mrs. Herschel Hart (Rada Metcalf) of Long Beach; Mrs. Eugene A. Morath (Ruth Todd) of Long Beach.

THE SPRING Dinner Dance always is the occasion for installing the new officers of the group, and Maj. Morath relinquished the gavel to O. T. Johnson, incoming president. Serving with Johnson will be: Ray Sites, vice president; Mrs. A. L. Ward, secretary, and Charles M. Johnson, treasurer. The group will have its traditional picnic in June and meet informally during the summer.

Mac Todd and Pat and Johnny Brennan.

WESTERN LIVING at its California best is being enjoyed this weekend by the 11 American Field Service foreign exchange students who have lived here this year plus the Long Beach high school students who will go to Europe on the exchange plan this summer—all guests of Peg and Ray Webb on their resort ranch at Lake Elsinore. Chaperons and chauffeurs assisting the Webbs are Margaret and Bob Sully and Helen and Bud Westerlund. This is the kind of thing that's going to put a continental reverse twist on that old ditty, "How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm, after they've seen Paroo."

THERE WASN'T anybody at Stanford University who took more pride or pleasure in the recent dedication of the new Lloyd Noble Laboratory of Petroleum Engineering—with its Will J. Reid Memorial Wing—than special guests from Long Beach: Clarence Innes (who has carried on the late Mr. Reid's work in Ducks Unlimited, Inc., so devotedly); "B" and John Hancock and their sons, John (a senior at the Farm) and Richard; and Fred and Virginia (Reid) Moore.

Banquet for Presidents' Club Noted

"Mutual Aid, a Way to Peace" will be the topic of an address to be given by Rev. Emerson G. Hanger, president of the Long Beach Council of Churches, at the banquet of the Presidents' Club May 28 at 6:30 p.m. at the Lafayette Hotel.

Others to appear on the program will be Lynda Sue Marks, vibraphonist, and Miss May Winston, monologist. A special guest of the evening will be Mayor Raymond S. Keeler.

All former club presidents and members of the Presidents' Club are invited to attend. Election of officers will be conducted at 6 p.m. preceding the banquet with the installation of those elected to be conducted following the evening's program by Mrs. Cornelia Pollard. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Rose Berry, chairman, not later than next Sunday, May 25.

Cancer Society Benefit Dance Scheduled Friday

Sparked by the enthusiasm of Bob Bearson, general chairman, and his committee of service-minded Lakewood and Long Beach residents, plans for the annual American Cancer Society Dance, to be given Friday at Lakewood Country Club, forecast an evening of pleasure.

There will be a buffet supper, entertainment and, of course, dancing—to the music of Jimmie Whetmore's orchestra. Don Loker will be master of ceremonies.

Sponsored by Greater Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, headed by Francis Cannon, dance preparations have been made at no cost to the American Cancer Society and all proceeds will be given to that organization.

Mrs. Brougher Is Regent of DAR Chapter

Mrs. Russell M. Brougher was installed as regent of Gayviota Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when the group met in the home of Mrs. D. Leroy Leart, 3955 Myrtle Ave.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Brougher were Mrs. E. J. Weller, vice regent; L. H. Walter, second vice regent; Charles E. Ernst, chaplain; Hardy A. Wray, recording secretary; Paul Maull, corresponding secretary; Fred D. Ward, treasurer; Harry C. Bowen, registrar; Elizabeth M. Tracy, historian; and W. H. Gillis, librarian. Mrs. H. P. Dunlop conducted installation ceremonies.

AS A SPECIAL feature of the day silver DAR baby spoons were presented to Laurel and Lisa Galvan, Kristal Henning, Charles Sanders and Charles Wicks, children of chapter members.

Hostess Mrs. Fred C. Murphy was assisted by her committee.

Three Happy Fetes

By ILKA CHASE

The other day I had the rare and unexpected pleasure of lunching with my husband. It was the good man's birthday so he agreed to forgo his usual provender of veenies or a hamburger cooked on the office grill by his secretary and gulped between the last patient and the moment he leaves for the hospital. He would, he said, relax with me in one of the town's swanker bistros by way of celebration.

We chose the Colony with its slightly old-fashioned cozy air—not a chromium tube nor a piece of plate glass in the place, but cream-colored paneled walls and red banquettes and the bar striped in gay white and blue.

When the headwaiter heard it was the doctor's birthday—he was indulging in hollandaise with the artichoke when more prudently he should have been having sauce vinaigrette—he disappeared and with the coffee came a sweet tiny birthday cake with a chocolate greeting: Happy Birthday, Norton. We were both touched and munched it happily while nodding to a couple of friends who were members of a large luncheon party given by the Larry Lomans, Salvador Dall with his slim fierce waxed mustachios and Iva Palcevitch, the publisher of Vogue and House and Garden.

ANOTHER BIT of gaiety

was the Players Club annual Ladies' Day reception. The two famous actors' clubs of New York are The Lambs and The Players. The Lambs always seems to me a bit more vaudevillian and The Players more conservative; they also have a few non-actors, writers, architects and such, but they are both solid establishments where the gents of the theater do themselves very well indeed.

The Players' invitation is charming. Engraved on the card along with the request for the pleasure of the lady's company is the quote from Shakespeare: "A Day in April Never Came So Sweet." Flattering.

The club is in Gramercy Park and the grass was green and the trees in bloom on this April afternoon. The old building was packed with happy guests among them a large group of aged actresses making inroads into the opulent buffet. I have always noticed that theater people have good appetites.

Dorothy Stickney was an acting host in place of her husband, Howard Lindsay, who was laid up with a cold. Mary Martin was there with her husband, Dick Halliday, wearing what appeared to be a two-piece black trapeze—Mary was that is—and looking quite smart. Her hair is now, bright auburn, cut close and smooth as a man's with a little pad of curls on top. It isn't the world's most flattering coiffure but its beautifully shiny and well-cared for.

I was introduced to Joyce Grenfell, the English monologist, whose one-woman show is a collection of sketches that are little gems of observation and humor. Miss Grenfell has a good deal, being easy to look at as well as gifted. Another lady in the same field was my old friend Cornelia Otis Skinner.

Cornelia is just back from two performances in Alaska and is crazy about it. She said they wrote and asked her if there was any peculiarly Alaskan thing she would like to do and she replied that she would love to mush in a dog sled. When she arrived in Juneau, however, her hosts were slightly embarrassed. Dog sleds are apparently not the big thing at this season and in that part of the world, but they amiably offered to gather together the local poodles and dachshunds and see if they couldn't whip up a little team.

ANOTHER PARTY this week was the reception given by the Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban and Mrs. Eban in celebration of Israel's 10 years as a nation. The party was held in the Delegates' Dining Room of the United Nations Building with its great terrace and sweeping view of the East River. It was crowded and made colorful by the groups of Chinese and Indians as well as Europeans and Americans.

Mrs. Eban is a remarkably pretty woman with a golden-bubble haircut. She wore a long string of beads and a champagne-colored chemise dress belted around the knees. Oh dear. It's those belts. I think, that are the mistake.

Parents Tell Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hughes last Sunday entertained more than 300 guests in their lovely Cedar Ave. home to reveal the betrothal of their daughter, Diane, to John Wilson Perduk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Perduk of Highland Park, N. J.

Guests learned of the engagement and June 21 wedding date through bridal couple dolls aboard a boat floating on the swimming pool.

A large bouquet, also afloat in the pool, bore a huge ring fashioned of styrofoam with a silver carnation representing the diamond.

Hostesses for the fashionable affair were the bride-elect's Godmother, Mrs. George Plummer of Lake Arrowhead, Mrs. Gene Burgess of West Covina, Mrs. Cecil Roberts of Long Beach and an aunt, Mrs. Mabel Speck of Rio Linda.

The attractive bride-to-be was an honor graduate from Jordan High School and holds life membership in the California Scholarship Federation. She attended University of Redlands and was graduate cum laude from Woodbury College in Los Angeles where she affiliated with Eta Upsilon Gamma Sorority.

Her fiance is a graduate of Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick, N. J., and now is a junior at USC where he is majoring in industrial management.

Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker

By JEAN B. MOORE

In a brief but impressive ceremony this week in Virginia Country Club Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker assumed the presidency of the Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Assn. Mrs. John Persons was installing officer.

The auxiliary, whose responsibility is raising funds enabling the Los Angeles Philharmonic to give concerts in Long Beach, has a capable board serving under Mrs. Yunker.

It includes Mmes. William E. Webb, first vice president and program chairman; William P. Ellery, second vice president and concert chairman; Howard Coy, ticket chairman and concert vice chairman; Victor A. Mingers, third vice president in charge of continuance fund; Lewis T. Dorgan, continuance fund chairman, and Miss Ruth Grant, her assistant.

ALSO MMES. Arthur Buell, membership; Dominic N. Cavaliere, recording secretary; Mark H. Keating, corresponding secretary; Reese D. Hansen, financial secretary, and William S. Reid Jr., treasurer.

Others are Mmes. John L. Graves, auditor; John Persons, parliamentarian; H. G. Randall and Floyd Williams, symphony concert magazine chairman and co-chairman; Stanley D. Weiss, ways and means; Edward Lovell, junior coordinator; C. E. Gregerson, publicity and roster; Chris T. Conway, reservations; Leroy Carlisle, social and decorations; William Nesbitt, hospitality; Logan Goodnight, youth concerts; Alexander Kadavy, opera chairman, and Lee R. Denny, historian. Colin Barraclough, assistant manager of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, assured the group following the luncheon that Edward van Beinum plans to return to the orchestra for the 1959-60 season.

Knots involved in obtaining conductors and artists for the concert season were explained interestingly by Barraclough. Arranging variety in logical sequence has symphony managers working a year ahead, he revealed.

TERMINING THE forthcoming concert season in Long Beach well balanced, he said the conductors will include Eugen Jochum, Sir John Barbirolli, Georg Solti and Erich Leinsdorf.

Soloists will be Rudolf Firkušny, pianist; Nathan Milstein, violinist, and Nan Merriman, mezzo-soprano.

Mrs. Carl Dumbolton, chairman of the communities committee of the Philharmonic Orchestra, told the auxiliary of the necessity of pooling creative thinking in order to have smooth running operation. Main purpose of the committee, she said, is to unify the efforts of the auxiliaries to achieve maximum benefit for the common cause—great music in Southern California.

island in a maze of make-up tables and wardrobe closets, symbols of her profession.

She designed the college's little theater and taught drama there for 20 years. Although she has retired from play directing, her interest never has diminished.

For 12 years she served on the building committee for the college's new auditorium.

"I fought, bled and died for things there," she says, recalling countless sessions with architects and contractors. "When plans were blue-penciled for improvement or equipment backstage, I got them back. I didn't study speech for nothing!"

PLANS FOR THE radio music and art building took shape on the dining room table of her California Heights home.

These modern buildings that grace the Lakewood campus today are a far cry from the days of '33 when the earthquake forced plays at fresco.

Miss Kennedy recalls with relish the tall, barefoot gardener in Recreation Park who always managed to slough work and wangle a front lawn seat for the plays, his bare soles aimed at the actors.

"I wouldn't want to repeat the earthquake, but neither would I have missed it. It's a strange thing, but it shaved the frills off the students and got them down to brass tacks."

SHE TAUGHT techniques of acting on bleachers after the quake; later, when classes moved into the board and canvas tents, the canvas sides were rolled up in warm weather and passing students hung their arms over the board walls to watch.

Two years ago, when she broke both her arms, Kathryn Kennedy gave up producing drama and turned primarily to speech instruction.

"This is a vocal age," she explains. "Eventually everyone has to say what he thinks in front of others. It's good to be competent enough not to get the jitters."

For students entering City College she conducts speech testing in which the student talks on a subject of his choice before a microphone.

His talk is recorded and played back, with suggestions for improvement given by Miss Kennedy. One student discovered from the recording that she lisped. No one ever had told her, and she was 50 years old when she took the City College courses. Measures to correct the defect were begun immediately.

THE TEACHING SIDE of the drama rather than the part behind the footlights, always has interested Kathryn Kennedy.

Looking out the window to the verdant campus, she is reminded of a reason she likes teaching.

"The nicest thing on this campus is the young women in their 30s whose children are of school age. They come back working toward an elementary teaching credential, and they do beautiful work because they have a serious aim."

SHE LOVES HER home, and, like Miss Duncan, claims culinary prowess. She designs and makes much of her wardrobe (she dismisses the chemise with, "It's a good place for the amateur seamstress to start.")

Although she has been abroad, she confesses that she never has been across the channel to Catalina.

Her consuming interest outside the college is closely akin to her field. Her eyes shine. "Oh, I go to the theater! I don't miss anything. I like to travel some, yes, but this part of California is so rich in entertainment that it's tempting just to stay home."

Carol Nelson Wed in Church

Mrs. Gary Martin Thomas

North Long Beach Methodist Church was decorated with baskets of white stock and gladioli for the wedding ceremony which united Carol Nelson and Gary Martin Thomas. The Rev. Roy Mason officiated at the double-ring service in the presence of 300 guests.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Nelson, 2310 Termino Ave., was escorted down the ribbon-marked aisle by her father. Her gown, a Maurer original, featured a short-sleeved bodice of Chantilly lace and a tulle skirt appliqued with lace. A seed pearl tiara held her illusion veil and she carried a sweetheart bouquet of stephanotis, lilies of the valley and white orchids. A strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom's mother, was her only jewelry.

MAID OF HONOR Edith Hubers was gowned in American beauty chiffon; bridesmaids Patty Squibb, Mrs. Les Parks, Mrs. Joe Womack and junior bridesmaid Cathy Johnson wore pink chiffon.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Thomas, 5675 Campo Walk, asked Gale Thomas to serve as best man and Ralph Procopio, Greg Thomas, Dick Seales and Norman Jacobs to usher.

The pink and white theme of the wedding was repeated in appointments for the reception which followed immediately at the church. The couple left for a honeymoon at Palm Springs, then will reside in Oakland.

BOTH YOUNG persons attended Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. She was LBCC song leader, served on the executive board, won the five-jewel award, was vice president of AWS, and belonged to Ramayana and Kassa. He affiliated with Tong fraternity.

Both also have been active in Long Beach Community Playhouse and he has taken part in Lakewood Players productions.

Loyalty to Elect

Election of officers is planned when Loyalty Club meets at noon Monday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. Wives of Scouts are welcome to participate in the luncheon and afternoon of cards. Mrs. Leland June will preside.

Miss Carole Cena

Colorful Tea Announces Forthcoming Wedding Rites

A tea to introduce her future daughter-in-law, Miss Carole Cena of Covina, was given last week by Mrs. E. Tuckley Thompson, 5471 El Jardin St. Miss Cena's engagement to Larry Thompson was made known to the 100 guests who arrived in the Thompson home that afternoon.

Both young people are students at Chapman College in Orange, and both were cheerleaders during this school year.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Judi Nelson of Burbank, niece of Mrs. Thompson, and Catherine Cena, sister of the bride-elect. In the receiving line were Miss Cena, her mother, Mrs. Charles Cena, and Mrs. Thompson.

WITHIN THE HOSTS' home were colorful arrangements of yellow and white ranunculus, daisies, stock and snapdragons. Covering the table was an Italian cutwork cloth centered with a crystal epergne overflowing with yellow and white daisies, baby breath, primroses and fern. Crystal holders held yellow tapers.

Asked to pour were Mrs. Guy Gillespie, grandmother of the bride-to-be; Mrs. Lynn Ballard, Mrs. Thompson's mother, and Mmes. George M. Pearson, Roderic Ballard, B. F. Thompson and Kalmer Nelson.

Mmes. John O. McDonald, Arch Henry and Griff Jehu were assistant hostesses.

Music during the afternoon was furnished by Mmes. B. E. Burchfield, Gerald Shatto and Clifton Patterson.

No wedding date has been set as yet by the young couple.

Lorene Cryer to Head Club

Lorene Cryer will be installed president of the Nazareth Shrine Social Club at a ceremony Monday in the Hard of Hearing Society clubhouse, 124 W. 14th St. Mrs. Ellen Oyaas, retiring president, will conduct the ritual.

Others assuming new duties will be Edith Huntzinger, vice president; Catherine Borst, secretary, and Olive Ward, treasurer.

Marjorie Bjorkman, luncheon chairman, will be assisted by Bea Ann Hancock, Minerva Kifer and Inez Cutler.

Cameraman to Appear at Ebell Club

The story of Greece will be portrayed in an all-color film lecture by Clifford Kamen before the Ebell of Long Beach on Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Kamen is a top cameraman. He has been interested in and has traveled and recorded the things he has observed on his travels ever since his early teens. He studied at UC and Northwestern University.

The very word "Greece" lifts men's thoughts to the splendor and power of an ancient democracy, and the sublime art and learning of man's greatest cultural age. This film brings into balance and perspective the amazing story of one of the world's most significant nations.

The film shows the ruins of man's golden age of architecture. Included are the historic sites of Athens, Delphi, Marathon, and others which have been vital in both ancient and modern times.

Mrs. Arthur A. Knoll will introduce Kamen.

Chairmen of departments will be presented by Mrs. C. F. Wisner, curator, at the business session preceding the program.

The last luncheon of the year will be served by members of Group M, Mrs. Henry C. Lamb, chairman. Mrs. Arthur F. Bonzer will preside.

Etheridge Social

Anna Etheridge Tent 58, Daughters of Union Veterans, will meet for noon luncheon and sewing Monday in the home of Elzora Nistrath, 414 W. 7th St. Laura Kerr will preside.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

BPW Installs Mrs. Mundal

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Attractive, capable Mrs. Marion Mundal accepted the president's gavel of Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club at the Victor Hugo Restaurant recently in ceremonies conducted by Cravens Douglas, junior past president of Sierra Mar District, BPW.

Inducted with Mrs. Mundal were Lena Field, first vice president; Blanche L. Stevens, second vice president; Dorothy Sweetland, recording secretary; Dorothy Dalton, corresponding secretary; Ruth Bailey, treasurer; Vinnie Neudeck, auditor; and to the board of directors, Louise Gorman, Florence Eachus, Lucinda Robinson and Katherine Campbell.

Outgoing President Gladys McPike conducted the meeting, introducing special guests Lily Lee, president of Margaret Ives BPW, Sadie Michnick, president of Manuela Nieto BPW, the incoming president's husband and daughter, Grace Carriker, C. W. Duncan, "Andy" Anderson and Ethel Avis, now of Pomona and a charter member of the Long Beach group.

MRS. MUNDAL, a graduate of Metropolitan School of Art, New York, and the National Academy of Design and Fine Arts also studied editorial practices and make-up at Columbia University and has held executive posts with various eastern publications including that of editor in chief for six years of a national astrology magazine.

Assisting with installation ceremonies were Kathryn Campbell and Alice Brock. Soloist for the program was Tom Nourse, accompanied by Dorothy Christie.

Importance of accessorizing clothes with the right choice of lipstick, and actually changing the tone of the complexion to allow wearing of unlimited fashion colors are two of the beauty hints Mrs. Mireille Perrin will give during the week of May 19 when she is a guest at Schick's, 701 Pine Ave. Fashion beauty coordinator from Alexandra de Markoff, Mme. Perrin will demonstrate how to get more professional results with makeup by applying color-on-color with two or more of the basic shades of lipstick.

The coordinator will also explain that no matter what shade of hair or complexion a woman has, the mere blending of lipsticks and the right choice of make-up foundation will enable her to wear any costume color.

Dear Abby

What an Odd Elopement!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 19 and is engaged to a fine young man of 21.

They've been engaged a year. They want to marry this summer, but his mother said if they did, it would have to be without her consent, so they plan to elope. My daughter wants me and her dad to go with them to see her married, but I've never heard of a couple eloping with her parents along. Have you? If we go, his parents will think we arranged the whole thing, but that's not true. The kids would elope anyway. We'd like to see our daughter married, but don't know if we should go or not. Should we go?

—MRS. UNCERTAIN

DEAR MRS.: Try to get his parents to go along. If they refuse, you have a right to see your daughter married. (This is an elopement?)

DEAR ABBY: I am kind of fat and my husband is very thin. I cook real good because I want to put some weight on my husband but instead I put on the weight myself and he stays thin. What should I do? —FAT.

DEAR FAT: Don't eat the fattening foods you cook for your husband. Get a diet from your doctor and stick with it.

DEAR ABBY: This fellow I go with is considered a jerk by everybody including me. He brags, is conceited, and I have caught him in many lies. But I can't get him out of my mind. He is going into boot training and tells me if I want to write to him OK—but not to expect any letters from him. I am considered a very good looking girl and could have many other dates but I still prefer this lunkhead. What should I do? —TINA.

DEAR TINA: Give this guy the boot before he goes into boot training.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 45, and my husband has been dead six years. I have two children who are 19 and 21. I met a nice, respectable, single man who is a common laborer. My children say if he comes to this house they will walk out so I have to meet him out somewhere. Please advise me if I should stop seeing this man or let him come to my home in spite of my children? I think I should have some companionship at my age.

—UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Let him come to your home. If your children walk out, let them walk out. They are old enough to make lives of their own and you deserve some companionship.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DONE WRONG": Don't worry. The label "ILLEGITIMATE" is no longer used on birth certificates.

FOR A PERSONAL reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Worry Clinic

Preacher Must Be Forceful in Pulpit

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Y-306: Norman N., age 35, is a scholarly clergyman, but the kind that cannot hold his audience. For he kept dropping his eyes to his notes and reading sections of his sermon.

That's the sign of an amateur on the public platform. A new pastor in his first year might be excused for such indirectness.

But no man after even one year as a public speaker ever should break his eye-to-eye contact with his audience except for an occasional moment to look at his notes.

And a speaker's notes should not be voluminous nor of the full sentence variety. A dozen "key" words are all that any real orator needs. Norman started out properly by telling a story concerning an incident that occurred in a previous parish.

But he couldn't even narrate the tale! Instead, he read part of it and dropped his eyes literally a dozen times to finish that simple two-minute episode.

I'M NOT exaggerating, for he grew so boring I decided to time his motions. At intervals of every 2 to 11 seconds, he would drop his gaze to his notes and read them.

Can you imagine Christ or St. Paul having to spend more time looking down at notes than facing their eager listeners!

Clergymen like Norman certainly should have had an internship of a few months at door-to-door selling. For a salesman soon realizes he MUST keep his eyes glued on his prospects constantly.

Otherwise, while he is looking down at his notes, the housewife may shut the door in his face!

Something is sadly wrong with the homiletics departments of our theological seminaries when they graduate men who cannot keep their eyes on the audience for 30 seconds without weakly leaning on the "crutch" of notes. And, clergymen who read their manuscripts or even long passages therefrom are as "out of step with modern platform psychology as the dodo bird."

It takes a livewire in the pulpit to electrify a congregation!

But the "current" must be turned on to get full effect. Whenever a speaker drops his eyes, he figuratively turns off the current!

Topnotch speakers watch their audiences like a hawk. They don't break contact by lengthy and repeated glances at notes.

AND ANY clergyman who is full of his subject shouldn't need more than a dozen three-second glances at his notes for a 30-minute address!

I'm being very strong in my indictment today for anybody who makes his living as a public speaker should certainly know how to SPEAK. "You can't fill a church till you fill the pulpit," is an old truism.

An indirect speaker who can't look his audience in the eyes almost steadily, definitely is not filling the pulpit.

Get off your forensic crutches (notes) and stand on your own feet. And for a quick summary of "Public Platform Strategy," send for that booklet, enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Even if you left the seminary as a poor speaker, you can become a good one in short order by following the tested formulae in that booklet.

Sacrifice Bid Pans Out Well

TAKE a look at the South hand only. The game is duplicate and East has raised West's opening heart bid to two.

Duplicate or not, you certainly should try a bid of sorts and your best choice is to bid two spades in spite of the nine-high suit. West

Opening lead—♥K jumps to four hearts and the bid is back to you again. Now, what do you do?

When Myrna Verner of Tahoka, Tex., held this hand she decided to bid four spades. Her opponents had bid decisively and confidently and it appeared to her that they would be able to make their contract. In that case they would score at least 620 points and Myrna could afford to take a three-trick set.

If West had chosen to go on to five hearts, Myrna's gamble would have done her no good. North would have opened the ace of spades and West would have made five odd.

As it was, West chose to double and opened the king of hearts. Myrna ruffed that lead and played ace and one spade. With trumps breaking three-two, she was able to escape with the loss of two trump tricks, one club and one diamond and had managed to save a game at the trifling cost of 100 points. A mighty good result in any type of bridge game.

Lunch, Installation, Cards on Agenda

Luncheon at noon, installation of officers and an afternoon of cards are on the agenda for members of Dr. Margaret Clark Sunshine Circle Tuesday in Colonial Hall.

Mrs. Ellis Slack will officiate at the installation of Mrs. F. E. Faber, president; E. H. Grubb, vice president; Louise Caldwell, secretary; and Mabel Howard, treasurer.

Ol' Ted Has Scorn for You Sluggards

By TED KREC

A lot of people like me, and a lot of people don't like me—but one thing they ALL have to admit, friends and foes alike, is that I'm not a proud man; I'll do ANYTHING!

While most people know me only as a man in a white shirt, tie and suit, there are occasions when I put aside these trademarks and get hog dirty.

Take last weekend — and the weekend before that — for example. While most men were slouched in easy chairs, swilling down can after can of cold beer as they listened to the baseball game or watched programs on TV, what was I doing? Helping my wife as she redecorated our apartment.

It all started when she decided she would like draperies instead of Venetian blinds. That sounded simple enough (I can't make draperies and neither can she—she doesn't have time with her job), so I said: "Fine — I think they really would do something for this place!"

THAT WAS all I had to say. Remember when you were a kid and you used to roll a little snowball off the top of a hill? By the time it got to the bottom it had assumed gigantic proportions. So it was with the draperies. After selecting the material, she was sorry, but the paint in the living room just wouldn't go with the new draperies. So, the living room had to be repainted.

"I'd love to help you," I said, "but Dr. Cowley told me after my recent operation that I wasn't to lift anything heavier than a loaded Martini glass — or two — at the most."

She agreed with this — and gave me a light paint roller instead of a heavy brush.

So, I doffed my white shirt, tie, and suit, donned an old pair of tennis shoes, a T-shirt and shorts. Good thing I did, too, for that first roller full of paint, fully sympathetic with the pull of gravity, slid down my arm instead of clinging to the ceiling. I soon learned there's a knack to this sort of thing — you don't put much paint on the roller. This makes you work twice as long and hard, but at least you keep your arm dry.

So while you sluggards were dozing there in your armchairs, awakening only to reach for a tasty club sandwich or some potato chips, I was reaching for paint—and more paint—and more paint.

Finally, the job was finished (and I almost was!), and my wife stepped back to survey the "new look."

"It's wonderful, dear," she said, "but that paper in the dinette NEVER will do."

I have an idiosyncrasy — I occasionally lapse into the vernacular and use a few good round oaths when I'm having a good time; and I must have been having a DANDY time when she made her announcement about the paper.

ANYHOW, WE changed the paper. Unfortunately, I'm a bit unhandy at this, so my activities were confined to cutting the paper into prescribed lengths and applying the paste.

Just think of it — while most men were idling away their time going to a good show or to a nice restaurant for dinner, I was spending MY time constructively measuring, cutting and pasting. When we were through I stood my paint-and-paste-stiffened garb in the closet and took a shower.

As I emerged, she was looking at the wrought iron furniture we have in the dinette. "You know something?" she said. "A lot of people will answer that in the negative," I replied. She ignored me. "I think we're going to have to do that furniture over," she continued. "It'll never go with that new paper."

Unfortunately, I do NOT have a spraying outfit or I'd be GLAD to tackle it. But as it is, the furniture now has been yanked from my home for a new coat of paint and new seat covers — in matching shades, of course. And I understand the rugs are next.

So there you are, men. Aren't you sorry you wasted your time? Don't you envy me my active life? I feel pretty good about it myself. I didn't fritter away MY time.

By the way, is there anymore beer left — and how did the Dodgers make out in that game?

NEW LEADER

Mrs. Perry Oliver will be installed as president of Xi Delta Xi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Monday at the Sierra Restaurant, Bellflower. Other board members are Mrs. Charles Munson, Miss Estelle Williams and Mmes. Robert Allen, Miles Perovich, William Frushour, Clyde Carter and David Underhill.

HEADS CHAPTER

Mrs. Anita Christensen was installed president of Xi Alpha Kappa Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, succeeding Mrs. William Brucks, at a dinner meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lyle Walker. Other officers seated were Misses Wilma Wright, Roberta Collar; Mmes. Vic Baker, Ardell Blumberg and Richard Matson.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Mystery of Name in Bible

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My mother died two months ago, and I have been going over the things she left. Today I was leafing through our old family Bible that lists the names of those who have been born in our family. There was my name and the names of my two older brothers. But on the last line I found a name that I did not know.

The name was "William" and the date that was given fell during my last year in college while both of my brothers were overseas in service. I asked my father who was "William." But he merely turned on his heel and left the room in stony silence.

He refuses to discuss the subject at all with me. As a matter of fact, he scarcely has talked with me since I pointed to the page in the Bible. My brothers know nothing about "William." My aunt, Mom's sister, merely smiled quietly when I mentioned the matter to her. I'm frantic to know the truth, and nobody will tell me. Whoever "William" is—or was—he must be my brother. How can I possibly find out?—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED: Perhaps this is one mystery that is better left unsolved. In discovering the identity of "William" you might be opening a Pandora's box that will haunt you all of your life.

But, if you must know, I would check first at the Bureau of Vital Statistics where "William's" birth should be recorded. If, of course, there ever was a "William."—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My husband and I have been married for three years and have two small children. We had to get married, but we were planning to get married anyway.

After the first year of our marriage he stopped showing me in any way that he loved me. He never kisses me, or holds my hand; he is never considerate, kind, or loving. He doesn't seem to care.

He works at night and is away from home most of the time—or is sleeping. I've told him many times how I feel. He just shrugs and laughs it off. I left him once, and he assured me he was willing to leave it that way.

We did finally go back together because of the children. All he said was that he hoped I'd learned my lesson.

Molly, do you think I'm being silly to want to be shown that I'm loved and appreciated? Can you help me?—DEPRESSED.

DEAR DEPRESSED: I wish your letter didn't read like so many others that cross my desk. Alas, it does. I could suggest that you lessen the tension in your home by being a cheerful comrade, much kinder and more considerate than your husband is—in the hopes this might wake him up.

I could suggest that you go all out to look attractive and be interesting. Let me explain here that being interested in what he does and says sometimes is the key to being interesting.

I might even suggest that, by exchanging baby-sitting chores with kind neighbors, you get out more to attend group meetings, or go with girl friends, and show your husband you aren't completely dependent on his whims. Will any or all of these suggestions work? I can only hope.—M.M.

Chamber Trio Pianist Slated for Ojai Fete

Southern California musicians will be well represented in the 12th annual presentation of the Ojai Festivals, scheduled for May 23-25. Heading this list of established artists will be Leo Smit of the UCLA music faculty, one of America's leading younger pianists and composers, who will be featured with the Ojai Festival Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Aaron Copland, on Saturday afternoon, May 24.

The program on which Smit will appear will consist of works by Rossini, Copland, Ravel and Haeff, including the first West Coast performance of Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" and Haeff's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra."

A FEATURE of this year's festival will be an evening of chamber music presented by the Immaculate Heart Trio, all members of the order of the Immaculate Heart Sisters located in Los Angeles.

These three nuns, Sisters Mary Denis, Mary Anthony and Mary Mark, are members of the same family, having been playing chamber music together since their early years in Seattle, and had appeared professionally many times before they joined the Order of the Immaculate Heart. They will present the Saturday evening (May 24) program of the Ojai Festival, consisting of Beethoven's "Trio in B Flat" (Archduke), Copland's "Vitebsk," and Brahms' "Trio in B Major."

Magnolia Theatre-Goers May Catch 'The Brass Ring'

"The Brass Ring," Irving Elman's comedy that delighted Broadway in 1952, will open Friday at the Magnolia Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave., in the first showing on the West Coast.

The dream-filled, night-haunted play centers about the life of a man who lives a placid existence with his family. About the only member not involved in the turmoil is the wife who goes serenely on keeping her loved ones on even keel.

Scenes in the comedy shift rapidly from reality to dream sequence involving the father's youth and his efforts to follow his young sweetheart onto life's merry-go-round. Bound in straight-jacket, nailed in a coffin or on trial for his life, his flights of fancy are enough to drive him permanently into a dream state.

Italian Film at Museum

One of the most successful Italian movies, "La Strada," will be presented at 7:40 and 9 p.m. Friday at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

A winner of numerous film awards, the motion picture received the Academy Award for best foreign film in 1956, and it was the grand prize winner at the Venice International Film Festival.

The intriguing story is like a modern morality play, set in the fringe of urban society against constantly shifting backgrounds of circuses and small towns. Accompanied by haunting music, it is the story of a man's loneliness and a search for a way of life.

Tickets for reservations, for which there is no charge, are available now at the museum on a first come, first served basis. Two tickets to a person are allowed.

Young Dancers Preparing for 'Coppelia' Ballet

"Coppelia" (the doll who came to life), a fairy tale ballet, will be presented by the Valerie Silver Theatre Arts Foundation at Long Beach City College Auditorium, 4901 E. Carson St., on Friday and Saturday.

Seats will be reserved for the Friday evening performance at 8 p.m. On Saturday a matinee performance will be given at 1:30 p.m. for children and adults who wish to come at this time.

Directors and members of the foundation will have an opportunity to have as guests many Long Beach and Southland friends who have shown an interest in the foundation. Not yet a year old, the foundation is a non-profit corporation, incorporated under the Educational Code of California, conducted solely for educational and cultural purposes. It is dedicated to the development of the young through the arts.

Guests Saturday will be a group of crippled children and their schoolmates from one of the elementary schools in Long Beach.

MAIN PURPOSE of the foundation is to encourage all children, whether performing in or watching a ballet, to feel they have a part in creating the beauty. The cast (ages 7-20), is looking forward to meeting these new friends.

Miss Silver, producer-director and choreographer, has long been recognized throughout the Southland for her presentation of children's ballets on the classical level. Special scenic effects and lighting by Maxine Merlino, who is an outstanding artist in her field.

General chairman of the production staff is Mrs. Frazer Merritt, assisted by Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Tarpy, Roy E. Blakeney and Norman Leslie. Mrs. John Sarry and Mrs. Cecil Weaver.

June Concert

Charles Magnante, accordion virtuoso, will visit Southern California for a single concert and workshop under the auspices of the Accordion Guild in the Lafayette Hotel in Long Beach at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon, June 1, announce the Guild's local representatives. George Howell, Elva C. Grace, Peggy Potter, Stella Thomas, Albert Fanelli and LaVoy Hallie.

Independent Press-Telegram
Art Editor

Ross Shattuck, artist ill in Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, has an exhibition of 21 oil paintings, mostly landscapes with a few portraits, which will open today in The Studio, 1009 Ximeno Ave.

The artist, who will be brought from the hospital in a wheelchair and his wife, Margaret Ettinger, Hollywood publicist who was a "Woman of the Year" last year, will be honored at a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today. Doug and Ann MacFadden, owners of The Studio, will be hosts.

Guests, according to the MacFaddens, will include Arthur Miller, art critic; Louella Parsons, motion picture columnist; and Walter Lantz, cartoonist.

Shattuck, former MGM art director, also served as art director of the N. W. Ayer and J. Walter Thompson advertising agencies. He is credited with originating movie star testimonials in advertisements.

Included among his landscapes will be scenes in New Orleans, San Francisco, Virginia City and Mexico. The exhibition will run through June 28.

ERNEST ZIEGFELD, 21 39th Pl., jewelry designer

whose work is included in the U. S. exhibition in the Brussels World's Fair, will discuss jewelry design and demonstrate working with silver at the Long Beach Art Assn. meeting Tuesday evening in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

He also will have a craft exhibit of his finished jewelry.

Ziegfeld, who has taught at University of Minnesota, Stanford University, Teachers College Columbia University and Long Beach State College, also has been head of the visual aids section, Navy Electronics Laboratory in San Diego.

For a number of years he made jewelry as a hobby following training from Dr. Kenneth Winebrenner and Charles Martin at Columbia University. In 1936 he received a grant from the American Craftsmen's Foundation, and resigned from teaching to devote full time to jewelry. His work is exhibited and sold in galleries and shops throughout the United States.

BEN MESSICK and Velma Hay (Messick) of Long Beach and Franz Brasz of San Pedro Saturday judged and gave awards for first, second and third places in each media in the San Pedro Art Assn. non-juried, all-membership exhibit.

The show opens at the Gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., San Pedro, with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today. The gallery will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. daily through June 1.

The judges were entertained at dinner at the Hacienda Hotel by the Art Assn. and afterwards at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Butcher where they saw color slides of spring flowers taken on a trip to San Francisco and Bishop. Mrs. Butcher is president of the San Pedro Art Assn.

MARINER GIRL SCOUTS of Long Beach will sponsor an exhibition of watercolor drawings of historical sailing vessels and modern cargo ships by Emmett Hoskins, retired seaman of San Pedro, May 26 in St. Luke's Episcopal Church Parish Hall, 7th St. and Atlantic Ave. Hours will be 2 to 9 p.m.

In the fall the drawings will go to the Mariners' Museum in Newport News, Va.

FOUR JAPANESE films, "Colorful Nikko," "Japanese Carpenter," "Winter in Japan" and "Japanese Inn," will be shown, free to the public, at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Little Theater, Long Beach State College, 6101 E. 7th St. The films will be shown by the Art Department and Associated Students of State College with the cooperation of the public library.

COMMUNITY ART League has a membership show during May in the Kiwanis-Girl Scout Hall, 9302 Laurel St., Bellflower. Winners will be shown in the Bellflower library in June.

The winners: Oils, first, John Schopfle, Pico; second, Gladys Kimbro, Bellflower; third, Evelyn Carpenter, Lakewood; honorable mention, Mozelle Townsend, Lakewood; Dorothy Clapp, Downey, and Pearl Jones, Long Beach.

Watercolors: first, Helen Reed, South Gate; second, Elizabeth Walsh, Norwalk; third, Betty Hayes, Downey; honorable mention, Edna Padrick, Bellflower; Eunice Bramlett, Downey, and Lenzie Bryning, Orlandale.

Special awards went to Curtis Hoekzema, Bellflower, and Eugene Hickman, Buena Park.

Ruth Haddock, Norwalk, is exhibiting paintings this month in the Bank of America, 17445 S. Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower.

Frank Bowers and Mrs. Vicki Vergez Bowers, 644 Alamos Ave., have become members of the National Society of Mural Painters, which recently had its 63rd annual meeting in New York.

Exodus Gallery, 235 6th St., San Pedro, is receiving paintings, drawings and sculpture for its second annual Artists of Los Angeles and Vicinity Reject Show June 1-27. Only work rejected by the Los Angeles and Vicinity Show which opens Wednesday in the Los Angeles County Museum is eligible for the Exodus show.

KNOW HER?

18th Century 'Pinkie' Goes Modern in '58

Remember William Sanson, Long Beach artist who a couple of years ago painted "The Modern Blue Boy"?

An adaptation of Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" which hangs in the Huntington Library in San Marino, it showed the lad in blue jeans, blue shirt, blue sports shoes, tattered blue straw hat—but in the pose and against the background of Gainsborough's satin-clad subject.

"The Modern Blue Boy" was purchased by Smith Brothers of Carthage, Mo., manufacturers of working clothes. It has been adopted as the company's insignia and appears on its calendars and publicity.

The Long Beach man has done his "Modern Pinkie" in pink and white striped sweater, pink pedal pushers and a wide straw hat, but the pose and background are similar to Lawrence's.

What will he do with it? "I don't know," he says. "Maybe some manufacturer of girls' play clothes will want it."

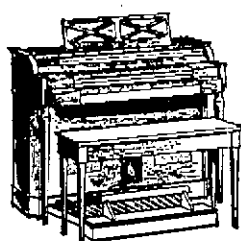

Chicago Season

Ravinia Park, Chicago, will open its 23rd-festival season July 1, with Fritz Reiner conducting the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Five celebrated guest conductors will occupy the podium during the season. They are William Steinberg, Walter Hendl, Igor Markevitch, Georg Solti, and Edouard van Remoortel.

Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano, will be the first of eight distinguished soloists following her will be the internationally-famous pianists, Guiomar Novaes, Benno Moisewitsch, Byron Janis, Leon Fleisher and Eugene Istomin; the noted violinist, Joseph Fuchs, and harmonica virtuoso, John Sebastian.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

Concerts at St. Gregory's

Two Sunday afternoon concerts are planned by St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Willow and Oakbrook Sts. The first, today at 3:30 o'clock, will feature Robert Hannah, baritone, singing the first public performance of Charles Farmer's Six Verses of Walt Whitman, taken from the poems, "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd," "Tears," "On the Beach at Night," "A Noiseless Patient Spider," and "The Last Invocation."

The Long Beach City College Madrigal Singers, directed by Royal Stanton, will sing madrigals and part-songs of the 16th to the 19th centuries.

ON SUNDAY, May 25, at 3:30 p.m. in the church, soloists will be Patricia Powell, soprano; Harold E. Hanson, bassoonist; and Charles Farmer, pianist. The program will include songs by Stradella, Handel and Godard; the B flat Bassoon Concerto of Mozart; Bach's G major Partita and the Symphonic Etudes by Schumann.

When was the last time you "dunked" your favorite phonograph record under the faucet and washed it off? If you're a careful record collector, says HiFi & Music Review magazine, you'll make a habit of regularly "laundering" your records under a faucet. To remove destructive dust, lint, and grit from the soft vinyl grooves of your records, you should wash them off in cold water using a detergent and a cellulose sponge.

This is one of 10 suggestions offered to record collectors who want to begin a cleanup campaign in their collections. The other nine suggestions are:

1. Clean your records EVERY TIME you play them. Once ground in by stylus, dust never gets out again completely.
2. Blow out lint from your record jackets.
3. Don't touch the grooved part of the record. Touch only at rim and label.
4. When sliding records in or out of jackets, squeeze the jacket sides outward to prevent chafing of record surface.
5. When wiping records, use moist cloth. Moisture neutralizes static dust attraction.
6. Move cleaning cloth only in direction of record grooves, not across them. Only camel's hair or sable brushes are soft enough to flick dust from record.
7. Use anti-static spray sparingly.
8. Store records vertically. This prevents warpage and also keeps lateral pressure from grinding in dust.
9. Sweep dirt from stylus with stylus brush.

Now You Can Match Shoe Covering to Your Outfit

The ingenuity of a Long Beach housewife has produced a "do-it-yourself" kit that makes changing your shoe covering as simple as changing earrings.

Mrs. Edna Thornberry, 49, a mother and grandmother, hit upon the idea in August 1954 while she watched her husband's band, the Charles Thornberry Orchestra, play for dancing.

Seeing the way women attempted to match dancing shoes to their dresses, she said to the drummer's wife: "Isn't a shame we can't just glue fabric on our shoes to match our dresses?"

NOT ONE to let a good idea go begging, she promptly began experimenting and about a year later the kit—a bottle of adhesive devised by a Costa Mesa firm—a brush, and a simple pattern sheet—were on the market.

"Actually you don't need a pattern," she explains. "You just cut the material and glue it on. When you want to change colors, peel off the covering and put on another."

You can wade through water, dance — anything—and the adhesive bonds perfectly.

In addition to making a custom look for each pair of shoes possible, the kit can be used for covering purses, gloves, jewelry, cuff links or almost anything else imagination dictates. One reason the product has been received so enthusiastically by women from teenagers to grandmothers, Mrs. Thornberry suspects, is that, besides being simple, quick and fun, it is creative.

"YOU COME UP with your own designs. They're original, inexpensive, individual, can be varied endlessly, and best of all—you do it yourself!"

For the name of stores where the kit is available phone HE-mlock 5-1161, Ext. 249, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or write Dept. A, Independent, Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE EXHIBITION of 50 prints by contemporary British artists is lent by St. George's Gallery in London. Lithographs, drypoints, silk-screens and engravings are among the prints included by outstanding British artists, Henry Moore, Ceri Richards, Graham Sutherland and many others.

The exhibition of paintings by Bettina Brendel is shown in the upstairs gallery and includes five prints and five paintings. They are all recent works by the artist completed within the last year.

On Top Again—The Everly Brothers' recording of "All I Have to Do Is Dream" was atop the United Press "Top 20" record survey for the second straight week.

Only three new songs made the pool—"Zorro," "I Wonder Why" and "Let the Bells Keep Ringing."

LONG BEACH, CALIF. MAY 18, 1958

OUR COVER

From Hwy. 395, which traverses the Owens Valley east of the High Sierra, thousands of fishermen and other vacationers turn westward to Casa Diablo Hot Springs into the Mammoth Lakes area. Here in a huge, mountain-rimmed basin lie more than 30 lakes. Major ones reached by good roads include Twin Lakes (Southland's cover), Mary, Mayme, George and Horseshoe. Well-marked trails lead to the others, and nearly all are within a radius of about four miles from Lake Mary. The region was named for 11,034-foot Mammoth Mountain and the mining town of Mammoth. The gold boom literally collapsed under a 28-foot snowfall in 1880, but there still are fragments of the mine's massive machinery to be seen, and hard-rock prospectors still are seeking new veins among the cliffs and ledges. Millions of trout are planted annually in the crystal lakes and streams of Inyo and Mono Counties. Twin Lakes and Lake Mary have boats for rent to casters and trollers. The Mammoth Lakes region also has stores, Forest Service campgrounds and several excellent lodges. This also is the home base for three outfits with guides and horses for pack trips into the spectacular back country of the High Sierra.

NEXT WEEK

You're probably planning a trip to Catalina this Spring or Summer, because just about everyone is. When you go, you'll have a good time, of course. And you're also going to be agreeably surprised at the changes made on the island in the last year. New construction to make your stay more pleasant, innovations in the harbor area to delight and accommodate more visitors are in evidence. Southland takes you to Catalina next week for a preview of what's been done.

TRAVEL

Mirror Pond at Bend, Ore., is in the heart of the huge Central Oregon recreational area, famed vacation spot.

Pacific Northwest, Land of Beauty

Thriving city, Portland is the gateway to the beautiful Columbia River country for Pacific Coast tourists.

By

Grace Kirkpatrick

WHEN you visit the Pacific Northwest, which includes the five-state area of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and also the Province of British Columbia, you can travel in circles and thus find the widest variety of attractions.

A glance at a map will show that here are Theodore Roosevelt National Park; nearby the International Peace Garden and the new vast recreational area of Garrison Dam in North Dakota on the area's eastern border.

In Montana are the wonders of Yellowstone and the Shining Mountains of Glacier National Park. In Idaho are the Craters of the Moon, Sun Valley, the lakes of the Panhandle and the famed canyons of the Snake and the Salmon Rivers.

Mt. Rainier, Mt. Baker, Mt. St. Helens, the San Juan Islands and Olympic National Park are in Washington; and to their south, and nearest to California are the great beauty of Mt. Hood and Crater Lake in Oregon.

This makes no mention of the sandy ocean beaches where the sky dips into the Pacific from the edge of the evergreen forests, nor of dude ranches, fishing lakes and streams and boating galore.

IF YOU HAVE time to make the grand circle of all these states, a pleasant trip is to drive across eastern and southern Oregon and into Idaho—the Sun Valley area—and cut northeast into Yellowstone.

The northeast gateway trip to Yellowstone over the scenic Red Lodge Hwy. includes the historic places where Custer fought his last battles with Indians and the interest of the Dakota badlands and the open range country of the eastern Montana cattle country, but if your journey must be shorter, you can turn westward from Yellowstone to Virginia City, Mont. One of the first settlements in Montana, Virginia City has been restored to entertain as it would have in pioneer days.

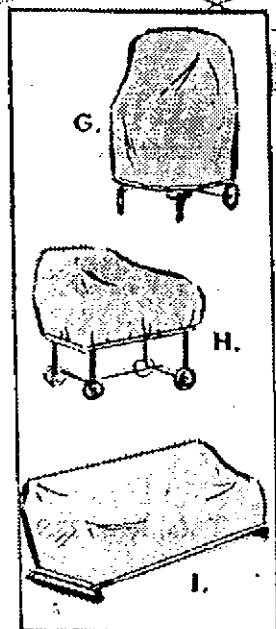

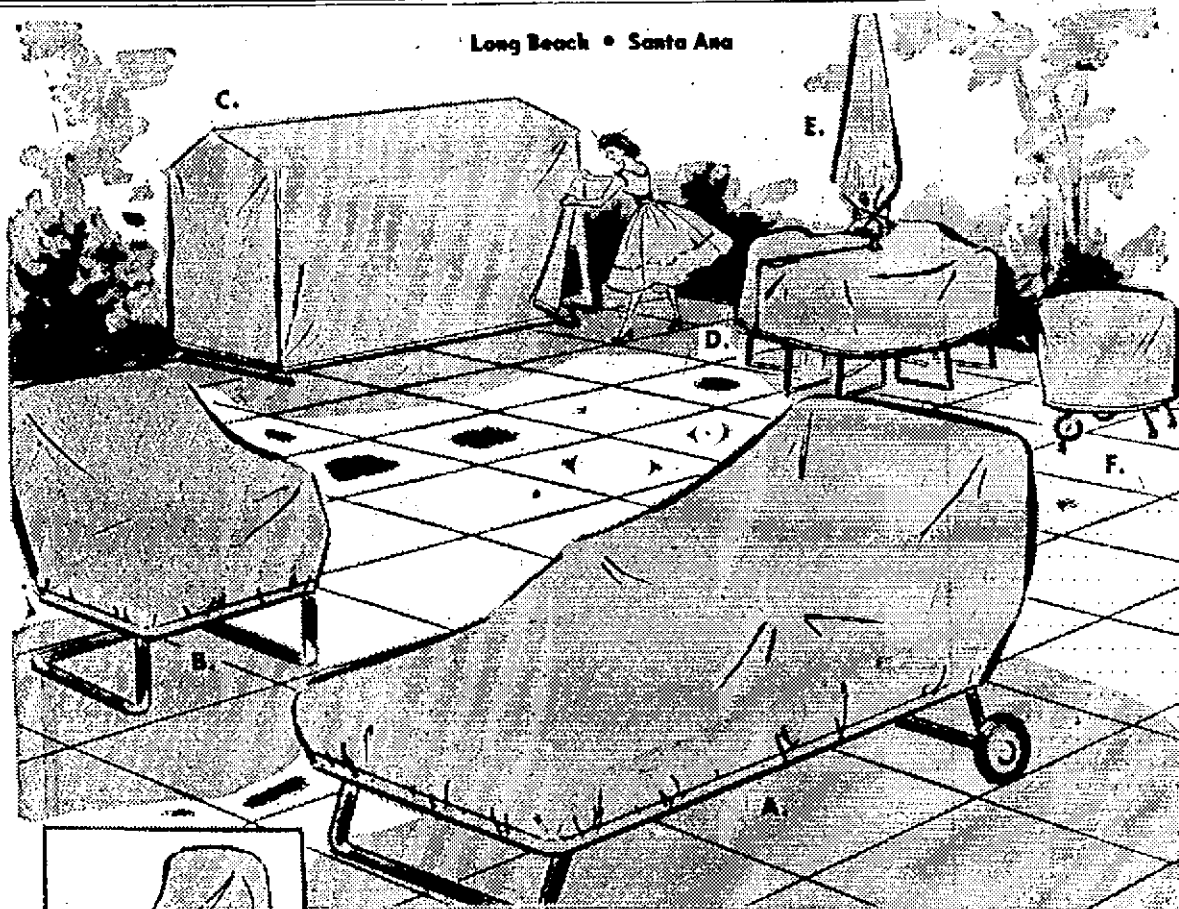

Next along the pathway north and west lie Montana's Lewis and Clark Caverns, a state park where the mammoth caves are equipped with a tramway to carry you to a mysterious underground world. Out again in the sunshine—and nowhere is it clearer and brighter than in this mile-high region of open spaces and circling mountain ranges as you drive into Butte—colorful, unusual, the greatest copper mining city of the west.

NO ONE SHOULD leave Montana without turning into Glacier Park, crossing the famous Going-to-the-Sun Highway and again heading west to Helena, to Flathead Lake or to Missoula.

Traveling from Montana and still bearing west, you cross the Idaho Panhandle skirting the shores of the famous lake of Big fish—Lake Pend d'Oreille, and next Lake Coeur d'Alene. These are very large lakes, they are rimmed with woodlands and offer resorts and motels to appeal to those who wish to stay long enough for days of fishing, or for those

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DEPLANE

"As this is our first trip, we would welcome almost any advice about travel in Europe."

FROM travel agents' estimates, this summer will be even more crowded in Europe. This means get firm advance reservations in all capitals—you get these through a travel agent in the U. S.

You need a passport. You need a smallpox vaccination with certificate, dated within the past three years. You need air or boat or train reservations throughout. If you are going to rent or buy a car, better reserve on those, too.

This makes a tight, relentless schedule and is certainly not as much fun. But Europe has not built hotels for the increasing tourist trade. And, so far as I can see, is not going to build. When the jets begin to fly and with the new lower economy fares, I think European travel will become a herd-like movement of guided tours. The outlook is depressing.

"... some ideas on buying in the Orient?"

BEST BUYS are in Hong Kong. This is a free port and the Chinese merchants are very competitive.

For instance, Swiss watches are a better buy here than in Switzerland. German cameras, silks, Indian sari veils, ivory carvings, tailor-made clothing, English woolsens. Irish linens. All duty-free buys.

On Chinese-made goods you have to be careful. They import rugs and furniture, for example, from Red China. And these things will NOT pass U. S. Customs. For Chinese goods, you get a certificate from the U. S. Consul in Hong Kong that they were made in Hong Kong. Not Red China.

The merchants often enough will tell you this is not necessary. Or they will assure you THEY can give you a certificate. Not true. Window shop. Then call the Consulate and ask.

IN JAPAN: Japanese cameras. The Nikon is best in the Leica-style class. The Minolta Autocord Model L is best in the reflex style. It is about half the overseas price of the Rolleiflex on which it is modeled.

The china sets are wonderfully patterned. Wako seems to be the best of the department stores. But it is well worth while to go to several. Get an elevator to the top floor and work down.

I have seen some fine sets of patterned china at about $20 for 100 pieces. As a visitor, you do not pay the 10 and 15 per cent tax on anything you buy. Nor on hotel bills, restaurant checks or night clubs. Be sure they take it off and sign your name and passport number to the bill.

Except for the Igorot wood carvings and native fiber cloth, I have never seen anything worth buying in the Philippines. The carved salad bowls might be worth while. So are made-to-order carved mahogany doors and screens. Be sure you bring the measurements with you.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent-Press-Telegram, 3434 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

Their well-planned vacation holds fun, relaxation for this pair at Yosemite.

By Harry Karns

IN THE SPRING a man's fancy turns to what the women have been thinking about all winter—a vacation. . . Sparkling sunshine, long stretches of beach, breathtaking mountain vistas, cascading waterfalls, and the song of the open road. . . All very pleasant, but don't forget that behind every blissful vacation is a road map and some hard-headed, practical plans. And now is the time to shape those plans.

The first question, of course, is: "Where shall we go?"

As a Southern Californian, your problem is not that of finding a place to go, but of choosing. No one has a wider selection of magnificent vacation spots within easy traveling distance.

You can take your vacation at home, visiting the sunny beaches, going surf fishing, camping out in the nearby mountains, or going on junkets to Hollywood, Knott's Berry Farm, or Disneyland.

OR YOU CAN MAKE IT an away-from-home vacation that takes you to one of the famous playground areas of the great 11-state western portion of the United States. This is America's vacationland, and you are not too many hours away from most parts of it.

North of you in California are Sequoia National Park with its towering redwoods, Yosemite with more tall trees and beautiful waterfalls (these are especially impressive this year), and Lassen Volcanic National Park. At all these spots you can relax by camping, riding, hiking and fishing. In between the natural wonders, you can take in San Francisco's famous Fisherman's Wharf or visit California's first state capital, old Monterey.

Oregon offers you 20-square-mile Crater Lake, the Oregon Caves, and the Douglas fir. Washington has Mount Rainier and Olympic National Park. Idaho provides Hell's Canyon and rugged timberland. In Montana there is Glacier National Park, and in Wyoming, Yellowstone with its Old Faithful geyser, its waterfalls and canyons. Utah has the Great Salt Lake. There's Lake Tahoe, Virginia City, Reno and Las Vegas in Nevada. Arizona offers Hoover Dam and Grand Canyon. New Mexico's great natural wonder is Carlsbad Caverns, containing a cave "room" 300 feet high.

THE LIST IS ENDLESS, and part of the thrill of a vacation, of course, lies in adding your own discoveries to it. Naturally, where you go and what you do will depend on the amount of time you have and the cost involved. It is always wise to determine these factors before rather than after the trip has begun.

Read your newspaper travel sections, clip the stories and ads that interest you, and send for more details about routes, places to stay, costs, and attractions. In a very short time you can assemble all the information necessary for sensible planning. A handful of postcards will bring you an avalanche of folders, maps, and booklets from states and agencies interested in tourist promotion.

PLAN, THEN RELAX

AND ENJOY

For many Americans, a vacation is a swift trip by car to a single destination. For others, it is a leisurely trip with stops along the way to pitch camp and enjoy the scenery. Still others prefer the vacation budget trips offered by airlines, railways, bus companies, and steamship lines. Summer traveling has increased at such a pace in recent years that travel during the peak of the season can be crowded and sometimes inconvenient, whether you go in your own car or by other means. Consider an early or late-season vacation.

BUT IF YOU DO PLAN to go at the top of the season in one of the new luxury buses that travel the Pacific coast, in a streamlined domeliner train through the Rockies, or aboard a coast-to-coast aircoach, get your reservations early. While you're at it, ask the airline or train clerk about the arrangements they have for a rental auto for you at almost any airport or rail station in the United States.

As usual this summer, however, the ticket for most vacationers will be the gasoline credit card. Eight out of ten vacationing Americans will ride the highways in the family fivver. For them, these few words of advice:

1. Don't plan to go too far in one day. Three hundred miles a day is a comfortable average. Neither driver nor passenger gets much fun out of more mileage than that.

2. Check your brakes and tires and have your car completely serviced before you start. Get it serviced as needed along the way. Check the oil daily.

Planning worries over, this young vacationer is enjoying Sun Valley golfing.

3. Get an early start. Despite all the humorous articles written about this advice, it's still good. Get your driving over early in the evening and start looking for your accommodations for the night.

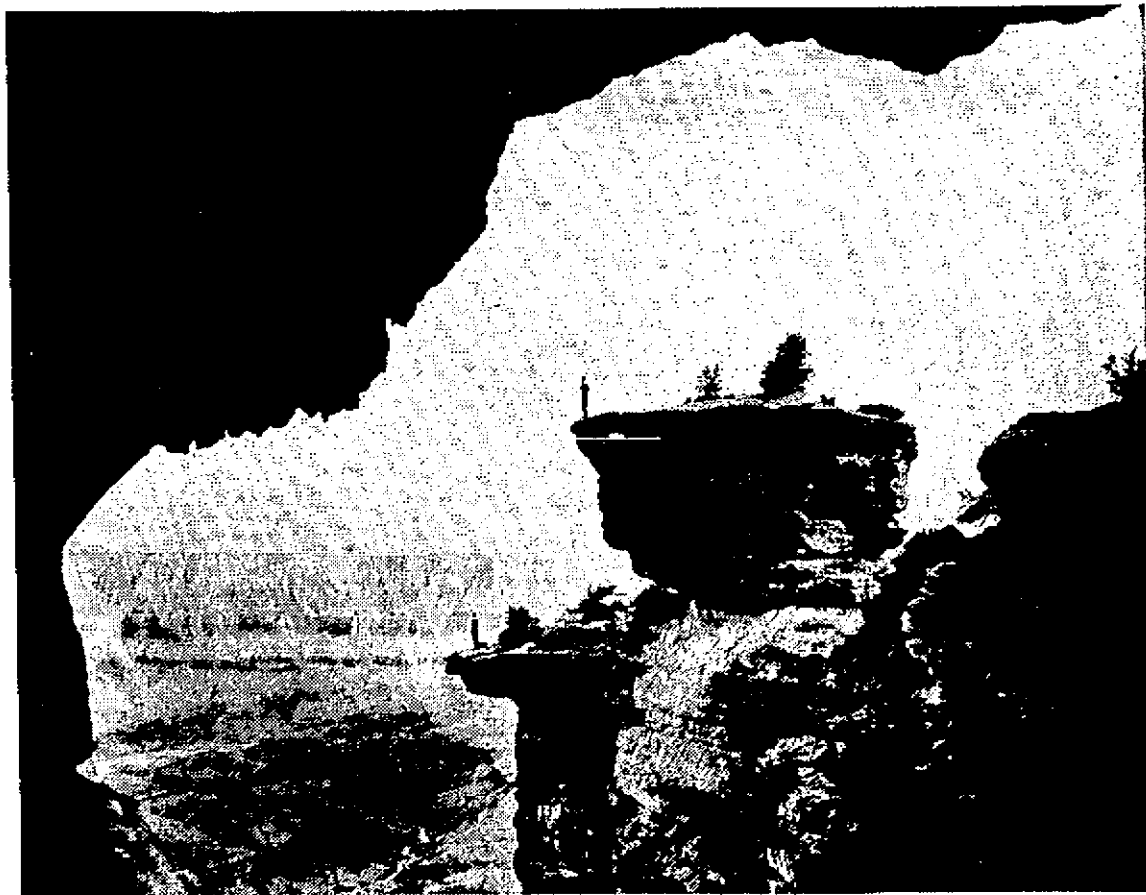

4. "Travel light." Eliminate all unnecessary luggage, and put as much as you can of what you do take in the trunk compartment or the luggage rack so your ride will be comfortable.

5. Make sure your headlights and tail lights are working properly.

6. For safety's sake, let someone else read the maps while you're at the wheel, keep your speed within reason, and give the other driver the benefit of the doubt.

Remember, it's a vacation—not a stock car race or an endurance contest.

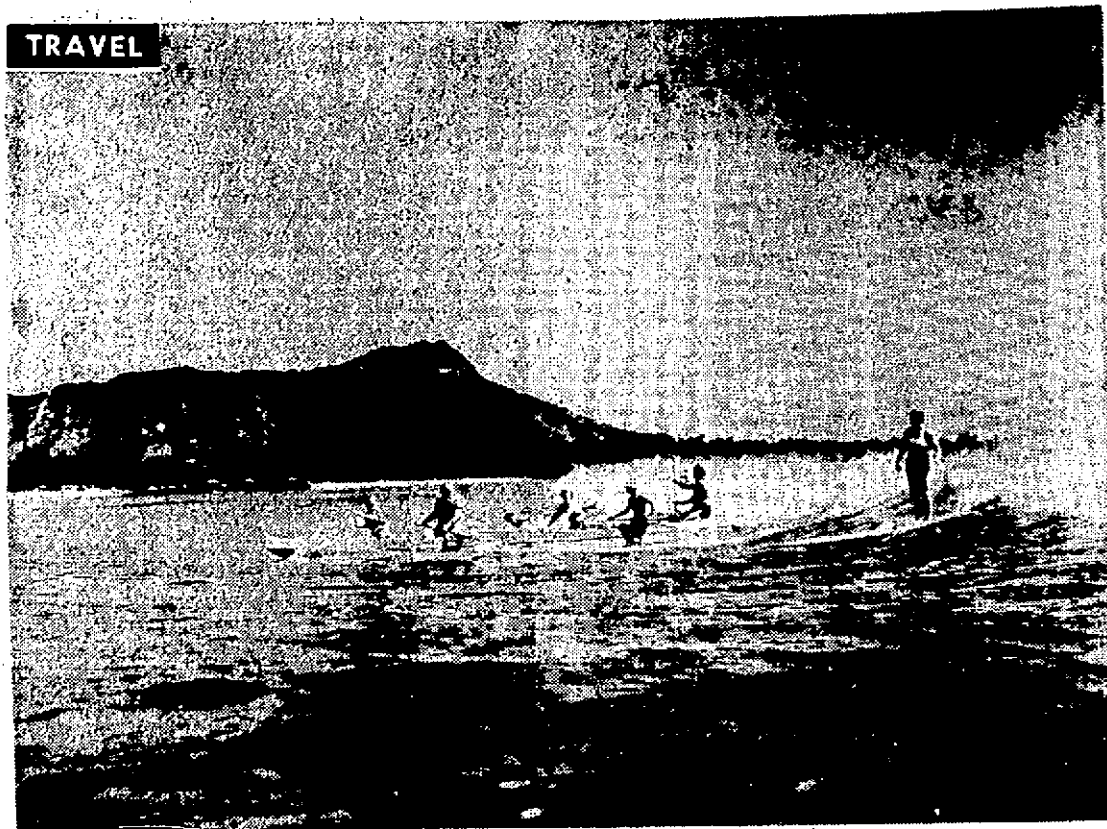

Plan it, then relax and enjoy it.

TRAVEL

Seeing the Pacific must include Hawaii's attractions. Many fine hotels provide top accommodations in islands. Package tours of the Pacific offer air-sea travel.

By Lee Craig

MORE SOUTHLAND residents than ever before are expected this year to respond to the urge to "get away from it all" with a vacation visit to the largest and fastest growing tourist area in the world—the wide Pacific.

In 1952, the whole Pacific area drew 100,000 tourists from all over the world. In 1957, 300,000 Americans alone traveled in the Pacific—almost half as many as those who went to Europe—and they spent approximately $160,000,000.

This year, expanded service by sea and air will enable nearly half a million tourists to travel in the Pacific.

Part of the increase in facilities will come with the formation of a new Pacific ship service from Long Beach involving triangle voyages between here and other coast ports, the Orient and the South Pacific.

LOCAL TRAVELERS will be able to board these and other fast, new passenger liners bound for exotic Pacific islands on schedules designed to fit every vacation plan.

Or, for those who prefer to fly, every week 99 planes take off from West Coast airports, including Los Angeles International, for Pacific places.

There'll be room for everybody out there, too. Pacific hotels offer accommodations for nearly 6,000 more visitors than a year ago and new hotels are under construction everywhere.

For the convenience of travelers, most agencies

Call of the Pacific

British roadsters dodge rickshaws, pedicabs in Victoria, Island of Hong Kong.

offer two new services—the "go now, pay later" plan and the option of flying one way, leisurely voyaging by steam the other way. All travel agents can explain the plans in detail.

JAPAN AND HAWAII presently are most popular tourist meccas.

Hawaii, this year, expects 198,000 visitors—an increase of 20 per cent over 1957. To help house them, there will be nearly 1,000 more hotel rooms added at Waikiki, plus three new hotels under construction at Kona, island of Hawaii.

Busiest time in Hawaii is June through August. Most summertime visitors think of Hawaii in terms of Honolulu and Waikiki, on Oahu. But, since World War II, an increasing number of travelers have been discovering the other islands in the 390-mile chain. Of these, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai are most popular.

The "big" island of Hawaii is best known for its twin volcanoes of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea. The latter rises to 13,784 feet and is, in a sense, the world's highest mountain, since its base is on the ocean floor 18,000 feet below sea level. Four volcanic eruptions have occurred since the end of the war.

Maui's attraction lies in a spectacular but extinct volcanic crater containing a lake and rare plants. There's also a village, Lahaina, once the capital of the Hawaiian kingdom and later a Pacific whaling port.

VISITORS TO KAUAI will be surprised by the "barking sands," which are a mixture of lava and coral particles. When rubbed during the heat of the day, the white sand gives a sound remarkably like that of a barking dog.

Tourist volume in Japan has jumped from 72,000 visitors in 1952 to about 150,000 last year. To aid in their bid for visiting foreigners' nourishing currency, Japanese officials have relaxed entry and exit procedures and have improved monetary regulations.

Other top Pacific attractions include Alaska, Australia, Fiji, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Korea, New Caledonia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Tahiti and Taiwan. Each has its own off-beat appeal.

HOW MUCH do these trips cost? Here are some rough ideas.

Minimum fare from here to Hong Kong is about $340, by passenger liner. Plane fare to Hong Kong, tourist class, is about $200 more. Australia is the farthest point on the South Pacific route, and getting there costs about $330 by ship (seeing Hawaii, Fiji and New Zealand on the way). By plane to Australia is approximately $540.

You need at least a month to see the Pacific properly. Two months is better. Travel agents offer a number of packaged plans for varied routes and methods of travel.

About the most you can see in three weeks without killing yourself by being on the move all the time is on a circle plane tour of the South Pacific or of the Orient, each for about $1,500.

A better buy is a two-month trip rounding the entire Pacific for about $2,300. Month-long tours usually cost about $2,000.

Japan's famed geisha girls entertain a touring couple over sukiyaki at Hisamatsu Inn, Tokyo. Tourism has increasing attractions in Japan for traveling Americans.

600 MILES OF BREATH-TAKING BEAUTY

The King's Highway

By Ralph Buffon

ANY TIME OF THE YEAR, for a vacation, motorists will thoroughly enjoy every mile and minute discovering The King's Highway that follows the footsteps of the padres along the California Mission Trails from San Francisco to San Diego.

Across broad fertile valleys, around rugged mountains that kneel down to meet the blue Pacific, the California Mission Trails are America's only naturally air-conditioned highways—truly 600 miles of breath-taking beauty through a vacationer's wonderland of sports, rest and relaxation.

The warm friendly welcome that greeted travelers along the trail of the 21 missions is as genuine today as it was a century and a half ago when the Franciscan fathers established the mission chain.

These missions, founded by Fr. Junipero Serra and his followers, built a day's journey from each other, were developed to educate the native Indians and convert them to Christianity. Then, as now, they stand as a beacon of hospitality in their original sites along the Pacific shore. Originally the missions were connected by a rough trail called El Camino Real, "The King's Highway." Today, however, the California Mission Trails, a system of modern highways, supplements the rough riding and dangerous trails of the padres. Now one may travel leisurely, any time of the year, in cool comfort along this fascinating trail of the historic missions which are nestled in the unsurpassed beauty of California's coastal range.

THE MISSION FATHERS created their own architecture in building the missions, using materials and rough skills available—handmade adobe bricks that take on pastel hues in the quiet hours of early day, or in the fading light of day when the angelus is rung. Tiled roofs, domed towers, thick walls with tiny window openings, create a peaceful setting among the whispering tropical palm trees of Southern California, the wind-swept pines of Monterey, and the lovely lacy eucalyptus trees of Northern California.

The first mission was founded by Father Serra in a sheltered valley near the harbor of San Diego, and was named "San Diego de Alcalá" for St. James of Alcalá. The city of San Diego, with a climate so temperate it always seems like June in January, is an exciting hub of industry and activity. Home of the San Diego Naval Station and one of the largest airplane manufacturing centers in the world, San Diego is a happy combination of an historic past and a lustrous present that is fun and exciting to visit.

Just south of San Diego is the famous lighthouse on Point Loma, built in 1851, and the Cabrillo National Monument, named for Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the Portuguese navigator who discovered California in 1542. Just north of San Diego is La Jolla (pronounced Lah-hoy-ah), a city of lovely homes and resorts, overlooking a jagged coastline where the pounding surf has cut huge caves in the ocean cliffs.

UP THE MISSION TRAIL is Laguna Beach, famed art colony and loved for its atmosphere and shops, inns and eating places.

Near Laguna is Mission San Juan Capistrano, famed for the legend of the swallows, and founded in 1776.

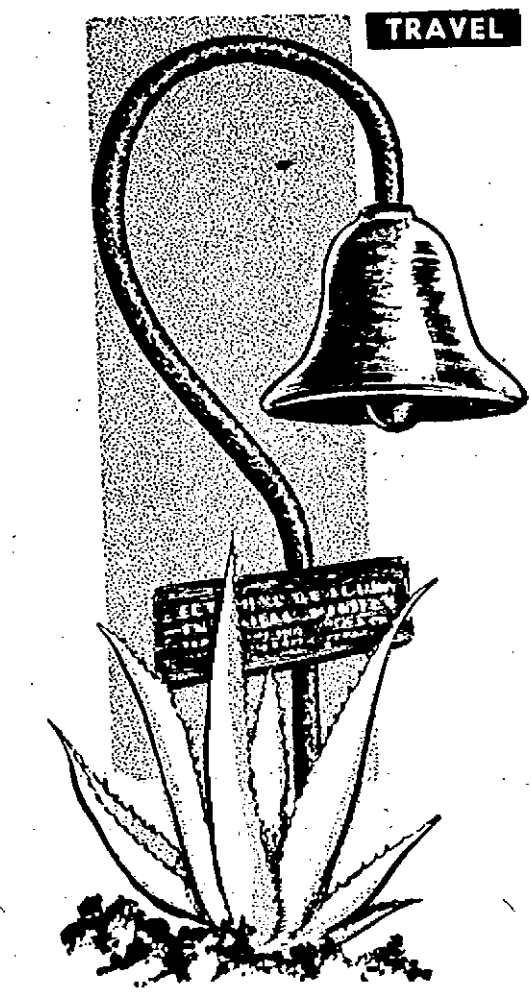

Los Angeles, Long Beach, Santa Monica and Malibu are among the next towns. The first oranges in California were grown in the orchards of San Gabriel Mission, just east of Los Angeles. Architecturally, San Gabriel is one of the most distinctive missions with its identifying photogenic companion (bell tower).

Mission Santa Barbara, at Santa Barbara, 100 miles north of Los Angeles, often called "Queen of the Missions," is beautiful, imposing. Services have been conducted continuously here since its founding in 1786 by the Franciscan Fathers.

On north through historic Gaviota Pass is Mission Santa Ines and the picturesque little Danish village of Solvang.

JUST NORTH OF PISMO BEACH (known for clams as well as scenery), is San Luis Obispo, site of Mission San Luis Obispo, and a bit east and inland from Paso Robles, almond-growing center of the world, is San Miguel Mission, dating from 1797. This mission contains original wall paintings and designs created by Indian neophytes during early mission days.

Continuing on the Mission Trails, motorists pass through the fertile Salinas Valley to the Monterey Peninsula where Carmel-by-the-Sea, picturesque as its name, lies in its rustic setting within the tree-studded hills. Carmel's art colony proudly boasts finest names in art, music and literature, and its shops display the creations of local craftsmen that many tourists take home to become the heirlooms of tomorrow. Here, too, is peaceful Carmel Mission, where Father Serra, founder of the mission chain, is buried.

Between Carmel and Monterey is "17-Mile Drive"—17 miles of spectacular beauty. Midway point on the drive, with its famous cypress, is probably the most photographed spot on the Pacific Coast. Nearby is famed Pebble Beach golf course, Bing Crosby's favorite links which he shares with his friends and Bob Hope.

AT THE EDGE of 17-Mile Drive is Pacific Grove, where each fall come hundreds of thousands of huge Monarch butterflies to nest in a grove of pine trees. This migration, as regular as clockwork, is considered by naturalists one of the strangest phenomena known to this science, and draws thousands of visitors to Pacific Grove each year.

Quaint Monterey rests peacefully on the shores of the half-moon Monterey Bay. The seat of the government during the Spanish and Mexican rule in California, many of the century-old buildings still stand in Monterey. The customs house dates from 1814.

San Diego de Alcalá was the first mission to be founded in California by Fr. Serra. Tiled roofs, domed towers, thick walls—all are in keeping with the Mission styling.

Germany, home of both Mozart and Bach, has scheduled music festivals in honor of each of the composers. The Mozart Festival will be held in Wuerzburg June 5-17 with 13 concerts in the Emperor's Hall and court gardens of the Prince Bishop's Palace and in St. Stefans Church. The 35th annual German Bach Festival will take place in Stuttgart from June 26-July 1, and will include many compositions not often heard as well as well-known works. The Beethoven House Society in Bonn, meanwhile, has canceled this year's Chamber Music Festival in order to purchase an important collection of Beethoven's works for the museum, but will sponsor another Beethoven Festival in 1959.

TRAVEL

'Broadway in the Sagebrush'

SO YOU are going to Las Vegas!
How will you get there?
What will it cost?
What will you see and do?

It's 300 miles, east of Long Beach. Drive east on Carson St., and stay on Highway 91, which takes you straight to Las Vegas 6½ hours driving time. The route takes you through Riverside, San Bernardino, Barstow, Yermo and Baker.

The Union Pacific has four trains a day into Las Vegas. Buses leave from 144 Pine Ave. to take passengers to the East Los Angeles station. Free buffet meals are served on the streamliner City of Las Vegas.

Greyhound makes nine bus trips each day into Las Vegas. Long Beach passengers catch the bus at the local station, 226 E. 1st St. and transfer at the Los Angeles terminal. Two buses each day are expresses, with the first stop at Barstow and the next at the Las Vegas Strip. They make the trip in six hours. The other buses, which are transcontinental with frequent stops, take eight hours.

Western Air normally has 8 flights daily into Las Vegas, and United and TWA each have three daily. Limousines may be caught at the Wilton Hotel.

And do you know about the "package deal" Las Vegas tours out of the Long Beach Municipal Airport? A DC-3 leaves daily at 5:30 p.m. and returns at 4 a.m. (in time to get a little shut-eye before getting to work.) DC-4s are expected to be added this summer. Three "package deals" are available—the evening tour, "overnighter" and "weekender." The evening tour includes round-trip transportation, buffet supper and show at one of the "strip" hotels; the "overnighter" adds a room, bottle of champagne, $5 in chips, two free rounds of golf including clubs and four chances to win $5,000 by making a hole-in-one on the golf course. The "weekender" of course is for two nights, instead of one, plus all the other attractions.

All right, now what does it cost? Transportation can be de luxe or economical, and so can a stay in Las Vegas. The average cost of a double room at the Desert Inn, for instance, is $8 to $17. Desert Inn management figures that $10 per day per person is a generous sum for meals. Figuring an average room at $12 a day, two days would be $24 and food would be a total of $40 or a grand total of $64 for three days (two nights).

These are the costs if one does not gamble.

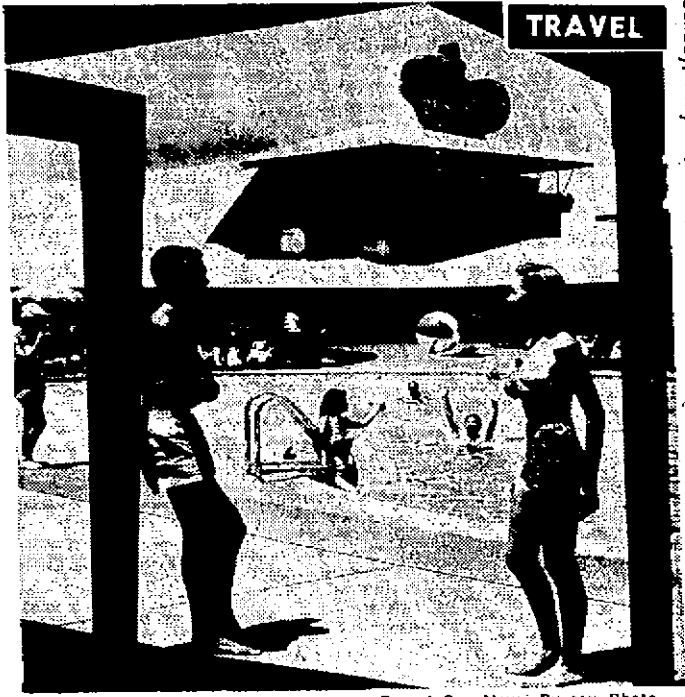

What is there to see in Las Vegas which in a handful of years has grown from a small town to a resort city whose principal occupation is playing host to vacationists?

Along its five-mile hotel "Strip," a virtual "Broadway in the sagebrush," guests in formal clothes or cowboy regalia dance to name bands, see top flight floor shows, swim, ride, play roulette and rub elbows with film stars.

Radiating from town in every direction are scenery, sports and fun for the whole family. Lake Mead is a yachtsman's paradise with miles of water for cruising. Black bass answer the lure of the fisherman and the season never is closed. Rainbow trout in the Colorado River below make for an entirely different type of sport fishing. Hoover Dam, the combined utility and sightseeing wonder which divides the lake and the river, draws more than two million visitors west.

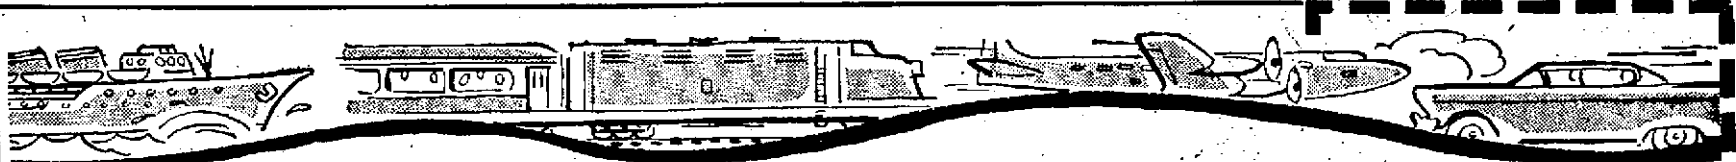

To the west, Mount Charleston rises in pine-clad beauty.

One of dozens of swank swimming pools along the famous five-mile hotel "Strip" in Las Vegas.

It's 300 miles via Hwy. 91 to Las Vegas—6½ hours of driving time. The route takes vacationist through Riverside, San Bernardino, Barstow, Yermo, Baker.

The pool at Apple Valley Inn sparkles like a jewel in the bright Southern California sunshine.

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

All Play and No Work

IN THE HIGH desert of Southern California is a vacationer's paradise, Apple Valley, where no work and all play add up to real summer enjoyment. The average mean summer temperature is just 73 degrees. Here is the home of the world-famous Apple Valley Inn, with excellent accommodations, celebrated cuisine, golfing, swimming, riding through picturesque desert trails and trout fishing in both streams and lakes.

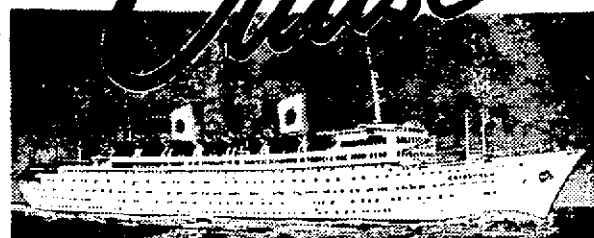

Just two hours from Long Beach, Apple Valley is the center of desert activities all year long. Guests at the inn may see a movie or television company on "location." Twice a week there's real outdoor Western steak fry followed by campfire entertainment, while every night there's dancing and entertainment for vacationers.

Apple Valley is easy to reach, too. It's just five miles south of U. S. Hwy. 66 on California Hwy. 18. Two railroad lines travel through Victorville where the inn station wagons meet guests on notice, and Bonanza Air Lines has two scheduled flights daily to Apple Valley from Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

You Name It--Mexico Has It!

Bamerette Terrace, Hotel Bamer, offers Mexico City's skyline and good food as its lure for tourist trade.

By Carol Miller

DESCRIBING Mexico in a few words is always a challenge. Our neighbor to the south, so near, so accessible, and yet so foreign, encompasses a gamut of sights, climates, and activities.

Mexico's climate varies according to altitude. The coastal lands are humid and tropical. Plateau country is brisk, as a rule, but warm at high noon. The high lands, in the mountains, are cold, and Mexico claims several perpetually snow-capped peaks, many of them within easy view of banana palms, coffee bushes, and tropical blossoms. Contrast is Mexico's middle name.

Mexico may now be reached by several good highways. "All roads lead to Mexico"—Mexico City, that is... from Nogales, Ariz., El Paso, Tex., Laredo, Tex., McAllen, Tex., and Brownsville, Tex. Highways have been recently renovated, and in some cases, as in the brand new superhighway connecting Saltillo with Queretaro, constructed from scratch to eliminate previous bad stretches of road. On all highways service stations and food facilities are sufficient. But always be on guard for cattle, which roam unfenced on the open ranges of Northern Mexico.

STEAMSHIP SERVICE has been resumed since World War II, and now travelers may enter Mexico through Acapulco, Veracruz, or any other port at which special arrangements can be made for a stop.

First class pullman buses enter Mexico at all points, and like the Mexican National Railway, connect with corresponding lines at border entries.

Air service has increased due to many bilateral agreements in the past six months. Western Air Lines, Mexicana de Aviacion and Aeronaves de Mexico enter Mexico City from the West Coast area.

Mexico City is the heart of the country in every way, as Rome was its empire in other days. A traveler making headquarters in Mexico City finds it easy to take side trips in a rented car or through a planned tour at one of the many reliable travel agencies; or, if he's adventurous, entirely on his own. Mexico City boasts "top" hotels in the first class category. The highly fashionable, fine service, and an excellent location in the heart of the smartest shopping district in the Republic. There are other fine hotels also: Reforma International, Continental Hilton, Altier, Del Prado, Plaza Vista Hermosa, the perennially popular Geneva, the intimate and modest Prince, and the soon-to-be-opened, super-duper luxurious El Presidente.

OF RESTAURANTS, Mexico has many, of all types, and all styles. Elegance, superior food, and the unexpected are the only things you can be sure of. Food, by the way, is not hot. The heat comes in a small jar of sauce supplied upon request and added at the discretion of the consumer.

Mexico is a shoppers' paradise. Smart shops, quaint shops, shops featuring the best of native popular crafts, or the ultimate in chic. The best buys: hand loomed fabrics and native woollens, metal work, especially silver, pottery, basketry, hand carved wooden articles such as furniture (if you're driving and have room), perfumes, tequila, and the delightful native coffee liqueur called Kahlua. Be sure to check the individual customs regulations of your state before trying to enter the United States with liquor or tobacco.

Of pastimes Mexico has an abundance also: whirlwind night

life ranging from one of this hemisphere's most glamorous night clubs, The Jacaranda, to the total negation of glamour in tiny, back street cantinas where mariachis stay till dawn appears. Between the two extremes, and including them, is a wide range of thoroughly enjoyable and completely unforgettable diversion.

SPORTS are offered in variety: Spectacular bullfights, thrilling rodeos and "jarippos," horse races in the most beautiful race track, according to a consensus of opinion, in this hemisphere; jai-alai, cock fights, soccer, ice hockey, and of course "beisbol" and "futbol Americano."

SOME TOURISTS seem to enjoy risking the chance of becoming bear bait. They are injured often, too, in spite of warnings prohibiting the feeding of bears in national parks. Such an incident was photographed in Yellowstone when what was supposed to be a cute teddy-bear picture resulted in a near-tragedy last summer.

A brown bear eagerly ambled toward a young man who was tossing crackers. The youth held a cracker in his right hand toward the bear. In his left hand he kept a supply from which he selected one at a time to offer Bruin. Tourists stopped to watch in fascination or got out to take pictures. But the half-grown bear became nervous, probably feeling himself surrounded. He had spied the crackers in the youth's left hand and suddenly lunged for them. As the bear retreated to the woods, the young man viewed with horror his bloody, scratched hand. A sobered bunch of drivers took off.

BEARS ALONG the roads cause frequent traffic jams in national parks, especially Yellowstone. After we sighted a pair of cubs wrestling in a pine tree, a block long line of cars soon lined up in both directions with ours. Cubs learn to sit up and beg by waving their arms and seem harmless if you forget that their mothers are watching. A bear victim who was hospitalized in Yellowstone last year was watching black bear cubs when the mother bear approached from another direction, reached in the car and bit her. This lady was confined overnight after wounds in her upper arm were repaired. Many reports to Yellowstone rangers simply state that "the bear put its head in the car window and bit me," according to the report on Yellowstone Bears for 1957 by the superintendent, Lemuel O. Garrison, issued in Feb. '58.

TRAVEL

Warnings by rangers and naturalists through talks, literature, posters, signs and personal advice, inform visitors that it is contrary to regulations to feed, molest or tease animals in the parks. "Yet, there are those careless, thoughtless, intrepid or fool-hardy ones among tourists who insist on becoming too familiar with bears," Garrison says. Because of such actions four persons were arrested last summer and numerous others were stopped and warned of the danger. Twenty of the 91 casualties in Yellowstone during 1957 involved feeding bears, in 11 cases nearby persons were feeding the bears. Only seven attacks were considered unprovoked.

"DANGEROUS" is the title of a leaflet given every visitor entering the park by National Park Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior. It pictures a black bear in a menacing attitude with teeth bared and claws outstretched. This leaflet explains that park bears and other animals are wild and that bears cause many injuries to visitors. Travelers are instructed to pull off the road and stay in their cars while watching bears. "In Yosemite, bears continue to be one of the biggest attractions but at the same time, one of the biggest wildlife management problems we have in the park," according to Delmer M. Armstrong, park biologist.

"Today, most personal injuries are received by visitors who are feeding or molesting the bears," Armstrong says, "and property damage occurs when food is left in cars, camps and other places where it is necessary for the animal to break in to get it."

Careless campers are the ones who are bothered. The answer is to keep a clean camp and a minimum of odorous foods. An accumulation of garbage is a direct invitation and any food container which emits an odor is a natural target for bears. Other utensils left near will suffer by contact and bears may cause considerable damage getting to food stored in a tent. If possible, suspend food between two trees out of a bear's reach. Surplus food should be sealed in clean wrapping material or in air-tight containers and kept as cool as possible. Leftover food containers, including tin cans, should be burned along with all garbage in back-country camps where there are no rubbish collections by the park service.

IN YELLOWSTONE last year bears were responsible for 123 incidents of damage to property, 102 of which were visitor cases.

Drastic action is required occasionally to avoid further injury to people and damage to property. Therefore, 23 culprits definitely identified in Yellowstone during 1957 were disposed of. In each of these cases, the rangers prepared a full indictment, listing the bears' crimes and unsuccessful attempts to reform them. Only then did the superintendent reluctantly sign the death warrants.

IN AN ATTEMPT to eliminate or at least reduce the number of bear injuries at Yellowstone, park authorities have called upon the 1957 victims for their suggestions. Letters were sent to each of the 91 persons hurt and a few replies received. In each of these the park was absolved of any blame, one victim admitting "it was my own fault."

These persons found out from experience that it is bad to bait the bears, and worse to become bear bait.

Last to be founded and also northernmost of California missions is San Francisco de Solano at Sonoma.

Bay is an exciting playground with fishing, swimming, and of particular interest to the young-in-heart, is the amusement pier with its rides and games, cotton candy and hot dogs, and never-ending excitement.

NORTH OF SANTA CRUZ in the San Lorenzo Valley is the Henry Cowell Redwood State Park, where stands the southernmost grove of giant redwood trees. These huge trees, old when Christ was born, stand as a living monument to the past, preserved for present and future citizens of California.

Inland on a broad highway, over rolling wooded hills, the beautiful Santa Clara Valley is first seen. In the valley is Mission Santa Clara, now a part of the campus of the University of Santa Clara.

From San Jose, commercial and industrial center of Santa Clara County, the Mission Trail leads up the San Francisco Peninsula through the residential communities of Palo Alto (home of Stanford University), San Mateo and Burlingame, boasting some of America's finest restaurants.

And finally, fabulous, exciting San Francisco. Father Francisco Palou, one of Serra's trusted assistants, founded the mission there in 1776, and named it after St. Francis. Probably this origin of the name prompts most San Franciscans to admonish visitors not to call their beloved city "Frisco." After all, a patron saint should not be nicknamed.

SAN FRANCISCO is one of America's truly great cities—a visitors' paradise. Chinatown, Fisherman's Wharf, exquisite Golden Gate Park, the wobbling cable cars scooting up and down San Francisco's hills, are all part of the Golden Gate symphony.

A trip along California Mission Trails is a pleasant page for any memory book. Plan to take as much time and see as much as possible. Relax, enjoy it—watch the Pacific surf booming on sandy beaches—walk among the giant redwoods—dig a Pismo clam—attend one of the many fiestas—see a rodeo—go deepsea fishing.

The spirit of hospitality and friendliness has been a tradition along California's Mission Trail since the days of the Dons, whose gracious words of welcome were, "Our house is yours." Today, with these same words, the modern day citizens of the Mission Trails communities invites holiday travelers to share with them the romance, beauty and fun of this enchanted land.

'Skunk' Train

By Bettie Payne Welles

Willets to Fort Bragg over 40 miles of twisting rails is the run of the "Skunk," a novel bit of railroading.

TRAVELERS along U. S. Highway 101 this summer will not want to miss a trip on the little "Skunk," as the California Western Railroad calls its diesel-powered motor cars. The road offers one of the nation's crookedest and most scenic railway excursions. It connects Willets with Fort Bragg on the Pacific Coast. The little "Skunk" with its 40 miles of track snakes over mountains, through vast redwood forests, over 44 bridges and trestles, through two long tunnels, up steep grades and down inclines, over the meandering Noyo River before it reaches its destination. From the car windows, passengers see nature lovers on hikes through the woods, fishermen by clearwater streams casting leisurely for trout, campers enjoying tent life, and families of ranchers and loggers who sit on the porches of their homes and wave as the "Skunk" passes.

an unforgettable panorama of wild life in its native habitat, thickets of wild berries, and clear running streams.

SOME VACATIONERS may want to linger in this wilderness for a while. A camping permit may be obtained by making an application to authorities at Fort Bragg. Since the railroad follows the course of the Noyo River, almost any spot along its banks is accessible, and supplies and daily mail are delivered almost to the camper's door. For those who do not enjoy getting too close to the rugged side of nature, there are lodges and cottages, places "to rough it" with more ease and comfort.

Boy Scouts of Sonoma and Mendocino districts have a summer camp at Camp Silverado. A Catholic Youth group has a camp at St. Albert, and a San Francisco Boys Club uses Camp Marweldel.

In Fort Bragg, there is a two-hour wait between "trains." This is a good time to get acquainted with fellow passengers and is also a good time to do a little exploring of the business district. Since Fort Bragg is famous for its deep sea fishing, it has restaurants that serve good fish dinners.

Vacationers near Willets or Fort Bragg will enjoy a ride on the little "Skunk" with its 40 miles of some of the "crookedest track in the world!"

FOR YEARS the "Skunk" has served the loggers and ranchers along its right of way. In the early days coal was used in the engines of the cars. The smoke they made was so smelly that the passengers gave these cars the name they bear to this day.

The conductor on the "Skunk" is quite different from the conductor on the sleek, diesel-powered trains making daily runs over larger roads. The "Skunk's" conductor is known for his personalized service. He is brakeman, expressman, milk and egg man, mail man and news boy all in one for he delivers daily papers and mail from Willets to Summit, Crowley, Clair Mill, Shake City, Irmulco, Northspur, Old Camp Seven, South Fork, Glen Blair Junction and Fort Bragg. This trip takes a little over two hours to make. It offers Paris is still most popular tourist magnet in Europe. Some 400,000 Americans will visit there during 1958.

TRAVEL

Europe, Here We Come

BARRING a war scare, more than 1,500,000 Americans — many of them from the Southland — will pack their bags and sally forth this year on what is expected to be the biggest overseas travel spree in history.

So far, at least, the current economic droop has failed to put a damper on the outlook for a banner year. Travel agents say the way reservations are pouring in, berths on steamships and seats on trans-Atlantic planes will be scarce if not actually sold out by the mid-summer peak in June and July.

Why the boom?

ASIDE FROM the impetus stemming from "go now-pay later" plans, chairman Luis A. Bolin of the European Travel Commission gives three reasons for the heralded surge of Americans to Europe this summer:

1. The Brussels World Fair — "A terrific magnet," he says, which is expected to draw 25 million visitors to the Belgian capital.

2. The centennial celebration at Lourdes, France. Tens of thousands of Americans have signed up for pilgrimages to the famous shrine.

3. Introduction of new economy class transatlantic air travel — providing round-trip passage for about the same price as one way de luxe. Airlines predict the economy feature will attract an additional 200,000 passengers on flights to Europe this year.

Hitting the overseas trail in unprecedented numbers, Americans will scatter roughly two billion dollars around the world, incidentally providing the raw material for Europe's biggest single dollar-earning industry. And they'll bring home millions of dollars worth of souvenirs ranging from potted Scottish haggis to Turkish tarbooshea.

NEARLY HALF of the American tourist crop will descend on western Europe.

Bolin, whose European Travel Commission represents the official travel bureaus of 21 countries, predicts 675,000 U.S.

citizens — a peacetime record — will swarm across Europe, aliens residing in the United States will swell the Europe-bound total from this country to 900,000.

More than 400,000 Americans will visit Paris, still the No. 1 tourist mecca. About 270,000 will visit London, 250,000 Rome and 200,000 Madrid.

The U. S. Commerce Department, which keeps tabs on such things, says American travelers last year spent an average $1,565 for a European trip, including $660 for fare and $905 for food, lodging, souvenirs, etc. Average expenses were $16.45 per day.

THIS YEAR they'll spend a little more. Travel fares have remained about the same as they were at the end of World War II, but prices in foreign countries have risen just as they have in the United States.

Federal passport authorities urge would-be travelers to apply for their passports at least four weeks ahead of departure date. And not to forget proof of having been successfully vaccinated against smallpox within the last three years to re-enter the United States.

U. S. tourists don't need passports to travel to Canada, Mexico, Caribbean Islands, Central America, and most South American countries. Americans going to those places, however, should take along a birth or baptismal certificate, driver's license or other documentary evidence of their U. S. citizenship and identity.

At present the State Department does not issue passports for travel to Albania, Bulgaria, Communist China, Communist North Korea, Hungary (except in special circumstances) or Communist-controlled Viet Nam.

But you may travel to Russia, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Poland and Romania if you can get a visa from those Soviet bloc countries. A visa to Russia costs only $1.25.

Two limits for the author and his wife, Lenora. And this time biggest fish honors were taken by his wife.

By Donnell Culpepper

NIMPO LAKE in western British Columbia provides a sight that probably no other lake in North America can equal—beautiful rainbow trout that leap three to six feet out of the water.

They leap for no apparent reason at any time of the day in spring, summer and fall. There's no way to count the fish because of the vastness of Nimpo's surface, but it's easy to see that hundreds sometimes are in the air at one time.

We stood on the dock at Duncan's Resort the first afternoon and watched the sight. There was only one exclamation to describe it: "Jumpin' Jiminy!"

THERE IS, of course, an explanation for the rainbow aerial circus at Nimpo. Biologically speaking, the rainbow is trying to escape from Lernaea, an almost invisible copepod crustacean, which, for reasons known only to the Lernaea, just loves to ride on a rainbow's tail.

Now if you wish to reduce Lernaea to the vernacular, just call it a sea louse, the same kind that infest salmon in the ocean and on their runs upstream to fresh-water spawning grounds.

Don't be alarmed by Lernaea. The crustaceans do no harm to the fish's flesh.

By our own human standard of comparison, let's put it this way:

Nimpo is one of three lakes—the others are Little Anahim and Big Anahim—which are formed by the Dean River on the Chilcotin Plateau. The Dean meanders rather slowly across that plateau, but later drops precipitously down toward the Pacific. So steeply, in fact, that there is no chance for ocean-run salmon and steelhead to leap its great falls and reach the plateau region. For that reason, the fish in the Dean and its lakes are strictly rainbow trout, possibly the most beautifully colored rainbows in this hemisphere.

NIMPO IS the most popular of the three lakes which lie close to each other along the Dean. Certainly, it is one of the biggest trout producers in British Columbia. All of the Dean River, above and below the three lakes, is tremendously productive in trout, so much so, in fact, that the B. C. Fish and Game Commission has made many studies of the stream to find out why it continues to yield such great trout catches although other waters may decline in productivity.

The one conclusion is that the Dean has so much plant life, important in supplying oxygen and food for the trout.

In one respect, there is a wide variance of opinion of fish and game authorities in B. C. and in California. B. C. ichthyologists encourage the dumping of fish entrails and tailings into the Dean to provide fertilizing properties for plant life. Do the same in Southern California and you'll end up just short of the gray walls of San Quentin.

NIMPO AND DEAN RIVER rainbows range from 1½ to 5 pounds. A few in the 6-to-8-pound classification have been taken.

Fishing is no problem even to the amateur in that country. Nimpo is a natural lake for trolling and most spinners and lures that are successful elsewhere work just as well in Nimpo. At times, Nimpo affords excellent fly fishing at its inlet and in some of the coves. Strangely enough, trolling in the center of the lake is more productive than along the shores. The reason is that the Dean River channel goes right down the center.

It's a slightly different story on the Dean between Nimpo and Anahim. Fly fishermen have a field day along the shores of the Dean. Spinning produces results equally as good. A limit of 12 fish is no chore within an hour or two. Actually you can pick your fish, releasing the smaller ones and keeping those just right for the skillet and for smoking.

Cecil and Marjorie Duncan operate Duncan's Resort, one of three camps on Nimpo. The Duncans originally were in business in Bellingham, Wash., and spent their summers touring B. C. searching for ideal fishing locations.

When they finally tried Nimpo, they returned to Bellingham, sold their business and went back to build a modern, (Continued on Page 27.)

Highway of Death

By Betty Hardesty

OFTEN splattered with human blood, the road from Tucson, Ariz., to Nogales, Mexico, is called El Camino de Muerta. This ominous name, The Death Highway, is appropriate in early days because of raids and massacres by blood-thirsty Apache Indians, is commonly used by Mexican and Arizona newspapers in reporting deaths on this heavily traveled section of U. S. Hwy. 89.

Being the best route between Nogales and Tucson, the 60 miles is used by U. S. servicemen from bases near Tucson and university students seeking diversion and bottled goods in the closest Mexican town. Many Nogales residents go to Tucson for shopping and amusement while tourists in southern Arizona journey along this route to see places of historical interest.

HEADING SOUTH, the good concrete highway passes between irrigated fields of cotton, then follows the valley of the Gila River. Dude ranch buildings and cattle ranches nestle beside still waters of man-made ponds. The terrain is hilly, desolate, dry and covered with desert plants except at cultivated spots. The good pavement invites speed but drivers are cautioned by the sight of numerous white wooden crosses which mark some locations of fatal auto accidents. We stopped counting at 102.

Along one stretch, the road takes on an old world character because of many wayside shrines built by Catholics of Mexican ancestry. There seem to be more here than along roads in Mexico, itself. The shrines are built of local rock made into arched, shell-shaped grottos about 6 by 6 feet. Each contains a figure of the Virgin Mary placed upon a pedestal of stones. Colored candles and artificial flowers in profusion tell of worshipers devotion to Christianity which they learned from the Franciscan Fathers and Jesuit priests who established missions along this route.

One mission in use today is at Tubac, a tiny settlement where porches of adobe houses are hung with bright strings of red chili peppers. Tubac is unique as the site of an early American mining center which was a self-governed post on the territory's lawless frontier. The Mormons who settled here in 1852 issued their own paper money, boletas, redeemable in silver, and published the first American newspaper in Arizona. Claimed first by Spain in 1737, Tubac was garrisoned in 1752 for the purpose of protecting the church missions but the terrors of Apache raids brought about its abandonment about 1863.

APACHE raids, also, caused abandonment of Tumacacori Mission in 1848 when the devout Indians of Pima and Comanche tribes left, carrying the church furnishings to San Xavier Mission near Tucson. Now protected as a national monument, Tumacacori is located 48 miles south of Tucson.

In addition to preserving the church, the park service has built a museum which houses exhibits on early Indian and Spanish history, all colorfully arranged.

Built in the late 1800s, the mission of San Jose de Tumacacori was a northern outpost of the Sonora mission, chain begun by Jesuit missionaries. The present church was in use by 1822 but its glory was short-lived. Mexico won its independence from Spain, and the Spanish soldiers departed.

TODAY, FARTHER down the highway, motorists may turn into a dirt road leading to Bill Kitchen's dusty old ranch, the first cattle ranch of the region. Nogales is the next stop. There, twin border towns are divided by a 25-foot wire fence. Mexican officials in profusion escort one through. Nogales, Mexico, is a clean little city, the near portion being the main business district filled with brightly painted shops for tourists.

Returning to Tucson, a motorist's attention is caught and held again by small crosses and wayside shrines along the Highway of Death. He concentrates on the hazards of driving and is glad that Apaches no longer make war on El Camino de Muerta.

"Who says women aren't practical about vacation travel?"

My wife loves to travel in style. A trip is a big event for her and she likes to make the most of it.

When she suggested taking the Domeliner "CITY OF LOS ANGELES" on our vacation this year, her eyes fairly sparkled over actually dining in the famous Dome Diner, and living it up in the luxurious Dome Lounge.

But, reluctantly, I mentioned our "budget."

That's when I discovered how really practical my wife can be!

She pointed out that with the Family Fares she'd be going round-trip for just the one-way fare. So would Judy, 13. Bill, who's 7, would go for only half the one-way fare. (And, incidentally, youngsters under 5 ride free!)

What's more, we'd have no baggage problems, no highway hazards, no driving strain, no where-to-eat-and-sleep problems.

Yessiree... mighty practical woman, my wife!

IT'S MIGHTY PRACTICAL TO "SHIP UNION PACIFIC," TOO... for the finest in modern freight service, including Union Pacific's new 24-hour faster freight service to the West Coast from the East and Midwest!

Plane Travel Rides High

By Stella George

NOT LONG AGO a woman made 11 long-distance calls to friends on a flight between Milwaukee and New York! Fantastic as it may sound, air-to-ground telephone service is now a reality, and this is just one of the many innovations which air lines are perfecting for the comfort and pleasure of their passengers. With a "nothing is too good for our customers" policy, air line companies have tried and succeeded in making this type of travel not only luxurious but economical.

Many average families find that 10 days to two weeks constitutes the total time for their summer vacation. Visiting friends across the country or even making a trip to Europe is not out of the question with the superb and well-planned flights now available. The trip itself becomes an important part of the vacation when it is not long and tedious. As a special help for those who are unfamiliar with air line travel the companies have informative booklets and brochures answering every possible type of question. For example, one company has a booklet with such fascinating chapter headings as "What You Should Know About Luggage and Travel Accessories," "Specifically for Her," "Specifically for Him," "Specifically for Little Ones," "On Packing," "Purchases Made Abroad," and so on, all of which go into complete detail designed to help the prospective traveler.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE the mistaken idea that air travel is a luxury to be enjoyed by those who are well-to-do. This is not the case. While menus which include the finest, most expensive wines and costly entrees are available, simple fare is also attainable and popular. In short, there is a type of flight to suit every purse. However, since flying itself is an adventure, every effort is made to make each moment thoroughly enjoyable whether one is eating, resting or merely enjoying beautiful scenery down below.

Delicious meals are part of the service of today's air travel. Patrons of air lines are truly "riding high."

Something new and interesting is always happening with airline service. For example, one air terminal recently installed the first television system to enable passengers and airline personnel to watch flight schedules from numerous vantage points. The receivers are spotted strategically around the airport premises and are linked by closed circuit to the firm's operations offices where a camera is focused on a master flight board. As changes are made they are noted on the board and immediately are visible on all television screens.

Airline menus are famous throughout the world, but here again something new is always taking place. Expert chefs see to it that sumptuous menus (whether bedtime snacks, full-course dinners, or fancy breakfasts) are served, and even the most fastidious diners are usually delighted with the food.

PHYSICAL COMFORT is given major consideration on both long and short flights. New planes are built with a view to catering to the customer's every whim and fancy. One such plane features extra wide seats with individual lamps; sound-proofing materials throughout the passenger compartment; slit-type night lights; full-length berths; and, of course, smiling, attractive stewardesses.

With all their conveniences and luxuries, airline companies do keep the average family's pocketbook and budget in mind. One company offers many ways to travel value, such as a time pay plan, family fares, tourist flights, thrift season travel and other budget-wise ideas. Whether it's destination New York or Rome, Catalina or Seattle, there is a flight service scheduled to meet every demand.

When a modern air liner takes off, every consideration has been given to the comfort of passengers, every effort is devoted to making trip happy.

Falls With a Ribald Past

By Nell Parks

SEEING Niagara Falls today in all its turbulent scenic beauty makes it difficult to believe that for 70 years the resort had a lure of a far different nature.

As far back as 1817 tourists visited the falls and by 1825, when the U. S. border had barely reached the Mississippi and Indians scoured the midwest, people were flocking by the thousands via land, the rivers and canals. They used the transportation of the era: oxcart, horseback, buggy, schooner, flatboat and other watercraft and bicycle.

The escarpments on both the Canadian and U. S. sides were controlled by a group of businessmen and showmen who were for the most part unsavory in morals and methods. The stretch between what we know now as Oakes Gardens and Table Rock was called "the Front." Hotels were fabulous, their attractions bawled out by ribald hucksters. Their "take" was supplemented by bazaars, curio shops, museums, tattoo artists and lewd shows. Niagara was the place to go and a strange assortment of patrons was attracted.

IN OLD HOTEL registers, there is proof that Southern gentry visited the falls before the Civil War, arriving en masse with their servants. Abraham Lincoln's name was written in the register of the Cataract House, which stood for more than 100 years, then burned.

Cabbies waylaid tourists before they could reach the escarpment, luring them to whatever hotel or establishment would kick back a percentage. In contrast to thrill seekers who came to see the exhibitionists who threw themselves into the rapids, walked tightrope across the gorge or sailed watercraft to destruction, and in a class by themselves, were the honeymooners, whose international tradition has persisted over many generations.

ONE WIDELY ADVERTISED "come on" was the pirate ship Michigan which sailed with a load of frantic animals into the falls.

Costly Practice

The coddling of tree insects can be very expensive to home owners having valuable shade trees on their properties, warns the National Arborist Assn. To be on the safe side, an annual inspection of your trees by an arborist or tree expert company is advisable, it is stated. Insects are coddled when they have free rein to multiply and destroy the trees.

Here's a typical case: a home owner coddled the insects by ignoring them. The result was four 50-year-old beautiful shade trees destroyed. Estimated loss $2,000 plus $100 for removal of the stumps and debris.

Inspection and spraying by a tree company would have cost about $50.

Travel in Comfort

When you travel, travel in style and comfort. Leave your small handbag at home and treat yourself to a great big handbag, one large enough to hold paperback book, plane ticket, passport, cosmetics, wallet and odds and ends with ease.

Baffled about tickets, what to see, rate of exchange, what to wear, how much to tip?

How about an authorized travel agency?

In Long Beach and its immediate vicinity are authorized travel agencies, ready to help you whether you plan a quick business trip or a long, luxurious vacation. And not only is the service free, but a good travel agent actually saves you money.

AUTHORIZED agencies can obtain plane, steamship, train, bus tickets and hotel reservations for you—and they will cost you no more than if you bought them at the airport, the station, the hotel.

As a matter of fact, many times travel agencies can obtain tickets for you when you cannot get them directly from airlines, railways, steamship lines.

A good travel agency can line you up, too, for regular tours or excursions, or tours "tailor-made" for you so that you may go to exactly the places you want and see exactly the things you want to see.

THIS DOES NOT END the service of a travel agency. It supplies you with maps, folders of the places where you are going so that you feel at home when you get there. It advises you about what clothes to wear and what to take—women, especially, are inclined to take

Land of Beauty

who have only time to spend a night.

They are close to the Washington border and the major east-west highways along these northern states draw together as they enter Washington and converge at Spokane, 25 miles west of the Idaho line.

In eastern Washington again there are a multitude of lakes and streams and vacation areas to appeal to all, but of supreme interest among them travelers turn to the gigantic Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River, 89 miles west of Spokane; and to the alpine beauty of Lake Chelan as it stretches into the high peaks of north central Washington.

ON THE EASTERN slopes of the high Cascades are the fertile fruit orchards of the Wenatchee and Yakima Valleys. By crossing the mountain range on any of four easy, well-paved passes, you find yourself in the verdant forests of the western slopes that carry you to the Puget Sound country with its fresh water lakes, its snowy peaks, the salt water beaches and resorts, its cities such as Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham, Bremerton. The waters everywhere are dotted with the thousands of islands of the San Juan group, and the larger ones like Bainbridge and Vashon. The sun sets in rose and splendor on Mt. Baker and Mt. Rainier and Mt. Adams on the eastern horizon and still to the west rise the rugged and spectacular peaks of the Olympic range.

Regular ferries will carry you to the beauty of Victoria in British Columbia, or you can drive the shores to the city of Vancouver. You can also ferry or drive to the far western stretches of the Olympic Peninsula and continue along the coast of Washington to Oregon. Or you can drive inland on U.S. 99 and again to the Columbia River which you cross by bridge or by ferry to Oregon.

A ferry at the mouth of the Columbia will take you to the historic city of Astoria on the coast or a great interstate bridge will carry you to the heart of the city of Portland via the more inland route. Here rises the beauty of Mt. Hood, here is the beautiful Columbia River highway and the Crown Point vista, here is the Rose City.

There is no place more beautiful than the coast of Oregon when the rhododendrons are in bloom. They form a bank of pink loveliness against the background of great spruce and fir trees, then growing lower than the pink blossoms are the yellow flowers of the Scotch Broom — across the highway stretches the blue of the Pacific.

IN ALL THIS AREA there are a multitude of vacation possibilities—the famous Rogue and Mackenzie River resorts, the Oregon Caves, the Sea Lion Caves, the wilderness Wallows, the haunt of elk and big game.

Throughout all these Pacific Northwest states and British Columbia there is a wide range of accommodations from luxurious hotels to moderate and good cabins to fit your purse with reasonable ease.

Remember also that this is the west, the land of outdoors, so there are places to camp in abundance. These may be in state parks, in the national parks and certainly in the many camps in the national forests, for in these states is the largest concentration of national forests in the nation.

Lessons from the Campfires

Joy in the freedom of nature's countryside is expressed in this photo of children at play in a park. Here they learn to guard such happy resorts.

By Willma Simpson

IN THE COMING summer, in the redwood forests and the Great Smokies, in the Great Lakes area, the woodlands of the north, along a network of flowing waters, through every state where foliage or stone shelter and scenic attractions may be found, there will be people, by the thousands, building camp fires.

The people are not "just anybody." The people are America's families, enjoying camping, the family recreation. Camping covers a multitude of activities. Climbing children in the trees; canyons echoing happy shouts, boys from seven to seventy casting fishing lures into stream and lake and, back at the camp, bluejeans of all shapes and sizes hang besides flapping white diapers to signal that mother and baby, too, are camping out.

CAMPING MEANS much more than change of pace and relaxation. For the back-packing Scout troop building a cooking fire beside a high trail; for the family members cooking out beside their tent or trailer: the wonderful, exhilarating essence of camping is freedom.

There is freedom from routine, of course; there is freedom to choose from a variety of recreations, and freedom to see and gain renewal from intimate association with the wonders of nature.

Above all, this freedom under the open sky is an unparalleled opportunity for parents and leaders to instill in children a sense of national responsibility that is as vital as the need to establish in them a sense of responsibility for the family's living room furniture and automobile.

AS FAMILY LEADERS, parents can show appreciation for freedom—can preserve and strengthen it—by helping children to understand that they own a share of, and are responsible to help preserve, the nation's parks, monuments and roadside beauties.

We can teach respect for our country's "living room furniture" by making certain that no one detaches trees or plants or natural wonders.

We can teach respect for the good works of our fellow men when we point out, obey, and preserve trail and camp signs.

We can aid in preserving the nation's health by teaching children not to pollute streams, rivers, and lakes.

We can help keep our nation's house in order if the whole family joins in leaving a clean camp.

We can keep our campsites beautiful and maintain camping privileges for all if we make certain that fires and fire-making tools are kept always under control.

We will continue to enjoy the freedoms we find in outdoor recreations if we all, young and old, remember that we are guarding our freedoms when we guard carefully our camps and our camp fires.

Appetites are never sharper, food never tastes better than at mealtime in the great outdoors on a cook-out.

good proportions for livable qualities and dignified appearance.

The site is a peculiar, wedge-shaped slice of land that slims down from a conservative 60-foot frontage to a mere surveyor's minute and 10 inches at the rear. However, the 120-foot length of the lot permitted construction of a well-proportioned house at the wider end.

Stein is employed in Long Beach and was interested in establishing a home that required a minimum of yard and house work. The modest bungalow they bought five years ago seemed suited to their particular desires. Its compact, open-beamed, easy-going qualities seemed ideally suited to its beach-area location. Plenty of windows admit sunlight from all directions, and small side yards seemed to suggest themselves for intimate outdoor dining areas. In short, the little house seemed almost ideal to the Steins who had just arrived in California.

OILED REDWOOD siding combines with stucco for an exterior that presents a completely conservative, modern front to the street. A flat, crushed-rock roof, cantilevered on beams to form a two-foot overhang, characterizes the house. But one of the most interesting exterior features is the way in which the attached car port has been decorated to double as an open-front party area.

One of Stein's brilliant-hued abstract oil murals hangs against the white-stuccoed rear wall of the car port. On another wall an interesting nau-tural effect has been created with a large impressionistic seascape, painted in oils, over which has been hung a huge antiquated verde green anchor. The smooth cement floor is made-to-order for dancing. And, inasmuch as entry to the house requires passing through the car port, an interesting gimmick was employed to set aside, visually, the walkway from the garage floor itself. Separating the two is a long, open planting area, devoted to a low, tropical hedge.

The walkway leads to a small porch off which the door to the house opens to the right. To the left (in back of the sheltering car port) is a tiny Oriental garden located in such close proximity to the house that it is handy for alfresco dining and open-air partying.

THE FRONT DOOR opens to a small hall that serves to connect every room in this exceptionally compact house. To the left is the living room—a relaxed and sunny area that opens itself to three exposures, and overlooks the pie-shaped garden beyond.

Throughout the house are reflections of Stein's fondness of Oriental decor. With this prevailing mood he has combined treasures collected over the years so that the resultant effect is a rather eclectic one—altogether informal, informative and welcoming.

Pure white walls and flat, exposed ceiling beams, also white, set the mood for the living room. Grass green carpet carries the cool garden effect into (Continued on Page 43.)

Pass-through and serving counter shown here were created by Stein, linking kitchen and living room. The counter is fabricated from a birch slab door.

NOW! a hygienic room deodorizer!

Sanitizes
the air
you breathe!

Double-Action WIZARD now fortified with germ-fighting TD-4

ATTACKS GERMS IN AIR AS IT SPRAYS AWAY HOUSEHOLD ODORS!

Guard against infection from disease-spreading germs in the air you breathe. Germ-fighting TD-4 has been added to WIZARD Spray Deodorizer... long used by millions to stop unpleasant household odors.

One touch of the handy push-button and WIZARD's hygienic, odor-killing mist vaporizes in the air. It attacks many invisible germs and viruses... thus helping to protect your family's health by reducing the danger of infection.*

Use double-action WIZARD throughout your home to sanitize the air—in the kitchen, bathroom, sickroom, nursery, everywhere. Make indoors pleasant as all outdoors by choosing either of two delightful scents—fragrant pine or spring bouquet—sold at all leading stores. Insist on push-button WIZARD, the new hygienic room deodorizer.

*When used as directed, WIZARD temporarily reduces the bacteria count in the air... thus reducing the danger of infection by airborne germs.

cities, bearing in their exquisite churches, cobbled streets, delicious regional food and gentle ways, the charm and history of this country.

Acapulco is, truly the "Pearl of the Pacific." There is perhaps no more beautiful spot in the world. It is also very Mexican and very earthy, for all its boundless beauty and breathtaking scenic grandeur. There are several fine new hotels, most notably and luxurious Hotel Pierre Marques, and the unique Club Las Brisas, which features 36 private "cocktail sized" swimming pools, 55 pink and white striped jeeps, a novel location clinging to the sides of 800-foot cliffs, and no tipping.

OTHER SEA COAST resorts offer good fishing and fine

recreation: Mazatlan, Guaymas, Manzanillo, Veracruz, Progreso.

To enter Mexico, on pleasure, the only papers required are a tourist card, available at any Mexican consulate or Mexican Government Tourist Bureau office; and in some cases through the air lines. These are good for six months, one entrance and exit to the country, and cost $3.

Climate varies, but these are the only things to remember. High heels for the woman and ties for the men in Mexico City. Flat shoes and sport shirts anywhere else. A coat or light wrap in the winter for Mexico City is nearly 7,500 feet high, and tends to be chilly. A rain-coat in the summer, for this is the rainy season. Each evening brings a brief downpour. Then the rain is gone and everything is warm and clean.

Purified water is available anywhere. Food in the better hotels and restaurants is completely safe and clean, and most vegetables have been washed in chlorinated water. Most pools are filled with purified water.

To travel pleasantly in Mexico is not "cheap" as many people wrongly assume. But in the long run our neighbors to the south offer the most delightful and diversified vacation in the world at probably the most reasonable overall sum possible, since it is not necessary to travel so far to reach Mexico.

As the natives say, "Como Mexico, no hay dos." There aren't two like Mexico. It is unique.

foreign hotels don't supply it. Don't refer to the people in other countries as natives.

Don't harp on things you find strange, disagreeable or uncomfortable. Don't compare them unfavorably with things back home.

And finally a word of advice from Miss Frances G. Knight, director of the U. S. passport office, in her campaign to eliminate the traditional "criminal mug shot" look of passport photos.

"There is no need for a grim, startled look in your passport picture," she says. "Relax — and smile."

restful camp amid the spruce, jackpine and aspen. They make Nimpo their home from early April to November, then return to the States for the worst winter months.

Best months are those of the summer and early fall.

SEPTEMBER IS IDEAL for some outdoorsmen, inasmuch as the hunting seasons begin. The country is famed for its moose, deer, ducks, geese, grouse and prairie chicken. An Indian guide may be obtained through Duncan's Resort and his motto is "Me take you hunt moose. Get moose, $100. No moose, no pay."

Duncan himself has become an expert guide on smaller game and can send most of his guests in the right direction for ducks, geese, grouse and prairie chicken. It goes beyond saying that he and Marjorie know where the trout are hiding.

An angler may take three limits of trout from Canada into the States. If he has an ice chest, the fish may be taken out fresh. If not, a smoker is available at Nimpo. Smoked trout is becoming extremely popular with many fishermen.

A GOOD HIGHWAY leads north from Bellingham to Sumas, the B. C. border entry point, then 300 miles to Williams Lake through picturesque canyons of the Fraser and Thompson rivers and such historic towns as Cache Creek, Spences Bridge, Clinton and others.

Williams Lake is the jumping-off point for the westward journey, 198 miles to Duncan's Resort on Nimpo. The road is graveled and, at times, in good condition. At others, particularly after heavy rains, it is washboard and rutty and rough on cars and nerves unless driven with discretion.

There's one thing to do when at Williams Lake: Determine to drive 20 or 30 miles an hour to Nimpo instead of 40 or 60. Then settle down in the seat, prepare for some gorgeous views and try to forget the road—and the dust.

Chicken or Ribs...but Barbecued!

Barbecued chicken de luxe, baked stuffed onions and tomatoes, garlic bread and a relish tray—these should set taste buds tingling for a patio party.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

THAT TIME has arrived to polish up the outdoor grill and plan some meals for dining in the sunshine or under the stars. The meals can be just as glamorous as those served in the dining room and much more fun.

Probably the most enthusiastic member of the family will be Father, for the hearty meats and savory sauces that are served from outdoor grills have extra appeal when eaten in the cool breeze and away from the formalities of routine, inside dining. There's something about a gathering under the skies, family and friends enjoying appetizing food, that has won a special place in America's affection.

For those who are just starting to enjoy outdoor cooking and those who want to add to a repertoire of "cook-out" dishes, here are two tried and true recipes. One is for Barbecued Chicken and the other for Stuffed Barbecued Spare Ribs. Each can be prepared in a rotisserie, an oven or on a grill.

Planked Porterhouse Steak

Beef Porterhouse steak, cut 2 inches thick
Salt
Pepper
2 cups cooked spinach, drained
1 cup cooked diced carrots
2 cups hot cooked potatoes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 egg yolks
Salt
Pepper

Set regulator to broil. Place steak on broiler rack. Insert broiler rack and pan so the surface of the steak is 3 inches from the heat. Brown on one side, season and transfer to a heated platter or fireproof platter, placing browned side down. Arrange cooked, seasoned spinach in "nests" around steak and fill with buttered cooked carrots. Prepare Duchess potatoes by beating potatoes with butter or margarine, egg yolks and seasonings. Make a border around other food on the platter by forcing the potatoes through a pastry tube, or by shaping them with a spoon. Place the platter under the broiler until the steak is browned on the second side and the vegetables are heated through. Steaks cut 2 inches thick require 30 to 35 minutes for rare; 35 to 45 for medium done. If the steak is especially thick or if you wish to serve it well-done, partially broil the steak on the second side before adding the vegetables and place them on the platter the last 15 minutes of cooking time. Four servings.

SERVE WITH: Tomato Juice, Parsley Potatoes, Grilled Tomatoes, Assorted Breads, Jellied Gingerale, Fresh Fruit and Cake.

Dorothy Miller IOWA PORK SHOPS' HOSTESS

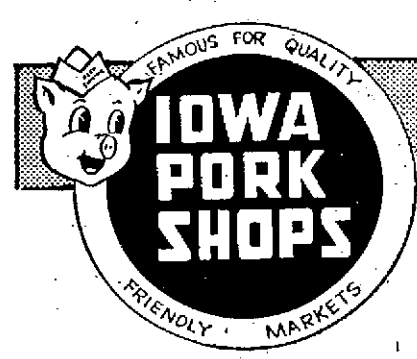

SEA BASS AU GRATIN

This Is Easy to Prepare and Makes a Very Nourishing Main Dish

2 Cups Flaked Sea Bass Fillets (See Note)
1/2 Cup Chopped Green Pepper
2 Tablespoons Butter, Melted
2 Tablespoons Flour
1/2 Teaspoon Salt

Saute green pepper in butter until tender. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add cheese, lemon juice and fish. Place in a well greased casserole. Combine butter and crumbs, sprinkle over casserole. Bake in a hot oven, 400° F. for 15 minutes or until brown. Garnish and serve hot. Serves 6.

NOTE: Place 1 pound Sea Bass Fillets in 1 quart of boiling water and 1 tablespoon of salt. Cover and return to boiling point. Simmer 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Tahitian Hula in Hawaii

The exciting Tahitian hula, once seen, is never to be forgotten. Gyration hips and gesticulating hands tell a story as old as time. In Hawaii, the hands tell the story; in Tahiti it's the rapidly undulating hips. This Polynesian charmer performs her dance on the beach at Waikiki in the shadow of romantic Honolulu.

Tours Folder Ready

If you are contemplating a European tour, you can get a quick once-over of 1958 tours of Europe by studying a "summary" folder of Spring, Summer and Fall escorted tours available, without charge, at Cook's Travel Service or your local agent.

This "Summary" lists sailing dates from New York, Montreal and Quebec, places visited, total number of days and inclusive fares for more than 100 escorted tours of Europe. Fares are given for both steamer and air crossings.

Ranging in duration from a short 26 days, if crossing by air, to as long as 56 days with steamer crossings, the tours listed in this Europe summary folder are priced from $398 to $2,448. The higher fares include minimum-cost first class steamer accommodation, and will run higher if better ship space is chosen.

Itineraries include a choice of Grand Tours, 6 Country, Heart of Europe, Classic, Popular Vacation and Old World

Tours following a circular route thru England, Holland, the Rhineland, Switzerland, Italy and France. All include the World's Fair in Brussels.

If you are looking for a tour to Scandinavia, Germany, Holland, England and France, you may find what you want in a Northern Scenic Tour. Young people of college age can travel as members of several college Vacation Tours. Southerly travel through the Mediterranean is offered as a feature of a series called "Picturesque Tours of Europe."

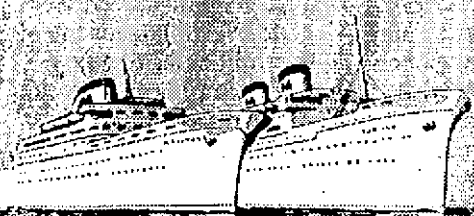

Hotel Tax Goes

Israel's 10 per cent municipal tax on tourist hotel bills has been abolished. Word received by the American Society of Travel Agents states that travelers who have paid for accommodations in advance will receive a refund. The 10 per cent service charge in hotels remains, however.

Berlin Abustle

Berlin is abustle preparing for the Eighth International Film Festival to be held from June 27-July 8, according to the Berlin Tourist Office. Forty nations have indicated that they will send entries, with the deadline for entering still three weeks away. Since it has received one of the three highly-coveted "recommended" ratings for film festivals, the Berlin event will be of exceptionally high quality.

The opening ceremony June 27 will take place in the American Congress Hall in the Tiergarten, with a gala film revue scheduled for the next day at the newly-rebuilt Deutschlandhalle.

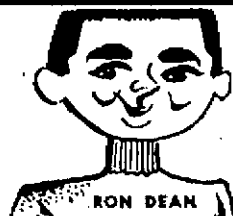

On June 29, the German Film Prizes for 1957 — Germany's Oscars — will be awarded, and that evening there will be another gala program at the Waldbuehne, largest open-air theater in the world.

On July 5 there will be another special program in the Waldbuehne, followed by the Film Ball at the new Funkturn Palais on Berlin's Fair Grounds. Gold and Silver Bears will be awarded by an international film jury on July 8 at the closing ceremony. Feature films, documentaries, cartoons and educational films will be entered, all new productions never shown before at a festival or in any country outside the producing nation.

Passport Ruling

Passport applicants who apply to an authorized clerk of court and establish their identity to his satisfaction no longer need an identifying witness. Information released to the American Society of Travel Agents reveals that personal knowledge of the applicant by the clerk, a driver's license or any other means of identification containing the signature and physical description of the applicant is now sufficient.

Movie Home Not on Tourist Maps

A MOVIE HOME not on the maps.

That's Jungleland at Thousand Oaks on Ventura Blvd. off Hwy. 101, just 32 miles north-west of Hollywood.

Movie animal stars and not movie human stars live in this interesting home.

Here one may see "Dynamite," said to be the only black panther allowed to work on an open movie set with people; the famous racing camels; Satan, tiger star of "Gladiators;" Tusko, impish baby elephant actor.

THE SAVAGE-LOOKING lions who stalked Melvin Koontz in "Daniel in the Lions' Den," make their home here, as do Bonza, star in "Frances Joins the Wacs" and little "Chim," chosen to co-star with Gordon Scott in "Tarzan."

Animals from Jungleland are used in the Tennessee Ernie, Art Linkletter and Queen for a Day programs.

By Neoma Weed

Not only are wild animals used in movie and television jungle scene, but in historical production, circus movies, religious and educational pictures.

BETWEEN TOURS, Mable Stark, considered by many to be the greatest tiger trainer of all time, may be seen here training her pets and giving shows. Her autobiography "Hold That Tiger" is the basis for a movie.

Melvin Koontz may be seen daily in a comic act with lions; Henry Tyndall may be seen with chimpanzees.

Since animals must be trained daily to be kept in condition and taught to perform without paying attention to confusion around them, visitors may see the entire process of training in open areas every day except Monday.

Jungleland is open 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. Sundays the wild animal circus is from 1 to 4:30 p.m., weekdays from 2:30 to 4 p.m. The training period is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. A nominal charge is made.

CHILDREN MAY ride the elephants, and other rides are provided for them. There are plenty of picnic tables and refreshment stands, with ample parking on the grounds.

Jungleland recently changed hands. The new management has increased the area to 80 acres and has added elephants, zebras, a white camel and white peacocks.

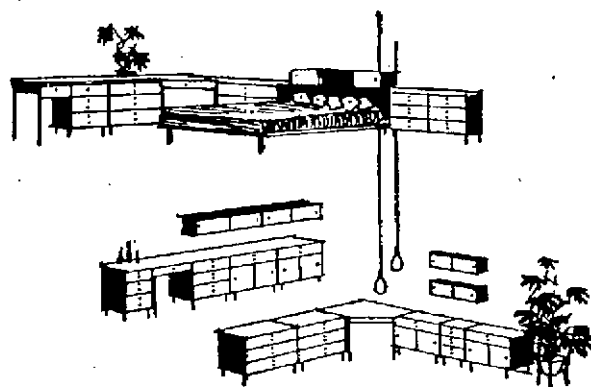

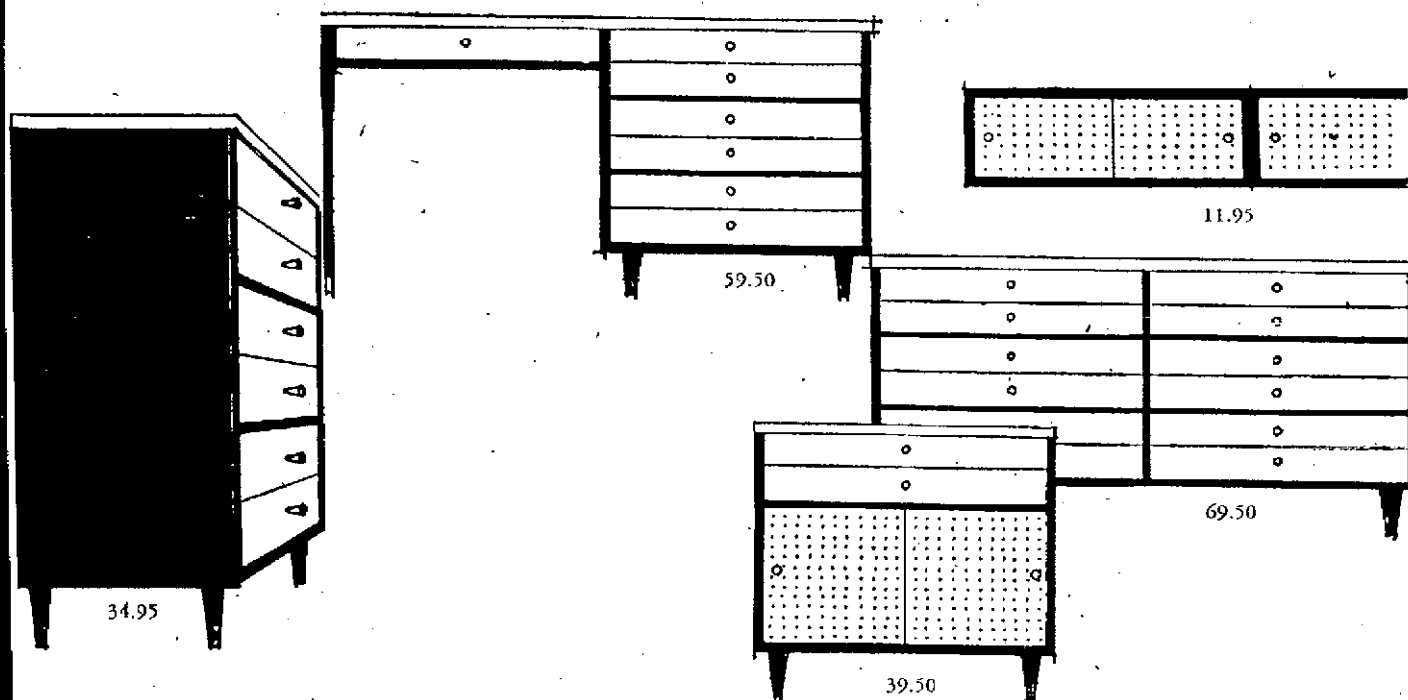

Baby animals are featured for the children. Live music is provided Saturdays and Sundays. An old time calliope brings back nostalgic memories.

VISITORS OFTEN remark about the healthy condition of the animals. They get good care and activities are under the supervision of the American Humane Society.

FULLER'S SPECTACULAR NEW HOUSE PAINT ADDS AT LEAST 2 EXTRA YEARS OF PAINT BEAUTY TO YOUR HOME

Revolutionary new kind of paint for wood! Gives your home a fresh new-painted look for 2 years longer than the finest paint you've ever used! Holds its colors, keeps its gloss for years! Spreads faster, easier than the best of them! Dries hours sooner! And costs no more than ordinary house paint!

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A PAINT LIKE IT BEFORE...

The original formula was developed in 1951.

Fuller chemists, through know-how and continuous research, found that by combining certain new "miracle" materials, they could produce an exterior paint so resistant to wear, so amazingly superior in every way that it made even the finest house paint seem old-fashioned by comparison.

Two of America's largest chemical laboratories tested and confirmed these findings.

FULLER WANTED TO BE SURE

Out into the field went Fuller's men. Homes all over the West were painted with this astounding new kind of paint. As the number of these test-painted homes grew... and today there are hundreds of them... Fuller's chemists watched, tested, compared.

RESULTS WERE PHENOMENAL

Fuller House Paint met every rigorous test of weather and wear... it outperformed the finest house paints.

Today, because of this tremendous 7-year field experience, Fuller can offer you this revolutionary new house paint, without qualification, as THE FINEST HOUSE PAINT YOU CAN BUY.

If you're going to paint... get 2 extra years of beauty for your home... at no extra cost! Get new Fuller House Paint!

W. P. FULLER & CO.

HERE'S HOW NEW FULLER HOUSE PAINT COMPARES WITH THE FINEST PAINT YOU'VE EVER USED

	Finest traditional house paint	New Fuller House Paint
General appearance:	Can resist rigorous Western weather only a few years.	Keeps fresh, new appearance at least 2 years longer than the finest house paint.
Gloss:	Starts to lose glossy appearance after first few months.	Keeps glossy lustre for years.
Colors:	Starts to fade after about 6 months.	Keeps color brightness for years.
White:	Readily stained with rust from nails, screens, gutters, etc.	Cannot be rust stained.
Application:	Goes on fast and easy.	Goes on faster and easier than finest house paint.
Drying:	At least 6 hours; target for dust, leaves, fog, rain.	Dries dust free in 2 hours. Fog or rain won't harm it.

For stucco surfaces where a flat finish is preferred, use famous Ful-Color Exterior Latex Paint. 42 beautiful colors.

and the end product must be appealing, properly prepared and tasty.

This is the formidable task that daily confronts the unsung hero of the kitchen—the fry cook.

It can be a frustrating job. To do it, the white-capped cook must face a rapid-fire series of order-calling sometimes for hours at a stretch, keep his efficiency high and his temper low and have an almost infallible memory.

WHETHER HIS JOB is in a Long Beach restaurant, a Kansas City cafe or a Times Square hotel dining room, the tension, the high speed and the weird vernacular will be about the same.

If he becomes unnerved or "swamped," he is undone.

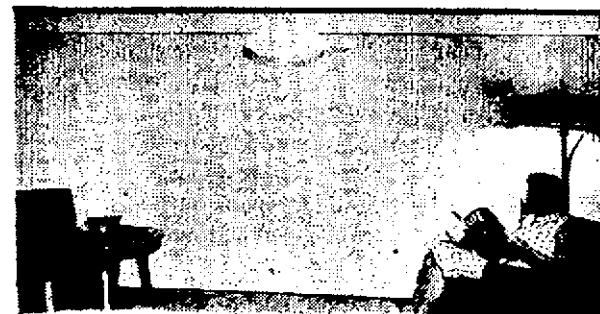

In a big kitchen, there will be a chef, a first and a second cook and a fry cook, plus pantry men (for salads) and various helpers.

The chef, the buyer for the kitchen, makes out the menu each day. The first cook prepares it. The second cook is in charge of the ovens. The chef usually wears the tallest white hat among the kitchen crew.

The fry cook is stationed before a grill, a battery of deep-fry baskets, a broiler and a steam table. Between these and the refrigerators he must keep his movements at a minimum or he'll be swallowed in a swelling tide of orders; he arranges the shrimp, scallops, three or four varieties of cold

Curity* Rib Nipple

(PATENTED)

© T. M. The Kendall Company

Scientifically
designed to fit
baby's mouth—new hollow side ribs provide continuous flow of formula

Here at last is a nipple that significantly reduces air swallowing.

The Curity Rib Nipple is the result of years of development and hundreds upon hundreds of clinical tests.

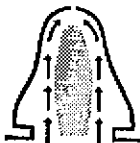

It has been heartily endorsed by obstetricians and pediatricians.

For a Better Baby

Probably the most wonderful thing about this new nipple is the way it helps your baby to be a better baby... the kind baby wants to be.

It helps make finicky feeding a thing of the past... end those long-night vigils.

As you might expect, the Curity Rib Nipple costs slightly more than others (35¢ for 2 nipples or complete nurser). When it comes to your baby, don't you want the very best?

Hollow side ribs make feeding easier because they:

- provide continuous flow despite biting
- fit the mouth, reducing air intake
- permit use of naturally pliable rubber—more like breast feeding

Lois Lawson poses with easy-to-make hose reel.

Build This Hose Reel

By Steve Ellingson

THERE'S one thing that can be said for the American people; they use lots of water, in fact, 250 billion gallons every day.

It takes from two to 20 gallons for a man to shave. To wash the evening dishes takes from five to 50 gallons. It requires 10 gallons of water to produce one gallon of gasoline and 25 gallons for a pound of paper.

But these figures are small when you stop to think of the volume of water used to keep up lawns and to water gardens, shrubs, flowers and things of that kind.

Under the circumstances we have come to the conclusion that a garden hose is a very vital piece of equipment. It needs to be taken care of, not only to preserve the hose itself, but to maintain a neat looking yard.

THE DAISY-LIKE hose reel pictured here with NBC's television actress Lois Lawson is not only good looking and sturdy, but also handy and inexpensive when you build it yourself. It may be fastened on a water pipe, on the wall of your home, on a fence or anywhere else that's convenient for you to store your hose.

This reel is particularly handy because in a matter of seconds you can crank as much as 200 feet of hose on it. That's so much nicer than having the hose lying all over your lawn or flower bed where it kills the grass and flowers and deteriorates in the sun.

BUILDING THE REEL is easy when you use the full-size pattern. You simply trace the pattern on wood, then saw out the parts and finally put them together. To paint it, you merely trace the flower on the wood and paint over the tracings. The pattern tell how to fasten it to a water pipe as well as on the wall. Simple hand tools are all you need.

To obtain the full-size hose reel pattern No. 178 send 50¢ in coin to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Press-Telegram, 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

BOOK REVIEWS

An Editor's Fight for His Life

FREEDOM of the press and the courageous, uphill fight of a dedicated, provincial editor to keep it that way, are the components of "The Northern Light," a fine new novel by A. J. Cronin (Little, Brown, $4).

The scene is England where Henry Page, editor of a small town newspaper once operated by his grandfather, is puzzled when an unscrupulous syndicate dealing with sex and scandal moves in to buy him out. Big trouble starts when he refuses to sell and editor Page finds himself squarely in the middle of the fight of his life for his paper and the good name of his family. But, like Dr. Cronin's principal theme in "The Keys of the Kingdom" and "The Citadel," right succeeds after a desperate struggle.

Even if it were not the June selection of the Literary Guild—Dr. Cronin's sixth book to gain such a distinction—and a Readers Digest Condensed Book for July, "The Northern Light" still would rise high among the best sellers of the year. It is a book to be read, remembered, and read again.

Other new fiction:

"THE AFFAIR" by Hans Koningsberger (Knopf, $3.75): This author with a talent for subjectivity portrays a Dutch student refugee in Switzerland who, determined to have an affair, picks up an attractive young woman artist and does just that. Eventually the young man finds himself deeply in love, but torn by jealousy through knowledge that the girl is a weekend mistress for another man. In this, his first novel, Mr. Koningsberger has succeeded in making his characters and his situations very real.

"THE DAY AFTER THE FOURTH" by Turnley Walker (Appleton - Century - Crofts, $4.50): The old man had built an empire of ranches and cattle, but since his death it had wasted away. About all that is left to bear his mark is his grandson. The townsmen do not realize the two are so much alike until the day after the July 4 parade when the flashy new chief of police tries to arrest the boy for riding off with a girl. Suspense builds and builds to a violently powerful conclusion.

"RECKONING AT YANKEE FLAT" by Will Henry (Random House, $3.50): Henry Plummer, hidden under a front of respectability as a peace officer was the scourge of the Montana mining camps in the 1850s, robbing and murdering wherever he went. William McCandless was a newspaperman sworn to bring him to justice—and he did. But not until Plummer had left a long trail of violence and had stolen the girl McCandless loved. Henry wrote the story as a novel but hewed closely to historical facts; for Henry Plummer was, indeed, one of the West's bad men.

"THE ITALIAN WIFE" by Emyr Humphreys (McGraw-Hill, $3.75): Here's an old triumvirate of love at work again, but this one adds up to an intensely readable drama of human motives. The protagonists, of course, are an immensely wealthy business tycoon, his young second wife, and his 23-year-old son. The author, a producer for BBC television drama in London.

Non-fiction titles:

"THE RACE," photography by Bob Verlin, text by Angelo Angelopolos (Bobbs - Merrill, $10): A photographer-sports reporter team which has covered America's most spectacular automobile race for upwards of 10 years combine talents to present a picture story of that event, the Indianapolis 500 Memorial Day Classic, from the preparation to the postscript. Concentrating their story on the human involvement with the race, they present a drama of brave and skillful men, anticipative, toiling and sweating, hoping, in triumph and in despair. And they do a beautiful job!

"THE MOVEMENT WEST" by E. J. Murphy (Alan Swallow, $4.50): The not-very-well-known part that organized advertising played in the building of the West; how organized advertising helped build San Francisco into a great city of the world after its destruction by earthquake and fire in 1906 (People never went back to Carthage. They never rebuilt Pompeii); how the same has performed numerous general welfare services, including the prevention of many forest fires and improvement of health—all this and more to the credit of advertising is told in this extremely interesting little book. In brief, it shows that advertising goes hand-in-hand with progress in almost any field.

PAPERBACK ORIGINALS (first time published in book form) just out: "The Modern Meat Cookbook" by Jeannette Frank (Dell, 50c); "The Red and the Black," a French classic by Stendhal (Bantam, 75c); "The Art of Barbecue and Outdoor Cookery" by Tested Recipe Institute (Bantam, 50c); "Low-down," a novel of the pop record business by Richard Jessup (Dell, 35c); "The Big Country," a novel of Texas in the 1880s by Donald Hamilton (Dell, 35c); "The Accused," murder and violence by Harold R. Daniels (Dell, 35c); "A History of the United States" by William Miller (Dell, 75c).

Fry-Cook Talk

Steaming through a hot day in the busy kitchen of a thriving restaurant, a fry cook has no time to listen to long orders. His language, therefore, has been shortened into a strange jargon, usually understood only by waiters, waitresses and the fry cook. Here are a few of the terms explained:

86—Item sold out.

Money Bowl — A la carte soup.

D. P. One—Hamburger cut in half.

21 — Two hamburgers and a side order of French fried potatoes.

42—Same as 21, but doubled.

Graveyard Stew—Milk toast.

A. C. Melt—American cheese, melted, sandwich.

Short Stack—Two pancakes.

Short Stack!

meats, the sauces and dressings accordingly.

THE PLANNING may make the difference between success and failure. Too many extra trips between refrigerators and grill and he may be lost.

Before him may be a bicycle-type wheel, on which order slips are placed in their proper sequence—a technique that may avoid angering a customer by bypassing him.

And the job can be frustrating. I know; I'm a fry cook.

Once I was so busy with a grill full of steaks and chops and about 30 hamburgers that I unwittingly assembled one 'burger without the crucial component. The customer, engrossed in conversation, ate the whole thing before he noticed the oversight. I told him we couldn't make any money by putting meat in the hamburgers and he laughed. Needless to say, all mistakes don't end in laughs.

SOMETIMES AN IDEA can help an overloaded memory. In a crowded restaurant recently, four girls were calling out orders to the fry cook at a terrifying pace. He filled the orders seemingly without difficulty and his composure remained serene in spite of it all. I couldn't wait to congratulate him on his professional prowess.

When I went behind the counter to shake the hand of a fry cook extraordinaire, there he was with a handful of poker chips. When an order came for "two beef," he would toss out two blues. For "one pork" he would flip a white; for "one baked ham" he would throw a red. He wasn't remembering a thing.

WORKING FRANTICALLY

with food does not always do the best things to an appetite. Not long ago, doctors diagnosed the death of a man as malnutrition. His job? A fry cook. Possibly he had been surrounded with food and without a spare moment to eat. Probably when he was off shift he had had more than enough of the continuous aroma of food.

Play Pen for Parakeets

By Charlie Jackson

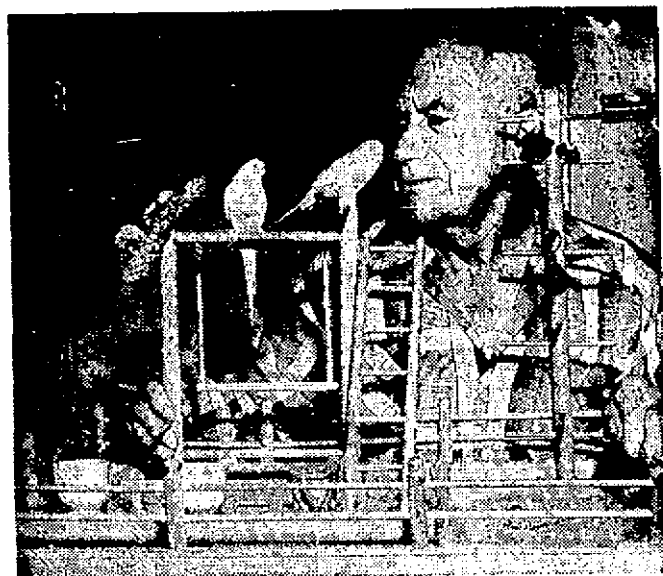

FREE AS A BIRD is a phrase that has been given new meaning for parakeet owners by George E. Ringler of 637 1/2 Atlantic Ave.

Ringler conceived the idea for a parakeet play pen a couple of years ago, and has made half a dozen of them since for friends.

"Birds are easier to train when they have more freedom," Ringler says. "They show off to better advantage, and I think they have more fun out in the open."

A CABINET MAKER for 52 years, now retired, Ringler

makes the pens mostly by hand, following no set pattern. Made to install on a stand or table (a folding snack tray will do), a typical parakeet play pen measures 18 inches wide by 24 inches long, and is constructed of smooth, unfinished maple,

George Ringler pals around with two parakeets as the birds enjoy a play pen which Ringler devised, made.

A two-inch baseboard around the edge of the pen prevents feed from falling on the floor. This base board also supports 10 three-inch posts, each pair connected by two quarter-inch dowels. Spaced about six inches apart, posts are set at each corner, with center posts on each short side and two posts along each longer side. This "fence" gives the play pen a corral-like appearance.

A movable ladder leads from the floor to the bottom of the pen. Two perches, one with several levels, can be reached by a similar ladder. A feeding area, connected by dowels to the two perches, lifts out for ease in cleaning. Bells, toys and gadgets can be added as desired.

RINGLER ESTIMATES such a pen costs $15 to build, but smaller pens, using other woods, can be built for much less cost. Non-cabinet makers may do less dowsing, or use either nails or glue, instead of both, as Ringler does.

Whatever woods are used, they should be left unfinished, as parakeets eat paint, Redwood, Ringler warns, is poisonous to parakeets.

Ship Travel Up

The first quarter of 1958 saw a 23 per cent increase in transatlantic steamship traffic over 1957, according to information released to the American Society of Travel Agents by the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Conference. The figure — representing an additional 10,000 passengers — also represents a 13 per cent plus over the same period for 1956. Atlantic ship travel from Canada to Europe during the same three months was up 20 per cent. Prospects for the balance of the year are hopeful, too, with advance bookings as good or better than the 27-year record set last year.

Skinny Back Yard

the inside of the house mint-and-white, full-length draperies of striped cotton reflect the same tone. Through the windows at the back of the living room one may enjoy the beauty of the tiny garden beyond. Pressing close to the window is a gnarled old tree from which trail vivid pink geraniums in hanging baskets of redwood. Before the windows stands a diminutive, gate-leg dining table that folds itself away in the hours between dinner parties.

IN ANOTHER AREA of the room is a conversational grouping composed of a contemporary daybed-sofa, peel chairs and an interesting old chest that doubles as an accomodating cocktail table. Over the armless sofa (upholstered in eucalyptus green and lurex tweed) hangs an intriguing arrangement of miscellaneous trivia Stein has gathered throughout the Orient. Six handsome, delicately scaled Japanese lithographs in narrow bamboo frames are flanked by a pair of black-iron candle sconces hung one over the other; completing the group is a conversation-provoking cane of carved wood, originating in the Philippines. Over the sofa, accessorized with multi-colored velvet and harlequin-print pillows, hangs a Japanese parchment lantern.

Adjacent to the sofa is a tiny table with ceramic tile top holding an iron hibachi. Sitting atop the squat little stove is an equally squat iron tea kettle of Chinese derivation. And there—on the hibachi and right in the living room—tea is brewed... a hospitable ritual when company calls.

High windows along the south wall of the living room are hung with split-bamboo, roller-type blinds. Reed-like shafts of southern sunlight slant down on a long bench placed against this wall. On the bench stands a natural birch, double cane-doored Hi-Fi cabinet. For the sake of visual texture, this long south wall was papered in an off-white, brick-patterned wallpaper, against which art objects arranged on the low bench assume especially interesting stature. An unusual three-tiered display table also stands against this wall, displaying three Japanese dolls, the uppermost an exquisite figure of a Geisha dancer garbed in traditional attire. This—one of Stein's most valued objects—was sent to him recently by a family in Japan.

Against another wall, separating the kitchen from the living room, stands a simple, contemporary birch chest. On it is a trio of pale green, antique apothecary bottles; and on the wall over the chest hangs an antique bullseye mirror dating from 1851.

Over the pass-through hangs an old but decorative tinware lantern. Actually, this serving counter is a rather recent addition to the house. Stein, determined to effect a greater openness between the two rooms, partially removed a wall and installed the counter which he contrived from a slab of birch. Then to increase the feeling of unity, the brick paper was extended right into the kitchen area without interruption from the living room. With it, pale walls are combined in the preparation area.

A charcoal and pink bath features a tropical motif carried out in dramatic wallpaper. The adjacent bedroom is furnished to double as a small study for Stein. Birch furniture, a lime green carpet and a bedspread of terra cotta, cocoa and beige set the scene. Hand-blocked wallpaper patterned with white, terra cotta and black Chinese lanterns on a chocolate background provides the Oriental motif on one wall. Mrs. Stein's bedroom, as feminine as the former is masculine, is decorated in shell pink and grey.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the origin and coat-of-arms of BAILEY — C.B., F.B., Long Beach; L.B., Anaheim.

C.B., L.B., F.B.: The English and Scotch surnames Bailey, Baylies and Bailly were handed down from the French occupational title "Bailli" meaning a caretaker or steward of a nobleman's properties. Early references show Henry Le Baillie in the Writs of Parliament, 1307. The Bailey shield is ermine-covered, with three black bars across the center. William Bailey, born in England in the early 1600's, settled in Rhode Island before 1669.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning and genealogy on VIVIANO and VIVIAN. — C.V., Lakewood; C.T.V., Harbor City.

C.V., C.T.V.: VIVIANO and VIVIAN are derived from the ancient Latin word "vividus" meaning "the lively one." The Viviano lineage have an Italian background. In some cases Vivian is shortened from this name. The family coat-of-arms has a golden sun on a silver stripe across the upper part of a blue shield. In addition to an Italian origin, the surname may be English. Records show John Vivian of London in 1292. The coat-of-arms of the Vivians of England has a blue chevron between three gold rings and three lion heads on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of ZUFELT. — Mrs. G.B., Long Beach.

MRS. G.B.: Zufelt is a German name describing the locality where the family once lived. In the old spelling "Zu-Feld" it meant "at the field." The English surname Atfield originated in the same way. No coat-of-arms is available for the Zufelts.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you give data on the surnames SWEET, SWETT and SWETS. — A.S., H.S., Bellflower; H.M.S., T.S., Long Beach.

SWEET, SWETT and SWETS originated in an early Saxon-English baptismal name "Swete" for "the pleasing, enjoyable man." Walter Swete lived in Somerset, England in 1327. The family coat-of-arms has two gold chevrons under two gold stars, with a gold rose below the chevrons. These emblems are on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on ARCHIBALD — C.M.A., Long Beach.

C.M.A.: The baptismal name Archibald meaning "noble and bold" became an English and Scotch surname in the 13th century. Richard Archibald who lived in 1451 was among the ancestry. The coat-of-arms of the Archibalds of Scotland has three red stars and three silver crescents on a diagonal blue stripe across a silver shield. The family motto "Ditat servata fides" means "Faith, kept, enriches."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of RARICK. — MRS. M.W., Long Beach.

MRS. M.W.: RARICK is taken from the Irish Gaelic clan name MacRiadaic meaning "Sons of the famous ruler." The early Erse name was modernized to Magrerrick, Rorick and Rarick. The lineage originated in County Westmeath, Ireland. No coat-of-arms is listed for this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would appreciate the analysis of WARD. — B.O., C.W., D.W., Long Beach.

B.O., C.W., D.W.: WARD was the term for a warden or keeper of a castle in medieval England. The "Ward" was the chief guard of a manorial residence in the days when there was no protection from the government against marauders. The Ward coat-of-arms has a gold cross with a fleur-de-lis at the end of each arm on a blue shield. The family motto "Sub cruce salus" translates as "Salvation by way of the Cross." The primary family ancestor in America was John Ward of Harverhill, Suffolk, England who came to Massachusetts in 1640. The city of Haverhill, Mass., was named after his English home.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., for the origin and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

He Dudes Up Film Cowpokes

By James Bacon
Associated Press Writer

A BROOKLYN-BORN tailor who once had a thriving business making G-strings for burlesque queens has hit the sartorial bigtime by designing resplendent costumes for movie cowboys.

He goes by the single name of Nudie which he says is his real surname. He declines to give his first name.

Film cowpokes pay more for their clothes than other stars. The average outlay for a suit is $750. Nudie once concocted a 24-carat gold lame suit for Elvis Presley that cost the rock 'n' roll singer $10,000.

"But that doesn't count," he says, "Elvis is not a cowboy." He numbers Roy Rogers, Gene Autry, Rex Allen and oilman Glenn McCarthy among his customers, but none of them is as flamboyant as Nudie.

His specially-fitted car draws stares even in Texas, where he's often asked to appear in parades. The seats are upholstered in unborn calfskin. Door handles are six shooters. Carvings of longhorn steers adorn the instrument panel instead of the usual chrome. Nudie says the car, a popular price model, cost $11,000 when he was finished with it.

NUDIE WAS BORN about 56 years ago, and is the son of a bootmaker who taught him how to stitch two pieces of material together.

Nudie tried other things first. After a spell as a prizefighter and a movie extra, he turned to sewing and by 1926 he was whipping up costumes for screen stars like Gloria Swanson. It did not satisfy his inner craving.

"I always yearned to be a cowboy," he said. "They are the real, down-to-earth people of this business." His own business soon failed and there followed a bleak period when "everything I touched went broke."

HE DRIFTED BACK to New York after a side trip to Mankato, Minn., where he met his future wife. Next came a job of sewing brassieres for a garment company. Nudie's G-string business was an outgrowth of this.

But he still longed for the West, and in 1940 moved to Los Angeles. A tailor shop he started folded. About 10 years ago, he heard that Tex Williams was organizing a western band.

"I had always been interested in anything western so I went after the contract to make the costumes," he said.

At the time, Nudie lacked the $150 to buy a sewing machine and even Tex was broke. This was just before Tex hit with his record of "Smoke That Cigarette."

"But Tex did have a horse and saddle that we auctioned off for $150. That got the sewing machine and the woolen goods came on credit."

THE BUSINESS got off to a bad start — he made the pants too long for his first customer.

"I hired a fitter who got drunk during the fittings. After I sewed up the costumes, I found out I not only made the pants too long but also too short. The first pair came only to the man's navel. On the next the pants came up to his neck."

Nudie doesn't know whether it was the costumes or not, but Tex soon was drawing 2,500 fans instead of the 250 or 300 expected.

"Tex paid me for the costumes and I was in the western business for good."

Cowboys have certain trademarks in their clothes. Rex Allen has an Indian motif while Roy Rogers wears lots of fringe. Autry's suits are stitched with butterflies and flowers. No two stars have the same designs.

Those three along with Williams, are among the best dressed cowboys, says Nudie.

Nudie's biggest customer is Andy Devine. He's a six horse size — it takes skins from six horses to make a jacket and pants for him.

PET PARADE

Make Friends in the Forest

By Eleanor Avery Price

MOST vacationists who go camping are intrigued by the chatter and the acrobatics of squirrels and their cleverness in devising ways to go wherever they wish. One is fascinated, also, by the perky question-mark tail of the lively chipmunk, its impudent waggle, and its high-pitched inquisitive "talk." And if there is a deer nearby, the vacationer usually leaps for his camera because this creature is one of the most beautiful of all wild animals.

Should you want to make temporary pets of these forest inhabitants, let your No. 1 rule be: Do not try actually to own them. The thrill of seeing these animals at close range and the joy, perhaps, of having them eat out of your hand is enough reward for your patience and quietness and the food you will need to offer in order to win their confidence.

SINCE SQUIRRELS have two litters of babies each year there are usually plenty of them around a camping area, so long as domestic pets do not frighten them or campers do not molest them.

To tame a squirrel, sit very still in a place you know it frequents. With no jerky motions, roll a nut or fruit pit a few feet away from you. Before long the squirrel may come up and take grain and nuts from your hand. Your forest pet may even burrow into your pocket for food. Name the little creature and speak gently to it.

Squirrels like suet so well that they will snatch a whole lump and carry it away. Attach a wire soap dish to a tree base and keep suet in that so the animals will stay to eat instead of running away with your offering.

TO TAME A CHIPMUNK, put nuts, grain and fruit pits on the ground 20 feet from where you plan to sit. Each time you feed the little rodent place the food closer to you. Make no noise or sudden motion. If the chipmunk eventually eats out of your hand, do not catch him. He turns into a ball of terror in the prison of your palm and fingers, and will bite. With patience, however, you can get the chipmunk to take food from between your lips when you are reclining.

Deer love salt licks, hay, grain, bread, watermelon, and most any food. (No banana peels!) Put offerings out regularly in early morning and early evening, then watch from a distance. Shorten the distance each day. In time the deer will take food from your hand, and if you eat outside, he will help himself from your table in no time at all! In fact, you will need to shoo him away. Do this carefully, however, for the deer is quick and agile and may strike out with his front hoofs.

IF BIRDS CHIRP around your camp, make a special feeding and watering place for them too high for deer and unavailable to squirrels and chipmunks. Wild creatures eat what they find and are not thieves when they take food meant for another. Feed birds fruit, berries, grain, nuts, bread crumbs, suet, peanut butter and similar tidbits.

Take along a bird call available at pet stores to attract birds if you wish many to come to your camp.

PRACTICE MATCH: San Pedro Obedience Training Club, May 24, at 325 Neptune, Wilmington. Entries taken from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fee $1; with additional class 50 cents.

ENTRIES WITH FEES for Pasadena Kennel Club dog show and obedience trial, set for June 1, Brookside Park, must reach Jack Bradshaw by noon, May 19.

At Fishing Bridge, Yellowstone, proud dad snaps picture to show for years . . . his boys' first fishing try.

By the Shutterbug

COME next winter, what will be left of this summer's happy vacation hours? Just memories, you say? Well, you're right — that is, you are if you didn't take a camera along.

And that raises a good question: What to take along for photo treatment of your vacation?

The answer is "that depends"

. . . depends upon what kind of camera record you want to make.

Perhaps just a few choice shots will satisfy, conjuring up a whole store of memory pictures. Most ordinary cameras will do this trick; with, perhaps, a filter or two and flash attachment.

Perhaps you are going hunting for some real fine photo art — something you might want to use commercially or in a contest. Some such hunter-lensmen go well equipped with gadgets, fine cameras, sets of lenses, light meters, color film, black-and-white film, film of many speeds, etc., etc. Others just lug a long a big old camera of ancient vintage, but with a good lens, perhaps a light meter and a filter or two and film. They'll wait out the light until it's right, then shoot. These are the oldtime "pros" and they'll beat you youngsters every time, if you don't watch out.

CAMERA ANGLES

PERHAPS YOU JUST want a snapshot record of where you are going and who is along. Anything from a simple box camera to the most expensive domestic or foreign imports will do here — any camera will serve for such casual shooting.

Perhaps you are after color slides and a story of a trip to the Tetons, to Hawaii, Europe, the Caribbean — then be sure you have the type of film you need and a good lens in your camera. Your light meter will be a help, but don't count too much on the readings in say, Hawaii, where the light will shift so fast your readings will change before you can snap the shutter — all because of the great, and beautiful, clouds that roll across the sky and alter the sunlight. You'll either have to wait out the light or use a general setting that will allow in-between shooting.

Perhaps you are just a born gadgeteer — in that case, no use to tell you what to take; you're going to take along everything you've got in the camera line, use less than a fourth of it — and, perhaps, buy more before you get home!

PERHAPS YOUR PICTURE taking will be movies. Be sure your equipment is checked over and in good order before you leave. Again, plenty of film if you are heading off the beaten track. And a little still camera is a handy auxiliary to have along.

Whatever the vacation, a minimum list for your camera includes plenty of film, a light meter, a filter or two to cut haze or for cloud effects, a tripod if you are going in for scenes or shots with slow film or natural light, a gadget bag of no more than necessary size. Travel as light as you can and still do the desired job.

A dark bag and holders are necessary if you are heading into back country and are using cut film that must be loaded.

YOUR CAMERA DEALER can help you select the items you want. He'll be glad to answer questions.

Whether you are carrying simple or complicated equipment, be sure you are prepared in advance; don't wait until you get there to figure out the routine mechanics — save some time for yourself to see the sights. Don't be constantly with an eye to the lens and have to get home before you can see what you saw.

Remember that heat is the enemy of cameras and film. Don't leave them in glove compartments of cars or in bright sunlight. You risk damage if you do.

And remember, too, to process film — particularly color film — as soon as possible after exposure. Many a good shot has been spoiled by long delay in processing.

Now, go shoot that vacation trip . . . and have fun!

EASTMAN ANNO UNCES publication of a new booklet containing data needed to select the proper 16mm Kodak movie film for every type of job. It answers the need for this type of information of the professional who makes movies for industry, science, sports, and education as well as the amateur who makes movies solely for home-use. The booklet, "16mm Kodak Movie Films — Data and Selection," tells when and why to use reversal or negative type film, color or black-and-white movie film, and provides advice on loading, film storage, processing, duplicating, and the use of magnetic sound coating. Copies of the booklet may be obtained without charge from Eastman Kodak Co., Sales

See the Heavenly New Vertical venetians

Revolutionary New "DOUBLE ARC" Slats Make All the Difference

Now you can have vertical venetians that look and operate just like draw draperies . . . with all the advantages of venetians, besides! With the new double-arc slats, Eastern's Star has a flowing "one-piece" appearance when closed . . . looks for all the world like the luxurious folds of fine draperies. It opens and closes as a unit, too.

What's more, Eastern's Star verticals are so sturdy they don't need tapes or bottom tracks. And to add to their "drapery-like look," they feature a magnificent textured finish and are available in a galaxy of lovely colors.

Plus all these advantages!

- ★ Complete control of ventilation, light, view and privacy. Perfected mechanism of turn cord assures even turning of slats. When they are wide open, you have a far clearer view through fewer, wider, stronger slats.
- ★ Full closure of slats in either direction. The double arc slats don't just overlap . . . they interlock to lock out light, and to give wall-like privacy when used as room dividers.

Annuals Fill Flower Season Gaps

By Joe Littlefield

THERE ARE annuals galore to plant for summer color and cut flowers. Two of many others that are fairly quick blooming are petunias and zinnias. In fact, if there was only enough space in your sunny flower bed to accommodate a few annuals, tall and low, zinnias and petunias might furnish you all the combinations of colors you would desire.

Zinnias furnish bright warm colors, the petunias add some colors of their own, plus shades of blues which zinnias lack. Tall zinnias like the dahlia flowered, shaggy cactus, or the somewhat tall pompons are planted at the back part of the flower bed, petunias in front of them.

In addition to these two colorful annuals, asters, African marigolds, and French marigolds, and several others, add their share of color and lovely flowers.

 Northland daisies are chrysanthemums that bear single, daisy-like flowers. Grow them among other perennials.

SHADE GARDENS, too, can be color pepped up for the summer by planting some coleus, impatiens, torenia, mimulus, and bedding begonias.

When camellias finish blooming, there's a lack of shade loving shrub-like plants that bloom all summer and fall. This color need is met when you plant fuchsias in between and in front of camellias. Should you live in a hot, dry area, selection of fuchsias for this purpose becomes somewhat limited. However, there are some varieties that stand lots more heat and dryness than others. Some of the fuchsias that take these conditions are Mephisto, Cardinal, Checkerboard, Glendale, and perhaps several others your local nurseryman may recommend.

You'll help these shade plants grow better by providing a loose loamy soil. Work some compost soil, peat moss, or leaf mold, into the soil before setting out the plants.

While planting annuals, don't overlook perennials. Especially adding more chrysanthemums to your collection of these welcome fall and early winter blooming plants. Two of the many different types of mums that aren't as generally known as the hardy, exhibition, spoon, spider, and pompons, are the Northland daisies and the Cushion mums. These two are earlier blooming than most of the other types.

IN ADDITION, they are lower growing. Cushion mum stays low, to about a foot, has smaller, pompon-like flowers. Makes an interesting edging planting bordering a lawn, rose bed, flower bed, or planted in front of taller plants or shrubs.

Northland daisy grows about foot and a half tall. The single flowers are attractive. Top of foliage is glossy, different from the other types of mum leafage. Tuck the northland daisies in among other perennials, or in groups planted in the annual bed.

ANOTHER KIND of garden planting one may do at such times is redoing an old lawn, putting in a new grass or dichondra lawn. Weather still should be cool for a number of weeks. Seeds sprout fairly fast, but grass grows slower, encouraging a deeper root development. Lawns don't need quite as much watering as they will later, when new lawns are put in during the hot weather.

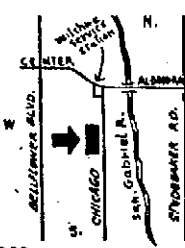

Dichondra grows much quicker in warm to hot weather, but doesn't grow together as fast, as do grass lawns.

Some folk can't bear to hear the name Bermuda grass, also called devil grass. That may be due to their trying to eradicate Bermuda from grass or dichondra lawns. Perhaps it gets its name devil grass because it is devilishly hard to eliminate, particularly from grass lawns. In dichondra lawns, that's a different story. Your nurseryman has a product which kills out devil grass in dichondra lawns, but not for grass lawns, because the material also kills the grass lawn.

New Lilac for Western Gardens

For those who yearn for the old-fashioned lilac of the East, new Lavender Lady lilac grows well in the West.

By Walter Finch

ALL western greenthumbers, at some time, have yearned for the big blooms and heady fragrance of eastern dooryard lilacs. But the wonderful old-fashioned lilacs sulked in the mild parts of the West. Not enough chilling winter temperatures and therefore the folks who planted them enjoyed only runty little spikes.

Today that's all changed—thanks to the wizardry of Dr. Walter Lammerts, America's premier hybridist. The exciting new Lavender Lady Lilac, now being introduced to the garden public, yields clusters normally 6 to 8 inches long and about 6 to 8 inches wide. Individual blooms range up to 3 inches wide.

The lilac, which has been tested for seven years in different parts of California, sometimes develops even bigger flower trusses. There are records of them running up to 10 inches long and wide.

HERE IS THE background: In 1942 Dr. Lammerts was given the best of the lilac seeds which the late Walter Clarke of San Jose had grown. Clarke had spent over 20 years selecting and re-selecting lilac strains that offered good blooming promise under mild winter conditions.

Dr. Lammert's work, in turn, was just beginning. Back to UCLA, where he grew the seeds, then over to Descanso Gardens at La Canada where they were matured and observed, and finally all but a few were discarded.

The remaining lilacs were then crossed and re-crossed, brought into bloom, and "rogued" again. More tests followed and Lavender Lady here won her laurels. By the early Fifties she had proven herself and earned a United States plant patent.

Now, the big-bloomed lilac with the exciting lavender tones is ready for the public.

GROWING FACTS: Lavender Lady grows easily. A fertile, well-drained soil in a sunny spot is best. The soil should be slightly alkaline. Treat the insides of the planting holes with dieltrin granules to stop soil pests.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week

As the weather warms up, the bug population in your garden will multiply with the same speed that your plants grow. This is the time to start an effective pest control program. Both garden insects and plant diseases should be sprayed or dusted once every 10 to 14 days.

During unexpected hot spells, your fuchsias will react favorably to a cold water shower. At night, when you are asleep, the so-called "nocturnal" prowlers—slugs, snails and their associates—are undoubtedly on a rampage in your garden, devouring choice morsels of tender growth. These pests are easy to eradicate with modern pellets.

Junipers Are Garden Handy Andys

By Bob Gilmore

JUNIPERS take a variety of forms and there is a juniper for almost every garden purpose. They range in height from 20-inch specimens used as ground covers to the upright varieties that may grow to 15 feet at maturity. One of the most desirable features of the juniper is its ability to look well even when subjected to persistent abuse and given a minimum of care.

Junipers belong to the pine family and during ancient times the genus name of juniperus was believed to indicate a plant that was "forever young." Even modern-day junipers bear out this interpretation for the oldest specimens have a young and healthy look. There are a large number of separate varieties although the average nurseryman stocks only about five or six types.

PRACTICALLY ALL varieties of the commercially available junipers thrive to perfection in this area. The only possible exception is the shore juniper, which cannot tolerate hot, desertlike conditions. The best known junipers range in foliage tone from gray-green to blue-green, although some of the Savin junipers are almost black-green.

The creeping junipers are of course recommended for ground-cover purposes and all of these prefer an open exposure and plenty of sun. The better varieties in this group will remain under 2 feet, although all respond favorably to pruning. Some of these produce both scale-like and needle-like foliage on the same plant.

The upright-growing forms may be employed toward the rear of borders, as dividers and for screening purposes. These junipers range in height from about 8 to 15 feet. Many make massive-sized shrubs at maturity. One of the most notable in this group is Pfitzer's juniper, which has been grown in this area for many years. It is fast-growing and produces gray-green foliage. Some varieties have greenish-yellow leaves.

ONE OF THE MOST popular spreading varieties for Southern California is Juniperus sabina tamarix. Because of its ground-hugging appearance nurserymen refer to it as a prostrate-growing type. It seldom grows higher than 18 or 20 inches, although in time it may attain a lateral spread of close to 6 feet.

Entirely different in appearance is the narrow Irish juniper recognized botanically as Juniperus communis hibernica fastigiata. This should be used where height, rather than width, is desired. The plant grows to about 7 feet but seldom exceeds 20 or 22 inches across. It is at its best in either full sun or part shade.

One of the more novel varieties is Juniperus chinensis twisted, its name being due to the twisted appearance of the plant. This is a compact-growing, semi-dwarf variety seldom going beyond a height of 7 to 8 feet.

Water Them Right!

Some hot summer evening you may have an urge to give your garden a sprinkling. Well, control that urge. The light sprinkling that seems to cool things off really does the plants you love no good.

All plants must be watered to the very limit of root growth.

If you desire large, colorful blossoms and beautiful green foliage, this is the time to enhance your fertilization program with some of the much-needed mineral elements which are either lacking in our soil or locked up because of high degree of alkalinity.

The commercial fertilizers you use at this time of year give your plants an incentive to start to grow but you must fortify the soil for the long season ahead with the things your plants are going to need if they are to continue to be healthy throughout the summer. I suggest that you select a product containing these mineral elements and use it in your soil now. It is such a simple process to give these things to your soil, requiring no great amount of labor, and assuring you of a successful garden.

BOAT TALK

They Fly Over Water

By Bob Ruskauff

ONE THING which hasn't been discussed in this column—and it rates big in a now-vast sport (boating, y'know) — and that is water skiing.

Water skiing at its best is considerable of an art and this was forcibly brought home the other day in announcement of a new honor won by one of the greatest in the nation and a resident of Long Beach.

For her splendid performance at San Diego last year, Vicki Van Hook, blonde, comely and talented daughter of Bev and Yvonne Van Hook, 4157 Gardena Ave., was acclaimed the national junior girls water ski champion.

Now, Vicki, 14, has just been awarded for her feat a $500 one-year college scholarship from the Kiekhaefer Corp. (A Winter Haven, Fla., boy, Roger Ray, won a similar honor.)

THE AWARD is one of a scholarship series set up by the company to help deserving young people who have won honors in fields of marine sport, to help finance their education.

Two previous winners have been Craig Dewald, young, outboard star of Reading, Pa., and John Ross, blind water skier from Minneapolis, Minn.

So, in the water ski sport, how great rates Vicki's honor?

Look at it this way: At the moment in the U.S. there are 3.5 million people who water ski and, according to Jim Rusling, the U.S. senior ski king (whom we met as head of the troupe performing at Sunshine Springs, Fla., last October), there are more than two million additional now learning the art.

VICKI IS, incidentally one of at least two Long Beach lasses who are slightly terrific on these galloping shivers. Another, Martha Ann Williams, has won a scad of honors. And, let's face it, the gals are also terrific rivals.

There are no flies for national honors on Micky Ambury of Orange, whose dad (Fred) taught him the tricks; nor on Chuckie Stearns of Bellflower. Nor several other local lights.

Cmdr. Bud Dansby of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club has, in fact, his hands full of talent.

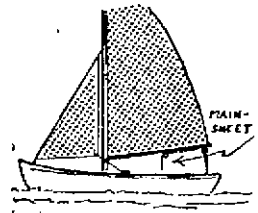

It's a great sport. But as one who fell off one of the things a time or two while covering that big "screwball" race of the 1930s, from Avalon to Hermosa Beach:

Whatever happened to aquaplanes?

BOAT HOOKS: The Al A. Adams and Son Challenge Trophy race off Balboa; Newport Harbor YC's 1958 opening program; an 80-mile stock outboard marathon at Blythe; inboard action at Bakersfield; these are the highlights on today's marine sports bill in the Southland.

THE MAINSHEET

Never make the mainsheet fast in any small sailboat. This is bad practice because it may be necessary to slacken the sheet quickly if you run into a hard puff. If there is danger of capsizing, ease the mainsheet and put the tiller over a little to leeward.

BOB LEMON

Caricature by Milt Reppert

Patrons are Having a Ball

ALTHOUGH Bob Lemon is now associated with the management of Ricart's, 4363 Atlantic Ave., the hostesses don't shout "Play ball!" across the dining room and the waiters definitely don't pitch dishes at the patrons.

An elegantly-designed restaurant, Ricart's has been noted for years for its quiet dining atmosphere. In recent weeks, ever since Bob's new post was announced, that atmosphere has been heady with discussions of fast balls, sliders, curves, high flies, pop-outs and all the other language of baseball. Though Bob so far hasn't been able to spend too much time at the restaurant, the customers (especially Cleveland Indians' fans) have had a ball chatting about his remarkable pitching career (207 games won so far in the majors) and making predictions of where his team will wind up this year in the standings.

WHILE ALL this talk has been going on, the customers have also been enjoying the superb cuisine put out by Ricart's new owner, Virgil Heckelmann. The quality of the restaurant's famed prime ribs of beef au jus, served from a copper cart, has never been better. The regular cut—a generous, tasty masterpiece—is $3.75. The gargantuan Jim Brady cut is $4.95. Both are served with chilled tray of appetizers, choice of soup or a magnificent tossed green salad with croissants, chopped eggs and choice of dressing, choice of potatoes, hot fresh garlic cheesebread, beverage and after-dinner mints.

Ricart's steaks are handsome and delicious, ranging from the charcoal-broiled New York cut to filets, top sirloins and tenderloins. A new steak item is the lady's top sirloin for $3. Among the many other entrees are these, all served with the elaborate complete dinner: marvelous chopped sirloin steak, $2.25; broiled beef sirloin en brochette, $2.75; flaming shish kabab, $3.25; broiled whole baby lobster, $3.50; Catalina swordfish steak, $2.25; and glazed Long Island duckling, $2.50. Also very popular is the $2.50 broiled tenderloin steak sandwich.

Cabinet member Folsom looked like this (l.) at 10. R.: Miss Lila today, still working with growing things.

I'll always remember...

A teacher named Lila

by MARION B. FOLSOM U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

The author today

I was 10 and in the fourth grade in McRae, Ga. My teacher was Miss Lila Windsor, an important person in our community. We admired her and looked up to her with respect. Most of the adults in McRae today passed through her class during her 38 years of teaching. I'm sure they never will forget her, any more than I will. For she must have wielded a great influence on their lives — as she did on mine.

To me Miss Lila is Exhibit A of top-quality teaching. She had the talent of stimulating a desire in her pupils to learn. Whether the subject was geography, reading, spelling or arithmetic, she communicated her own enthusiasm, her lively interest.

When she spoke to you, in encouragement or occasionally in reproof, you knew she was genuinely interested in you and your welfare. She wanted her pupils to do their best. And she made them want to do their best.

It happened my own particular strong point was arithmetic. Miss Lila fostered and encouraged my interest. Soon her encouragement paid off in a practical way: I found I could help in my father's general store, where I worked after school, by taking inventory. I would list the price of items, then multiply the price by the number of items in stock.

There was a double benefit, for this also gave me practice for my arithmetic in school. Before long I was keeping the store's books, and when I was 14 I installed a new bookkeeping system which saved the store both time and money.

This interest in figures led to a career in which I have made extensive use of mathematics. And I still am grateful to Miss Lila.

When I saw her not long ago — now 82, retired, but with that interest and enthusiasm intact — I once more was reminded how America needs more teachers like her. Such teachers are the builders and protectors of the foundation of democracy. To them we owe much for the free and abundant way of life that has become our American heritage.

On Parade

On the cover is an actress to watch, Christine Carère. Brought from France last year to play opposite Rossano Brazzi in the film version of Françoise Sagan's novel, A Certain Smile, Christine has been doing some watching of her own. Object: American women. For her conclusions about them, see pp. 32-33.

Incidentally, the heroine of Mlle. Sagan's novel is 17, so Christine's studio announced her age as 17. This charmed Christine, who happens to be 27. It's OK, though. She looks 17.

Every day or so someone writes in for reprints of a PARADE article, or for permission to reprint one in another publication. For example, you probably read the quiz, When Is Your Signature Valid? (Feb. 16). So did the publishers of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Regarding it as useful reading for their salesmen, they requested — and received — permission to reprint 1,000 copies.

Out in Saudi Arabia, the Arabian American Oil Co. wanted to reprint three of our driving-safety quizzes. They had to be modified a bit to fit Arabian law. Otherwise, no problems.

Then we gave the green light to the Baldwin Public Library, Birmingham, Mich., to reproduce for its patrons the list of 30 books no child should miss, from What Should Johnny Read? (Dec. 8).

There are lots more — but that should give you the idea.

Belated letter from Mrs. Margaret Ness, Levittown, N.Y.: "I'm happy to tell you I won a refrigerator in a contest with your needlework pattern, Indian Summer. Thank you for putting the pattern in the paper."

Nice work, Mrs. Ness. Today's pattern is on p. 31. Contests, anyone?

Which kind of success are you on your way to?

If you can answer "Yes" to the following questions, you may be headed in the right direction for one important kind of success: financial. Start here:

Do you have money left over after your living expenses are paid and emergencies provided for? YES ☐ NO ☐

Maybe it hasn't occurred to you, but one of today's necessities is to provide for your future. A time when you may not be working—or may not want to work. When you're spending today's income, isn't it wise to use part of it for your future?

Do you know how owning common stock may help you meet expenses both today and in the future? YES ☐ NO ☐

Ownership of common stock makes you part-owner of a company. As an owner you can share in profits through dividends, or in any future growth through increase in the value of your stock, or both. Dividends can give you income that may continue long after you've left your job—income to help pay today's bills—and tomorrow's.

Do you know how much money you need to buy stocks? YES ☐ NO ☐

You can buy stocks in some of America's greatest companies for as little as $40 every three months, up to $1000 a month, on the Monthly Investment Plan. More than 8½ million Americans own stock. Two out of three have incomes under $7500 a year.

Can you name the four precautions to take when investing? YES ☐ NO ☐

Keep them handy:

- (1) Use only extra money left over after bills are paid and emergencies provided for.
- (2) Remember that the prices of stocks go up and down, that a company may not grow, may not pay a dividend.
- (3) Always get facts before you invest. Never depend on tips or rumors.
- (4) See a broker for good advice—and make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

Have you a copy of DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS? YES ☐ NO ☐

This fascinating booklet is a wonderful place to start planning your future. It gives interesting facts about investing and lists more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 years to more than a century. It tells which have paid 5 to 6 percent dividends at recent prices, which are preferred by large institutional investors... plus much more. And it's free.

Drop in to get acquainted with a nearby friendly broker. Make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He'll help you plan a sensible investment program—and charge nothing for his advice. He'll help you buy or sell. Ask him whether bonds might be better for you than stocks. And from time to time ask him to review your securities with you.

Ask, too, for your free copy of "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." Or send the coupon and a copy will be sent you promptly. It may head you in the right direction for success.

Life begins at eight to the bar

HOLLYWOOD.

The 77-year-old grandmother above, along with 21 other grandmothers older and younger, has found an upbeat formula for staying young: music.

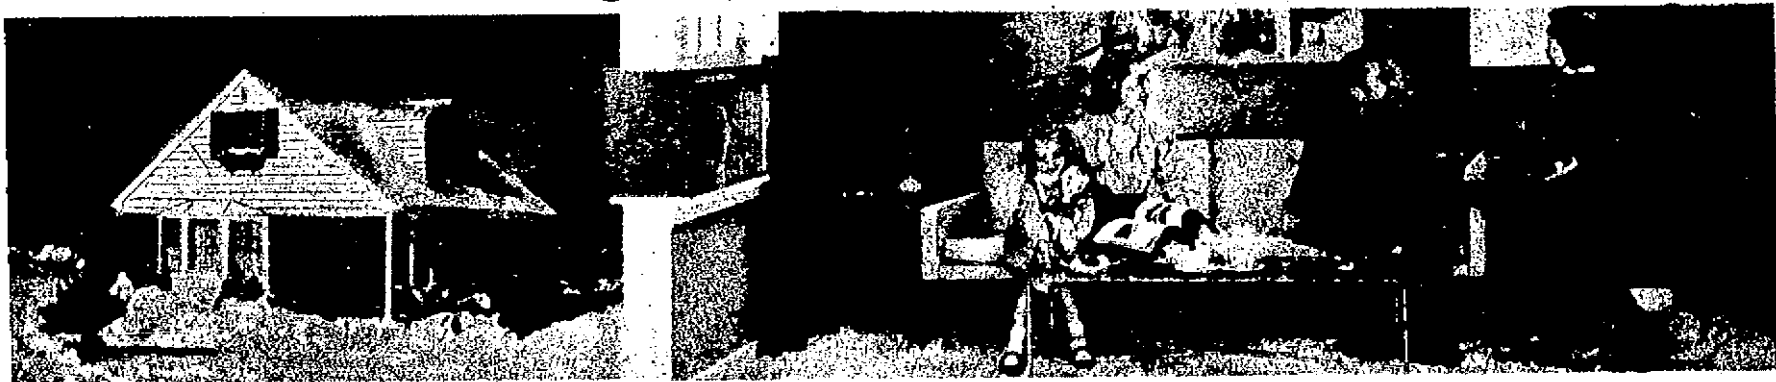

She plays trumpet in a remarkable new symphonic ensemble called the All-Grandmother Orchestra, now rehearsing here for a debut concert. It was formed by Jean Waki, retired theatrical agent and onetime band leader. She had known many women musicians in show business. One day she asked: why shouldn't they still be making use of their talents?

After months of scouting for former outstanding players, Miss Waki got an orchestra together. Today "her" grandmothers are starting a new life.

Eyes on the music — and the baton — Marguerite Heerman, 74, plays French horn. Like others, she found practice restored technique.

ORCHESTRA continued

To these able musicians, age is no barrier

The musical grandmothers, ranging in age from 41 to 78, are all former professionals. Some now are music teachers or copyists for arrangers. One solos in a cocktail lounge, another is a photographer's model. Still others are clerks, saleswomen or stenographers.

Under the baton of James Shelton, 32-year-old Hollywood musician, the orchestra is shaping up into a "pop" ensemble, with a repertoire ranging from light opera to rock 'n' roll. Radio and television dates are being set.

Happily back in the world they love, the grandmothers use suitable introduction music—When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver — and an even apter theme song: Young at Heart.

FIDDLE sings again under fingers of distinguished-looking Marguerite Moss, 72, once a specialty-act headliner. Ensemble also includes song-and-dance "girls," a comedienne.

DRUMS vibrate with life under the agile hands of the orchestra's "baby," Jean Lutay, aged 41.

CAREFREE SMILE hides possible concern over his successor as Nikita Khrushchev, current boss of all the Russias, waves from train window after a visit to East Berlin. With him is Anastas Mikoyan, a possible candidate for the post.

If Khrushchev died tomorrow...

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The four words which form the title of this article pose perhaps the most intriguing, most vital question now facing the world's statesmen. Intriguing because, to borrow a Churchillian phrase, the inner workings of the Russian political-machine remain "a riddle wrapped in an enigma." Vital because any sudden change in the Russian leadership must have a profound effect on the temperature of the cold war. It could produce a startling thaw, or a return to the sub-zero temperatures of Stalin's last days.

Every envoy in Washington (and 80 countries are represented here) is watching the signs, comparing discreet opinions and tidbits of information. It is a jigsaw puzzle whose pieces change shape from day to day according to the news from Moscow. But like most jigsaw puzzles, it has an overall pattern. To find it, PARADE talked to State Department officials, allied and neutral diplomats, intelligence agents, even representatives of Communist countries.

This, in brief, is the picture which has emerged. If Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev died tomorrow...

- The Presidium, the 13-man inner core of the Communist Party, would rule by "collective government" (as after Stalin's death) until a new strong man emerged.
- Russian pressure for a Summit meeting would probably diminish overnight.
- New attempts to bully the neutral nations of the Middle East and Asia could be expected.
- Within Russia and her satellites, a drastic step-up in war propaganda would be almost certain.
- There would be no basic change in long-range Soviet goals.

No Line of Succession

Most of these would be signs of nervousness, not a reaction against Khrushchev's policies. For the central fact is that the Soviet political machine, which holds nearly 200 million people in thrall in Russia alone, has no line of succession for the replacement of a leader.

If a U.S. President dies or becomes incapacitated, the Vice President takes over. If a premier dies in a democracy such as Britain, his deputy assumes power until new elections can be held. In any case, national policies and commitments are continuous.

Not so in the Soviet Union. Just as nobody knew what would happen after Stalin, today nobody knows what will happen after Khrushchev. The latter was himself a dark horse who suddenly came up on the rails to beat the favorites. The Western world knew little about him until, in quick succession, he toppled Beria, Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich, the great Marshal Zhukov and finally his running-mate Bulganin. Now, like Stalin, he stands alone on the peak of the Soviet pyramid. But the peak is a perilous place.

First, what are the chances that Khrushchev may die? He was 64 last month. He comes of tough peasant stock, takes good care of his health. He has a reputation for being a heavy drinker, but it is more simulated than real. (Most of his party indiscretions have been carefully thought out in advance.) And he has cut down heavily on the vodka. Most doctors would give him a good bill of health for his age. Yet he is no more immune than the next man to heart failure (he is obviously overweight), a stroke, the wiles of his enemies — or an assassin's bullet.

As you read this, he may well take a look at the

MIKHAIL SUSLOV, like Mikoyan, has a chance to succeed Khrushchev.

FROL KOZLOV has a modest edge in the great succession sweepstakes.

ALEXEI KIRICHENKO looks most likely to give Kozlov a close race.

Khrushchev, Bulganin, Kaganovich, Malenkov, Molotov — and one man who still has at least some power: Mikoyan.

Who would run Russia? Would Soviet policies change? Would the U.S. be affected? This exclusive forecast has the answers men around him, at the machinery they can manipulate, and wonder: "After me, who?" Reportedly he is grooming his successor — but the process is unfinished, and in Russia no dictator can be sure his protégés will outlive him. As of today, the man most likely to succeed Khrushchev is one of four close associates. Two are of the Old Guard, men about his own age, who like him have come up the hard way through the treacherous labyrinths of the Communist hierarchy. Two are of the New Guard, his own elected. All are important in Russia.

The "Big Four"

Those of the Old Guard are Anastas I. Mikoyan, a first deputy Prime Minister, and Mikhail A. Suslov, a high Communist Party official. Both are extremely powerful, but have certain weaknesses. Mikoyan, a trade expert, is an Armenian. Coming from such a small minority group, he can have little hope of ruling Russia alone. Suslov is a man of tremendous ambition but is tainted with Stalinism — the harsh, almost reactionary attitude that was Stalin's hallmark. As of now, he has no broad base of support either among the Party officials or in government circles.

Those of the New Guard are Frol Kozlov, 50, who shares with Mikoyan the rank of a first deputy Premier, and Party leader Alexei Kirichenko, also 50, as close to Khrushchev as any man can be in the cold Kremlin. Khrushchev has boosted both up the Communist ladder for services rendered in his own climb to power. So far as Kremlin intrigue is concerned, they are men to be reckoned with.

Kozlov, white-haired and handsome, looks not unlike a younger John Foster Dulles. He was a big wheel in Leningrad and personally conducted the removal of Malenkov's friends in that key city when Khrushchev became the big boss. His reward: the premiership of European Russia, most important of the Soviet "republics." Later, when Khrushchev took over supreme control, Kozlov was swiftly moved up to his present post. Kirichenko, once a tractor driver, has been associated with Khrushchev for 20 years. They first joined up when Khrushchev took over an 11-year leadership of their native Ukraine, and their stars have followed a parallel rise.

It is among these four men — Mikoyan and Suslov, Kozlov and Kirichenko — that the struggle would rage if anything happened to Khrushchev. None of the experts believe Malenkov or Molotov could stage a comeback from their exiles — Malenkov as manager of a power station in Siberia, Molotov from his minor diplomatic post in Outer Mongolia. Bulganin has even less political strength. Marshal Zhukov is a figure of mystery, still loved by the Army but probably unable to raise sufficient support for a coup.

There are four main ways to power in Russia: through the ranks of government bureaucrats, through the Communist Party, through the Army and through the Secret Police. Of these the Party line is the most important, and Khrushchev, an old Party plotter, intends to keep it that way. The main Party body is the Central Committee with 255 members, of whom only 130 have a vote. Khrushchev knows how to seize and hold those votes. Then comes the Presidium.

How to Fool the Masses

If Khrushchev died, the Presidium would be the focus of "collective government" — but not for long. The power struggle would start all over again. It would be during this period of indecision, claim the experts, that the cold war would be intensified. The purpose would be to divert the attention of the Russian people from the wranglings of their rulers. To know that ambitious and ruthless men once more were striving for control might begin to sap Russian faith in Communism, arouse desires for a more stable form of government. But a call to patriotism almost never fails to weld any nation together. Thus the West would be made a target to distract the masses' attention.

Fear of revealing weakness to the West would, it is believed, clamp the brake suddenly on negotiations for a Summit meeting. It is one thing for a supreme leader like Khrushchev to meet the Western leaders across a table and make commitments. It is another for an uneasy team, hardly broken-into harness.

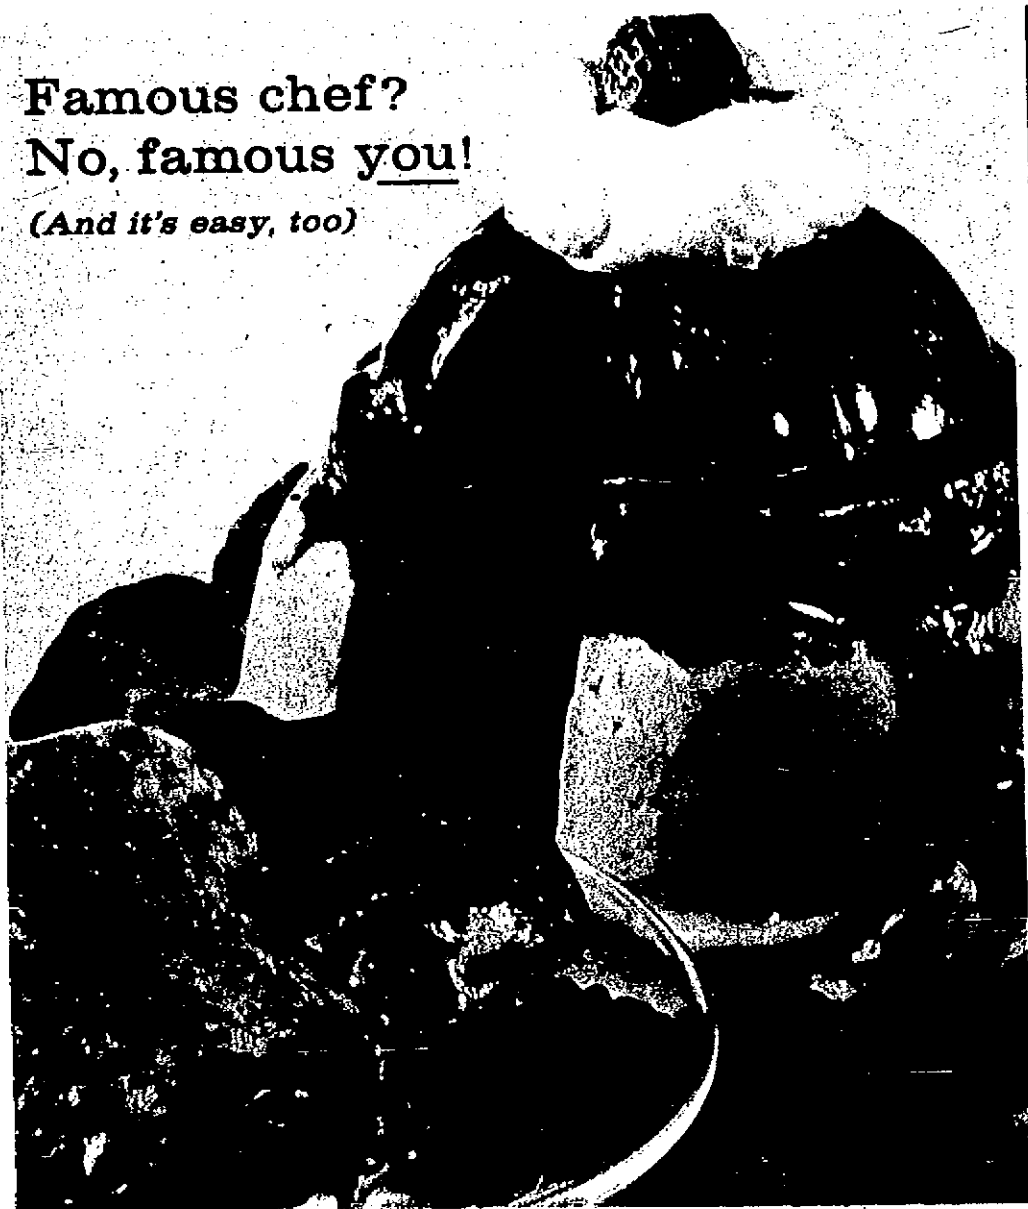

Khrushchev, who has bitter memories of Stalin's tyranny and the upheaval which followed his death, is known to have taken precautions against any of his henchmen building up private empires. Under Stalin, for example, the evil Beria had control of the secret police, Malenkov the Party and Molotov foreign affairs. When Stalin died, each was a power in himself.

Beria made a backstage bid for the top job. Zhukov rallied the Army, surrounded Moscow with tanks and canceled out the secret police. Beria was arrested and executed. The politicians breathed again, but they had learned a valuable lesson. Never again would they lose control of physical force. The men with the guns would be kept in their place as the servants, not the masters, of the Kremlin. Today Serov, the new secret police chief, is little more than a lackey, and no military marshal struts the stage.

How well do the four key men under Khrushchev get along? State Department experts say they appear to be friendly enough and there seems to be much less plotting in the Kremlin than of old. The best guess is that Khrushchev is too firmly in the saddle for the Old Guard of Suslov and Mikoyan to tackle. And the New Guard have nothing to gain by attempting to shift him. Every day that he lives gives them time to do what he did himself: gather their own protégés around them, ensure their loyalty with the pick of Party jobs, get them made voting members of the Central Committee and the Presidium. Kozlov and Kirichenko do not want a showdown now.

But if and when the showdown comes, the two K's will be making the headlines. As of today Kozlov probably has the inside track — but the race ahead will be long and hard.

STRAWBERRY-PINEAPPLE MOLD

8-Cup Mold
 2 packages strawberry flavored gelatin
 1½ cups boiling water
 1 9-oz. can crushed pineapple
 Cold water
 1 pint fresh strawberries, washed and hulled
 1 cup Evaporated Milk, chilled icy cold in refrigerator tray
 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Chill bowl and beaters. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Drain liquid from pineapple. Add cold water to make 2 cups; add to gelatin. Measure gelatin mixture into two portions approximately 2½ cups and 1½ cups. Chill. Arrange strawberries in bottom and around edge of 8-cup mold. Hold out ten berries for garnish. When smaller portion gelatin is partially set, spoon over berries in mold. Chill until firm. Beat Evaporated Milk in chilled bowl until thick. Add lemon juice. Beat until it is stiff and will hold a peak. Add crushed pineapple to remaining 2½ cup portion of partially set gelatin. Fold whipped Evaporated Milk into this. Spoon onto strawberry layer in mold. Chill until firm, four hours or more. Turn onto plate. Garnish with berries.

Note: 1 package (1 lb.) frozen whole strawberries may be used. Thaw and drain, saving liquid. Add strawberry liquid to pineapple liquid; add water to make 2 cups. Add liquid to dissolved gelatin and use as above. Arrange strawberries in bottom of mold. Cover with the 1½ cups slightly thickened gelatin.

Of all the luck!

Hearing calls for help, a diaper salesman in Chicago dashed up the stairs to a fifth-floor apartment, helped deliver a baby. The grateful parents then and there gave him a standing order for diapers.

In Corunna, Ind., a nian bought a dozen eggs. Every one had twin yolks.

A doctor, in Somerville, N.J., hopped on a runaway bulldozer, stopped it. When police asked how it happened he knew how to operate the machine, he said: "I didn't. I just pulled the first lever I saw."

A diner in a West Coast coffee shop left the waitress a $1,000 tip.

During a head-on collision near Phoenix, Ariz., a 9-month-old boy went flying out of one of the cars. So did a seat pillow. The pillow landed on the highway, the boy landed on the pillow. Nary a scratch.

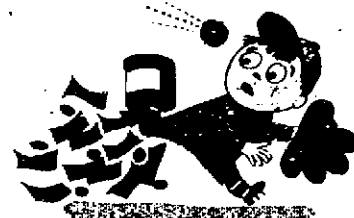

And in Nottingham, England, a 10-year-old boy who was run over by a locomotive and 46 freight cars escaped with a few cuts and bruises. Hit by the locomotive, he had somersaulted twice through the air, then fallen flat between the rails.

A girl in Calumet City, Ill., found a purse with $3 in it, returned it to its owner, got a $10 reward.

While chasing a foul ball during a sandlot game in a Western city, a youngster stumbled across a can containing $447.

Driving to the hospital with his expectant wife, a man in New York City got so excited he lost control of his car, hit a tree. The first motorist who came by was a doctor. He patched up a cut on the wife's lip, calmed the husband, delivered a baby girl.

After mopping up her pantry, a housewife in Augusta, S.C., spread newspapers on the floor, found herself staring at a picture of a woman feeding a pet. On the woman's wrist was a watch the housewife had lost in a restaurant 19 years before. Police checked, located the woman, got the housewife her watch back.

DONATIONS from shoe stores for possible NOSE use make a welcome pile in Mrs. Feldman's living room.

When two lefts can

Thousands of unfortunate people have one foot larger than the other. This California woman solves their need: shoes

by CHARLES G. FRANCIS

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

A pretty blonde, working as a railroad ticket saleswoman in Chicago, recently gave her employers a shock. She refused to accept a promotion to chief receptionist in the office of the company president. Quizzed by her puzzled supervisor, she burst into tears.

"It's my shoes," she sobbed. "They're so plain and ugly. Nobody sees them when I'm at the ticket window. But in the front office, meeting people, I'd be just miserable!"

Through the years, by purchasing two pairs of shoes at the same time — one 5AA and one 7B — she had managed to keep shod. She could wear only one shoe from each pair and had to throw the mismates away. This doubled shoe costs, forcing her to purchase cheap footwear, often in unfashionable colors and styles. And she often wore shoes long after they should have been discarded.

Problem Answered

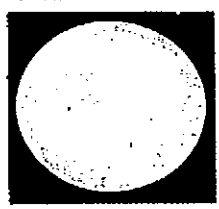

Now, thanks to the help of a unique organization called the National Odd Shoe Exchange, the young woman has taken the receptionist job and is being groomed for a better one. She learned about the Exchange shortly after she had turned down the receptionist position. Through it she got in touch with a young Des Moines housewife who had the same foot problem in reverse — 5AA shoe on her right foot, 7B on her left. The two women simply exchanged the shoes they once had thrown away. And the receptionist now visits Des Moines regularly to meet her "sole mate" for a joint shoe-buying spree.

These women are typical of thousands of persons who have been helped by the National Odd Shoe Exchange. Founded in St. Louis in 1943 by Mrs. Ruth Rubin Feldman, who now lives here, NOSE (as Mrs. Feldman calls it) has the motto: "When Odd Shoes Are Left, To Trade Them Is Right."

Pleasant, red-haired and a registered occupational therapist, Mrs. Feldman knows the problem of mismatched feet

Sticky syrup, crusted chicken fat, bacon grease, clinging milk film—new Pink Liquid VEL dissolves everything so fast you can hardly believe your own eyes. And when you see how fast you get through the dishes—and see how gentle Liquid Vel is to your hands—you'll never want to use anything else again!

make a right

from personal experience. At 10 she was stricken with polio and left with one foot smaller than the other. She couldn't afford custom-made shoes. Buying two pairs at a time was a financial hardship. The rationing of World War II made it worse.

"I got to wondering," she says, "if there weren't others like me who, because of injuries, disease, accidents or amputations, had shoe problems."

To find out, Ruth obtained a list of the members of a St. Louis polio club and mailed out 200 postcards. She offered to help people needing odd-sized shoes to get together and trade.

"The response," she says, "was immediate and overwhelming. I found myself with a going project on my hands."

Today, NOSE has some 5,000 members in all 48 states and several foreign countries, and is growing steadily. They come from many walks of life and financial status. Mrs. Feldman has arranged for swaps of almost every kind of shoe made, from strapless evening sandals to $100 cowboy boots.

Love and Marriage

Many inquiries come from hospitals and other organizations in behalf of patients or members. Every amputee is a candidate for NOSE, because a shoe on a good leg will wear out three times as fast as a shoe on an artificial leg.

For a $2 annual registration fee, which just about covers Mrs. Feldman's overhead, NOSE members receive the names of several potential swappers. These are nearby if possible, though not always. A telephone operator in Honolulu trades shoes regularly with a coed in Boston — 8,000 miles away.

Such swapping often leads to warm friendships, or even more. Once a young woman in Nashville asked her salesman brother to visit her "shoe pal" the next time he was in Atlanta. He did, fell in love and married the girl.

Then there was the depressed Korean veteran in Philadelphia. With one leg amputated, he used to burn his extra shoe whenever he purchased a new pair. "An emotional orgy of self-pity," he calls it. "I couldn't stand that extra shoe in the closet staring at me."

Through NOSE, he located another amputee in Trenton, N.J., who could use his spare shoe. His moodiness evaporated, he found a job with an insurance company and soon became his former self. He credits NOSE with the mental "lift" that made this possible.

In general, men are more of a problem in matching feet than women. An ex-infantryman from Virginia wanted to trade combat boots, no special trick until you consider the size: 13½ EE.

The National Odd Shoe Exchange has won Ruth Feldman a legion of friends. At Christmas a shower of cards and gifts descends upon her. When NOSE members take a trip to California, they often stop here just to say "Thanks."

Blue Suede Splurge

Her own "sole mate" is Millie Cummings, a former nurse in Burbank, Calif. They get together whenever one of them feels a need for new footgear.

"Trading shoes can be a real adventure," she says. "I'd never worn blue suede shoes — too expensive. But one day Millie suggested blue suede and we went out and splurged. I feel like Mrs. Rockefeller every time I wear them!"

For one reason or another, NOSE members sometimes drop from the rolls. But they don't usually stay away long. A young lady in Maryland recently wired Mrs. Feldman and apologized for falling behind in the fee payment.

"Being married soon," the telegram continued. "Want to start buying my trousseau. Please put my feet back in your file."

If you're interested in joining the National Odd Shoe Exchange, here's how:

- 1) Write to Mrs. Ruth Rubin Feldman, 1415 Ocean Front, Santa Monica, Calif. Enclose $2.
- 2) By return mail she will send you a registration form.
- 3) Fill out and return this form. Mrs. Feldman will match it up with other foot-troubled people and send their names and addresses to you. ■

Rearing, Mustafa works his feet into outside pajama arms at owner Schumann's command.

This horse wears pajamas

Nuzzling, Mustafa is rewarded with a sugar lump.

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK.

Perhaps aware of the fact that royal Arab blood runs in his veins, Mustafa, the stallion shown in these photos, disdains to sleep in the raw like ordinary horses. Instead he sleeps in pajamas — tops only — in a bed close to 12' long.

Actually, this pajama game is part of Mustafa's act as top attraction of the Max Schumann circus. In an extraordinary feat of training, Schumann's wife, Vivi, taught the 8-year-old stallion how to get into the nightwear, lie down on a special bed and appear to sleep.

Mustafa really needs a pajama top. As Schumann explains with a straight face, he always kicks off the covers.

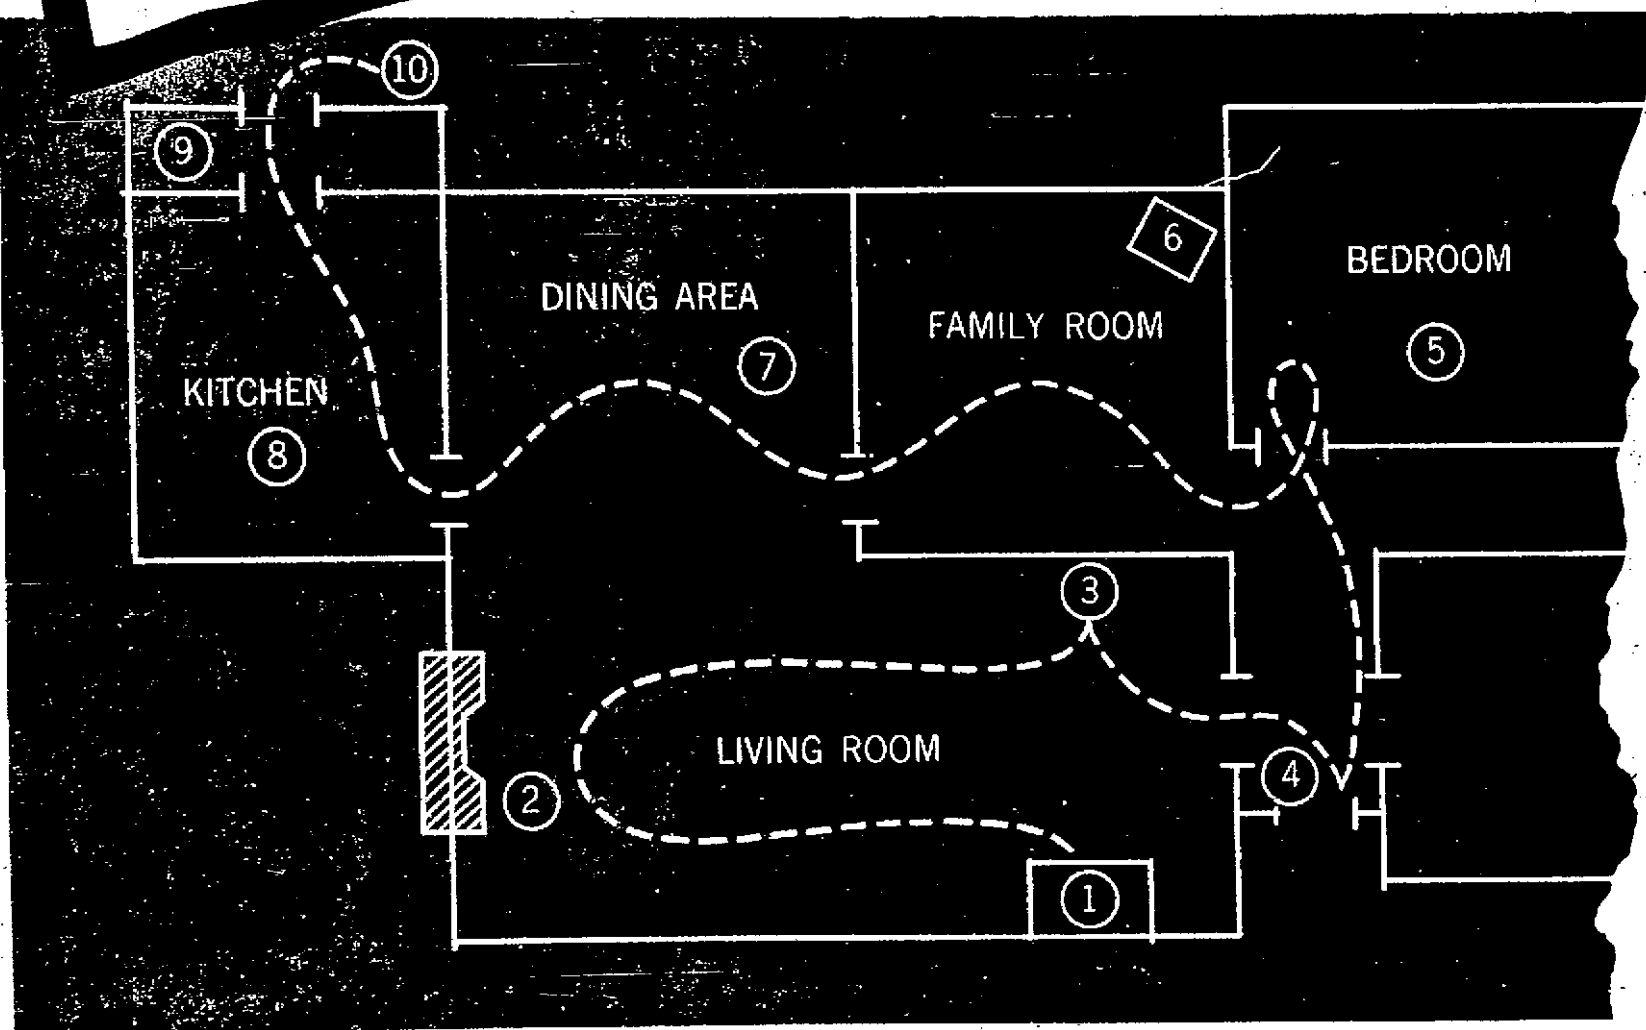

Climaxing his art, Mustafa stretches out with feet dutifully drawn up, head on pillow.

Scene: The Nelson home. Time: A Saturday evening

1 The desk where Mr. Nelson opened his month-end bills and wrote an indignant letter to the electric company, protesting against their advertising that electricity gives more value for every dollar than any other item in the family budget.

2 Where Mr. Nelson looked at the electric clock over the mantel to see if he had time to mail his letter before dinner.

3 The hi-fi set that he turned off as he left the living room.

4 Where Mr. N. paused to see if the porch light should be turned on to guide the dinner guests.

5 His daughter's bedroom where he stopped a moment to watch her drying her hair with the electric hair dryer and admire the dress she had just ironed for her date.

6 The TV, with Junior parked in front of it watching "Masked Riders of the Range."

7 The electric coffeemaker and toaster, ready and waiting to do dinner duty.

8 The all-electric kitchen, where dinner was cooking and Mrs. Nelson was taking trays of tinkling ice cubes from the refrigerator—and where the electric dishwasher and clotheswasher and dryer were waiting to do the clean-up chores ahead.

9 The back porch, where Mr. N. paused to think things over—realizing that his family was putting electricity to work in dozens of ways all over the house... ways he often forgot. So maybe the electric company was right about the value of his service.

A SCIENTIST YOU SHOULD KNOW...

Wonderful Willie from Brookhaven

He's an electronics expert who can play the accordion, call a square dance and 'do anything with an egg'

SCIENTIST AT HOME: As Willie Higinbotham squeezes out Wearing of the Green, his whole family—(l. to r.) Robin, 5; Mrs. Higinbotham; Billy, 2; Julie, 7—joins in.

Scientist at work: Willie checks "memory tubes" of a computer being built at Brookhaven.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

UPTON, N.Y.

"Willie, there's a call for you. Extension 248."

In the Electronics Building of Brookhaven National Laboratories here, an otherwise dignified secretary is speaking. The "Willie" in question is William Higginbotham, 47, 5'4", 125 lbs. and bespectacled, one of the army of American scientists whose work has helped shape the world. He also is the secretary's boss.

This seemingly casual use of his first name ("Almost everyone calls me Willie") is deceptive. Higginbotham played a major role in World War II radar discoveries, invented an ingenious device to "listen" to radioactivity, helped fashion the first A-bomb, worked tirelessly for peaceful adaptation of atom energy. For 11 years he has headed the instrumentation division of Brookhaven, a group of laboratories run by nine Eastern universities for research (much of it classified) in many fields. In this job Willie supervises production of instruments for all Brookhaven.

Some of the instruments are almost incredibly complex, such as a digital computer now under construction. Others, like a device to measure the blood pressure of mice, are what Willie calls "simple."

Willie himself is far from simple. On the job he might remind you of TV's "Mr. Peepers." But at home, in nearby Bellport, he likes nothing better than to strap on his accordion and sing — loudly — with family or friends. "I like pop and folk music," he says. His repertoire runs from Bluetail Fly to Mood Indigo.

The Lawn Brigade

Or you might find Willie — accordion and all — at Brookhaven Labs calling an after-hours square dance for some of his fellow-toilers.

Willie also likes to cook. His approach is to go to the refrigerator, take out everything in sight and start "mixing stuff together." This once resulted in what Mrs. Higginbotham refers to as the most unusual creamed chipped beef she ever ate. Undaunted, Willie says he can "do anything with an egg and make it taste good."

When he is preoccupied with lab problems, Willie sometimes comes home and impresses his three small children by working at their toy blackboard. But their biggest thrill comes when Willie decides to cut the lawn. He hitches a sulky to his power mower, ties two little red wagons to the sulky, sets the children in the wagons, sits in the sulky — and off they go.

Willie himself is one of six children. He was born in Bridgeport, Conn. "My father was a Presbyterian minister, and so we moved a good deal," he recalls. At Williams College he majored in physics — "because it was easy for me." Then, because the depression was on, he did graduate work at Cornell for four years.

Thereafter he worked as a technician in the Cornell

NOTHING...smooths, softens, satinizes skin better than Lanolin Plus Liquid

Exclusive formula, 5 times richer in pure lanolin, begins where nature leaves off, to help skin stay gloriously young

To look young and radiant, your skin needs a steady supply of vital oils. But, as skin matures, nature often becomes stingy with these oils. Then come dryness, lines and wrinkles.

That's when you need LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID. Its exclusive patented formula contains five times more lanolin than any other cosmetic. It restores to dry skin nature's closest duplication of your own skin oils. At its touch, your skin becomes petal soft... so fresh, so smooth, younger looking. Use LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID as cleanser, make-up base, night conditioner. Five-times-richer LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID is also the ingredient in all LANOLIN PLUS Aids to Beauty.

When this scientist talks about America, statesmen listen

physics department until World War II, when he joined the Radiation Laboratory staff of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as an electronics specialist. Electronics is a tough word for some, but Willie has a workable definition: "Electronics involves circuits, vacuum tubes and other equipment to measure, count or perform some other needed task. This means about 25 per cent of an atom sub, 50 per cent of a modern military airplane, almost 100 per cent of the ground equipment for launching guided missiles and lots of the makings of your TV set."

In 1941, Willie and a team of scientists were assigned to a hush-hush radar project. Less than a year later, American planes were flying with the first airborne radar. The viewing scope in their planes was largely Willie's work. At MIT he also helped design an outstanding electronic bombsight.

In December, 1943, Willie shifted to Los Alamos, N.M., to work on the atomic bomb. He oversaw the design of an electronic device which, in effect, "pulled the trigger" of the A-bomb. He also invented the Higinbotham Scaler, which counts impulses given off by radiation and is used in Geiger counters. Friends say he mentally firmed this up while tossing sleeplessly after a big dinner of lobster, his favorite food.

A Move to Washington

After World War II, Willie took his deep convictions to Washington (at the behest of atomic-science groups) to help inform the U.S. of the peacetime implications of atomic energy. He stayed two years, long enough to work with the late Sen. Brien McMahon on a bill which created the Atomic Energy Commission.

In addition, Willie helped man the National Committee on Atomic Information, which disseminated facts to the U.S. public about the atom. He was a founder and first chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, a nation-wide group which now boasts more than 2,000 members.

Gradually Willie Higinbotham emerged as a scientist to whom statesmen listened. They still are listening, even though he mostly has been away from Washington since 1947, when he accepted his present job. Here are some of the subjects he feels strongly about:

On continued testing of A- and H-bombs: "Such tests should stop if all the world's major powers agreed to this as part of overall disarmament."

On the present world-wide arms race: "It makes war much more likely. With more arms available, irrational actions on the part of nations are far more likely to occur."

On government secrecy and classification: "Sometimes it's necessary. Generally speaking, it is overdone. Science should be kept largely free of classification. Secrecy in the fusion [hydrogen] field has delayed . . . practical applications for H-power."

The Task Ahead

On scientific manpower today: "We should be concerned about our needs. It is true that the Russians are ahead of us in certain areas. But we shouldn't over-concentrate on getting scientists and engineers. We must develop a citizenry mentally and morally able to cope with international problems and issues here at home. Most important, the citizenry should be able to understand and safeguard our American heritage and freedoms."

"These are, after all, precious possessions which our enemies cannot offer their people."

This is Willie Higinbotham and these are some of his views. They may not be brought to your attention again, for scientists are uncomfortable in the spotlight. It distracts them. And right now, Willie has a project he wants to get on with.

He's working on ways to measure the speed at which atoms emit radiation, down to one-billionth of a second. What may result? New frontiers in the use of atom power for weapons — and for peacetime electricity.

COMBING Robin's hair is a common chore for Willie. He has also become quite adept at diapering.

ANSWERING a question from Julie interrupts Willie's "homework" for a moment. In bringing problems home with him, he also finds he thinks well puttering in the garden.

PARADE VACATION

PANNING FOR GOLD helps visitors to visualize Denver's mining-camp past. Here the Newberrys of Tennessee—Debbie, Carolyn, Karen, George—try their luck. Yield: one piece of ore.

Denver: A city to

You'll know your America better when you know its

by ED KIESTER

NEW FRIEND for Karen and Debbie Newberry is a Denver Zoo calf named April.

DENVER, COLO.

A few years ago, the late historian Bernard DeVoto referred to this city as the "most cosmopolitan" of U.S. cities. The same week, building tycoon William Zeckendorf implied it was just a "cow town." To the vacationing Newberry family of Knoxville, Tenn., Denver is both. A city of contrasts, with a Wild West past and a space-age future, Denver seems to catch in its streets the breadth of history.

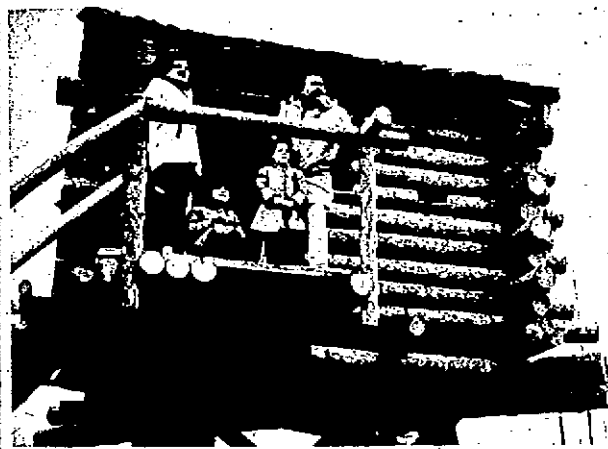

The Newberrys — George, Carolyn, Karen, 7, and Debbie, 4—spent a few days here recently as part of their vacation. They visited the grave of Buffalo Bill Cody. They panned for gold (with minor success) in nearby Turkey Creek. They visited Denver's antique, gold-plated State Capitol.

Contrasted with these mementos of Denver's past, they learned that, in Denver's back yard, the Air Force is building its weapon of the future — the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile.

Denver was founded 99 years ago, a slapdash mining camp born of the Colorado gold boom. As it grew, Denver became territorial capital, then state capital. It became mining headquarters, stockmen's headquarters, oil headquarters, banking headquarters. After its first splash, Denver settled down to quiet growth, then mushroomed again after World War II.

COLORADO CAPITOL makes a background for this family shot. The 15th step of its west entrance is exactly one mile above sea level.

CAVALRY FORT is a feature of Magic Mountain, a Disneyland-type amusement-education venture opening outside Denver this summer.

remember

Today it is a city of half a million, with a metropolitan-area population of 800,000.

In the story of that growth the Newberrys found a lesson about their country. The expansion of the U.S. from wilderness to world giant has been led by its great cities. As Denver grew from mining camp to metropolis, your own city and other cities grew and America grew. The cities made America and America made the cities. Denver is not unusual but typical.

And yet, the Newberrys found, Denver is in many ways unique. Perhaps the explanation is that Denver is a city on the high plains facing the majestic Rocky Mountains. It is a cluster of buildings in the midst of the wide-open spaces.

On their visit to Denver, the Newberrys spent much of their time in the wide-open spaces. They capitalized on Denver's far-flung system of mountain parks. The most famous of these, 20 miles from downtown, is the Park of the Red Rocks, where a 10,000-seat amphitheater, boasting perfect acoustics, has been hewn from the rock. The Newberrys attended a Denver Symphony Orchestra concert there. Musical programs are held regularly during July and August and most guests eat picnic suppers while they listen.

MILE HIGH Lemonade Chiffon Pie

MADE WITH KNOX GELATINE, PET MILK AND FROZEN LEMONADE

Here is wonderful pie without baking! With real chiffon texture that Knox Unflavored Gelatine always assures.

YOUR RECIPE FOR

Mile-High Lemonade Chiffon Pie

CRUST:

Melt 3 tablesp. Butter or Margarine in a 10-in. skillet. Add 1½ cups Coconut (about 4 oz.) and stir over medium heat until coconut is golden brown. Press mixture firmly on bottom and sides of 9-in. pie pan. Let stand at room temperature until cool.

FILLING:

Chill 1 cup PET Evaporated Milk in ice tray until almost frozen around edges. In a 3-qt. bowl soften 1 envelope Knox Unflavored Gelatine in ¼ cup Cold Water. Add ½ cup Boiling Water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add ¾ cup Sugar and 6-oz. can Frozen Lemonade Concentrate. Stir until lemonade thaws, then chill until mixture is very thick, but not set. Put ice-cold PET Milk into a cold 1-qt. bowl. Whip with cold rotary beater by hand, or with electric beater at high speed, until stiff. Fold into chilled gelatine mixture. Put into coconut crust. Chill until firm, about 3 hrs.

DENVER continued

to love the outdoors as he does. One of his "must" stops was at Genesee Mountain Park, also part of the mountain parks system, where buffalo, elk and deer live and even pose for photographs.

Another trip took the family up a winding, spectacular road to Lookout Mountain, where Buffalo Bill is buried, and a third to Lake Evergreen, where George played golf. The mountain parks system also has 20 other areas, with something for every taste, including ski areas, campsites, picnic facilities and boating.

Denver brings its feel for open spaces even into the heart of the city. City Park, in the midtown section, has one of the West's most complete zoos and a highly rated Museum of Natural History. Like many zoos, the Denver model boasts a children's section and here Debbie struck up an enduring friendship with a burro named Lulu Belle.

Downtown Contrasts

In Denver's downtown district, the Newberrys found, the contrasts of the city show up most vividly. At Colfax Ave. and Broadway, the city's main corner, Denver's sentimental reverence for its past and faith in its future are symbolized side by side.

On one hand, the Newberrys saw the State Capitol, massive and classical in style, with a dome coated with $22,000 worth of gold. On the other hand, they saw Denver's new

Five places not to miss in and near Denver

- 2 The mountain parks, including the grave of Buffalo Bill, the Park of the Red Rocks amphitheater and the Genesee Park game refuge.
- 3 City Park, in the downtown district, with a famous zoo and natural-history museum.
- 4 Mountain View Park, which offers a 150-mile panoramic view of the Rockies to the west.
- 5 The U.S. Mint, where money in denominations from 1¢ to $1 is coined. (Above, the Newberrys eye a ton of gold ingots worth $900,000.) To visit the Mint, write or phone ahead for permission.

10,000 persons. Here the Newberrys admire its huge emptiness. Surrounding boulders are up to 600' tall.

ALASKAN TOTEM POLE, a Denver Zoo landmark, offers the Newberrys local atmosphere for snapshots.

downtown skyline, made over in the space of just five years. (Incidentally, Zeckendorf changed his mind about the "cow town" sufficiently to build a new Radio City-type development and a new hotel.)

The Newberrys ate dinner in Denver's world-famous hotel, the ornate, mid-Victorian Brown Palace. In the lobby they saw women in evening gowns and men in tails — and cowboys in jeans and boots.

Denver has other lures: minor-league baseball; horse and greyhound racing; the Rocky Mountain News "Showwagon," which takes troupes of entertainers from park to park; the famous amusement park, Elitch's Gardens, which houses the nation's oldest summer-stock theater; good restaurants and quiet night clubs. The Newberrys sampled all they had time for.

A recent study of vacation spending in Denver shows that a family of four will spend about $30 a day for rooms, meals, transportation, souvenirs and incidentals. Motels — most now come equipped with swimming pools and TV — cost about $10 to $20 for four. Meals are about $1 to $1.50 for lunch, and a steak in the evening usually is in the $3.50 bracket. But most of the public attractions cost nothing.

A listing of Denver's attractions probably doesn't sound too different from your own city's. Perhaps it shouldn't. Perhaps it simply takes a visitor from another part of the country to see this city with fresh eyes, as the Newberrys did.

Love That Sunshine

And yet, George Newberry would insist, Denver is different. Maybe it's the climate — sunshine is the rule, the air is dry, and there is no smog. Maybe it's the surroundings — like the Newberrys, many vacationing families settle on Denver as a headquarters from which to explore the attractions of the West. Maybe it's simply the quality of the city and the people which seems to say, "Welcome, stranger."

If you want to know more about Denver, start by writing for information from the Colorado Visitors Bureau, 225 W. Colfax Ave., Denver, Colo. Here on the plains at the edge of the mountains you may find a few days — or weeks — of vacation fun, and a lesson about America for the whole family. ■

REAL CHOCOLATE CAKE

It's the old-fashioned kind, but so easy you can make it 'from scratch'

by BETH MERRIMAN

Parade food editor

When you're in the mood, it's fun to whip up a cake "from scratch." How about one of those mother used to make? They taste just as good as you remember them — and they're surprisingly easy to put together. A case in point is the kind of chocolate cake that is almost black, with moist, spongy texture and a rich, full taste of real chocolate. This recipe, re-tested by today's cooking standards, proves amazingly thrifty. The rich frosting, another old favorite, does add to the cost — and to the calorie count — but it's worth it. Try it for yourself and see why.

FUDGE CAKE

- 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
- 1 cup boiling water, divided
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add ½ cup boiling water; stir until custard-like in consistency. Remove from heat. Add sugar and salad oil; mix well. Beat egg; add. Mix and sift dry ingredients; stir in. Add vanilla. Add remaining boiling water. Bake in greased 8" square cake pan (350°) 45 to 50 minutes. Cool on cake rack. Split into two layers. Fill and frost.

Mocha Frosting

Cream ½ cup butter or margarine; add 1½ cups confectioners' sugar (10X) while continuing to cream. Melt 1½ squares (1½ oz.) unsweetened chocolate over hot water; add. Add 1½ cups confectioners' sugar and enough strong cold coffee to make frosting fluffy and easy to spread. Makes enough to fill and frost 8" layer cake.

One good degree deserves another

...or so it appears, now that honorary-awards time is here

FORMER PRESIDENT Harry S. Truman has an honorary degree from Oxford — though he never did undergraduate college work.

ACTRESS Katherine Cornell is a leader of stage people with 10 degrees. Typical citation called her "Great servant of art..."

EDUCATOR most honored by his fellows is Dr. Harold W. Dodds, retired president of Princeton. He holds 26 honorary degrees.

Whatever the temperature during the next month, one thing is certain: there will be plenty of degrees in the air. For this is the season when American universities indulge their urge to bestow honorary degrees on the nation's distinguished sons and daughters. And 1958 should see the urge reach a new peak. Says E. R. Moore, head of the largest firm supplying academic garb for these occasions: "We are custom-tailoring more hoods for honoraries this year than ever before."

No matter who wins the most degrees this season, the all-time record-holder won't be threatened. His name is Herbert Clark Hoover, and only last month his 84th degree was scheduled — a scroll and citation from the University of the State of New York. Among Mr. Hoover's rare academic prizes are an honorary medical degree from Jagellonian University of Cracow, Poland, and an honorary diploma from the Argentine School of Music and Declamation.

The former President's nearest contender, Ralph Bunche, has 49 degrees and some cordial citations. ("People are his chief concern and nations are his classroom," bubbled Boston University in 1954.) After Bunche comes Charles F. Kettering, inventor, former president of General Motors and co-founder of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research. He gets his 40th scroll this spring.

Leading Ladies

Mildred McAfee Horton, wartime head of the WAVES and former president of Wellesley College, holds 24 honoraries — apparently tops on the female side. Eleanor Roosevelt, who might be thought to rank high, lists just one, from Russell Sage College (Troy, N. Y.) in 1929.

All this is symbolic of American democracy. Lacking government honor societies to reward notable citizens (such as Britain's Knights of the Bath), the U. S. has been doing it via sheepskin salutes ever since Harvard conferred our first honorary degree in the 17th century. Today the larger universities try to hold down honoraries to a select eight or 10 a year. But with 1,500-odd institutions of higher learning in the country, the annual total runs to thousands.

One characteristic of many honoraries is a tendency toward word-intoxication. Poet Carl Sandburg, has been a particular victim. "Migratory songster of the prairies, whose stark, pungent, vibrant and whimsical verses have caught and cased in amber forevermore the idiom and spirit of mid-America..." That's what his scroll from New York University says.

By contrast, consider songwriter Cole Porter. From Princeton University he got this terse accolade: "We may well characterize him by the title of one of his own songs: You're the Top."

What will 1958 produce? Wait and see.

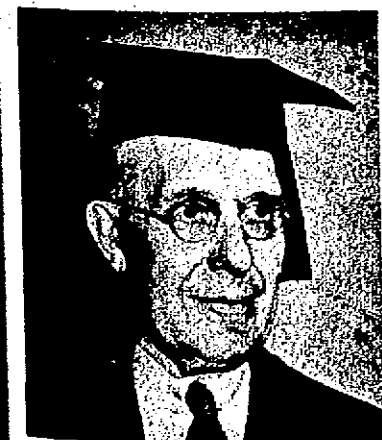

Champion degree-holder: former engineer, former President Herbert Hoover.

STAFF champion of degree-collectors is Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, first leader of the World War II WAVES. She has 24.

DIPLOMAT with diplomas to spare is Ralph Bunche of the United Nations. He chalked up his 49th (from Notre Dame) recently.

INDUSTRIAL leader among honoraries is Charles F. Kettering, whom Harvard called "An engineer in the great... tradition."

SCIENTIST who ranks high in honoraries (27) is Rockefeller Institute's Delley Bronk. Since Sputnik, scientists get more attention.

America's No. 1 Formula for Athlete's Foot

What I've learned

A French movie star finds U.S. girls are chic, talented—and make the best wives

ASTUTE observer Carere is—as this picture proves—worth observing in her own right. The shapely actress (33½-22-34½) soon will be visible in A Certain Smile.

from American women

by CHRISTINE CARERE

Last May, Christine Carère, a pert, beautiful French actress of 27, went to Hollywood to star in the film version of Françoise Sagan's best-selling novel, A Certain Smile. It was Miss Carère's first visit to the U.S. Over the past year she has seen enough of American life to explode some cherished myths, especially about American women. In this exclusive article, she does so. — THE EDITORS.

Before I came to America, a year ago, I thought most American girls were cold, materialistic, standoffish, not chic, career-obsessed, idle, intelligent, masculine, lucky and domineering.

In Europe this is what one hears about American women — how well off they are, how hard they drive their husbands, how they think all the time with their heads and never with their hearts. We are told that European women make better wives. We are told that American women can learn plenty from us — how to cook, how to be gracious, how to flatter the husband, how to dress, how to be alluring.

After a year here, I can say just the opposite is true. European women can learn plenty from American women.

Good Neighbors

American women are friendly, frank, warm and sentimental. There is an immediacy in their friendship which is unheard of in Europe. For example, when I first came to Los Angeles last May, my agent found me a furnished bungalow-apartment. I could speak no English, so the studio hired Edward Manouk, an old friend of mine from Paris, to translate the script so I could memorize it phonetically.

After one day, I was visited by a neighbor, Mrs. Lena Baron. She bade me welcome, then invited me to a party she and her husband were giving that night. All this was translated for me by Edward, because then I could understand nothing except the woman's kind voice and friendly smile.

I accepted the invitation, thinking all the while that this would never happen in France. There women regard each other with suspicion. You can live next door to a woman for years, and all she will say is, "Bon jour."

In November I returned to France and married Philippe Nicaud, an actor. Five days later I came back to Hollywood to concentrate on my English. The studio would not let me visit France and spend

"I used to hear that American women were too career-minded, that this made them less feminine than we. That's not true."

Christmas with my husband. They wanted me to talk English only. I tried to tell them that my husband could speak good English, that we would speak English all the time together. They said they knew better. So I had to stay in Los Angeles.

Again the neighbors came to my rescue. Lena Baron showed me how to use the washing machine at the Laundromat. Other neighbors invited me to watch TV with them. Still others showed me the town. Dusty Anderson, who is married to Jean Negulesco, the director of A Certain Smile, had me for dinner. Everywhere I found warmth and confidence and no suspicion. American women are open-hearted and open-handed, with very little to hide.

And they are much more versatile than Europeans. The average housewife here knows how to use a screwdriver, how to replace an electric fuse. She can fix her child's bicycle. She knows what a spark plug is, and a fan belt, and pistons. In Europe all these are mechanical mysteries to women.

We say, especially in Paris, that we are the world's best dressers, that we know how to dress for men, that American girls do not. Don't believe it! American women are just as chic, just as sexy as we are. They like nice clothes, perfumes, a change of lipstick and nail polish. They are well-groomed when they want to be. Compare the secretaries of Europe with those of America, and I am sure the Americans would win. They know how to shop, how to dress, how to make a few dollars go a long way.

I used to hear that American women were too career-minded, that this made them less feminine than we. That's not true. The average American housewife is just better educated than we are. She regards herself as her husband's equal, not his servant. She is prepared to work for her family but she wants an equal voice in how things are run. European women act subservient to their husbands because they feel subservient. American women do not. They are proud of being women.

"American women are just as chic as we French. They like nice clothes, perfumes, a change of lipstick and nail polish."

I have met a lot of career women in Hollywood. Mary Wills, who designed my clothes for the picture, is one. Mary is married to Leonard Doss, our color consultant. She has children plus an outstanding career. Phoebe Ephron, wife of our producer and a writer of known ability, also has four children. I found Mary and Phoebe just as feminine and motherly as European women.

The typical American girl also has a sharp sense of humor. I find her quick to laugh and quick to trade jokes. She is alert and not withdrawn. She catches on very fast. She is au courant with the latest gags. European girls are not quite so quick.

Versatile Housewives

The foreign belief that the American housewife is wasteful, idle and pampered cannot be supported by anything I've seen in your country. Housewives in the U.S. are everything: hostess, nurse, shopper, baby-sitter, club woman, careerist, cook, budget-manager. In fact, the American housewife has far more to do than the European, who usually is limited to the home — with the result that she is not nearly so creative or broad-minded as the American housewife.

I have a feeling that Europeans are hard on Americans because secretly they are jealous of them. You make your women healthy, attractive, democratic, independent, friendly, humorous, versatile and creative. In Europe they make us sophisticated, suspicious, exotic or just plain simple.

Summer jobs

Let's face it. It isn't going to be easy to get a summer job this year. And, according to Lila Rosenblum, Director of Research for the National Child Labor Committee, it is going to be especially hard if you're under 16.

After talking with her and with 19-year-old Robert Day of New Bedford, Mass., who in three summers has washed dishes, worked on a farm, helped build a church, I've put their tips into eight sets of questions to help you decide what you can do—and want to do. Ask yourself:

- 1 What is my main objective — to earn money, to get started in some field I may later go into, to "see the world" or what?
- 2 Do I have a skill or talent or experience — typing, gardening, carpentry, child care, just a strong back?
- 3 What jobs are "best bets" in your area? Jobs in camps, parks, playgrounds, hotels, refreshment stands, supermarkets or other stores? Jobs as life guard or attendant at beach or swimming pool, as golf caddy? Full-time baby sitting? Lawn or garden work? Construction?
- 4 Have I consulted the persons who can best advise me — school guidance counselor, favorite teacher, state employment service? (You may have to write the Department of Labor at your state capital.) How about parents, relatives, family friends? Bob says: "Don't turn up your nose at a job relatives or friends may offer. A job is a job, especially this summer."
- 5 Why should I be hired? What have I to offer? What do I know about the job? Can I tell a prospective employer why I am qualified?
- 6 Do I know how to dress for and behave during an interview? (Miss Rosenblum says the way you walk and sit and talk, your poise or lack of it, impresses a potential employer. She adds: "Dress for the interview, not the job. Don't be sloppy or 'casual,' but don't overdress.")
- 7 Do I need working papers? (Your school or state labor department will tell you.)
- 8 Do I have to make money? (Bob's church-building job was non-paying but took him a thousand miles away from home and supported him there, under supervision. He knows a girl who worked in a camp for underprivileged city children. Your school or a social agency may know of a job which doesn't pay anything but will make you feel good or let you travel. Just be sure, Miss Rosenblum says, you treat this kind of job as seriously as you would a paid one.)

There it is. Though summer jobs will be hard to get, some of you will get them. If you've already landed one — or even if you haven't — tell me your experience in looking. Maybe I can pass it along.

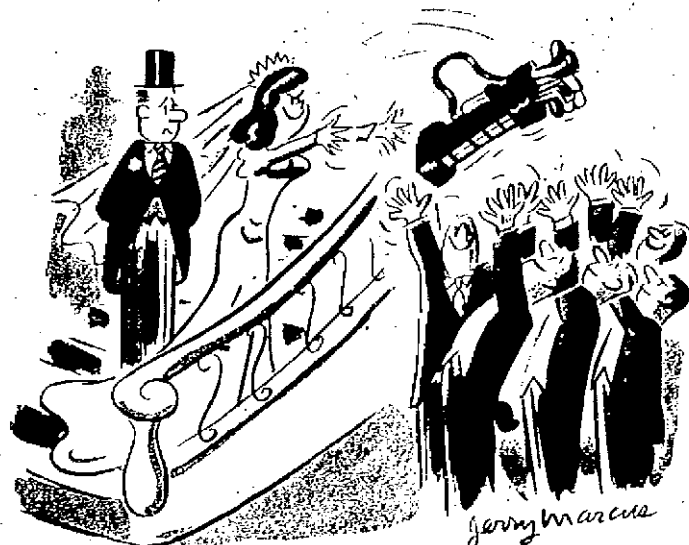

"Lucky for me it turned out to be a fine day for golf. Promised to take the wife to see her mother if it wasn't!"

This is a GAME?

To golfers it's fun. To wives it's a headache. To these cartoonists — thank goodness — it's a source of quiet joy.

"I'm pooped. Do you want to quit now or try the second hole?"

Bob, let's cancel the baby sitter. With this upset stomach, I can't go out tonight.

Sure you can, Liz!
Try Pepto-Bismol.
Hospital tests prove it relieves upsets. And it's great for indigestion or nausea, too!

Pepto-Bismol works where soda, saltzars and "tummy-aids" fail! For upset stomach, indigestion, nausea, or diarrhea—Pepto-Bismol's special medicinal formula soothes with a gentle coating action. It works in both the stomach and the intestinal tract—where soda and alkalizers never help. For children or adults, this wonderful pink liquid helps control simple diarrhea without constipating.

Take hospital tested Pepto-Bismol... and feel good again!

NEW SPRAY HELPS CLEAR ALL 10 NASAL-SINUS AREAS clogged by summer cold or allergy. You breathe easy, fast!

This new development, Super Anahist Nasal Spray, contains Thonzide that melts away mucus. Decongestants to shrink swollen membranes—open all 10 nasal-sinus areas. Plus an antibiotic to kill dangerous germs. Breathe easy, fast, with Super Anahist Antibiotic Nasal Spray.

Regularity problems from lack of bulk? Mrs. Victoria Panzetta of Rochester, New York, writes: "I was taking all kinds of laxatives, but none seemed to help. Now I eat All-Bran and haven't had any trouble since." Kellogg's All-Bran with milk is the natural way to keep regular without habit-forming laxative drugs. Try a daily half-cup of Kellogg's All-Bran, the original whole bran cereal.

Do you ever wish you were single again?

DO you ever feel so tired that you would like to be alone — get away from your family? Do you find that even your children often get on your nerves . . . that you and your wife are bickering — for no apparent reason?

You may be cross and irritable simply because you're tired . . . run-down! If you haven't the pep and energy you used to have, if you are always too "upset" to play with the children . . . too "worn-out" to be the husband and father your family has a right to expect, your condition may simply be due to a very common, but easily corrected nutritional deficiency in your diet. And it's time you did something about it!

Thousands of people who once felt worn-out, nervous and irritable due to a lack of vitamins, minerals and lipotropic factors in their diets have been helped by the famous Vitasafe Plan. And you may, too! Discover whether these high-potency capsules can help restore your youthful vigor and vitality. Mail the coupon for a trial 30-day supply on this amazing no-risk offer!

LIPOTROPIC FACTORS, MINERALS and VITAMINS

Safe, Nutritional Formula Containing 27 Proven Ingredients: Glutamic Acid, Choline, Inositol, Methionine, Citrus Bioflavonoid, 11 Vitamins (Including Blood-Building B-12 and Folic Acid) Plus 11 Minerals

To prove to you the remarkable advantages of the Vitasafe Plan . . . we will send you, without charge, a 30-day free supply of high-potency VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES so you can discover for yourself how much healthier, happier and peppier you may feel after a few days' trial! Just one of these capsules each day supplies your body with over twice the minimum adult daily requirements of Vitamins A, C, and D . . . five times the minimum adult requirement of Vitamin B-1 and the full concentration recommended by the National Research Council for the other four important vitamins! Each capsule contains the amazing Vitamin B-12—one of the most remarkably potent nutrients science has yet discovered—a vitamin that actually helps strengthen your blood and nourish your body organs by stimulating your bone marrow to produce more energy bearing red corpuscles.

Glutamic Acid, a natural substance derived from wheat gluten and thought by many doctors to help nourish the blood cells for more power of concentration and increased mental alertness, is also included in Vitasafe Capsules. And to top off this exclusive formula, each capsule now brings you an important dosage of Citrus Bioflavonoid—the anti-cold factor that has been so widely acclaimed. This formula is so complete it is available nowhere else at any price!

WHY YOU MAY NEED THESE SAFE HIGH-POTENCY CAPSULES

As your own doctor will tell you, scientists have discovered that not only is a daily minimum of vitamins and minerals, in one form or another, absolutely indispensable for proper health . . . but some people actually need more than the average daily requirements established by the National Research Council. If you tire easily . . . if you work under pressure, or if you're over 40 or subject to the stress of travel, worry and other strains . . . then you may be one of the people who needs this extra supply of vitamins. In that case, VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES may be "just what the doctor ordered"—because they contain the most frequently recommended food supplement formula for people in this category! You can use these Capsules confidently because U.S. Government regulations require that you get exactly what the label states—pure ingredients whose beneficial effects have been proven time and time again!

WHY WE WANT YOU TO TRY A 30-DAY SUPPLY—FREE!

We offer you this 30-day free trial of valuable VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES for just one reason. So many persons have already tried them with such astounding results . . . so many people have written in telling us how much better they felt after only a short trial . . . that we are absolutely convinced that you, too, may experience the same feeling of health and well-being after a similar trial. In fact, we're so convinced that we're willing to back up our convictions with our own money. You don't spend a penny for the vitamins! All the cost and all the risk are ours. A month's supply of amazing new Plan that provides you regularly with all the vitamins and minerals you will need. This Plan actually enables you to receive a 30-day supply of vitamins every month regularly, safely and factory-fresh for exactly $2.78—or 45% lower than the usual retail price. BUT YOU DO NOT HAVE TO DECIDE NOW—you are under no obligation to buy anything from us whatsoever. To get your free 30-day supply and a guaranteed opportunity of regular worthwhile savings on your vitamin purchases, simply fill out the coupon and mail it to us today. We'll rush you your free month's supply of high-potency VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES along with information regarding the benefits of the Plan. During your free trial period you can decide whether or not you want to enjoy the benefits and tremendous savings offered by the VITASAFE PLAN. In any case, the trial month's supply of 30 VITASAFE CAPSULES is yours to use free.

Now, since the supply of capsules that we can give away free is necessarily limited, we urge you to act at once. You risk nothing; the cost of the capsules is ours. So don't miss out on this marvelous opportunity. Fill in the coupon now and send today.

WE'VE SEEN ENOUGH! LET'S GO!

AS THE TWO SNAKE THEIR WAY BACK TO THE RANGER POSITION, LANCE'S MIND RACES: HOW TO STAMPEDE THE HEAVILY GUARDED ENEMY HORSES USING AS FEW MEN AS POSSIBLE.....

BY THE TIME THEY REACH BIVOUAC, HE HAS THE ANSWER. A STAFF MEETING IS CALLED...

HERE'S A CHART OF BENEDICT'S CAMP. BLAZE, YOU'LL TAKE 20 MEN AND CIRCLE THE HILLS TO THE WEST. GROUP FOR CHARGE AT THE MOUTH OF THE VALLEY. ONE HOUR BEFORE DAYBREAK, THEIR HORSES WILL BE STAMPEDED... SOME WILL HEAD YOUR WAY. USE THEM FOR COVER AND DRIVE THEM BACK INTO CAMP....

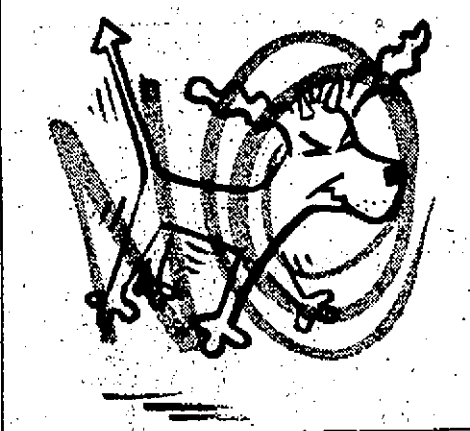

HOW YOU AIMING TO STAMPEDE THEM HOSSES? THE GUARDS CAN FIRE INTO 'EM AND TURN 'EM BACK, CAN'T THEY?

MY GUESS IS THE GUARDS WON'T BE AROUND AFTER THE RUN STARTS!

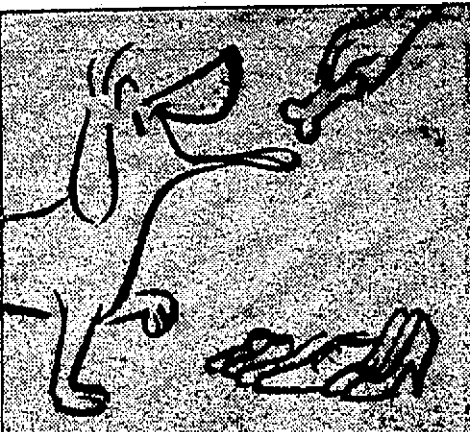

SEND THE INDIAN HUNTERS IN ON YOUR WAY OUT, WILL YOU? AND GOOD-LUCK, BLAZE!

My master started me on the Milk-Bone training plan. Whenever he caught me chewing things I shouldn't, he tossed a magazine at me.

Oh, how that word, "No!" kept ringing in my ears. Everytime I heard it, I jumped a mile high. I was becoming a nervous wreck!

Training had its bright moments. After every lesson, my smart master always rewarded me with tasty, crunchy MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS. It was fun and I caught on fast with Milk-Bone.

Today, I am a good dog. My master's property is safe—and my natural craving for chewing is satisfied by Milk-Bone. Tasty Milk-Bone, the famous bone-shaped dog biscuit sure beats chewing shoes any day!

Train your dog to behave better—the Milk-Bone way

Here's fun for every member of the family. After every lesson, hand your dog MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS. This easy training procedure works wonders. Even experts like Lee Duncan, trainer of Rin Tin Tin, are surprised how fast dogs learn when they're rewarded with tasty MILK-BONE.

MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS are naturally good for your dog. High in nutrition and food energy. Contain the whole milk that helps build strong teeth and healthy gums.

You'll enjoy your dog even more when you train him the Milk-Bone way—with America's largest selling dog biscuit.

Trujillo Jr. Asks Divorce in Mexico

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Lt. Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., whose romancing of Hollywood stars made headlines, is shedding his wife with a Mexican divorce.

This was disclosed in an interview Saturday with Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo, the general's father who has run this country for 28 years.

The generalissimo said his son's divorce proceedings were instituted in April in the civil court of Bravos District in Chihuahua, Mexico. That was before the son broke into the news with his lavish gifts to Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kim Novak. (The three civil courts in Juarez, which is the Bravos District of the state of Chihuahua, said no such suit was on file with them, although it might be pending with an attorney. Neither the attorney for Trujillo nor for Mrs. Trujillo could be immediately located. An uncontested Mexican divorce is sometimes granted almost immediately, but a contested action can drag on for weeks.

THE 29-YEAR-OLD chief of the Dominican Air Force and his wife, Octavia Adolfini Ricart de Trujillo, have six children. The wife and children are now in the Dominican Republic. Young Trujillo has been studying at the U. S. Army General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The generalissimo said the divorce "has absolutely no connection" with his son's romantic adventures in Hollywood. The generalissimo, in high spirits and laughing, said furthermore his son had the right to spend his own money any way he pleases in the United States.

Instead of being inked about young Trujillo's romancing, the generalissimo said what his son did "is his own private business, and he is spending his own money."

The elder Trujillo, 67, said his country never received a penny in direct aid from the United States. This was a reference to charges by Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) that young Trujillo's lavish living was costing a million dollars annually at a time when the Dominican Republic was earmarked for $1,300,000, in U. S. aid.

White Russian 'Old Believers' Showered with Money, Clothes

Southland Gives China Refugees Warm Welcome

Eighty-two White Russians—refugees from Red China—headed for their new home in Brazil today after a memorable Southland welcome.

Fifteen families of a centuries-old Russian sect, known as Old Believers, were showered with gifts of money, clothing and toys during their brief stopover at Wilmington's Don Hotel.

They were overwhelmed by American hospitality.

"How do we thank everyone?" asked the group's elder member and spiritual leader, 74-year-old Avtonom Kulikov. "Whom do we write?"

AN INTERPRETER attempted to explain that no formal thank-you is expected.

The refugees flew into Los Angeles Thursday from Hong Kong, where they had stayed the past seven months after managing to leave the north-west part of China.

In the group are 15 men, 13 women, 14 teenagers and 35 children.

Now they're bound for the interior of Brazil where they will homestead farms. They sailed Saturday night aboard the Brazil Maru.

THEY ARE THE first of 493 Old Believers being moved from China by the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, the United Nations and the World Council of Churches. The others are in Hong Kong.

Friday, the pioneers were entertained at a dinner at the First United Christian Molokan

Seize Man as Arson Suspect

A man with a record of narcotics convictions was arrested near a Long Beach bar Saturday night on suspicion of attempted arson after a waitress said she saw him splashing gasoline about a hallway leading to the bar's restrooms.

Police Sgt. D. K. Goldsmith took into custody Arthur Frank Beard, 28, of 505 Marine Ave., Wilmington, outside the Crow's Nest at 1912 W. Willow St.

OFFICERS EXAMINING the gasoline-splashed premises behind the bar, which was filled with a Saturday night crowd, recalled the death of six persons April 4, 1957, when a bottle of flaming gasoline was thrown into a Los Angeles bar.

Waitress Dorothy M. Woodard told police she first met Beard early Saturday morning in the walk-in refrigerator behind the bar. She said the man refused further drinks and thrown out of the bar after he followed her into the refrigerator.

She told officers she next saw the man Saturday night when she surprised him in the hallway leading to the bar's restrooms as he was splashing the contents of a jug about on the walls.

FROM ANOTHER TIME TO ANOTHER PLACE

Attired in the same regalia worn by their forefathers, the Ivan Kulikovs, one of 15 White Russian families forsaking Red China for new homes in Brazil, pack in Wilmington Saturday for the final leg of their trip. Ivan, 27, is the eldest son of the group's spiritual leader, Avtonom Kulikov, 74. Known as Old Believers, the centuries-old sect has left both Russia and China because of Communist oppression. Like Ivan, wife Marfa, 28, and daughter Olga, 6, are happy about the trip. (Staff Photo by Skip Shuman)

Nixon Urges Envoys Spend More Time With Masses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, fresh from mob violence in Latin America, feels that U. S. diplomats there have been spending too much time in the drawing rooms of rulers and the socially elite and not enough with the ordinary people, it was disclosed Saturday.

It can be reported on high authority that he returned from his trip convinced that the United States must start devoting more attention to the aspirations of the masses if it is to stave off growing Communist influence south of the border.

One of his major recommendations when he reports to President Eisenhower will be that U. S. diplomats increase their contacts with students, labor leaders, teachers and intellectuals.

IN TOO MANY countries, the vice president has told friends, U. S. diplomacy is still aspirational of the masses if it is geared to the old idea of dealing with ruling groups and the mingling with the wealthy.

The time has come, he feels, to get diplomatic contact work by the State Department, the U. S. Information Agency, and other American representations out of the social echelon and into the work rooms and the classrooms.

He believes Latin America is a top priority objective of the Communists and that they are concentrating mainly on wooing labor leaders and the so-called intelligentsia. But he feels that the Communists have not yet made major inroads among the Latin American masses.

THE VICE PRESIDENT also was reported greatly concerned about the thorny issue of U. S. dealings with Latin American dictatorships. He has described these relations as a weight around the State Department's neck in trying to keep the friendship of the Latin American people.

Not even in the U. S. Diplomatic Corps, Nixon feels, is

THREAT OF RIOTING

French Premier Tightens Control

PARIS (AP)—Embattled Premier Pierre Pflimlin told the nation Saturday night he will use all his extraordinary emergency powers to crush the efforts of groups, right or left, attempting a violent overthrow of the French Republic.

With the threat of riot and bloodshed in the air, the new premier:

1. Took to radio and TV to plead anew for unity, law and order.

2. Designated a new chief of staff of the combined armed forces to replace Gen. Paul Ely, popular Army figure and de Gaulle sympathizer. Ely resigned after the arrest of two Air Force generals in a round-up of Rightists.

3. Sent his personal envoy twice to see Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The envoy, Gov. Marcel Diebold of the Haute-Marne Department saw a De Gaulle military aide on his first visit. The second time he talked with De Gaulle, presumably about the war hero's announcement he is returning to Paris Monday to talk about his offer to assume all power in France.

IN OTHER developments, de Gaulle's right hand man and chief Parliament representative, Jacques Soustelle, evaded police surveillance and flew from Switzerland to a thundering welcome in Algeria, hotbed of Gaullism.

Defense ministry sources confirmed the two Air Force generals, Andre Chaille and Jacques Martin, were confined to quarters some distance from Paris. This is equivalent to house arrest.

The Defense Ministry officially said only that the two generals had been given a mission which took them temporarily from the Paris region. The ministry would not say where.

This action was believed to have brought Ely's resignation.

PFLIMLIN WENT to the people a few hours after the cabinet session which named the new chief of staff for the armed forces and adopted the first measures under the new emergency powers bill.

Pflimlin issued a call for unity in his radio-TV talk after charging that conspirators against France had turned a demonstration in Algiers into an insurrection by the adroit use of lies and false propaganda.

He said some groups in France sought the violent overthrow of the Republic. One

12 Buildings Scrambled by Twister

WAUSAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A small tornado whistled into this Marinette County village of 600 Saturday and ripped through more than a dozen buildings in less than a minute.

Several persons were reported to have suffered cuts and bruises from flying debris as the twister screamed along U.S. 141, Wausauke's main street. Electric power and telephone service were blanked in several areas.

The front of the community's bank was ripped off by the tornado and the sheriff's office set up guards there and at other points in the block-long area suffering the worst damage.

Planes Sent to Europe on Standby Duty

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States Saturday sent 18 big C124 transport planes to Europe for possible use in evacuating Americans from revolt-threatened Lebanon.

Another 18 to 22 of the 200-passenger troop transports were standing by awaiting orders to fly in a second wave to U.S. air bases in Germany for airlift use of needed.

The State Department also announced the United States is responding to an appeal by the Beirut government to expedite previously planned military aid shipments and "in some instances to augment these programs."

"IN MAKING this request, to which the United States agreed, the government of Lebanon indicated that the integrity of Lebanon was threatened by persons under alien influence," the statement said.

This presumably referred to President Camille Chamoun's charges that Lebanon's neighbor, the United Arab Republic of Syria and Egypt, has inspired and supported the attempted revolt and anti-Western riots in Lebanon.

Earlier Saturday the State Department said it appears now that assistance by U.S. troops will not be needed to safeguard American lives and property in Lebanon.

A later statement praised the government's "valiant efforts" to maintain internal security.

U.S. AIRLIFT planes already are delivering rifles, gas masks and other "police type" equipment to Beirut under terms of a previous, State Department announcement. Tanks are to be provided soon.

Officials indicated the increased aid would involve chiefly more of the same type of equipment.

The statement said: "The additional assistance which the Lebanese government is receiving from the United States has as its sole purpose the augmentation of the capacity of Lebanese security forces to control and prevent... subversive efforts and to facilitate the restoration of peace and quiet which the Lebanese people desire and to which they are entitled."

THE STATEMENT emphasized that Lebanese political leaders "of varying shades of opinion" have stressed the importance of using only peaceful means for achieving political aims. It said these leaders "have been unanimous in stating that they deplored the resort to violence, the attacks on persons and property and the efforts to disrupt order in Lebanon."

Tim Tam, ridden by Ismael Valenzuela, defeated Lincoln Road by one length with Gone F'n' third. Silky trailed far behind the field most of the way, made a move on the far turn, but flattened out in the stretch.

City in Nightmare: How L. A. Battled Plague

By BEN ZINSER

History's Black Death, which once devastated Europe's population, came to Los Angeles one fall day in 1924. It struck suddenly. Within hours a word of terror sprang from the tongues of Angelinos.

The word: "Plague!" Specifically the horror was that of bubonic plague and the even more dangerous pneumonic plague.

The nightmare began on Oct. 26. That day a 37-year-old male resident of the 700 block Clara St.—in the old hay-market district—was admitted to County Hospital with what appeared to be lobar pneumonia. He died the same day.

Just one week earlier the victim had attended his wife's funeral. Within the next two weeks 12 of the mourners at those rites were to die of the plague.

ON OCT. 29 SIX MEMBERS of the family in the Clara St. residence were admitted to County Hospital, suspected of epidemic meningitis. On the same day a relative who lived at the address died in the hospital of the plague.

Four other members of the family were admitted to the hospital on Oct. 30, all ill with pneumonia. Six other pneumonia patients, all relatives and friends, were admitted a day later.

The dying continued. One of the victims was a 48-year-old Catholic priest. He had administered the last rites to a boy ill with the plague. The priest became ill on Oct. 28. He died of the plague Nov. 2.

A 48-year-old County Hospital ambulance driver who had assisted in moving plague patients became ill Oct. 30. He died of the plague Nov. 1.

IN COUNTY HOSPITAL a nurse fell ill with the plague. She was one of the few who recovered.

Frightened attendants wore emergency masks made of pillow cases with a celluloid window held in place by adhesive tape.

Meanwhile, the mother, brother and sister of the original victim had died of the plague.

In rapid succession 33 persons succumbed to the Black Death. Many were persons who had visited the ill-fated family on Clara St.

Most of the bodies were cremated in the county incinerator. Final toll: 31 cases of pneumonic plague, 29 deaths; six cases of bubonic plague, four deaths.

IN THEIR MAD RACE to stop the spread of plague, health authorities found 114 persons who had come into contact with victims but who did not contract the infection.

On Oct. 31 the Los Angeles Health Dept. decided to quarantine an area of about seven blocks surrounding the Clara St. address. The quarantine began at midnight. None of the 1,600 persons inside was allowed to leave the area, bounded roughly by Alameda St., the Los Angeles River, Macy St. and Alhambra Rd.

No one was allowed to enter—except a half-dozen employees of the Los Angeles Health Dept. Once inside, they were not allowed to leave until the quarantine was lifted.

At the outset the Los Angeles Police Dept. furnished 75 men to patrol the outskirts of the quarantine area. There were 25 officers on each watch. Eventually 75 officers were assigned to each watch.

The Fire Dept. provided rope to enclose the entire area.

ONCE, WHEN A GROUP of residents tried to go through the lines to the outside world, the Police Dept. sent sawed-off shotguns to its quarantine guards. The residents decided to stay and returned to their homes.

Inside the lines, Health Dept. workers set up headquarters in a church. Their job: Find rats and fleas in the quarantine area and destroy them.

The plague is an infectious fever caused by a germ called bacillus pestis. Its carrier is a flea called Xenopsylla cheopis. The flea rides around on rats.

The rat fleas become infected through biting diseased

L.A.C. Says: 'Unfair Approach'

Union leaders opposing the "right to work" initiative which if it qualifies will be known as Employer-Employee Relations Initiative on the November ballot, are attempting to frighten charitable organizations into opposing the initiative. This is shown by a news release by the Greater Los Angeles CIO Council. According to the CIO spokesman the initiative, if passed, would make it illegal for unions and employers to arrange for collection of worker contributions for charitable organizations.

The release is primarily aimed at A I D (Associated In-Group Donors). It names such well known agencies as Cancer, Red Cross, Crippled Children and other agencies which receive funds from A I D. It, therefore, would make it appear that a "right to work" law would deprive workers of the right to donate through payroll deductions to A I D or other agencies.

Actually, the initiative provides only that a worker does not have to belong and pay dues to a union to hold a job. There are many enterprises in this and other areas which now operate part union and part non-union workers. In other enterprises there is no union and in still others a worker must become a member of the union after being employed a certain period—usually a month. In some crafts the closed shop and closed union is effective. That means only union members can get a job—and getting into such a union is very hard to accomplish.

We are not arguing here for or against the initiative. But we are critical of union leadership making a false issue of charitable contributions in an effort to raise opposition to the initiative. It is a smoke screen of the most transparent kind. If it is to be the type of opposition to the right to work initiative by unions, it should be recognized now as what it is.

Right now plants in this area have plans with workers for payroll deductions for A I D and other organizations. In some of these plants union contracts cover all the workers and the check off agreement must be arranged between the union and management. In other plants, the union represents a portion of the workers and has made such arrangements for its members—the other workers are given the same privileges of payroll deduction by management. If a right-to-work law were voted by the people the union position would be exactly the same as it now is in plants where it does not represent all the workers.

It is unfortunate that the CIO injects such an issue into its fight against the initiative. Support of charitable and character building organizations is a responsibility of all who have steady incomes. This attitude has been shown by millions of families who believe in the Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and all the good youth organizations. Certainly the cooperation of union leaders in conducting campaigns among their members has made such campaigns possible. This cooperation is a civic responsibility which should not be used as a political foothold.

There are many facets to the right to work philosophy. It is not a partisan issue, although efforts will be made to make it so. But in doing so, it is unfair to make it appear contributions to charitable organizations are involved. If they are—and if they are reduced—it will be the responsibility of those who make such contributions on issue in the campaign. It is an unfair threat to organizations serving the unfortunate and the young people, which we doubt many union members will approve—L.A.C.

Church in Los Angeles. But because of their belief, the group restricted their fare to water, bread and fish. Old Believers deny themselves meat, milk and butter on Fridays.

Their appearance resembles that of their forefathers.

The men and boys wear their shirttails out, bound to the body by a belt. The hair is combed in front to form bangs.

The women wear bulky dresses. Their hair is done in braids—one braid for unmarried women, two for the married. In public the married women always cover their heads with a scarf.

The men never shave.

THE PEOPLE marry only with those of their religion. They do not smoke, or drink alcohol, coffee or tea.

They hope their new life in Brazil will mark the end of their wanderings.

The Old Believers have been seeking a permanent home since the 17th Century when their refusal to accept reforms instituted by the Russian Patriarch Nikon brought oppression.

At that time they fled to the Far Eastern wastes of Russia. They lived in their self-contained communities until Soviet collectivism forced them to flee again—this time to Manchuria and Western China.

BUT HERE THEY also were oppressed by Communism. In 1953 they applied to the Chinese government for exit permits.

Aboard their ship, as they travel to Brazil, are 52 tons of supplies, including tools, machinery, seeds and fertilizers. The supplies were donated by American Protestants through the Church World Service.

The National Council of Churches of Christ has purchased a 6,000-acre tract for the Old Believers in the State of Parana in Brazil. About a tenth of the land already has been cleared and is suitable for farming. There are 40,000 pine trees available for lumber.

"Our desire is to live far away from the big towns on broad stretches of land where we can find farming work familiar to us," one of the group said.

Child Heart Patient Out of Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—Three-year-old Mabel Chin smiled, waved and cuddled a toy kitten Saturday as she left University Hospital less than two weeks after undergoing a televised heart operation.

Mabel's doctor said she was in excellent condition. She underwent heart surgery May 6 on a TV program sponsored by the New York Heart Association to show the public what great strides have been made in heart operations.

A SPOKESMAN for the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center said Mabel was born with a duct leading into the heart opening. The operation was performed to close the duct. Her life would have been shortened if the operation had not been performed.

"ORDER AND the laws of the Republic are the only safeguard of the unity of the nation," he declared.

Soustelle's flight brought cabinet restrictions to prevent French citizens from leaving France. Border controls were tightened and restriction of movements inside France were hinted.

Soustelle, a former governor general in Algeria and darling of the French settlers there, was cheered wildly by massed thousands in Algiers as he shouted on arrival "Long live Algeria, long live France, long live de Gaulle."

Then Soustelle announced:

"I have no other ambition than to remake the national unity on both shores of the Mediterranean."

IT SEEMED obvious Soustelle had the help of some French officials in escaping. He was under virtual house arrest and the Pfifflin government has forbidden movement of ships or planes to Algeria.

It appeared the Navy might be wavering, and perhaps ready to back the Army. Air Force and security unit sentiment for de Gaulle. The Navy had been ordered to halt a tanker loaded with vital fuel. A reliable source said the tanker slipped into Algeria Friday night despite the orders. The Navy said the weather was bad.

Rightists defied the ban on all public meetings and called for demonstrations at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe, despite the deployment of 35,000 police and security police in the tense capital.

Parisians fearing trouble bought out stores stocks of canned goods.

Under Pfifflin's emergency powers, Rightists were rounded up in Paris and throughout the country. Arrests are allowed without warrant at any hour.

rats. When the infected fleas bite humans, they transmit the disease.

But the real villain of 1924's plague epidemic is thought to be a California ground squirrel.

C. K. Stewart, now director of pest control for the Los Angeles City Health Dept., believes a flea-carrying ground squirrel came into the haymarket area on a load of hay from Northern California.

It's Stewart's theory that infected fleas left the squirrel in favor of rats in the haymarket area.

Eventually a single flea bit a human, and this person became the epidemic's first victim.

ALL THE OTHERS who caught the highly contagious disease, Stewart says, contracted it by droplet infection—by spray expelled from the nose and mouth of an infected human.

In pneumonic plague there is high temperature. Breathing becomes hurried and the face dusky. There is coughing. The expectoration soon becomes watery and profuse, with little whitish specks, which contain great quantities of plague bacilli.

The physical signs are those of bronchopneumonia. Death often occurs in three or four days.

Stewart was one of the half-dozen Health Dept. men admitted to the 1924 quarantine area. The little group directed a crew of 400 residents in the fight to stop the spread of plague.

For the first two weeks the volunteers sprayed 1,300 structures with an emulsion of kerosene and soft soap. Object: to kill fleas.

Thirteen structures were burned to the ground to destroy rats.

IN OTHER BUILDINGS the skirting was removed from foundations—most of the houses were built on stilts—to make it difficult for rats to hide. Rats love sheltered underpasses. Holes in floors and walls were sealed with metal. Food for residents was brought by truck to the police lines daily.

Other trucks brought a ton of rat poison to the lines. Little squares of poisoned bread were planted throughout the quarantine area.

"I couldn't sleep at night," Stewart remembers. "The poison was a dark phosphorous paste which looked like molasses. Small children in the district often attempted to eat our 'rat sandwiches.' More than once I slapped a piece of poisoned bread out of a kid's hand."

"Luckily we never lost a child. But we did lose a couple of donkeys and any number of dogs and cats."

Many rat traps were set. All rats poisoned or trapped within the quarantine area were burned and buried.

THE LAST CASE OF PNEUMONIC PLAGUE developed on Nov. 6 and the quarantine was finally removed on Nov. 13. One week is considered the maximum incubation period for pneumonic plague.

But the work of local, state and federal health officials had only begun. From Nov. 4, 1924, until June 20, 1925, Los Angeles health authorities killed 141,356 rats in the city; 111 of which turned out to be plague-infected. Seven plague-infected squirrels also were located.

In the same period, 9,470 buildings either were disinfected or "ratstopped." Ratstopping means opening up the foundation and plugging holes in walls and floors.

Cost of the Los Angeles plague epidemic to property owners: $2,607,975.

By 1948 Los Angeles had trapped one million rats. But since 1924 only four rats have given authorities a scare. In 1932 four rats infected with plague were found in the metropolitan district of Los Angeles. But there was no outbreak.

BECAUSE LONG BEACH IS A PORT CITY, the Health Dept. here constantly surveys the harbor in a program to prevent an outbreak of epidemic plague or of typhus, also transmitted by the rat flea.

Whenever rat infestations are discovered, public health officials put out poison baits. Rat guards are required on all mooring lines.

Throughout the year poison baits are planted in the tops of date palms, a favorite residing place for rats. Periodically the Health Dept. searches the city dump for rats.

The battle against the dread plague continues, even though the last outbreak in the Southland occurred more than 33 years ago.

"Now is a good time for a review," the New Hampshire Republican said.

PREPARING FOR CRISIS

A giant Douglas C124 Globemaster troop transport takes off from Donaldson Air Force Base near Greenville, S. C., Saturday bound for Germany. SAN PEDRO — While Mrs. Emma C. Crosby was visiting a daughter in Long Beach, a burglar broke into her home at 2016 S. Alma St. and made off with at least $600 in loot, she reported to police Saturday.

The action was taken despite a reassuring statement from the State Department Saturday that the pro-Western Lebanese government appears to be able to maintain order.

However, other precautionary measures were being taken. Police-type small weapons were rushed by air to Beirut Saturday, and the State Department announced that an undisclosed

Lady Docker Asks Delay on Drink Rap

NAPLES, Italy (UP)—Britain's marble-shooting Lady Norah Docker Saturday asked an Italian court for time to prepare a defense against charges she insulted a customs official while "troublesomely drunk."

The British socialite, who more recently was banned from Monaco and the French Riviera for tearing up a paper model of the Monacan flag in anger against Prince Rainier, did not appear at the Naples tribunal. She sent a cable from London requesting the delay. The three-man court accepted her appeal.

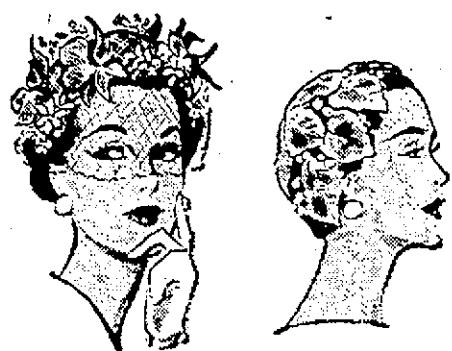

Italy accused her of insulting a customs official while in a state of "troublesome drunkenness" in 1956. At the time, Lady Docker was visiting Italy aboard her yacht. She has denied the charges.

FOREST WONDER

By Clydene M. Adams

Have you ever wandered up a path
Of a forest in the fall,
To admire the shining pebbles
And the pine trees straight and tall?

The frogs are croaking loudly
At the pond around the bend,
They sing a merry symphony
That goes on without an end.

A squirrel chatters gaily
As he stops to look at me,
But when I turn to look at him,
He scampers up a tree.

A buck, in all his splendor,
Stands on a nearby hill,
His majesty overcomes me,
He stands so proud and still.

But I felt an unseen presence
As I walked this forest dim,
For in all its stately grandeur,
There was the holiness of Him.

For His voice was in the pine tree,
His whisper in the leaves,
His touch was in the breeze.

Youthful poets, such as Clydene M. Adams (see above), drew special recognition Saturday at the 19th annual convention of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets in Lafayette Hotel.

Miss Adams, 17, of 14409 Clarkdale, Norwalk, won an honorable mention in the high school division of the federation's statewide poetry contest. She's a senior at Excelsior Union High School.

THE FEDERATION PRESIDENT, Mrs. Helen Hutton Bangs of Monterey Park, commented on the entries of youthful poets:

"In their youth and their vigor, these young poets hold promise of creating tomorrow's singing masterworks of poetry."

Another youthful award winner in this area was Willial Moritz, 2081 Elanta Dr., San Pedro, a senior at San Pedro High School, who gained an honorable mention.

More than 1,000 poems were adjudged in the competition. Awards were made in 10 divisions.

About 300 persons attended the convention.

IN ADULT COMPETITION Maurice Ogden, 8511 Blanche Ave., Garden Grove, won three awards—second place in poems of the sea, third in sonnet classification and honorable mention in "any subject."

Other area winners:
Mabel Luce York, 345½ Hermosa Ave., second place, word portrait; Grace Holliday Scott, 3635 Gaviota Ave., third, word portrait; Evelyn J. Wallick, 11517 S. Gurley Ave., Downey, third, hokku (Japanese-style poetry); Stella Isenhower Flewelling, 1314 Elm Ave., Torrance, honorable mention, hokku; Charles Dee Cox, 11051 Bettles Pl., Garden Grove, honorable mention, hokku; M. 2 Killers Guilty of Murder

LOS ANGELES — Two murderers who Monday attacked and wounded a deputy sheriff at their Superior Court trial were found guilty Saturday of a 1957 killing and attempted robbery.

A jury of nine women and three men returned the verdict in Judge Thomas L. Ambrose's court.

The defendants — 25-year-old Augustine Acosta and 23-year-old Gregory Valenzuela — were charged with the Oct. 14, 1957, murder of East Los Angeles liquor-store owner Joseph Castellanes, 51.

At their trial, the men leaped across a courtroom table and stabbed Deputy Ned Lovretovich with spoons fashioned into daggers. Lovretovich, who was wounded in the shoulder, is recovering.

The jury was ordered to return to court at 9:30 a.m. Monday to determine if the pair will receive the death penalty or life imprisonment.

Stassen Puts on Untiring Performance

By WALTER KIDDER
Of I.P.T. Washington Bureau

LANCASTER, Pa. — Harold E. Stassen is campaigning for the governorship of Pennsylvania with the same gusto, tireless energy, and boundless personal effort with which he twice sought the presidency of the United States.

From early morning until well after midnight, day after day, the former Minnesota governor is trudging the Pennsylvania countryside as he tries to beat two Republican primary opponents, Arthur T. McGonigle and William E. Livingston, for the post of the Keystone State's chief executive.

NO CITY is too large, no hamlet too small to attract the attention of Stassen. He spent a typical day here in the central part of Pennsylvania. He left Philadelphia—an hour and a half away—to appear at nine o'clock Saturday morning at a coffee hour in the small village of Blue Ball. About thirty persons showed up and Stassen discussed with them the issues of the day—concentrating largely on Pennsylvania matters. At Blue Ball, as he did throughout the day, Stassen stated that because of inept state management—by both Democrats and Republicans—Pennsylvania is losing industry, its unemployment is disastrously high, its tax policies frightening away potential industries, and its political parties dominated by small cliques of professional politicians more interested in holding their offices than in the welfare of the state.

IN DISCUSSING the woes of Pennsylvania, Stassen boldly and proudly calls attention to his record as governor of Minnesota. Far from playing down his office-holding in another state—a circumstance which prods his opposition to cry loudly "carpetbagger"—Stassen uses his Gopher State governorship to underline his assertion that he is the most experienced of the GOP candidates.

McGonigle, the Republican organization's choice, is a pretzel manufacturer (his campaign slogan—"A New Twist to Government") and never has held public office. Livingston was four times Pennsylvania's secretary for internal affairs, but never governor.

High Leaders Urge Ike to Halt H-Tests

WASHINGTON (UP)—Some high government officials are urging President Eisenhower to announce plans by June 30 to suspend U.S. nuclear tests, it was learned Saturday.

They believe the announcement would score a propaganda victory by spelling out American intentions on H-bomb testing before the United Nations Scientific Committee on Atomic Radiation issues a special report July 1. The report is expected to focus world attention on the mounting dangers of atomic radiation.

The decision rests with the President. The actual suspension would come after current U.S. nuclear experiments in the Pacific are completed late this summer.

THE GROUP URGING Eisenhower to act is believed to include Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The administration for some time has been studying the feasibility of agreeing with Russia to halt tests under strict controls to assure "no cheating." But Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, has been arguing for continued testing to develop anti-missile defenses and so-called "clean" H-bombs.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has been reported in favor of a halt.

The issue will likely be discussed when British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan comes here early next month for conferences with the President. MacMillan views could influence his decision. Britain, which still is developing its nuclear arsenal, needs more testing to perfect its weapons.

INFORMED sources said Saturday the trend of the administration study is toward an eventual suspension, but this likely would come only under a firm agreement with Russia which included international inspections.

The United States meantime is trying to get together with Russia and start technical experts talking about methods to police disarmament agreements. Russia has expressed serious doubts as to the value of such talks but has agreed to begin working on ways to police a nuclear test ban.

The United States is now considering a reply to a Soviet note agreeing to limited technical discussions. It may be sent to Russia this week.

Billy Graham to Testify on Pornography

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham agreed Saturday to testify before a California interim subcommittee studying pornography if he is given time to prepare his testimony.

He commended the committee "for the excellent job it is doing" in bringing public attention to this "national scandal."

The North Carolina evangelist telephoned the San Mateo, Calif., Times Saturday and told the newspaper he would testify next week if the subcommittee chairman, Louis Francis (R-San Mateo), wanted him to do so.

Graham was subpoenaed by the committee Friday night as he prayed before 15,000 people attending his revival in the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Teenage Safe-Driving Road-eo Winners Show Expert Skills

A wide range of driving skills was exhibited Saturday by 46 young motorists participating in a Teenage Safe Driving Road-eo at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The event was sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Long Beach Police Department.

Winners of trophies were: First—Ted Branstine Jr., 17, of 3323 Centralia Ave.; second—Ronnie H. Duin, 18, of 3704 Gaviota Ave. and third—Vernon Showalter, 18, of 1804 Termino Ave.

Officer Bob Aughton, police department advisor for car and offset driving and parallel clubs and chairman of the parking in addition to a written event, said tests included examination on the state v-straight line, serpentine, curve/hide code.

Asks U.S., Red Arms Monopoly

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan proposed Saturday night a U.S.-Soviet partnership in a pact to withhold arms from the Middle East.

Lebanon is in upheaval there now. And Williams said the area is the most likely tinderbox for another war.

Williams, a possible contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, also urged the Eisenhower administration to break up its disarmament "package" and seek a U.S.-British-Russian monopoly of nuclear weapons. His intent is to reduce the chances of starting a nuclear war by accident.

His suggestion would prevent France, Red China or any other nation now without nuclear weapons from perfecting them. Williams laid down what might be his personal foreign policy plank in an address at the national convention of the American Jewish Congress.

Robber Binds Jewelry Salesman, Flees Train With $100,000 Gems

CHICAGO (UP)—A jewelry salesman was robbed of $75,000 to $100,000 worth of gems early Saturday aboard a crack New York-to-Chicago train after he was overpowered and bound in his Pullman compartment.

Arthur King, 45, Miami Beach, Fla., was found by train crewmen as the train, the Pennsylvania railroad's "Admiral," passed through Ada, Ohio.

King told railroad police and FBI agents the robbery occurred about 1:45 a.m. (EDT).

AUTHORITIES said a check of the passenger list revealed a man left the train when it stopped at Altoona, Pa., at 2:15 a.m. The man had a ticket to Chicago, police said, but did not use his bed.

King said he left the lounge car of the luxury train about 1:30 a.m. and retired to his Fort Wayne, Ind., where FBI

King said he opened his door and was confronted by a man who threw a blanket over his head and began taping his legs, arms and wrists. King's arms were bound behind his back, and he was placed on his compartment bed.

THE JEWELRY salesman said he was unable to summon help, and during the interval of almost eight hours before his discovery, he struggled to sound the buzzer and attract the porter. Finally, about 9:30 a.m., King said he reached the buzzer, and the train conductor and porter responded.

King was examined briefly at 1:30 a.m. and retired to his Fort Wayne, Ind., where FBI

Beirut City of Terror, Tranquillity for Americans

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP) — For Americans living in this usually pleasant Mediterranean capital, this week of strife has been a strange mixture of terror and tranquillity.

For some it has meant bombs blown off in the streets outside their homes in the dead of night.

But for others it has been the same life as before—with long hours on the city's warm, sunny beaches and only the faintest of hints of the turmoil that has shattered and divided it.

Girls in Bikini bathing suits took the sun in deck chairs by the side of the lush kidney-shaped swimming pool of the Excelsior Hotel right through the week.

ONLY YARDS away, grim Lebanese troops, dressed in battle fatigues and wearing helmets, stood guard, some hunching over machineguns, with chains of long brass 50-caliber bullets slung around their necks, glinting in the sun.

In the beautiful blue harbor, water skis crisscrossed foaming white wakes all week long, while calm Lebanese and foreign tourists sipped their drinks and watched from the terrace of St. George's Hotel.

In downtown areas of the city, black-veiled country women and shoppers plunged along streets which echoed to the crack of gunfire in nearby areas from time to time.

ON THE EASTERN side of the city, which is mainly Christian in population, shops were open all week, many of them displaying pictures of President Camille Chamoun and Premier Sami Es-Solh in their windows.

Heavy Jamaica Rain

KINGSTON, Jamaica (UP) — After the longest drought in years, island-wide rains have drenched Jamaica. In some areas swollen streams damaged bridges and blocked roads. Churchgoers had prayed for rain last Sunday.

But up the southern hill of Basta, leading to the race track, where many Moslems are quartered, there were shattered shops and burning barricades.

Some Americans were in the thick of it.

John and Lillian Craig, of San Francisco, woke up at 4 a.m. on Wednesday to the crash of a bomb shaking their ground-floor apartment and then a rain of shattered glass.

THEY RUSHED to the front of the apartment to find glass spattered on the beds of their two children, Kim, 6 and Sikica, 2. But neither of the children was hurt.

Marry Walker, of Port Arthur, Tex., an employee of the Trans-Arabian Pipeline Co. (Tapline) was told by the company early in the week to move his apartment on the fringe of the Basta Moslem sector. He had been living there, nervous but untouched, in the early stages of the disturbances.

WALKER MOVED to the Hotel Commodore. Two hours after he unpacked his bags, terrorists exploded a bomb outside his hotel room window.

Tapline's vice President

William Chandler, of San Francisco, had to rush his wife, Claire, who was expecting a baby to the hospital in the pre-dawn hours of Tuesday. The city streets, patrolled by police, were deserted following the imposition of a strict curfew. But the police cooperated and passed the car quickly through two roadblocks en route to the American hospital.

It was a boy—born shortly after arrival at the hospital.

L. B. Bar Assn. Provides Legal Aid for Navy Men at Low Cost

Officers Refer Cases to Local Committeemen

By DON MADDOCK

Seaman X walked into Comdr. Geoffrey Carlisle's office recently with a problem.

His wife was running around with another man and he wanted a divorce. Could the commander help him?

Comdr. Carlisle, who is the Navy's legal assistance officer at Terminal Island, couldn't be of direct help. Service personnel, even those admitted to a state bar, can't represent anyone in civilian court.

But, thanks to a cooperative program with Long Beach Bar Assn., the commander was able to tell the seaman where to find competent assistance at a reasonable price.

problems. The rest were involved in other civil issues such as suits stemming from auto accidents.

Servicemen naturally can hire any attorney they wish. The legal officers recommend, rather than order, that they go through the committee.

THE LEGAL OFFICER starts the ball rolling by sending a three-part postcard to Illiff.

The top section informs Illiff who is being referred and his general problem.

Illiff sends the middle segment back to the military, confirming the initial interview and reporting which committee member was assigned the case.

The assigned attorney returns the other third. It announces disposition of the case.

ADA Votes Against Red China Entry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Americans for Democratic Action Saturday defeated a move calling for admission of Red China into the United Nations.

It then approved a statement urging an immediate halt in U.S. nuclear weapons tests.

The ADA annual convention also adopted a statement attacking both major political parties and calling for "bold and liberal proposals to solve our common problems."

THE PROPOSAL to admit Red China to the U.N. came from the floor of the ADA convention. It was offered on behalf of a majority of the New York delegation by Herbert Robinson of New York City.

After brief debate, the motion was defeated by a large majority on a show of hands.

In urging immediate halting of U.S. nuclear tests, the ADA statement said the United States at the same time should move in the U.N. to set up a system of inspection.

'THREE WISE MONKEYS'

State Dept. Suddenly Tongueless, Earless

WASHINGTON (AP)—Strange things are happening at the State Department.

Old friends pass you by. And others act like the three wise monkeys—see no evil, speak no evil, and hear no evil.

The situation, as it concerns keeping the American people informed on U.S. foreign policy, is both grave and ludicrous.

The grave view was taken this week by the State Department Correspondents' Association. This is the group of reporters who have the State Department and foreign policy as their beat.

They protested to the department that new instructions to its officers were restricting and limiting the free flow of news. The department denied there was any gag on news.

DEPARTMENT spokesmen said old regulations, long winked at, had been put back in force. They declined to say why. But it was open secret that top State Department officials were disturbed about recent news leaks.

The old rules:

1. Refer all news queries to the departments' public affairs section, if possible.
2. Alternately, have a public affairs officer with you when you talk to reporters.
3. If this is not done, make a memo of all conversations you have with reporters and pass the memo around the department.

4. Don't talk about anything outside your immediate "area of competence."

When these instructions went out, the strange things started to happen. Old friendships waned and the tongueless, sightless, earless made their appearances.

One day a reporter went to lunch with a State Department official. Next day he called him up and was told flatly by the official, "I don't know you."

A State Department official went out to welcome Vice President Nixon back to Washington last Thursday and commented he thought Nixon handled himself well during his Latin-American difficulties.

Asked by a reporter to identify himself, the official said he was not talking to any newsmen unless accompanied by a public affairs aide.

A REPORTER telephoned a State Department contact and was told "I can't talk to you." The reporter said that was all right, he just wanted him to listen. The reply was, "I can't listen... they cut off my ears as well as my tongue."

Added to the imposition of the new rules was President Eisenhower's news conference admonition that the French and Lebanese situations are too delicate for comment. Reporters checking the State Department on these two big stories found themselves referred time and again to Eisenhower's words while officials clammed up.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR HARD OF HEARING

To all readers of the Independent Press-Telegram the Diagnostic Office will give the first treatment for only $3.00

According to the Basic Diagnostic Office it is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss. So many have told us "We have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Once they try this new method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment."

The treatment is simple. It consists of three sittings and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition a special treatment is given; if the loss is due to calcium a different treatment is given; if it is a bone condition, the tympanic ossicles treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing people will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a discovery as insulin was for diabetes.

We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment, including an ear examination for only $3.00 providing you bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

CONGRESS CALENDAR

WASHINGTON (AP)—Status of major legislation in Congress:

Jobless Pay—Senate Finance Committee holding hearings on House-passed federal loan bill to extend state unemployment compensation programs.

Statehood—House begins debate Wednesday on bill to admit Alaska to statehood. Action on Hawaii pending and uncertain.

Military Pay—$576,038,000 military "incentive" pay increase bill sent to White House for signature.

Labor—Senate-House committees holding hearings on labor union reforms. Senate has passed bill to regulate welfare funds.

Schools—House action pending on school construction and scholarship aid bills.

Defense—House Armed Services Committee approved "harmonious" substitute for Eisenhower defense reorganization plan.

Postal—Senate votes Wednesday on compromise bill raising first-class postal rates by one cent and increasing postal worker wages.

Foreign Aid—Senate action pending on House-passed $3,603,000,000 foreign aid authorization. Early passage expected.

Courts—Senate action pending in bill to curb Supreme Court powers in certain security risk cases. Passage doubtful.

Trade—House Ways and Means Committee approved five-year extension of reciprocal trade bill with added tariff-cutting powers for President.

Refugees—Senate action pending on House-passed bill to admit 31,000 Hungarian refugees as permanent residents.

Farm—Senate Agriculture Committee plans hearings next month on long-range farm program.

Rivers and Harbors—Senate Public Works Committee holding hearings on whether to try and override Eisenhower veto of $1,578,812,000 anti-recession rivers and harbors flood control bill.

Public Works—House action pending on Senate-passed, billion-dollar anti-recession bill to help communities building public works.

Defense Schools—Senate action pending on 207-million-dollar House passed bill to maintain present federal school aid in congested defense areas.

Secrecy—Senate action pending on House-approved amendment to 1950 law to remove some government secrecy restrictions.

Surplus Crops—House action pending on Senate-passed bill extending overseas surplus food disposal program two years and increasing total to $3,500,000,000.

Natural Gas—House vote on bill easing federal controls on natural gas producers still side-tracked and believed dead.

Bus Noise Ban in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Transit Department has taken new steps to make Mexico City the world's quietest capital. Buses and trucks have been ordered to be more silent, and motorcycles must have mufflers. Honking was banned some time ago.

Britain Bolsters Kenya Reserves

LONDON (AP)—Britain is strengthening its strategic reserve in Kenya by moving another 1,600 troops including administrative units to the Nairobi area next month, it was announced Saturday night.

Father of The Year Contest Nears Close

Only five days remain to submit entries in the big annual Father of the Year Contest sponsored by the Independent Press-Telegram.

Deadline will be midnight Friday and only letters postmarked on or before that time will be submitted to the panel of judges.

Awaiting the winner are many valuable prizes as well as a big trophy proclaiming the victor as Father of the Year.

Nominees do not have to be residents of Long Beach. They must, however, reside within the area covered by The Independent Press-Telegram.

Letters of 100 words or less must be mailed to the Father of the Year Contest Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

NOMINATIONS should list various reasons why you feel the person named should receive the title. Judges will determine the winner strictly on merit and not on the writing ability of the person making the nomination.

Knowland Picnic. Stars Zasu Pitts

By BOB HOUSER

Screen and TV comedienne Zasu Pitts, the 100-piece Long Beach Youth Band, the only baby elephant in the U. S., free ice cream, soft drinks, coffee and balloons are the fare for a "Rollin' with Knowland" public picnic Tuesday at 5:30 p. m. in Bixby Park.

A 30-car motorcade will escort the Knowland bus, bearing Mrs. Helen Knowland and their two daughters, from Santa Fe Ave. and Pacific Coast Hwy. to the picnic site.

Grace Bixby, picnic chairman, said the public is invited and persons are asked to bring their own box lunches.

She said this will be the only major appearance in Long Beach on the part of anyone in the Knowland campaign family.

JAMES B. ROCKE, 41, Compton-Lynwood realtor, Democratic candidate for 23rd Congressional District, said Saturday his opponent, incumbent Clyde Doyle, is a "nice old man" but that "14 years of the same thinking in this important office must be changed for a fresh outlook."

Rocke said district voters should not expect a "man nearly 75 to stand the strain of the fast pace in the nation's capital." He contended that some progressive thinking could easily break the log jam of banks and savings institutions "bulging with money." He said year-to-year planning is antiquated and that "20-year planning should be the order of the day in Washington."

STATE SEN. Richard Richards will spend Monday in Long Beach, capping the day's schedule of appearances with a major address at 8 p. m. in the YWCA Auditorium, 6th St. and Pacific Ave.

Assembly Candidates Joseph M. Kennick and Tom Griffin and 18th Congressional District (Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill) candidate Harry S. May will appear with Richards at the YWCA meeting.

Coy Sanders, president of the West Side Democratic Club,

sponsors of the meeting, pointed out that Richards' 35th District comprises the whole of Los Angeles County with its 5,660,972 people, 31 of the state's 80 Assembly districts and 43 per cent of the state's population.

THREE ORGANIZATIONS have denied endorsements claimed by Assemblyman Herbert R. Klocksiem (R-44th District-western Long Beach).

The Teachers Assn. of Long Beach, the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. and the California Real Estate Board said they did not make such an endorsement.

Klocksiem, informed of the denials, issued his apologies and pointed out he had received communications of commendation from the groups and had construed them as endorsements.

TOM GRIFFIN, Democratic candidate for 70th Assembly District (eastern Long Beach), has proposed a tax exemption for the small businessman to repay him for the "bookkeeping he does for the government."

Speaking to the Belmont Shore Business Assn., Griffin said, "After a normal day's work, the small operator must spend hours on keeping books for the government on such matters as sales tax, withholdings, social security deductions and numerous other unproductive tasks."

Deadline May 26 for Tax Declaration on Property

May 26 is a quadruple deadline for Long Beach property owners.

It's the last day for filing claims for veteran's exemption both at the county and city assessor's offices.

And it's also the deadline for filing declarations of personal property at both those offices.

Veterans who fail to file — or have their spouses do so — will lose their $1,000 valuation exemption for the tax year.

And property owners who neglect to enter their own declarations will have arbitrary valuations fixed by the two assessing agencies.

SOME PROPERTY owners filed both papers when deputies called at their homes in recent weeks. These do not need to file again.

Both the county's and city's assessing period ends at 5 p.m. March 26. The county office has virtually completed its work. City Assessor J. R. Cole reported that his special staff will finish the job by Wednesday of this week.

Claims and declarations may be filed at County Assessor John R. Quinn's branch office at 100 E. Ocean Blvd. and at Cole's office in the city hall.

Ex-Justice Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — George M. Sloss, 89, justice of the State Supreme Court from 1906 to 1919 and member of a pioneer California family, died Saturday in his suite in the Cliff Hotel after a long illness.

POPPIES BLOOM AGAIN

Poppy Days will be sponsored here Friday and Saturday by Samuel Thomas Unit of American Legion Auxiliary. Selling the first paper flower to Vice Mayor Virgil Sponberg is Louis Sanders, poppy chairman. Replicas are made by hospitalized veterans and proceeds go to aid disabled ex-soldiers.

LOSES 78 POUNDS

Dieters Honor L.B. Entry

Mrs. Bonnie Hughes of Long Beach, who has lost 78 pounds during the past year, was one of the champion dieters last week attending the national convention in Milwaukee of TOPS, which stands for "Take Off Pounds Sensibly." She didn't even approach the record set by the top reducing champion, Weldon T. Yarbrough of Milwaukee. Yarbrough has trimmed his original 431 pounds down to a comparatively svelte 228.

Top weight-losser among the women was Mrs. Anne Buczowski of Gary, Ind., who weighed 275 pounds last year and only 147 on Saturday.

Norwegians Pay Tribute to Lodgeman

A plaque "for outstanding service" to the Sons of Norway lodge was presented Saturday night to John A. Hadland, 321 E. 6th St.

Hadland is a past president of Fridtjof Nansen Lodge No. 9 of the organization.

The presentation was made in Norway Hall, 683 Redond Ave., at a Norway Independence Day observance.

Karl Reese, social director of the lodge, presented the plaque to Hadland's second-award of the week. Earlier, Hadland received the "President of the Year" award presented by the lodge national headquarters in Minneapolis.

Hadland has served as lodge president three different years since Norway Hall was opened in May 1953.

Lodge members term Hadland their "dollar a year" man. As a result, a $5 check—for five years of outstanding service—is imbedded in the plaque.

10,000 Purchase Scout Tickets

Ticket sales for the Scout-O-Rama are nearing the 10,000 mark. Chairman Al Code said Saturday.

Boy-Scouts from each of the 12 Long Beach Scout districts will take part in the show Saturday in Veterans Memorial Stadium. Gates will be open from 2 to 8 p.m.

Playwright Herbert Dies

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—F. Hugh Herbert, 60, author, playwright and screenwriter, died Saturday of lung cancer.

Two of his biggest successes were "Kiss and Tell" and "The Moon Is Blue." Originally Broadway plays, both were adapted later to motion pictures. Herbert, born in Vienna and educated in England, arrived in the United States in 1920.

WITH MALCOLM EPLEY

AMONG THE SPORTING GENIY.
I note, there's quite a hassle going on over the dates for the 1958 deer hunting season in Los Angeles County. The big question is whether it should be an early or a late season.

That there's an argument over deer is not surprising, as deer hunters and game officials are always in hot discussion. But it may be surprising to some that there are deer in this county to argue about.

It's true that L. A. County, which boasts just about the biggest concentration of human population in the western world, also has a lot of deer.

Fish and game people estimate there are between 12,000 and 14,000 of the animals in the county. Last season hunters bagged 875 of them in the relatively few areas that are open to shooting.

It all goes to show that Los Angeles County has everything.

IN THE COUNTRY I came from, up near the Oregon-California border, a tremendous battle has raged for a couple of decades or longer about deer.

In particular, the ruckus was about a collection of 25,000 or so deer called the "interstate herd." It wasn't always clear exactly what the issues were, but mention the interstate herd in any company up there and you would touch off a violent argument. Occasionally there would be a big flareup over the legal shooting of does, which some advocated as a means of reducing the herd to equality with the available browse.

Such a battle was raging at full tide when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. For once there came a lull in the fight about deer. The belligerents shut up and joined forces against the Japanese.

WHILE on the subject of wild life, I'm pleased to report results of a query here about recipes for cooking 'possum. It came from a local medical man who acquired a family of young 'possums and has decided to liquidate a few in the pot or roasting pan.

This animal abounds in this area, and in the early days, before the bulldozers and subdivisions tore up the countryside, there were jillions of them around. A recipe for baked 'possum has been contributed by a woman who remembers how the 'possums ran in herds in the river bottom near the Virginia Country Club.

Here's her recipe for baked 'possum:

Have the butcher skin, peel and scrape the animal, being sure to cut off the tail-like tail and throw it away. 'Possums are very fat and the fat must be removed.

Cut up the carcass like a rabbit, shake the pieces in a bag full of seasoned flour, brown lightly in fat and place in a deep casserole. To this add two cups of milk and three-fourths cup sherry. Cover the casserole and bake about an hour and a half—less for a small 'possum.

"It's simply delicious," said this informant. "Serve it with hominy grits apple sauce and hot biscuits."

This lady happens to be an interior decorator, and says it has been far too long since she has decorated her interior with some delicious baked 'possum.

(Thanks, also, to Mrs. H. H. Gerloff, 4047 Fairman, Lakewood, for another formula for preparing 'possum. I'm sending all contributions along to the doc, and he can let us know how he fares. As for me, I'm going to let the medico eat the 'possum without my help.)

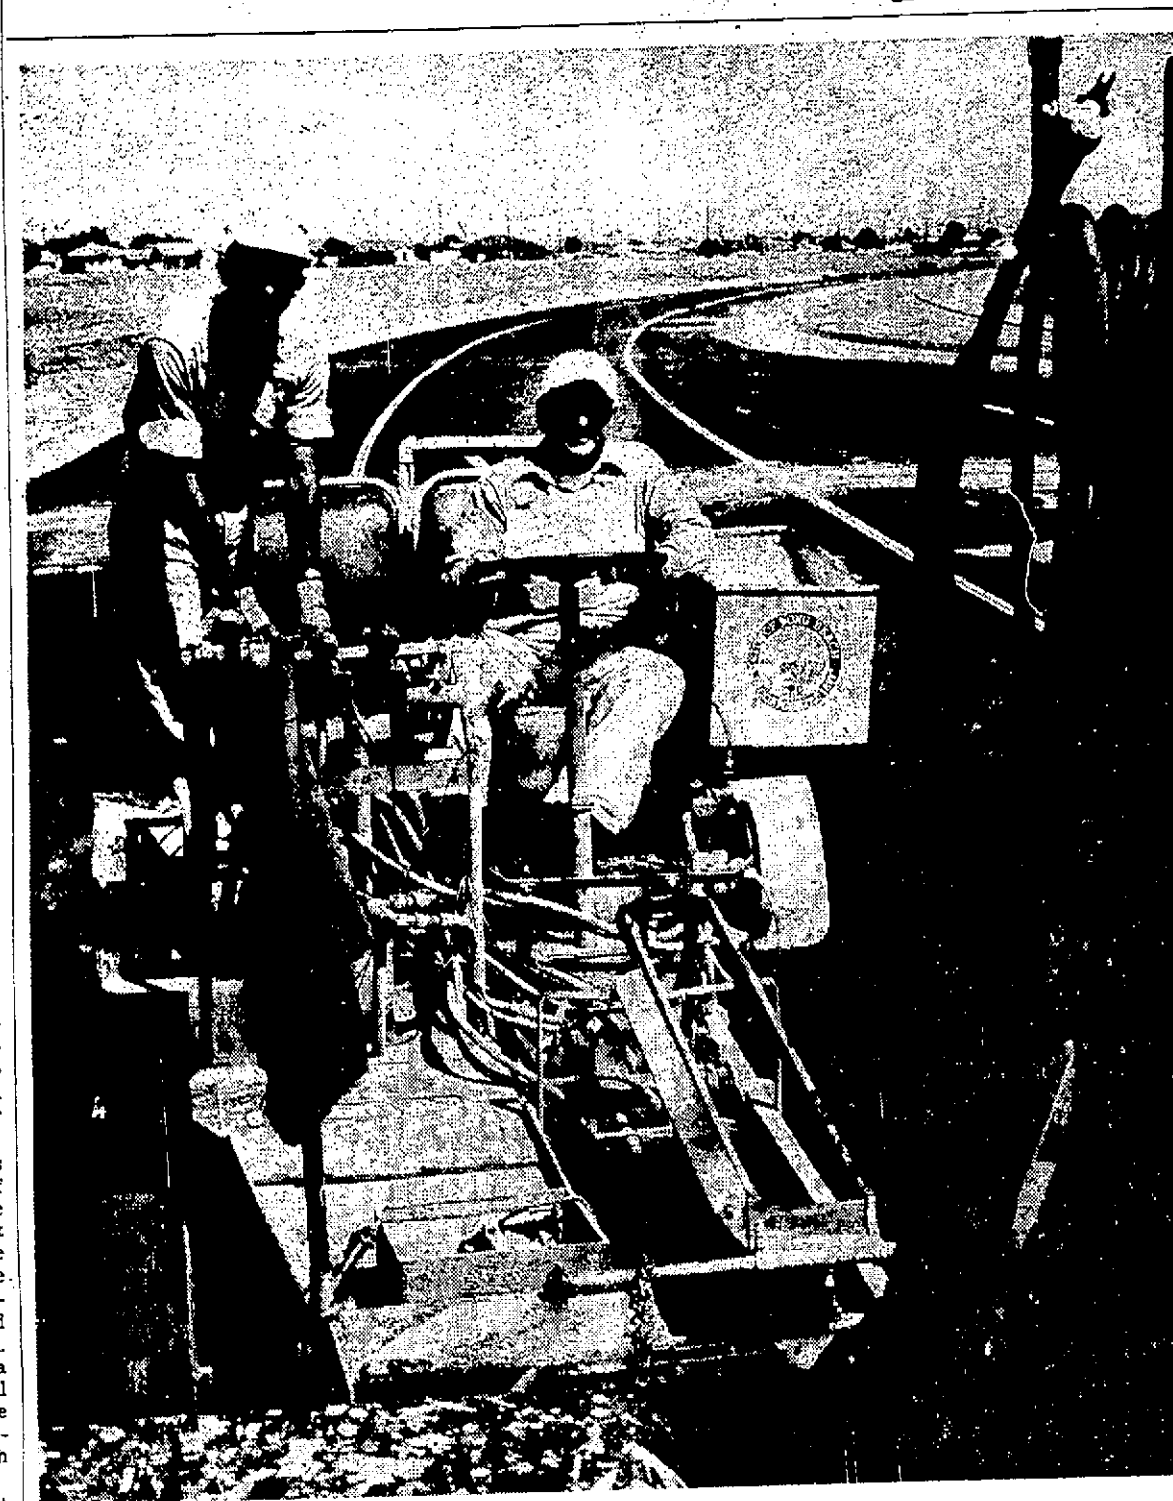

IT'S TIME to wind up the little contest this dept. is sponsoring on the subject, "What's Right About Long Beach." Tuesday, May 20, is the last day for submission of letters, between 500 and 600 words long, on this topic.

There has been a pleasing response to this contest and it is apparent a lot of people think there are many things right about Long Beach, despite the weekly quota of gripes that hit this column.

Our well qualified panel of judges is ready to go to work. The winner will get a $50 U. S. Savings bond, and second place prize will be a $25 bond.

If you're interested, now is the time to write.

DC8 Backlog Assures Long Employment

The backlog of DC8 jet transport orders will assure a "substantial level of employment" in Long Beach for years to come, a Douglas Aircraft Co. official said Saturday at dedication of Municipal Airport's diagonal runway extension.

Work already has begun on the 13th DC8, K. G. Farrar, vice president and general manager of Douglas' Long Beach division, said.

"WITH OUR PRESENT orders," Douglas said, "the backlog of DC8s will peak at about 20,000 the middle of this year and then stabilize at a somewhat lower level through the rest of 1958 and 1959," he explained.

Farrar expressed the company's thanks to the public for voting the $5,500,000 bond issue which financed extension of the runway. That extension was necessary because big jets need longer stretches for safe take-offs and landings.

As he spoke, the first of the sleek DC8s was parked nearby, attracting crowds of viewers. Saturday's runway dedication was its first full-fledged public appearance.

The plane will be flown to Edwards Air Force Base sometime after May 26 for flight testing.

Extension of the airport's diagonal runway increases its length to 9,280 feet. A second extension, for which a contract will be awarded within a few weeks, will bring the total length to 10,000 feet.

Juvenile Crime Increases Here, But Not at the Nationwide Rate

By FRED BOLINGER

How does juvenile crime in Long Beach compare with that throughout the nation? FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says that juveniles accounted for 47.2 per cent of major crime arrests in 1957.

That is not true in Long Beach. Here boys and girls under 18 accounted for only 9 per cent of the total of 13,435 major crime arrests, Juvenile Bureau Director Joseph M. Kennick said.

MAJOR CRIMES include murder, robbery, burglary, rape, narcotics, grand theft auto and grand theft.

Serving Commerce Chamber, Men of Action Map Progress

By JAMES A. ALLEN

Each Monday, 36 Long Beach business leaders sit down to lunch and discuss the welfare of Long Beach. These men, are directors of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. At their weekly meeting they study reports submitted by 600 other businessmen who are members of the Chamber's 29 committees, which meet at least once a month.

The directors and committeemen represent the Chamber's membership of 2,800, who work together to build a better Long Beach.

John E. Biby, Chamber president for 1958 and controller at the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant here, believes committee work is the most important function of the Chamber.

HE NOTED that many civic improvements which are a reality today got their start in a Chamber committee. For example, in 1923, the committee on Alamitos Bay envisioned a small boat harbor which we see today in the Long Beach Marina.

Before a committee submits a policy resolution to the board of directors it conducts exhaustive study and hears pro and con arguments by its members. The directors recently adopted the policy of taking major issues to the entire membership by postcard poll and asking how they think the Chamber should act.

"The method we use in adopting policies assures us that we are getting the viewpoint of all people and that the solution we reach is the best for the progress of the city," Biby said.

WHAT DOES THE CHAMBER OFFER for its members? Biby puts it this way:

"The Chamber of Commerce is a meeting place for people interested in seeing the city go forward. Progressive-thinking people can exchange ideas and follow through to eventual accomplishment. The Chamber gives the man who wants to express his ideas a place to do so."

The Long Beach Chamber began as the Board of Trade in 1891 and changed its name to the Chamber of Commerce in 1918. It was incorporated under the laws of the state of California in 1918.

Today, it is situated in its own building at 121 Linden Ave. and has a staff of 19, headed by general manager D. W. Campbell, who has held the job 13 years.

Each year, the Chamber receives 13,000 to 15,000 letters from persons throughout the U. S. asking about Long Beach and its advantages. The inquiries come from school children who are preparing term papers, from persons who think they might like to live here and from industries.

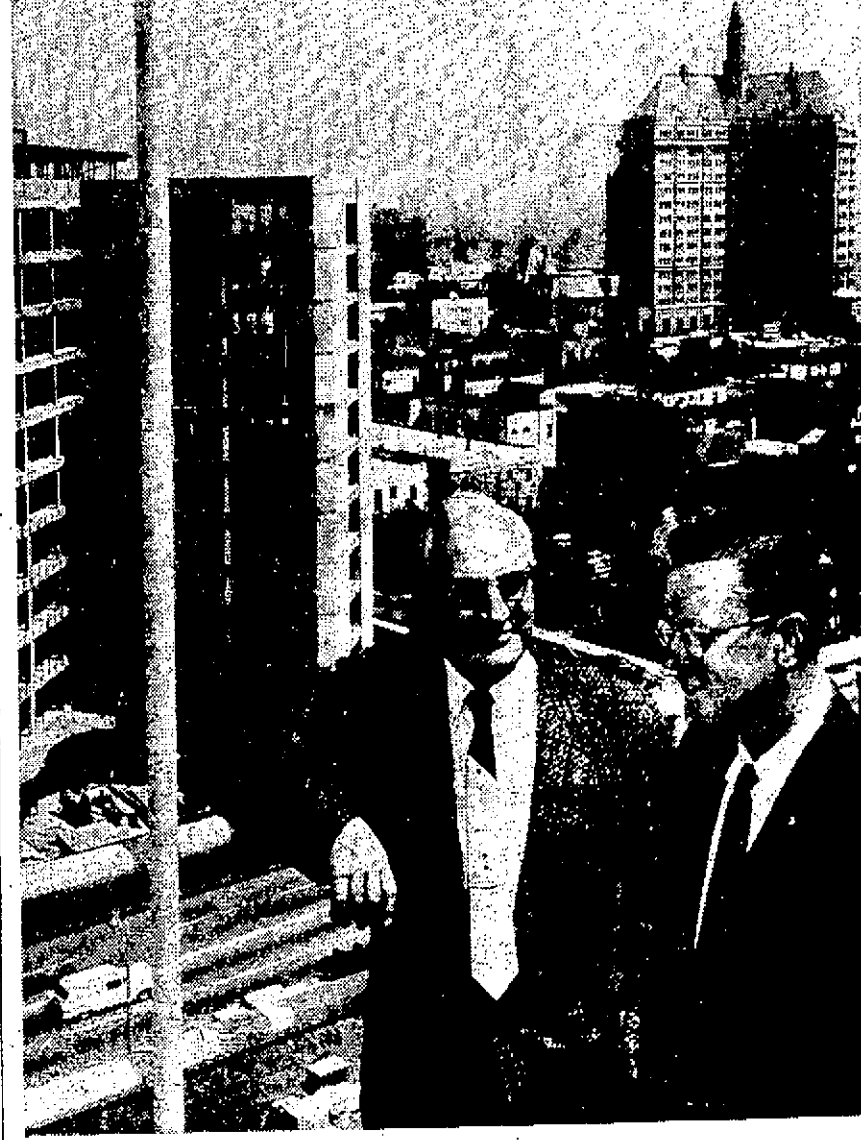

Two secretaries work fulltime answering general inquiries. Other staff members answer more specific letters from industrial concerns.

THE CHAMBER PRINTS 20,000 COPIES annually of two pamphlets which outline industrial opportunities and give plant site data. These are sent to 6,000 selected industrial concerns, industrial realtors, libraries, banks and other organizations and in answer to inquiries.

A brochure, "Beautiful, Exciting Long Beach IS Southern California," has a run of 50,000 copies annually. It is sent to individuals outside Long Beach and to airline, bus, steamship and railroad offices, travel bureaus and motor associations.

CAMPBELL EXPLAINED that part of the Chamber's program is to train the businessman in the things which affect him, such as new legislation, economic conditions and tax problems.

Thursday, 200 Chamber members will conduct a one-day drive to obtain at least 400 new members to enable the organization to enlarge its activities and meet new demands of next year.

AWARDS WEDNESDAY

12 Students Win Honors

Twelve Long Beach high school students will be presented outstanding boy or girl awards Wednesday by the Exchange Club. Their names were announced Saturday.

The club annually selects the outstanding boy and girl in each of the high schools in the Long Beach area. The selection is made on the basis of a point system compiled from the sophomore year through the first half of the senior year.

CONSIDERED ARE scholastic record, citizenship, school activities, club activities, sports participation and an essay. This year's essay topic was "America's Strongest Weapon—Democracy."

The presentation program begins at noon Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel, with Bernard F. McCune as program chairman.

PRESIDING WILL BE the club president, Ross McKee.

The winners:
Jordan High School: Hal Stueber, 600 Devon Pl. and Connie Murray, 2925 Cade St.; Lakewood: Robert S. Smith, 3509 Mairman St. and Mary Ann Campbell, 4214 Clark Ave.; Millikan: Richard Conte, 2739 Laylett Ave. and Janice Badgley, 5120 Walton St.; Polytechnic: Stephen Williams, 2651 Lime Ave. and Judy Shell, 2774 Easy Ave.; St. Anthony's: Thomas Patrick Noonan, 1200 E. Tichenor, Compton, and Francine Storey, 600 Olive Ave.; and Wilson: Robert L. Turk, 219 Belmont Ave. and Sandra Steel, 687 Grand Ave.

Woman Erroneously Identified in Fire

A story in Saturday's Press-Telegram erroneously identified Gladys Harris Wertzner as occupant of a room at 612 W. Ocean Blvd. where a fire caused damage earlier in the day.

Mrs. Wertzner actually is owner of the building, and lives off the premises.

The Press-Telegram regrets this error.

Groundbreak Ceremonies Programmed

Construction of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach gets under way today with groundbreaking ceremonies at Linden Ave. and Columbia St.

The public is invited to witness the program, which begins at 2 p.m.

The new hospital is the largest public improvement ever financed from municipal bonds here.

The five-story, 400-bed facility is a joint city-community project. Although $6,650,000 in bond money was allotted for the structure, its eventual cost as a completed and fully equipped facility is expected to top 10 million dollars.

THE BALANCE will be financed from public subscriptions sparked over a period of many months by the Inter-Hospital Committee, along with payments totaling $1,400,000 by Seaside Memorial Hospital to the city.

Groundbreaking ceremonies have been planned jointly by city officials, the Seaside Hospital Board (which will operate the new hospital) and the Inter-Hospital Committee.

Hundreds are expected to attend the event, first of a series of hospital programs this week.

Douglas Newcomb, superintendent of schools, will be master of ceremonies. Speakers will include Mayor Raymond C. Keeler; Clare D. Hamman, chairman of the Inter-Hospital Committee; and Earl Burns Miller, former chairman.

THE MAYOR and L. V. Cassaday, president of Seaside's board of trustees, will turn the first spadeful of earth.

Dr. Dwight H. Murray, past president of the American Medical Assn., will address a medical symposium Wednesday in Lafayette Hotel. The symposium will be the first to be conducted by the attending staff of the new Memorial Hospital.

Staff members will present papers and participate in panel discussions in four sections—medicine, surgery, pediatrics and obstetrics-gynecology.

Dr. Murray also will address a luncheon meeting of Seaside's board of trustees Wednesday.

EIGHTH ANNUAL commencement of the Seaside Hospital School of Vocational Nursing will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday in City Health Dept. Auditorium. Forty-nine graduates will be honored.

New officers of the alumnae group of Seaside Hospital School of Registered Nursing, which was discontinued in 1940, will be installed here Tuesday.

Community Hospital will hold open house in its new 50-bed, $400,000 Convalescent Bldg. from 2 to 5 p.m. next Sunday, with a formal dedication set for 4 p.m. The new structure will begin receiving patients June 1.

VIE FOR TRIPS

I, P-T Boys in Contests

Seeking expense-paid vacations to San Francisco and Camp Seely, more than 1,900 Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboys have begun a subscription race.

Two-day trips to San Francisco will be awarded to the boys signing up 30 or more new subscribers before June 6.

Boys who write nine or more new subscriptions will be in line for three-day trips to Camp Seely in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Where's ? Business It's HERE!

FACT NO. 17 . . .

Automobiles and automotive product sales in the Long Beach-Lakewood area jumped a whopping 18.7% . . . from $111,786,000 in 1956 to $132,727,000 . . . last year. That's $26,941,000 for every family! The business is here! . . . for automobile dealers and you, too. But you'll have to go after it with old-fashioned selling.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Manacled Deputy Slays Prisoner

TENARKANA, Ark. (UP)—A deputy sheriff whose wrists were handcuffed behind him managed to reach a concealed pistol and kill a prisoner who was trying to escape from a train Saturday, police reported.

Officers said Sgt. Donald E. Elsworth of the Los Angeles Police Department fired once at his prisoner, James Calvin Jones, 30. The .38-caliber bullet struck Jones in the neck, apparently killing him instantly.

The prisoner had disarmed Elsworth and shackled him with his own handcuffs. Elsworth and another Los Angeles officer were taking Jones from the state penitentiary at Nashville, Tenn., to California where he faced charges of armed robbery.

Gasoline Blast Kills 15

PARIS (UP)—An overflowing gasoline station tank exploded Saturday with a blockbusting fury that killed at least 15 persons, including six children who had run to the scene to watch the excitement.

Police listed 15 known dead, two missing and 35 injured seriously enough to be hospitalized. Five boys and one girl were among the dead. They had gathered at the garage door to watch firemen working to prevent the explosion. Three firemen also were killed.

The wife of the station owner and a garage foreman were missing and believed trapped or buried in the debris of the five-story station building which collapsed with the explosion.

Hungary Executes 4

BUDAPEST (UP)—Hungary announced Saturday the execution of four men convicted of trying to overthrow the Communist regime after the suppression of the 1956 revolt.

They were identified as Laszlo Balogh, Geza Pech, Jozsef Gerlei and Bela Bekesi. Two others were sentenced to life imprisonment and 10 more to jail terms of 1 to 14 years.

Montgomery's Brother Dies

NAIROBI, Kenya (UP)—Harold Robert Montgomery, older brother of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, died Saturday at Nairobi, near Nairobi. His age and cause of death were not announced, but he had been in poor health for a long time.

Montgomery formerly was chief native commissioner for Kenya. He retired in 1937.

Woman, 100, Cooks Banquet

OSWEGO, N. Y. (UP)—Mrs. Eleanor Beckeno celebrated her 100th birthday Saturday by preparing a banquet for 10 visiting cousins.

She served scalloped potatoes, salad, cold meat and ice cream. A cousin, Mrs. Minnie Donaldson of Lethbridge, Alberta, who is only 89, baked the cake.

Mrs. Beckeno suffered a fractured left hip about a year ago but she gets around without crutches or cane. Her husband, Seeley, is 89.

Author Will Lecture for Adult Group

Mrs. Mamie Krythe will address members of City College General Adult Division writing class at 7 p.m. Monday in Room 419 of Wilson Adult Center. The program is open to the public.

Mrs. Krythe is the author of many magazine articles, the book "All About Christmas" and a biography of Phineas Ranning recently published by the California Historical Society.

Two continuing lecture programs are also scheduled this week:

TUESDAY
Exploring the Northwest — Herbert Williams, "The Columbia River and Peaks of Washington," 8 p.m., Jordan High School choral room.

WEDNESDAY
Parent Problems—Dr. Marion Durfee, "Building Strength in Our Children," 7:30 p.m., Mark Twain School auditorium, Centralia and Clark Ave.

Youth Will Hear Talk on Rockets

Dr. James E. Meinhard, head of the chemistry section of Hughes Products, will speak on the design and firing of small rockets at an open meeting of the Library Youth Council at 7 p.m. Monday at Alamitos Branch Library, 1836 E. Third St.

High school and college students are invited. Meinhard, who has been affiliated with rocket societies in an advisory capacity, will show films depicting three launchings of experimental rockets and will exhibit rockets which have already been fired. He will discuss fuels, hazards and the basic chemical processes involved.

Mrs. Doris Watts, coordinator of work with young people at the Public Library, will introduce the speaker.

Bandit Takes $2,500 at Service Station

BALDWIN PARK (UP)—A man in his middle 40s, wearing sunglasses, robbed a service station manager of $2,500 in cash Saturday, police reported.

Alexander Kobel, 50, said the robber followed him into the station, brandished a gun and demanded, "Open the safe if you want to live!"

CHANDLER NO DE GAULLIST

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Kentucky Gov. A. B. Chandler said Saturday it would be a bad thing if Gen. Charles de Gaulle gained power in France.

"You know," Chandler said, "President Roosevelt told me about him. De Gaulle thinks he's Joan of Arc."

PUTTER-INNER ASKS PAY OF TAKER-OUTER

ROMFORD, England (UP)—An office equipment factory here was strikebound Saturday because of the theory that what comes out must equal what goes in.

The employees walked out to back demands that two men at opposite ends of a conveyor belt get the same pay. The man who unloaded the finished article from one end was getting more than the man who was man putting on the raw material at the other. Management promised to consider the issue.

Port Wasteland Oasis Drying Up

Last Store to Close in Ghost Town

By GEORGE ERES

The last oasis for the winos in the harbor department's ghost town is drying up.

Rola's Market, 36 Santa Barbara, will close its doors in the next month or so. The building will go the way of most of the other shanty-type structures that have spotted the condemned area between Seaside Blvd. and Water St. west of Pico Blvd.

The Harbor Department policy to purchase the 40-block area was adopted in 1952 and through a maze of title searches, negotiations and court suits all but a few of the properties now have been acquired. There were 254 parcels in the 68-acre area—most of them acquired through negotiations, according to Max Durham of the Harbor Department's right-of-way division.

Theo Rola, 60, who owns Rola's market is the last private owner-business man to go.

Wednesday—1-4 p.m., Dance, Sunset Club.

Thursday—10 a.m., excursion to Farmer's Market and Carthay Circle Theater showing "Around the World in 80 Days." Price, $2.50, includes transportation and theater ticket. Reservations at Sunset Club.

Friday—2 p.m., Municipal Band concert, Municipal Auditorium.

Saturday—11 a.m., Picnic; 1 p.m., Youth Talent Show, Community Sing, at Bixby Park.

THEO ROLA... "I Hate to Have to Go"

served the once heavily congested residential and commercial area that had its hey-day in the mid-20s. It had 100 per cent occupancy during the war, many of the tenants sleeping in "hot beds" on a 24-hour basis by day and night shift workers.

As to the morals of the area, Durham said he couldn't say, but the district's decline started about 1945.

Meanwhile, down in the oil zones, things were happening. The land had sunk from 1 to 3 feet by 1952.

People in the area were faced with possible flooding, subsidence had reversed drainage, gas pipes broke creating fire hazard.

The Harbor Department moved to condemn.

DEMOLITION OF structures in the area began about eight years ago, according to

B. R. Wilkinson of the right-of-way division. He said there was considerable vandalism in the ghost town over the years.

"We'd board up the structures, but kids and others smashed windows, broke in the dwellings and destroyed or stole things. There wasn't much of value to steal, but we found an awful lot of toilet tanks had been broken and brass fittings stolen."

He assumed it was the work of winos who sold the brass and used the money to buy wine.

The structures torn down and to be torn down in many instances aren't worth the cost of removal.

WHY ROLA MUST MOVE

Subsidence which blighted the area west of Pico is dramatized in this photo. In 1920 this plant near the pontoon bridge to Terminal Island treated all Long Beach sewage. It is still in use although subsidence-repair land fill 20 feet deep has surrounded it. Rola's Market is last of the groceries in the harbor backland ghost town area.—(Staff photo by Roger Coar.)

has used two of them to train rookies in the proper approach to fire fighting. Three more soon will go up in smoke. Rola has been behind the counter at his store for the past 10 years.

"Yes, it's mostly beer and behind the counter in Rola's wine," he admits. "But I hate Market, the handiest items and to have to go. It's my bread and the most numerous in stock, butter."

Vinson Eyes Anti-Sinking Action Here

By WILLIAM BROOM
(OF I.P.T. CAPITAL STAFF)

WASHINGTON—The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee Saturday said he hopes a bill of particulars on anti-subsidence action will prove effective at Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

"The shipyard is an important element of our naval establishment," said Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.). "It would indeed be unfortunate if subsidence continued to such an extent as to make the facility less useful..."

Vinson's remarks were released in an exchange of correspondence with Rep. Craig Hosmer (Rep.-Long Beach). His committee on armed services holds the fate of the shipyard in its hands and is expected to begin hearings on the 1959 military construction bill by the end of May.

Hosmer outlined the city's eight-point program in letters to Navy Secretary Thomas Gates. Vinson, Armed Services Committee counsel Phillip W. Kelleher, and Rep. Harry R. Sheppard (D-Calif.), chairman of the Military Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee.

THE EIGHT-POINT anti-subsidence program can be characterized as "prompt, aggressive and effective actions toward solution of the difficult subsidence control problem," Hosmer told them.

When the Armed Services Committee sent an investigation team to the shipyard last year, it recommended against further large scale spending to repair damage caused by land sinkage.

The committee cut back the Navy's 1958 request by $3 million. When this year's budget was submitted, it contained only $500,000 although Navy officials had introduced a supplementary recommendation for upping it to $6 million after the legislature voted subsidence remedial legislation.

The spending slowdown was recommended by the committee "until there is full evidence that every possible action is being taken to prevent subsidence" in the area.

HOSMER SAID he outlined the city's eight-point program in an effort to convince the committee leadership that "every possible action" is being taken. The program as explained to him by city officials consists of:

1. The comprehensive Subsidence Control Law enacted by the legislature.
2. A city charter amendment approved March 4 giving the city legal authority to enter into repressurization agreements in an effort to halt subsidence.
3. Extraordinary legal authority to use immediately public funds to finance repressurization operations on both public and private lands.
4. Intensive expansion of present repressurizing operations by flooding the oil field with underground water.
5. The crash program currently under way among private and public oil operators to compile a field-wide engineering program under the new legislative act.
6. The current negotiations between public and private operators aimed at setting up a unitized field repressurization agreement.
7. Complete community support as evidence by the petition for anti-subsidence legislation signed by 45,000 individual citizens.
8. The ban on offshore drilling operations voted by the citizen in 1956, which is continuing in full force and effect.

ACKNOWLEDGING the Hosmer letter, Vinson said he was "most happy" to learn of the "extensive actions."

Disneyland Event Opens Trade Week

The 32nd annual World Trade Week beginning today will feature a wide variety of foreign-flavor events, starting off with a program this afternoon at Disneyland.

Miss World Trade, Barbara Stewart, will lead a colorful parade down Disneyland's Main St. to touch off a program of band music, songs, dances and fashions from around the world.

BIGGEST EVENT during the week will be a National Maritime Day luncheon Thursday at the American President Lines terminal in Wilmington. Speaker will be Ralph B. Dewey, president of the Pacific American Steamship Assn., whose topic will be "West Coast Shipping at the Crossroads."

Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors will host the public next Sunday, Harbor Day, with free boat rides, various exhibits and the open visiting aboard several vessels. Sponsors are the Junior Chambers of Long Beach, Los Angeles, San Pedro and Wilmington.

Kiel Canal Project to Cost $7 Million
KIEL, Germany (AP) — The Kiel Canal, one of the world's most important man-made waterways, will be renovated in the next 3 1/2 years for more than seven million dollars. The 99-mile canal, completed in 1895, annually handles more than 50,000 ships between the Baltic and North Sea.

Longshoremen Wage Talks Begin

Preliminary contract talks are under way in San Francisco between representatives of the International Longshoremen & Warehousemen's Union (Independent) and Pacific Maritime Assn., organization representing stevedoring firms on the West Coast.

Formal talks are scheduled to begin June 1. Gordon Giblin, president of the Long Beach-Los Angeles local of the union, is in San Francisco for the negotiations. The contract expires June 15.

The union is seeking renewal of the contract for one year with increases of 16 cents an hour and an eight-hour day.

Men now work a nine-hour day, according to an ILWU spokesman here. In addition, the union is seeking fringe benefits.

Involved from ports of Long Beach-Los Angeles are nine stevedoring firms and 3,250 longshoremen, 300 "bosses" and 500 marine clerks.

Dr. Carl Amundson of 2369 Charlemagne Ave., professor of education at Long Beach State College, will be honored June 6 by Shattuck School, an Episcopal college preparatory school for boys in Faribault, Minn. He will be one of 106 recipients of awards for service to secondary education, presented by the school in observance of its 100th anniversary.

A campaign by Naples Improvement Assn. for a city ordinance to govern speed of small boats was questioned Saturday by Elroy Roamer, president of the Alpine Court Memorial League.

"I think the council should take a close look at any such proposed ordinance," Roamer said. "First, what is the definition of the small boat? Does that mean that the toy sailboats of little children will be watched lest they be caught by errant winds? Also, how will the boats be policed? Will Alamitos Bay and the canals of Naples echo with the roar of fleets of police boats? And, finally, will the police use one-man or two-man boats?"

A motion picture, "Tuna Fishing," will be shown by David Davis, local sportsman, at a meeting of the Trowel Club, at 6:45 p.m. Thursday, in the Manhattan Restaurant, 1909 E. 4th St.

'Y' Fund Campaign Shifts to High Gear

Action became the password as the YMCA's "million dollar plus" campaign to finance capital improvements here shifted into high gear.

Under direction of Earl Fast, general campaign chairman, hundreds of volunteer committeemen launched a citywide appeal for funds.

Campaign aims are: Modernization and expansion of the downtown Y building, new Y buildings in both Lakewood and Los Altos and redecoration, plus additions, for the North Long Beach Y.

Fast disclosed the following committee activities:

MONDAY NOON the legal section of the professional division will kickoff at the Wilton Hotel luncheon with Stephen A. Pace Jr., chairman, presiding. The downtown district campaign will kick off Tuesday and the North Long Beach district on Thursday.

Last Friday the Lakewood district campaign kickoff was completed at a dinner attended by 150 under the chairmanship of John R. Hills. During the week, the general section of the professional division kicked off under the leadership of Dr. Clarence E. Lundell; the osteopathic physicians took the field under Dr. Melvyn G. Wade and the medical section of the professional division campaigned under direction of Dr. Richard C. DeGova. The special gifts division, headed by Ernest E. Belcher, has been in action since May 7.

Shipyards on West Coast Threatened

NAVY SHIPYARDS on the West Coast would be as active as tombs if Republican Sen. John Marshall Butler of Maryland had his way.

Sen. Butler is author of Senate Bill 3426, which would require that not less than 75 per cent of Navy funds for repair of Navy vessels be spent in private yards. The measure is charitably described by 18th District Congressman Craig Hosmer (Long Beach-Lakeview) as "an election year bill."

An election year bill is demagogic legislation designed to please a bloc of voters, a region, or a district. The Butler bill will give legislators from the East Coast something to prime the campaign pump with in East Coast shipping areas.

WEST COAST PRIVATE YARDS capable of handling Navy work are limited in number. Naturally, the effect of the Butler proposal would be to shift the bulk of the repair work to East Coast shipyards, leaving the Navy shipyards on the West Coast little or nothing to do.

A nice trick if Sen. Butler could pull it off. If he does pull it off, he'll do so above the strong objections of Rep. Craig Hosmer, other members of the Washington delegation, and Gov. Goodwin Knight, who recently wrote to the Senate Armed Services Committee:

"I respectfully submit that any arbitrary apportionment of work between Naval and private yards would mitigate against both the best interests of national defense and the well-being of the national economy and of the California economy."

"Just as it is vital that our private shipyards be maintained to the greatest possible extent, it is essential that our great naval shipyards, both in California and elsewhere in the Nation, be maintained at optimum readiness to meet the pressing needs of mobilization and national defense."

FOR YEARS LEGISLATORS from the West Coast have fought to breathe new life into the private shipyards here. These efforts have paid off, and the private yards are now getting more work.

Apparently, East Coast lawmakers are disturbed to see at last a more equitable distribution of government projects among the private shipyards. The strategy now is to get back the loss and more besides with a law that takes work away from the West Coast naval yards.

These yards are vital to the national defense program. They employ more than 25,000 California citizens. The threat to the defense program and to the state's economy must be met vigorously.

Knowland Credited With Changing Labor Reform Position Single-Handedly

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM W. BROOM

WASHINGTON—Sen. Bill Knowland is given credit here for accomplishing single-handedly what numerous and powerful pressure groups have tried and failed to do for a decade—forcing organized labor to change its traditional position on reform legislation.

Separately and since their merger, the AFL and CIO have been dead set against any legislation going beyond the simple tightening-up of policing procedures for union pension and welfare funds. Anything else was "anti-labor" and not to be tolerated. But in the last three weeks, the AFL-CIO chieftains have changed their minds and agreed to support additional moderate reform measures.

IT ALL CAME ABOUT through the Senate Republican leader's insistence on roll call votes on the various unsuccessful Knowland amendments to the welfare fund bill. Knowland's one-man efforts, in which he was supported by only a dozen other Republicans, put the pressure on the Senate Democratic leadership. The Democrats had to promise another, broader, labor bill after the original legislation was out of the way. They, in turn, appealed to the AFL-CIO to go along with some of the other, fairly moderate reforms labor has always opposed in the past. To this, Mechanists President Al Hayes, chairman of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices committee, agreed.

The odds now are that the Senate will pass another labor bill, and that it will go far beyond what the AFL-CIO considers far enough. But, however restrictive a new bill might be, friends of the AFL-CIO are counting on the House Labor committee to sit on it for the rest of the congressional session.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is still being criticized for doing both too much and too little to get his programs through Congress.

One day last week Rep. John Blatnik (D-Minn.) publicly blamed Ike's "lackadaisical leadership" for the rough time the administration reciprocal trade bill is having on Capitol Hill.

The same day O. R. Strackbein, leader of the protectionist group which is the chief opponent of the lower tariffs, issued a statement accusing the President of "seeking to dictate" what Congress should do about reciprocal trade.

It's all a question of whose ox is being gored, and whether the ox is half donkey or half elephant.

ONE HIGH-RANKING Republican office-holder says the Democrats would be foolish to run Jack Kennedy, or anyone else over whom controversy could develop, for the presidency in 1960. "The Democrats will probably be riding so high in another two years," the GOP pessimist tells his friends, "that the safe thing for them to do is to put up a ticket like the Harding-Coolidge team of 1920. It wouldn't antagonize anybody on religious or any other grounds, and would be a shoe-in."

Picking a Switch on the Way to the Woodshed

DAVID LAWRENCE

Welcome to Nixon Marred by Partisanship in House

WASHINGTON—Patriotism may be dormant at times, but partisanship never. Thus the wholehearted welcome given to Vice President Eisenhower and by members of both parties in Congress at the airport on his arrival here was later marred by a brief debate in the House of Representatives when a few partisans applauded criticism of the State Department for letting Mr. Nixon go to Latin America in the first place.

The United States government, it was argued in effect, should have yielded to the threats of terror and canceled the visit.

Only a few months ago, on the other hand, there was a lot of talk in Congress about "freedom to travel" and the State Department was denounced because it didn't want American newsmen to take risks inside Red China, whose regime is not recognized by the United States. But now the argument has been switched around. It appears that "freedom to travel" should not be exercised by the high officials of the American government in friendly countries to which diplomatic recognition has been given.

What a cowardly thing it would be for the United States government to refuse to go ahead with a trip previously announced and to give as the reason that it couldn't expect—from friendly governments—protection or security for a visiting delegation!

Not only would the governments of Latin America have been offended, but they would have winced under the charge that they couldn't protect the distinguished visitors they themselves had invited.

As for the Communist rulers in Moscow, this would have been grist for their mill. They would have been delighted to read that they had intimidated the United States government. This would have been a propaganda success of transcendent proportions.

INDEED, INSTEAD OF standing up for the government of the United States, the word now is that some members of Congress want an investigation to be undertaken to find out what the administration knew of the possibility of outbreaks in Latin America, as if there is blame to be imposed here.

Actually, the Communists did openly attempt to bestir their followers in Latin America to make trouble for Mr. Nixon on the trip.

As Daniel Schorr of the Columbia Broadcasting System, formerly Moscow correspondent, but now in Washington, noted:

"Any Communist sympathizer in Latin America, listening to Moscow radio for the past two weeks, would know that it was important to the Kremlin that Nixon's tour be turned into an anti-United States demonstration."

THE APPEASERS IN CONGRESS will find that the Soviets will interpret any retreat by the United States in the Nixon affair as a great victory for international communism.

however, her patience or her money apparently ran out. Oklee merchants received a letter from her, warning that she could no longer make good her husband's debts.

It is no secret around Oklee that Andy threatened to sell out to her political enemies unless she relaxed the purse strings. He was seen huddling with L. J. Lee, husky organizer for the International Union of Operating Engineers, who has been struggling with the congresswoman for control of the Democrat-Farmer-Labor party in the Red River Valley.

Andy made some statements which Lee circulated around the district to embarrass her.

Andy is now sorry he did it. To shield him, Coya refuses to say why he did it.

SEVERAL months ago, "You're going out to the club dressed like THAT!"

BOB HOUSER

Socialist Senate Aspirant Trolling in Troubled Waters

A 28-YEAR-OLD Albany, Calif., fisherman with the sea-faring name of Fritjof Peder Thygeson is trolling in troubled political waters. Further, he is an underage stowaway on a boat he openly plans to sabotage.

Translation: Thygeson, a Socialist, has filed for U. S. Senate, an office he's two years too young to assume, and on the Democratic ticket, a party he accuses of "incredible paranoia."

Details of Thygeson's efforts for a place in this season's political sun reveal an interesting, little-noted hassle—one over-shadowed in the voters' preoccupation with leading senatorial contenders Goodwin Knight, George Christopher and Clair Engle.

Since the Socialists are not a qualified party according to the state election code, Thygeson's first sortie was a losing fight to get the party designation used with his name on the ballot. Hence, his name appears with no party designation on the Democratic and also the Prohibition Party ballots. He said he also would have crossed the GOP ticket but lacked the third $450 filing fee.

Secretary of State Frank Jordan denied Thygeson's request for the Socialist designation. Thygeson challenged the decision, quoting the 1952 referendum which said the candidate's registered affiliation "shall be" placed on the ballot. Thygeson appealed to the State Supreme Court.

The court also denied his request, presumably because the "qualified party" factor overweighed the language of the referendum.

THEN TWO STATE LEADERS of the Democratic Party, Roger Kent and Joseph L. Wyatt Jr., broadsided Thygeson with a series of points and bars.

Too young, they said. You have to be 30 to take a Senate seat. In league with the Republican high command, they charged. Just a move to split votes away from Democrat candidate Clair Engle. Further, they said, his name could not appear on the November general election ballot even if he won a plurality in the Democratic or Prohibition primary because the Socialist Party is not a qualified party.

Thygeson counterpointed. On age: "The Senate is the judge of the qualification of its own members. In the cases of Henry Clay and Rush Holt, senators were seated who had passed their 29th but not yet reached their 30th birthday, on the grounds that they were in their 30th year. If I were to be elected I could be seated on Feb. 24, 1959, only seven weeks after the beginning of the term."

ON COLLUSION WITH the GOP: This "indicates the incredible paranoia that has overcome the Democratic Party." He charged that Democrats have only themselves to blame for any votes split away from Engle, "an anti-labor and illiberal" choice of candidate. He denied any GOP prompting and listed names of those who put up his filing fees.

On eligibility for November: "The March 26 opinion of Atty. Gen. Brown . . . clearly states that if a candidate of an unqualified party is successful in obtaining the nomination of a qualified party his name 'will appear on the general election ballot.'"

KENT AND WYATT FURTHER deprecated Thygeson's candidacy, pointing out that in 1950 Bernadette Doyle, a registered member of the Communist Party, received over 600,000 votes for superintendent of public instruction.

"The votes he (Thygeson) does get, with few exceptions, will be as meaningless as those cast for Bernadette Doyle," their statement said.

The Albany fisherman branded their whole fusillade as a symptom of "extreme fear" and realization "that they have a very poor candidate in Congressman Engle."

He said his own candidacy offers the voters a "meaningful alternative" and that there is no real choice between Knight and Engle" as the joint AFL endorsement indicates.

tion, I would have known if Mrs. Seldon had participated, as she claims. But your mention of her name was the first means of my learning of her.

If Mrs. Seldon helped in any way to defeat fluoridation, she is to be commended.

WALTER W. STRONG, 5801 Gairford St.

I WAS THE chairman of the Long Beach Committee Against Fluoridation, and I know where all the literature the committee used came from, and Box 27103 did not supply us.

ANNE FICKES, 3819 Livingston Dr.

MR. ZINSER did a beautiful job of the interview. Misstatements—half-statements—innuendo—invention. Just as I told him he would do. He shouldn't be a newspaperman, but a fiction writer. But why say should be he is!

PHYLLIS M. SELDON, (No Address)

Local Roads in Poor Condition

TO THE EDITOR: Your editorial of May 13 about the relatively poor status of Long Beach in regards to freeways and freeway funds ends with the appeal: "A cooperative and supporting attitude is indicated for all Long Beach citizens interested in a fair share of return from its own gasoline tax investment as well as a fair share of the Southland's bountiful future."

ALL THIS is well and good, and I believe that Long Beach's citizens should be interested in such matters. It is rather difficult, however, to work up much enthusiasm over freeways, when the very roads on which we travel to and from work are in such poor condition that it is dangerous to use them.

ONE SUCH case in point is the stretch of Willow St. in Long Beach between Cherry Ave. and Redondo Ave. This primitive road is comparable to some which can be found in the most backward countries of the world. Repeated phone calls to the proper authorities only bring desultory promises and, perhaps, road repair consisting of spot patches which are worse than the original holes. People will, I believe, start thinking in broad terms when their personal problems are properly "patched."

IRVING ENGEL, 2006 W. Spring St. Long Beach 10

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Motorcar Makers Having Busy Times

By BILL VAUGHAN

BUSY DAYS for the motorcar manufacturers, pushing their "Buy It Now" appeal while resisting Walter Reuther's "Sign It Now" campaign.

IN THE schools of our youth, dusting the erasers was a prestige job, comparable, we suppose, to that of dusting the TV screen in today's classroom.

STATION wagons de luxe now come equipped with boats, beds, tents, cooking stoves and camp stools which spring forth at the touch of a button. It would be interesting if one of the kids pushed the button while pop's doing 80 miles an hour on the highway.

THE MEN who are working on the H-bomb fallout problem need not be discouraged—some of the polite versions of ancient barnyard jokes which appear in print indicate that anything can be cleaned up.

Why all this controversy about the hiring of teachers in our local school system?

Since when should members of a profession after a few short years of work be placed on an untouchable pedestal where lifetime jobs are assured?

Let's keep in mind the word competition upon which America's economy was founded.

In practically every case when a man or woman is outstanding, or even good, in a profession, he or she can not only retain the job but move upward.

Is there any good reason why teachers at our local State College should be in a special clique and have their jobs assured by taxpayers until their retirement regardless the type of work they perform?

A. J. GUNDERSON, 1053 Mahanna Ave., Long Beach.

(Five dollars to A. J. Gunderson for the best letter of the week.)

Shoestring Strip Hearing to Be Staged Monday

BELLFLOWER — Proposed annexation of that section of the Long Beach Shoestring Strip, between Carpentero and Palo Verdes Aves. to the City of Bellflower will be considered by the City Planning Commission Monday at 9 a.m., Burton Smith, chairman, announced.

The City of Long Beach has given the green light for deannexing the strip from the city, after the strip becomes a part of the city.

Another application of Watt's to be considered by the commission is the proposed change on a 3.2 acre plot on Artesia Blvd. between Palo Verde and Canehill Aves. that will permit construction of a commercial development.

DR. COWEN Says:

Here's why you can now have Better DENTAL PLATES

The advances of Modern Dental Science have overcome many drawbacks of old-fashioned plates. THE NEW ACRYLIC (PLASTIC) MATERIAL used for most modern dentures combines very light weight with unusual strength and durability. THE NEW ARTIFICIAL TEETH for dentures achieve a remarkable resemblance to natural teeth and they are carefully designed to aid healthful chewing and to avoid interference with speech. THE SKILL OF YOUR DENTIST — through constant research and intensive training — has advanced steadily, solving many problems that once made platefitting difficult. Improved Materials, More Natural-Looking Teeth, and the Advanced Techniques of Your Dentist — these are the 3 big reasons why YOU can now have Better Dental Plates.

ALWAYS LOW PRICES

2 YEARS TO PAY

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR CREDIT

Remember that BIG DIFFERENCE...it means a BIG SAVING FOR YOU...when you get your plates on Dr. Cowen's Liberal Credit Plan. There's no interest, no carrying charge...no need to borrow from a bank or loan company. Get the plates you need RIGHT NOW at Dr. Cowen's, and spread the small monthly payments over any reasonable length of time.

QUICK PLATE REPAIRS

Special Emergency Service for broken dentures; prompt replacement of missing teeth, and resetting of old plates to help restore fit.

Pensioners Always Welcome

You can obtain new Dental Plates — or other needed Dental Care — on a special plan under the California Medical Assistance Act. Visit the Dr. Cowen Offices for full information.

Tim Tam Nearer Triple Crown

L.B. Notables, All-Star Field Set in City Tee

By JERRY WYNN

The 34th annual Long Beach City Golf Championship will be all the other shots to city under way at Recreation Park Saturday with the start of handicap flight qualifying, but the first major action won't take place until next Sunday.

Then, more than 150 top golfers (six handicap or less) will vie for 64 match play berths in championship flight trials. The field, headed by defending champion Verne Burnett, will include practically all outstanding players in the Long Beach area.

AS A SPECIAL attraction, three "celebrity" foursomes will play strictly for fun.

The first will consist of city officials, Mayor Ray Keeler will hit the first ball off the tee at 8:18 a. m., but will leave under way at Recreation Park Saturday with the start of handicap flight qualifying, but the first major action won't take place until next Sunday.

The second, starting at 8:24, will be comprised of Long Beach sports personalities Vern Stephens, former major league baseball slugger; Bill Jessup, San Francisco 49er end and ace punter; Dick Hammer, captain and star of Lockyer's AAU basketball team, and Jimmy McLarnin, former world's welterweight boxing champion.

The third will spotlight Long Beach area club head professionals.

(For a rundown on the prospective field, see PARTICULARS on Page D-4.

Silky Poor 8th as Calumet Ace Wins Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP)—Tim Tam burst between the pace-setting Lincoln Road and Talent Show at the head of the Pimlico stretch Saturday and rolled home a brilliant winner of the $133,950 Preakness Stakes.

But Silky Sullivan, who flopped badly in the Kentucky Derby, won by Tim Tam two weeks ago, again disappointed his thousands of admirers and wound up eighth in a field of a dozen 3-year-olds contesting Maryland's greatest horse race.

Tim Tam, the Calumet hope for another Triple Crown hero, thus became the first Derby winner to cop the Preakness since Citation—another Calumetee—got the job done in 1948. Citation then went on to sweep the elusive triple by grabbing the Belmont Stakes in New York.

WITH ISMAEL VALENZUELA, the Texas-born booter of Mexican heritage in the pilot's seat, Tim Tam overhauled the Sunny Blue Farm's Lincoln Road about an eighth of a mile out.

A crowd of 36,912, second largest for Old Hilltop, was shouting loudly for the favorite, and Tim Tam never disappointed his backers as he stormed to the wire a length and a half ahead of Lincoln Road.

The Llangollen Farm's Gone Fishin', a Virginia-bred and only horse in the race who could not claim Kentucky as a birthplace, wound up in third place. The Main Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward, Kentucky Derby favorite, was a disappointing seventh.

Silky Sullivan, the Santa Anita Derby winner, had floundered around in the mud at Churchill Downs and finished 12th in a field of 14 on Derby day. He had a fast track this time and made a much better run from some 40 lengths off the pace, but the plain fact was that Tim Tam got to the judges long before Silky, who was chugging down the middle of the track to wind up 14 lengths behind the winner.

The time for the mile and three-sixteenths was a so-so 1:57 1/5, compared with the Preakness and track record of 1:54 3/5 set by Nashua in 1955.

Tim Tam, a solid favorite this time, paid $4.20, $2.80 and $2.20. Lincoln Road returned $4.80 and $3.40. Gone Fishin' paid $4.80.

"HE'S A great horse, the finest I've ever ridden," said Valenzuela afterward.

"I knew he had it, but I had to use the whip a lot," Valenzuela said.

Trainer Jimmy Jones, racking up his fourth Preakness victory, said he gave Valenzuela no pre-race instructions.

"WHEN YOU have a great jockey like Ismael you don't have to tell him anything," he said.

Chris Rogers, aboard Lincoln Road, said: "He ran a good race, but he just couldn't beat the winner."

Lincoln Road's trainer, Vic Sovinski, who had tears in his eyes after the race, said:

"I want to tackle him (Tim Tam) once more at a different track. I'm gonna take off those blinkers. My colt was coming again at the end and we'll just have to have another try at the winner."

Willie Shoemaker, riding Silky Sullivan, commented tersely:

"He didn't have anything at all. He ran a good furlong and after that had nothing. He made a little run around the far turn and hung in the end."

Cards Rip Dodgers, 10-1

By GEORGE LEDERER (L. P.T. Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—The streaking St. Louis Cardinals sent 12 men to bat in a seven-run fourth inning Saturday and blasted the doormat Dodgers, 10-1, for their ninth victory in the last 10 games.

The Dodgers, who have nearly established voting residence in the National League cellar, went down to their eighth defeat in their last nine outings and have lost twice as often as they have won.

Larry Jackson, making his first start of the year, pitched the distance for the Cardinals and held the Dodgers to five hits. His change to register the Cards' second straight shutout was ruined in the sixth inning when Peeewe Reese's sacrifice fly scored Junior Gilliam, who had tripled off Wally Moon's glove.

While Jackson's fast ball and sinker sent six Dodgers down on strikes, the losers once more were forced to dig deep into the bullpen and brought five pitchers into action. In the last five games the Dodgers have used 22 pitchers, needing five on four occasions.

Big Don Newcombe, whose last complete game was on Aug. 21 last year, appeared to have found himself when he moved down the Cards on only one hit through the first three innings Saturday.

But the walls came tumbling down in the fourth when seven Cardinals batted and six scored before there was a single out. Don Blasingame led off the slaughter with a 405-foot triple to center and Stan (The Man) Musial followed with his eighth homer of the year into the right-center field pavilion, 354 feet away.

Newcombe trudged to the showers after Irv Noren and Joe Cunningham singled and Don Bessent came in to walk Moon to load the bases. When Bessent also walked Ken Boyer to force home the third run, southpaw Sandy Koufax was summoned to the hill.

Koufax got out of the jam in a hurry. Catcher Hal Smith greeted him with a triple that made it 6-0, and Jackson popped a punt to the mound that Koufax turned into a double play for the first outs.

BUT THE Cardinals refused to let up and consecutive singles by Dick Schoofield, Blasingame and Musial resulted in the seventh run of the inning. After Musial hit Koufax's 0-2 offering into center field, he retired for the afternoon, with 2-for-2, three RBIs and an intentional walk.

Perhaps the inning would have turned out differently, had Newcombe walked Musial purposely as he did after Blasingame doubled in the first inning.

Still, there was no doubt that the red-hot Redbirds were in their hitting clothes. They punished the Dodger quintet for 13 hits and four walks. Only Don Drysdale escaped without damage in pitching a 1-2-3 ninth inning.

Rookie fastballer Stan Williams, making his major league debut, was the victim of the Cards' other three runs in the seventh. Williams, up from St. Paul, set down the Cards with-

NU-PIKE HOST TO FAR WEST SWIM MEET

The Far West Synchronized Swimming Championships were awarded to Long Beach's Nu-Pike Plunge, manager Ron Maury announced Saturday.

The event will be staged July 10-11. Maury said he expects from 60 to 75 competitors from throughout the Western United States.

Maury and his wife, Joanne Royer Maury, will be co-chairmen of the event. Mrs. Maury, now a professional, is a former U.S. indoor and outdoor synchronized swimming champion. She also held the Canadian championship.

Swimmers from as far off as Salt Lake City and Seattle already have submitted entry blanks, according to Maury.

BOLD RULER TRIUMPHS IN 1ST '58 RACE

NEW YORK (AP)—Bold Ruler, the smooth-striding champion of all thoroughbreds last year, made his 1958 debut a winning effort as he won the $29,050 Toboggan Handicap at Belmont Park Saturday.

Striding down the six furlongs of the Widener straightaway course in 1:09 under the heavy impost of 133 pounds, the Wheatley Stable colt finished a half length in front of Clem. Tick Tock trailed by another two lengths for third.

Bold Ruler was the odds-on favorite of the crowd of 27,502, paying $2.80, $2.60 and $2.30. Clem paid $6.90 and $4.20. A $2 show ticket on Tick Tock was worth $3.90.

How Now, Harmatz Surprise

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH Executive Sports Editor

A consistent five-year-old gelding which had nabbed a piece of the purse 10 times in his last 11 outings, but was overlooked in the wagering Saturday, scored a smashing one-half length triumph in the $50,000-added Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park.

The ignored gelding was How Now, ridden by Long Beach jockey Willie Harmatz, which paid a handsome $29.30 as the two favorites finished out of the money before 47,367 customers.

Seaneen, which went off at 4-5, finished a well-beaten fourth, while Terrang, a 3-1 choice, was fifth in the seven-horse field. An eighth entrant, Swirling Abbey, was scratched.

The victory was No. 3 during the afternoon for Harmatz and shot him into a tie for the Hollywood jockey leadership with veteran Johnny London, who was shut out for the day.

How Now was 8-1 on the morning line and surprisingly was allowed to leave the starting gate at better than 13-1. The George C. Newell horse set a track record for six furlongs last June, touring the route in 1:08 1/2, and had run a bangup race 10 days ago in the Hollywood Premiere Handicap. He finished second in The Searcher in that race.

A 12-1 shot, Golden Notes, nabbed second money, while fast-closing The Searcher (6-1) charged up for third prize.

How Now's time for the seven furlongs was 1:21 1/2, somewhat off El Drag's track mark of 1:20.

How Now sped from the gate like a bee had stung him and led from wire-to-wire except for a brief moment around the backstretch when Golden Cover inched in front of him.

Golden Notes was How Now's only consistent challenger throughout the chase and seemed ready to grab the lead as the horses straightened out for the stretch drive. However, Harmatz flicked his whip a few times and the Notes came to him, he pinned his ears and moved on out. I don't think they'd have caught me going around again," said Harmatz, adding "It sure was a lucky break for me when Ray Roy went to Chicago and let me get this mount."

Henry Moreno on Golden Notes and Alex Maese on Terrang, respectively, claimed no excuses, but Pete Moreno

The Searcher and Johnny Longden (Seaneen) admitted trouble.

"We were just starting to roll when two horses moved out on us around the turn," said Pete. "I was going so fast I couldn't do anything, but swing wider. I just lost too much ground."

Said Longden: "We got stopped bad on the turn and had to swing wide into the stretch. Otherwise, I don't know exactly what was wrong."

The secondary feature, the $10,050 Olivera St. Purse, went to a once-famous horse on the comeback trail, Holandes II. Holandes closed with a surge to win going away and pay his supporters a modest $6.70.

EARLY-MORNING TELEPHONE CALL TO DON NEWCOMBE...

'This Is Campy, What's Wrong With The Club?'

By GEORGE LEDERER

(L. P. T. Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS — It was 8 o'clock Saturday morning and Don Newcombe was still in bed, resting for his afternoon starting pitching assignment against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The telephone rang. "Is this Mr. Newcombe?" the somewhat distant voice inquired.

"Yes, this is Don Newcombe," was the reply.

"This is Campy. What's wrong with the ball club?"

It was Roy Campanella, the Dodgers' paralyzed catcher calling from his bedside at New York's Bellevue Hospital.

"At first I thought someone was playing a joke on me," Newcombe said. "The voice sounded so far away and muffled, as if it were in another room. But then I recognized it. It was my old roommate."

"Campy sounded pretty cheerful. But he wanted to know why we've been losing. I told him the reason, I said, 'I haven't won a single game and Drysdale is one and six.' 'Roy told me he'd sure like to have a crack at that screen in the Coliseum and I said that he'd be a cinch to hit 90 homers there. He said he'd be moved into a wheelchair next week, but will have to wear a brace.

"He can move his arms, but still can't move his fingers. He can't hold the telephone and was talking into a loudspeaker. That's why his voice sounded so far away."

"Tell the fellows that I'm with 'em all the way," Campy said. "And I'm gonna beat this thing, too."

Newcombe said some of the Dodgers plan to visit Campanella Monday when the Dodgers move to Philadelphia.

Leave it to the Chamber of Commerce to get the most mileage out of Stan Musial's 3,000th hit. And that's exactly what one C of C figure libert did. He put his slide rule to work and computed that The Man's 3,000 hits covered 116 miles, 3,595 feet.

The super statistician is Foster Eaton, a former newspaperman who was helped in his meticulous mathematics by Paul Rickett of The Sporting News staff.

These gentlemen agreed that the average single covers 123 feet, the average double 300 feet, a triple 400 feet and a home run 350 feet. In figuring a triple travels 50 feet farther than a homer they took into consideration that a lot of home runs are little more than pop flies, whereas a third-baser has to wiggle its way to a far corner of the park.

Here is the hitometer chart on Stanley:

Singles—1,827 for 43 miles, 1,335 feet.
Doubles—622 for 35 miles, 800 feet.
Triples—185 for 12 miles, 2,640 feet.
Home runs—386 for 25 miles, 3,100 feet.
There is only one thing that Messrs. Eaton and Rickett overlooked. While they charted the distance the ball traveled, they neglected to trace the mileage that Musial put on his ancient legs.

My former geometry teacher may want to retract that last report card because, without help from Univac, I came to the conclusion that Musial has done 87.5 miles of running on hits, or more than three times the distance of the Boston Marathon.

Back to the ball mileage. Ty Cobb sent the pellet into orbit for 114 miles, 230 feet, while Honus Wagner topped Musial in the National League with 120 miles, 1,100 feet.

But being generous to a fault, the two statisticians added a couple of miles for the oldtimers because they played in the dead ball era.

Besides, their mileage was handicapped. Cobb and Wagner performed in the low octane days and used the choke extensively on their bats.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS

Sports Editor

The word persists in the baseball fraternity that if the Dodgers don't pick up—at least begin moving a bit more consistently—when they come back to the Coliseum for their next home stand during the month of June, that Walt Alston will find himself listed as an "ex-manager."

The Dodger front office continues to deny that there is any thought of replacing Alston, but as a top-rated baseball man says... "It's got to be that way."

"It's been the practice in baseball from almost the very start to sacrifice the manager when a club is losing in an attempt to keep gate interest up. In firing the manager, the front office is telling the fans in so many words... 'look, we're taking drastic steps to give you a winner.'"

"But a change in leadership won't help the Dodgers in the overall picture. They'll finish no higher than they would with Alston because the Dodgers are not a solid team."

"They planted Charley Dressen in a coaching berth last November to be ready for such an eventuality. He is the heir-apparent, of course, to the management. It was a sign that the Dodger front office felt even at that stage that such a move might be necessary. And it was done BEFORE Roy Campanella's accident."

"Everyone out here has been expecting too much of the Dodgers. On top of that, the club has not been playing up to its true potential."

"WHAT IS THE TRUE potential? Well, it's far, under what most people think. It's on the borderline of being a second-division club... but not as bad as it has looked to date."

"No, the park and the left field screen hasn't much to do with it. The Coliseum isn't as bad as it's made out to be. The home run is a threat in any park today and the screen would be even more advantageous to the Dodgers than the visiting clubs if their right-handers were hitting. The left-handers are no threat now, but if the field was squared away, the lefties would be getting their share of home runs over the right field fence... so it's six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

"The rival clubs would be hitting so many homers if the pitching was sharp. All they have to do is pitch everything low and away to keep the left field fence from being bombarded, but the Dodger pitchers haven't been able to control that pitch."

"The pitching has been miserable... and the relief pitching even worse. The hurlers are not yet in shape due to a bad spring, and on top of that, the staff has been greatly over-rated."

Outside of Don Newcombe, who won 27 in '56, and Don Drysdale, a 17-game winner last season, the rest of the pitchers have not been big winners in recent seasons.

Johnny Podres, the Dodgers' "hottest" pitcher to date, got his reputation by beating the Yankees twice in the '53 World Series thanks to a fantastic game-saving catch of Yogi Berra's drive by Sandy Amoros. But during the regular season that year he only had a 9-10 record. He has not been a consistent big winner."

And Carl Erskine has struggled hard to win as many as 12 games in recent years.

"DRYSDALE IS THE BEST pitcher of the lot. He's got much more stuff than anyone else, but he's so tight that he can't do anything. Once he wins a couple, he'll get his confidence back and he'll be tougher than ever. His arm is beginning to come around after reporting late from Army service."

"Clem Labine has just needed work. You don't pitch yourself in shape until the real competition begins and Labine hasn't yet stayed in a game long enough to pitch himself in shape. That 10-inning job in Chicago Thursday will put him well along the road back. He's just had a little control trouble which will come around with work."

"As for Newcombe, he's one of two men I'd get rid of in a hurry. In fact, if I was running the club, Newcombe and Duke Snider wouldn't be around for more than 20 minutes. They've outlived their usefulness with the Dodgers. However, it may be too late now to get much for them on the market. They're 'damaged goods.'"

"I've always thought that Snider would have been just another outfielder if he would have played in some other park than Ebbets Field. He built his reputation in the Brooklyn 'bandbox,' which is an open invitation to left-handed hitters."

"NOW THAT THE 'BANDBOX' is in the other direction in the Coliseum, the Duke has flattened out. By the time the Dodgers get a new ballpark, Duke will be too old, thus it would be good business to trade him for immediate help because the Dodgers aren't going to improve themselves by bringing up Triple-A players from their farm clubs."

"The same goes for Newcombe. The Dodgers made a big mistake by not dealing him to Cincinnati last winter—if Cincy really wanted him, that is. 'Most baseball men feel that Newcombe's trouble is all mental and it might be a good thing for him if he went to another club.'"

"The catching, meanwhile, is just as good as a lot of other clubs have got... clubs that are winning."

"The only difference between major league ball and the brand of baseball you saw in the Pacific Coast League is the stars on the major league clubs. A big league team is made up of 20 'donkeys' and about five stars. The Coast League clubs are composed of 25 donkeys among whom might be a couple of players destined to become stars."

"The trouble with the Dodgers is that their stars have become just average 'donkeys' the past couple of seasons."

"They say a team should never stand pat, yet the Dodgers, except for a rookie or two, have the same lineup they did a year ago when they started to slide down. The only major difference is that everyone is a year older... and many of them a step slower!"

SACS WIN ON 3 HITS

Mounties Bow in Mound Duel, 1-0

Vancouver right-hander Russ Heman allowed Sacramento only three hits Saturday night but the third was a double by Harry Bright in the ninth inning following a walk which sent across the only run of the game as the Solons won the Pacific Coast League tilt, 1-0. Carl Greene, allowing seven hits, got credit for the win.

There were five home runs hit in the Portland-Phoenix slugfest which the Giants won, 10-7. They got all their runs in the first three innings.

IN OTHER GAMES, Salt Lake City won the first of a late night doubleheader, 7-6, over Spokane and San Diego rattled the fading Seattle Rainiers, 5-1.

Robin Halts Bucs, 4-3, for 3rd Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Robin Roberts, surviving a pair of sixth inning homers, won his second in a row and his third of the season Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3.

The Phils chased rookie Benjie Daniels with four runs in the first four innings in an attack which included homers by Rip Repulski and Willie Jones and a bases-loaded bunt by Roberts for another tally as the Pirates dropped their third straight.

Poly, Compton Pace CIF Series

Hares, Tarbables Take Six Spots; James Runs 14.1

By JERRY EZRIN

Centennial High School's Floyd James recorded the third fastest prep high hurdle time in the nation Saturday as Compton, Poly, and the Centennial Apaches led qualifiers in the semi-finals of the CIF track and field championships at Ramsar Stadium.

James' time was 14.1, just one-tenth of a second off the CIF standard of 14.0 established in 1956.

Compton qualified six along with Poly, while Centennial followed with five.

Most exciting event of the afternoon was in the mile as Woody Covington of Compton, put on a final sprint to nose out Antelope Valley's Tom Lue in 4:23.3. Covington was in second during the first three laps and made his move in the backstretch of the final lap, to find Liles pulling away. The Compton runner stayed on his heels and drew ahead in the final 50 yards.

IN THE other mile heat, little Sal Ramirez of El Rancho outclassed the rest of the field by 20 yards for a 4:27.9 mark. In the same race, Wilson's Clayton Ward was nosed out at the finish line after holding second throughout the final lap.

The varsity shot put saw Poly's Jim Smith and Millikan's Jack Slocome finish up in their familiar one-two position. Smith put the shot 60'2 1/2" compared to Slocome's 58'6" heave.

Poly's Dee Andrews pulled a mild upset in the 180 lows. Compton's Bill Coates failed to place. Andrews also grabbed a second in the 120 highs to pace Long Beach area qualifiers.

PREP NINE BOASTS 19 WINS IN ROW

Unbeaten Saints Great --or Just Good--Club?

By JERRY HALL

Take a heaping portion of savvy and mix well with an inordinate measure of polish and you have the recipe that has jelled the St. Anthony High School baseball team this year—the club that is working on a win streak of 19.

The jury is still out on the question of whether this is a great prep team or just a good one. The Saints open in the CIF playoffs Tuesday and we'll learn a lot about that proposition in the immediate future. (The opponent Tuesday still is undetermined.)

But this much is sure: there aren't many baseball teams—man or boy, great or good—that navigate a full season without defeat. Which is what St. Anthony accomplished when it closed the schedule the past week by disposing of Plus X by a 14-2 score, just about the margin of difference between the Saints and the rest of the Catholic League this year.

STATISTICS give a good line on this club. Seven of the nine regulars are hitting better than .300. One who isn't is Charlie Webb, a lean and mean pitcher. The other is a sophomore with a lot of promise.

Catcher Walt Osgood tops the batting average list with .409. It's entirely likely he's the best catcher of his age in the country. He may wrap up a $50,000 or $60,000 bonus upon graduation next month.

There are at least three on the squad who look like prime prospects for top-flight professional careers. In addition to Osgood, they are centerfielder Al Roman (currently hitting .339) and Webb.

Webb is a slender right-hander who looks smaller than his 170 pounds (and six feet), has a good curve and a sizzling fast ball. He holds the key to the Saints' playoff fortunes.

"We've been lucky that we've always had someone to come through for us in the clutch, though," says coach Mario DiMuro, in his first year at the helm. "It's been a great experience to have these fellows. They learn quickly and improve all the time."

DiMuro has made quite an advance this year, himself. It's his first season as a head varsity coach. But he's quick to pass along the credit for this year's streak to last year's coach, Tom Racciatelli, now a teacher at Westminster Jr. High.

There are five regulars back from last year's team—outfielder Frank Escudero, second baseman-shortstop Wes Collins and Osgood, Webb and Roman.

(St. Anthony has won 25 successive league games over the past two seasons.)

Long Beach's only run in the opener came in the third with-out benefit of a hit. In the second contest, Bill Gibbs singled across one run and Ivan Schuler scored Gibbs with a single to give the 49ers two runs in the second inning. They added in the fourth and Roger Hull knocked in the final pair with a single in the sixth.

The 49ers wound up the season with 16-10 record and 8-7 in league play.

49ers End Season on Sour Note

Long Beach State upheld its unenviable position of having never beaten San Diego State in a major sports event as the 49ers closed out their baseball season by dropping a double-header to the Aztecs Saturday on the latter's diamond.

In the second contest, Bill Gibbs singled across one run and Ivan Schuler scored Gibbs with a single to give the 49ers two runs in the second inning. Sime Tops Compton Dash Field

Dave Sime, current claimant to the title "world's fastest human," will head a stellar field in the dashes for the 19th annual Compton Invitational track and field meet Friday night, June 6.

The sprints will be one of the supporting attractions to the spotlighted mile run which brings together Olympic Champion Ron Delany of Ireland (and Villanova) and fabulous Australian Herb Elliott.

Sime, husky Duke senior, is holder of the world 220-yard dash mark of 20.0 and co-holder of the 100 record of 9.3.

WILLIE WHITE, amazing California sophomore who upset Bobby Morrow to win the Compton 100 last year in 9.4, will head the opposition to Sime. White was voted the outstanding athlete of the 1957 Invitational.

Other starters include Leamon King, co-holder of the world 100 mark and 1956 Olympic; Hollis Gaiety of Texas, Mike Agostini, Fresno State, and Bob Stater, San Diego JC star.

Greta Andersen Eyes Catalina Channel Mark

By LOU JOBST

Greta Andersen, only woman in history to win an English Channel race, wants to break the Catalina Channel swim record next month, "If I get a sponsor."

"This is my biggest dream now," said the Long Beach resident who won a 1948 Olympic Games gold medal for Denmark.

"I don't mean the record established last month by Mrs. Amy Hiland, either," continued Greta. "I mean the one recognized as the real record—the one Flo Chadwick set in 1952."

The Long Beach housewife, spouse of San Pedro High School football coach, John Sonnichsen, said Saturday that, with due respect to Mrs. Hiland, she felt that Amy's record was strictly one of endurance.

"Amy's swim from Catalina to Long Beach in 24 hours, but I'm positive I can cross the channel in less than 14 hours," Greta continued.

Flo Chadwick's record is 13 hours, 37 minutes.

The daughter of a Copenhagen mechanic and sister of an internationally-known cyclist is planning for the gruelling Guaymas, Mexico, swim on May 29.

"THEREFORE, June is open on my itinerary," she continued. "After Guaymas and that 28-mile swim, I'll go to Atlantic City for the international championships in July, then the English Channel again in August."

"But a sponsor is an absolute must. Swimming is expensive. I made $11,000 last year, but spent $8,000 on expenses."

"I'm in top shape for a record try," she explained. "My pace is now 1 mile every 24 minutes and 24 seconds."

Greta, who couldn't swim a stroke until she was 16, would have not become one of the world's top distance swimmers but for the coincidence of a serious knee injury and a P. E. job in Long Beach.

As a young amateur Greta became a world sensation in the sprints. She won the 1948 Olympic 100 meter race and held the world record for the 100 meter freestyle seven years.

GRETA ANDERSEN... World Record Chaser.

"I dropped out of competition because of my knee from 1953 to 1956, the year I got a job in Long Beach. There I met Tom Parks," she said.

Parks, 1956 Atlantic City world champion, talked Greta into becoming a distance swimmer.

"He changed my style and stroke for the long haul stuff, and I've been pretty lucky since."

GRETA'S LOCK has meant beating the world's top men swimmers including teacher Tom Parks. She beat a field of 25 in the 28-mile rough water swim at Atlantic City, then became a world sensation by being one of two swimmers out of a field of 35 to cross the storm-swept English Channel in 1957. She finished first 2 1/2 hours in front of British champion Ken Wayne.

"But swimming keeps me from being a good housekeeper (although her 3822 E. 1st St. apartment is immaculate, an artful combination of Danish provincial and American modern furnishings), a good wife and mother, and most important from becoming an American," she concluded.

Greta has been studying for a citizenship exam for four months, but must delay taking it because of a technicality that says she cannot leave the nation.

PAT AHERN GIVEN AWARD BY COLORADO
Long Beach City Councilman D. Patrick Ahern learned Saturday via letter direct from the governor of Colorado, Steve McNichols, that he was the first non-California resident to receive the annual Colorado Sportsman's Award.

The award for 1958 was presented to Ahern, according to Governor McNichols, "because of your personal attendance in Denver for the annual AAU Tournament for the past 20 years and because, I am told, you are probably the most completely informed man in the U. S. on the sport of basketball."

Ahern is to receive a Sportsman's Award plaque under separate cover.

Inyo-Mono Trout 'Plants' Listed

The following streams and lakes in the Inyo-Mono country will be planted weekly with catchable-size trout through the rest of this month and part of June:

FISHIN' FACTS
Fishermen off of Pacific and Long Beach landings Saturday caught a total of 2,965 fish.

Most of the fish were caught near Catalina Island.

Included in the total were 2,114 barracuda, 70 yellowtail, 26 white sea bass, 525 bass and 966 bonito.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

When fishing becomes the red-hot subject of all outdoorsmen as it is now, it becomes difficult to pinpoint any type of the sport that will please everybody. In fact, this time of year is a nightmare for an outdoor columnist with such questions like these many times a day:

"Why don't you give us more information on the ocean?"
"Why can't you print a summary of Inyo-Mono lakes and streams every week?"

"What's doing on Deadman Creek? You haven't said anything about that!"

"What happened to the salmon at Morro Bay?"

"Why don't you stay home and see California instead of chasing off to Idaho? I'd like information about Little Chico Creek."

And just about that time, a columnist feels like telling the caller to take a flying leap into the creek while he (the columnist) arranges for another trip out of state to get away from it all.

Actually, I would like to carry all the news from all the resorts, but newspaper columns just aren't that long. All I can do is make an honest attempt to summarize the highlights of all types of fishing, knowing fully well that some will be unhappy.

BEST SIERRA NEVADA BETS—Let's take a look at the eastern slope first. If you aren't interested in that area, just wait your turn. Weather tipped the score at several resorts, such as Crowley, Bridgeport, Twin (Bridgeport), Sabrina, South and other lakes. Most fishermen caught partial limits when the weather permitted, but winds interfered considerably.

The road was open to Sabrina: a walk-in trip required to reach South. The June-Silver-Gull-Grant Loop was clear of ice and chances look good for excellent fishing this week.

Good creeks were East Walker River, Owens (Chalk Bluff area), South Fork of Bishop, Robinson, Convict, McGee, Hilton and Rock. But the runoff was increasing and many other streams normally good at this time of year were too high for successful fishing.

Hot Creek was a disappointment although one angler from Southern California took an enormous brown trout on a small fly. The fish weighed 12-8, certainly an unusual catch from tiny Hot Creek.

Another section of California was opened to trout fishing Saturday. It embraced the counties of Plumas, Alpine, Butte, Yuba, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, Eldorado and Alpine.

The last parcel of the state will open May 30, embracing the counties of Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino and portions of Trinity, Lake and Glenn. Other parts of those counties already are open.

IN THE MOUNTAINS closer to Long Beach, we find Big Bear and Arrowhead Lakes still leading the parade. Those Big Bear merchants, realizing the benefits of fishing, are going all-out for heavy plants. They planted nearly 10,000 fish last week, 2,400 of which went three-quarters of a pound each. A few anglers caught some 16- and 18-inch brown trout at Little Rock Reservoir and started some real excitement. Most of the Little Rock regulars know that the lake contains only planted rainbows. The browns washed down into the Reservoir from Little Rock Creek.

Jenks Lake, North Fork of Lytle Creek, Cachuma Reservoir, Matilija Reservoir and Piru Lake are affording fair to excellent fishing.

A list of the weekly trout plantings will be carried on these pages every Thursday, or Friday, depending upon time of release of the DFG's bulletins.

THE OCEAN IS THE FIRST LOVE of many fishermen and they admit that they wouldn't turn a page to learn about trout. Be that as it may, 75 per cent of the calls to my desk are from anglers seeking information about fresh-water fishing.

The barracuda and the kelp bass are keeping the ocean boys happy here and elsewhere along the Southern California coast. San Diego as usual is having its tremendous run of yellowtail, but yellows are showing frequently at such places as these: Horseshoe Kelp, Rocky Point, Catalina Island, Dana Point and Oceanside.

Remember that the yellows are constantly moving around. You'll get them in one place today; another tomorrow. The reason that San Diego's run is so consistent is that there are so many fish coming up from tropical water off Mexico.

That salmon run at Morro Bay didn't last long and those that were caught took deep-running lures. Apparently the fish moved northward to Monterey Bay, where fishing is excellent now.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—The Long Beach Casting Club starts its weekly casting classes this week, with a 7 to 9 p.m. period each Wednesday. Beginners and nonmembers are welcome and the LBCC experts promise to help any one who wishes to learn how to cast. That, of course, leads to better fishing.

B. Siegel, 6019 E. Charwood St., Lakewood, an entrant in Evinrude's "Dreamboat Contest," won a 7 1/2-h.p. Fleetwin outboard and $400 in credit toward a boat of his choice. His dealer was Weiman's Marine Service of Bellflower.

Here's a chance for clubs to do a real service to boys and girls. Dick Jennings sends word that Cortland Line Co., Inc., Cortland, N. Y., will send free short-length fly lines to any group sponsoring a contest for youngsters. The lines will be for the kids, not the grownups. Just write Dick at Cortland.

Cortland also has a new casting line that re-waterproofs itself from the inside. It's called Heart-O-Gold. Cortland must have taken a cue from the ducks on that one. No, that line isn't free.

Pros Ronnie LaFraugh, Jimmy Ireland, Bud Oakley and Earl Martin will play in the 2 p. m. exhibition and join George Lake in a 3:30 clinic. The car show will run from 10 to 5 p. m. Proceeds will aid the "burn the mortgage" campaign of the 75-year-old St. Peter's Episcopal Church of San Pedro.

Lions Drag Strip to Host Second Grand Prix Meet

Drag racers from 11 states will invade Long Beach for the second annual All-Western Grand Prix meet on the Lions Associated Drag Strip next Saturday and Sunday.

The multiple-timed speed tests will go Saturday afternoon and evening, continuing all day Sunday, it was announced by Mickey Thompson, events director.

Plus the drag action, featuring the nation's outstanding acceleration speedsters, 80 youngsters will clash in a special invitational Southern California meet for quarter-midget race cars.

There will be no increase in admission (90 cents for adults, with children under 12, bleachers and parking all free), at the plant off 233rd St., near Alameda Ave.

Par-ticulars

By JERRY WYNN

I turned out to be a poor prophet last Sunday in theorizing about the "new look" City Championship. Although the field still will be greatly representative of the Long Beach area, several familiar Los Angeles players have been heard from during the past week.

"Think we'd miss the Long Beach City," said veteran Leo Swedo of Montebello in calling in entries for two foursomes. "Not on your life. We'll play here (Montebello Invitational) in the morning and qualify there (Recreation Park) in the afternoon!"

Included in the foursomes are Bob Reid, a Long Beach City finalist in 1950 and 1956, and Seymour Black, 1958 SC-Public finalist. Other talented Los Angeles invaders will be Ed Korylsk of Rancho and Neil Burgess of Western Ave.

A new face is Michael O'Brien of Wilshire Country Club, who according to Loyola's Dick McBride is quite a player. While at Loyola several years ago, O'Brien teamed with Billy Donovan to hand Gene Littler and Frank Morey Jr. of San Diego State their only loss one season.

Palos Verdes CC will have a powerful one-two punch in John Richardson (also of Lakewood) and Gerald Zar, two-time winners.

Richardson Victor
John Richardson of Lakewood won the Palo Verde golf club championship Saturday with a 4 and 3 victory over Low Barnes.

The match was scheduled for 36 holes.

Orange County clubs will be well-represented by such title threats as former champion Wally Taft; Howard Estep, Frank Donaldson, Fred Valenzano and one-time collegiate football stars Ed Wampler (Tennessee) and Dave Speaks (Kentucky).

Yes, there will be some Long Beach players.

Skyliner Visits Borrego Springs

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

"... a spring or fountain of the finest water, which runs for about two leagues, having willows most of the way... here was found much grass and other green plants, as well as wild vines and trees, which announced to us an improvement in the country from here forward."

This was the apt description of Juan Bautista de Anza as this Spanish military explorer and his party came upon California's Borrego Springs a few days before Christmas in 1775. De Anza was the leader of a group of some 200 men, women and children who were journeying from Fort Tubac in southern Arizona to Monterey and San Francisco to block the penetration of Russian colonists who were drifting down from the Pacific Northwest.

BORREGO—Named for the yearling sheep which abounded in the fertile valley—was a welcome rest haven for the weary colonists who had come the many miles on foot, horseback and ox cart.

One hundred and eighty-three years later, our visit to Borrego Springs was by quite a different mode of transportation. With probably little change in the physical contours of Borrego Valley, our motorlog party viewed de Anza's early route from the luxury of a 1958 Ford Skyliner, newest of the very new—the world's only retractable hardtop.

Our combination hardtop-convertible, so ideally suited for a desert weekend, was furnished by McKenzie Ford of 1033 American Ave., one of Long Beach's earliest auto dealers and one of the very first Ford dealers in the entire nation.

It was back in 1905 that E. A. McKenzie established his little Long Beach showroom to become today just about the largest Ford dealer in Southern California. Bud McKenzie, son of the founder, who now operates the dealership, put us aboard the gleaming white Skyliner for our desert jaunt. With a few instructions on the simple operation of the disappearing metal top, luggage loaded, Bud flagged us out onto American Ave. and we were Borrego bound.

Leaving Long Beach at 5:30 p.m. Friday, 204 miles and five hours later found our four-some at Borrego Desert Lodge, our luxurious weekend spa. Our outboard route (see map) took us via Palm Springs on to Hwy. 99 to the southern tip of Salton Sea. There a right turn onto Hwy. 78 and Borrego was at hand. Greeted by resident manager Marty Pavletich, we were soon settled for the night in a comfortable air-conditioned suite a few steps from the lodge.

The emphasis on Borrego Desert Lodge living is rest and relaxation we discovered as our party enjoyed a poolside breakfast next morning. The over-all activities of Borrego can be summed up in three words—homes, agriculture and recreation. These we saw first-hand as host Pavletich guided us on a Ford Skyliner tour of the whole valley.

Borrego Valley is about six miles wide in the east-to-west direction, possibly 12 to 15 miles in length and the whole basin is confined by encircling mountains which afford a majestic view in any direction.

As we sped along the valley floor, the lodge manager pointed out the San Ysidro Mountains which guard the western edge of Borrego. To the north we saw the Santa Rosa range and on the east were the valley badlands. Toward Mexico, to the south, the Yaqui Mountains sloped to Borrego's edge.

In addition to the scenic grandeur we were next impressed by the valley's agriculture. The huge Di Giorgio Fruit Corp., a giant in the nation's fruit and produce business, has a sizable chunk of land under cultivation in the northern part of the valley. Grapes—Thompson seedless and Cardinals—are grown by the tons here.

Borrego Springs' abundant water supply and the Di Giorgio Corp.'s latest scientific cultivation methods combine to produce some of the most succulent grapes, which bring top prices in eastern markets.

In addition to fruit trees and ground crops, cotton and alfalfa are prominent valley crops, and the Fortinier Ranch is noted for its beautiful gladioli harvest which also finds its way to eastern markets. Most of the blooms had been picked when we were at the "Glad" ranch but enough were still standing to portray a riot of color in contrast to the desert browns and grays.

Pride of the valley at the moment and also in sharp contrast to the bordering desert sand is the De Anza Desert Country Club, a nine-hole course which was opened last year. Designed by Lawrence Hughes, noted golf course architect, the fairways and greens looked most inviting as we drove by. Adjacent to the desert course and beautiful clubhouse are choice homesites which are rapidly being filled with modern homes tailored to desert living.

We pointed our white V-8 back toward our lodge now, with a tour around Christmas served very efficiently in the spa's beautiful Ocotillo Room. And the prices aren't bad either, considering the luxury atmosphere one enjoys at Desert Lodge. Dinners were in the $2.50-$4.50 price range, while a big breakfast came to $1.25. Room accommodations seem to be within reason, too, with a tastefully appointed double bringing $12.

Our after-dark activity again found us at ease poolside watching a full moon climb slowly into the clear desert sky. Later we again were joined by host, Marty Pavletich, who reminisced a bit about his wartime weekends in Long Beach. Marty was attached to a blimp squadron which was on submarine patrol from its Santa Ana base and the resort manager was a frequent visitor at our Pacific Coast Club.

It was an enjoyable Saturday evening—rest, lazy conversation and relaxation... typical Borrego night life.

Noon next day found us back on the road again, with our Skyliner eating up the miles on Hwy. 78 toward the coast. Soon we joined U. S. 395, and stopped for a gas-up at Temecula, then a left turn into Elsinore.

With the afternoon still young, we wanted a look at the rejuvenated lake from the high vantage point of San Juan Capistrano, and the heavy crowds of drivers with the same thought.

A short drive toward the coast again, through the Cleveland National Forest, and we were in mission-famed San Juan Capistrano, and the heavy crowds of drivers with the same thought.

Another pleasant weekend in our memory book.

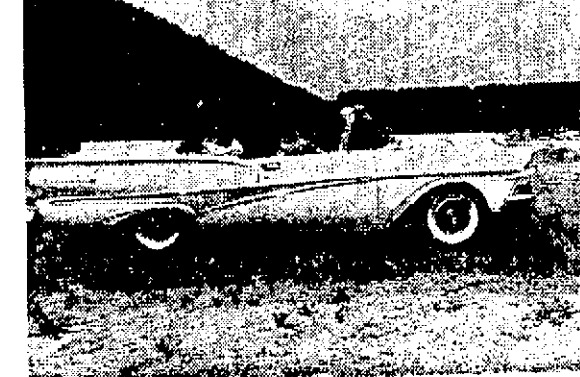

SKYLINER IN THE SKY

Liz Bouncing Back From Tragic Shock

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Since March 22, when Mike Todd's private plane crashed in the New Mexico mountains, his beautiful widow has averaged about 2,000 letters of condolence per day.

Each letter is being answered by card or personal note from Elizabeth Taylor herself.

Liz, now immersed in work, spends almost all of her spare time on handwritten notes to personal friends who sent flowers or otherwise expressed sorrow.

Physically and mentally, Liz has bounced back from the tragic shock although she occasionally suffers a bad night reliving the horror of receiving the news. Her work in her current picture, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," is little help; it deals much with impending death.

Among the first scenes when she returned to work was one in which she went to an airport to meet Big Daddy (Burt Reynolds) as he returned in his private plane.

ONE VISIT that cheered her was an unannounced call from Greta Garbo, long an idol. Garbo recalled that the last time she had seen Liz was when both worked on the same lot. Liz was 12 at the time.

Liz has found much solace in her brother, Howard, and his wife, who live at La Jolla. She has spent most of her weekends there.

She had planned to retire from the movies within the next year, but Mike's death has removed the reason for that.

"I only wanted to retire because Mike wanted me to," she says.

She and Michael Todd Jr. have held a series of business conferences about the future of the Todd enterprises. The decision was to carry on in the Todd tradition, even to the production of "Don Quixote," which young Todd first had wanted to forget.

Her Own Show Goes On and On

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Madeleine Sherwood has been pregnant — theatrically speaking — for three years, but that is not what makes her unusual.

Miss Sherwood, a New York actress, pays only $50 a month for her Greenwich Village apartment. She moved in when rent control was on — and it has never been raised.

"It has living room, bedroom, bath and kitchen and three trees in the backyard — and trees come high in New York," she says. The Montreal-born actress has to pay $35 a month for a garage for her car.

Her pregnancy is all theatrical. She's been wearing pads on her dresses for "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," first during the Broadway long run and now during the movie version.

CHERRY TIME NEAR

Beaumont to Hold Festival in June

Under the towering snow caps who did publicity for Cherry Valley and Beaumont for more than a generation.

First come the black sweet Tartarians, in early June, and then the Bings, Royal Annes, Eastern sour pie cherries and Lamberts.

Beaumont-Cherry Valley is looking forward to its annual Cherry Festival June 12-15, with a big parade on the final day.

CHERRY GROWERS ASSN., represents the valley's thousands of acres of cherries, re-elected Bruno Weise, president, and named T. Dean Crist publicity director.

Crist, publisher of a weekly newspaper, will try to fill the shoes of the late Guy Bogart.

Zsa Zsa Owns $2,000 Burro

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor is probably the only glamour queen who has a $2,000 burro running around her Bel-Air house.

Burras seldom cost more than $100 but oilman Ray Ryan paid $2,000 for this one at a charity auction, then presented it to the blonde Hungarian. She named it Sir Charles.

"That's because I've known so many asses named Charles," she comments.

TROUBLES OF A BLONDE

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Nichols stole the show on a recent Jack Benny "Shower of Stars" program—but before that, Jack was a little afraid to use her.

"Barbara," Jack said after he'd first met the dumb-blonde TV and movie comedienne, "you'd be playing my girl friend and I think you're too young to play my girl friend."

"Mr. Benny," retorted Barbara, "you don't know the age of some of the fellows I have to go out with!"

Barbara—who frequently means, "I don't want to be a star, I just want to get married!"—has been reduced to buying another boy dog, a French poodle named Hi-Fi, for male companionship.

"A dog is the only kind of a male a blonde can latch onto around this town," Barbara told me the other afternoon over a drink at the Beverly Hills.

She had brought Hi-Fi and Samson with her. "These are my steady boy friends—and they're not as conceited and spoiled as some of the men around here!" she said.

Barbara recently got $1,000 for one day's work doing a scene with Gary Cooper in "10 North Frederick." She's worked with Red Skelton and other TV comics, and she tells all of them that it's just terrible the trouble a blonde has around Hollywood, getting a husband.

Once she was discussing it with John Wayne and a friend.

"Mr. Wayne doesn't like blondes," Barbara commented sadly.

"Oh, no, you have it wrong!" shot back Wayne. "I like blondes—but I don't marry them!"

BARBARA WONDERED whether ANYBODY marries them. "The men in this town are so spoiled because the women call them up and ask for dates," she said.

"Well, I got spoiled in New York—we never did that. Out here the guys expect it. They give the girls their phone numbers and say 'Call me up sometime.'"

I asked her if she often goes to romantic Palm Springs.

"I'm not about to go with some of the characters that ask me!" she snorted.

While Barbara, the B.W. and I talked, several people—all male people—came to our table and congratulated her on recent acting jobs. The consensus is, "Barbara

Barbara reiterated. "But I don't believe anybody takes blondes seriously."

"It's even difficult to get recognition as an actress if you're a blonde."

Even Quake Didn't Stop LBCC Pioneers

GLEE DUNCAN assumes pose familiar to multitude of former Long Beach students who took business courses from her at Long Beach City College. She has been chairman of Business Department of the college more than 30 years.

By JEAN B. MOORE

They remember a time when their desks were picnic tables, and maps were wired to trees; when student plays suddenly were switched from a theater to Recreation Park, to the delight of picnickers.

It was a cold spring in 1933, and the tents they moved into from classes under the trees leaked.

But foremost in the recollections of Miss Glee Duncan and Miss Katharyn Kennedy is the cooperation and attendance of students in those hectic days after the earthquake.

These two seldom dwell in the past, for they are too busy with the present.

Their distinction in common is that they are the only members of the original Long Beach City College faculty still teaching on the campus.

Glee Duncan, the "good sport" type, has been head of the Business Department since the college was organized in 1927 in the Wilson High School building.

Slight Katharyn Kennedy, whose delicate features repose beneath a torch-brilliant crown, is speech and drama instructor at the college.

IN AN HONEST and sincere appraisal of Long Beach students, Glee Duncan maintains they are superior in mental attitude and social adjustment. She thinks they always have been.

During the earthquake era business students learned debits and credits in the park, with lessons printed on blackboards.

Other classes were relocated down narrow stairs in the basement of the band shell in Recreation Park. Yet rarely was there a grumble.

"From the park we moved to those devilish tents," Miss Duncan recalls.

AFTER THE temporary bungalows, the campus moved to its present Lakewood location, and eventually Glee Duncan's staff grew to about 15, teaching all business subjects. During the years she has taught all business subjects herself.

"The best friends I have are my former students," Glee Duncan says. "No matter what my problem, I almost always can call on an ex-student now in business to help."

"Almost every week former students come to the campus, either on business or to consult with me about courses for their children. I'm on the second generation of students now."

GLEE DUNCAN likes teaching. She especially likes teaching in Long Beach. One reason is that she enjoys people.

"On the college level you're dealing with young, forward-looking people," she explains. "This profession keeps you young and normal, and you feel you're doing something for someone."

Outside the classroom, Miss Duncan sponsors the Kassar Alumnae group. An honorary service group, it gives scholarships and does philanthropic work. Miss Duncan sponsored the campus Kassar group some years ago, and the nucleus of the alumnae group is composed of these women.

More feathers in the Duncan cap: president of the American Association of University Women, member of City Teachers Club, now called TALB, Delta Kappa Gamma, and chairman several years ago of the state business teachers convention here.

BUT THAT is not all. She's a good cook; plays golf and bridge and swims.

Travel is her middle name. She's been around the world; has visited Europe and Canada several times. Has seen Mexico and Alaska. Her formula: travel alone—you'll have a better time.

But her teaching days are about over, for she will retire June 20.

What will she do? "I don't know yet," she says. "I thought when you retired you didn't have to do anything!"

That's as unlikely a statement as Glee Duncan probably ever has made.

KATHARYN KENNEDY's desk at City College is a tiny

Lady Lions Set Party

All is in readiness for the annual spring meeting of the combined six Lady Lions Clubs in this area. The party, to take place at 7 p. m. Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel, will have as its theme "International Springtime."

Lady Lions, an international organization of wives and mothers of Lions International, is organized for community betterment and philanthropic ventures.

Acting as host to the members will be the Lady Lions Downtown Club of which Mrs. Vern Castle is president.

She is being assisted by Mrs. George Alexander, left, of Belmont Shore Lady Lions, are in charge of publicity for the soiree. Projects for this club include support of Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the famous Lion Doll that is dressed each year by members.

West Long Beach Lady Lions are busy gathering art

the Rose Resnik School and Camp for Blind Children.

IN CHARGE of the door awards for the party will be Lakewood Lady Lions. Mrs. R. T. Crawford, president, is being assisted by Mrs. Lowell Robbins. Main activity of this club is hosting a March birthday party for patients at Rancho Los Amigos as well as contributing to the Lakewood Youth Center.

Mrs. George Alexander, assisted by Mrs. Edwin W. Hyka, Ted Byrnes and Laverne Butcher, of Belmont Shore Lady Lions, are in charge of publicity for the soiree. Projects for this club include support of Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the famous Lion Doll that is dressed each year by members.

West Long Beach Lady Lions are busy gathering art

objects as well as dolls of many nations to decorate the dinner tables. Mrs. Earl Akin, president, is being assisted by Mrs. L. B. Stanbaugh. Major project for them is helping with the Boys' Club and in addition they present a bond to the boy that is chosen "Boy of the Year." Each year in August they stage a luau, as a money-raising event.

A PANEL of foreign students, secured through the Long Beach American Field Service, will be presented by North Long Beach Lady Lions as the program for the evening. Students Kai Kruger of Norway, Victor Mueller of Switzerland and Maro Conio of Argentina, were selected by Mrs. Ira Williams, the club president, Mrs.

Exotic Decor of Islands for Dance

The ever-busy GOP Juniors will momentarily forget their many responsibilities and succumb to the call of those far-away places for one glamorous, romantic evening in a Tahitian Paradise next Saturday evening.

In reality, it is the occasion of the club's annual Spring Fantasy Ball, this year a dinner-dance at the new Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. Traditionally a head-dress dance, this year's theme of Tahitian Paradise promises to inspire many exotic and colorful head adornments.

The Petroleum Club will be transformed by the unusual decorations created by Mrs. John McNulty and her committee in rich shades of purple, turquoise and yellow. The simple Tahitian motif will be cleverly interwoven with the glamorous glitter of our world to create a spectacular effect through the use of Oriental umbrellas and lanterns, hibiscus, glittering butterflies, colored shells and other island decorations.

Many long hours have been spent by Mrs. C. A. Chandler and her committee to insure the success of the evening. The buffet dinner will feature exotic dishes of the islands.

HIGHLIGHTS OF evening will be the Tahitian acrobatic dance performed by Audrey Castle, known in Long Beach for her specialty dancing, and the unveiling of the valuable mystery headdress which will be won by a lucky dance patron. Its identity is a deep secret known only to the dance committee, its creator, Mrs. Harris Rogers, and Mrs. Jack Augsberger, who will model the headdress. Music for the evening will be provided by Bob Callaway and his orchestra.

Another high point of the evening will be the judging of the headdresses, with Messrs. Floyd Williams, Harris Rogers, Ernest Lockwood, John Roggeveen, and Robert Irwin acting as judges.

HOSTS AND hostesses greeting the guests will be Messrs. and Mrs. Gene Haden, C. A. Chandler, Robert Irwin, Norman Scott and Arnold Romeyn.

GOP Juniors is a political club that has received much notice throughout the state due to the fact that the membership is composed almost entirely of young mothers who are concerned with being better informed and who have done a great deal of outstanding educational and political work.

Dinner Party for Peruvian Navy Admiral

Rear Adm. Victor D. Long, commander, Mine Force, U. S. Pacific Fleet, and Mrs. Long entertained Tuesday evening with a formal dinner party honoring Rear Adm. Guillermo Tiraado, chief of naval operations of Peru.

Included on the dinner party guest list were members of Rear Adm. Tiraado's staff.

Others bidden were Mrs. R. S. Craighill, Rear Adm. and Mrs. G. R. Donaho, Peruvian Consul General J. E. Ego-Aguirre and his wife, Capt. and Mrs. George Fritschmann, Rear Adm. and Mrs. R. K. James, Capt. and Mrs. K. R. Wheeland, Capt. W. R. Whitford, Cmdr and Mrs. G. E. Carlisle, Capt. and Mrs. H. F. Stoner and Lt. Cmdr. A. A. Schrimmer.

REAR ADM. TIRAADO was in this area touring facilities of the U. S. Navy as guest of the U. S. chief of Naval operations.

Confederate Unit to Meet

Gen. Joe Wheeler Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will convene May 28 at 2 p. m. in Linden Hall.

Mrs. Donald E. Humphreys, chapter registrar and past state registrar, will talk on "Unusual Incidents in the War Between the States."

Mrs. Joe Handly, chapter president, will lead the meeting, and also will be in charge of reservations.

Ten hostesses will be Mrs. Samuel D. Miller, Mrs. John Thurston, Miss Marguerite Patterson and Miss Lulu Bell Newman.

Visiting and prospective UDC members are invited.

WHAT IS THE MYSTERY HEADDRESS?

LADY LIONS JOIN IN SPRINGTIME PARTY

The six Lady Lions Clubs in this area are busily engaged in preparing for the annual spring meeting scheduled for 7 p. m. Wednesday in the Red Velvet Room of Lafayette Hotel. The event, high light of the year, is being reviewed by Mrs. George Alexander, left, of Belmont Shore Club, and Mrs. Ira Williams of North Long Beach club.

SPRING THEME FOR LADY LIONS MEET WEDNESDAY

and Mrs. Earl Akin of West Long Beach club. The Downtown Club will act as host at the annual event this year, using the theme of "International Springtime." Party is at Lafayette Hotel.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

AMERICAN THUGS may look tougher but, after talking to Gertrude (Mrs. Roy) Suydam this week we decided the British variety are meaner! Called Mrs. Suydam to ask about her forthcoming trip to London to visit daughter, Rosemary, and "Doc" (Cap't R. M.) Wilson and she told us Rosemary and "Doc" had had an official visit from professional robbers, the elite second story boys, who stole $10,000 worth of jewelry AND SEVEN TICKETS TO "MY FAIR LADY."

"Tolks Youse"

Not only are those tickets impossible to replace (the show is sold out for a year) but so is the jewelry which represents a life-time collection plus family heirlooms; things that Rosemary has bought and been given during her world around travels as a Navy wife. Only things those toff footpads didn't get were her engagement ring and a pair of pearl earrings she was wearing.

Actually all this is "bonus" news because we called Mrs. S. to learn details of her trip. Here 'tis. She'll fly away next Saturday and be gone anywhere from a week to six months! If you'd like a little wager we'll offer 10 to 1 it'll be the latter.

Also bonus information was learning that Mrs. Suydam not only sold her home at 4201 Myrtle Ave. to Norman and Rosemarie Stov but moved this very week (Tuesday to be exact) to 3210 E. 1st St. with the help of other daughter, Dorothy Long, who will occupy the new residence with son Stanley and Gertrude's granddaughter, Melinda Suydam, while England is being invaded.

WAVES OF GREEN jealousy come and go this time of year. It's a seasonal allergy which when it stays home suffer when they hear about them as is traveling. June and Lyle Huggins brought on a particularly severe attack with cards and letters mailed from Rome and received this week.

They flew to Italy, bought a car and have been touring all over the place. Right now "grammam" Mabel Huggins (baby-sitting with the children) estimates they're making like a roller coaster in the Alps en route to or in Switzerland. Next Paris, then the World's Fair at Brussels—London—Copenhagen and finally, when June comes to an end (not Mrs. Huggins but the month) they'll fly home via the Polar route while their little Italian car follows by freighter.

RIGHT WHEN THE party was going good Thursday night Florie and Dr. Ward DeWitt turned all the lights out. Honest! Then the party got even better because that was the signal for guests of honor Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Long of Ontario to turn on the projection machine and show their wonderful collection of colored slides of medical work in Ecuador, mainly of Dr. Donald Diliworth at the Andean Mission Hospital near Quito. Also special guests were Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Altig, on leave from medical work in Peru, plus such other interested docs and wives as Rufus and Hart Davis, Irene and Frank James, Edith and Homer DeSadeleer, Peter and Lynn Davis and Lois and Bruce Waller.

THE WATER METER at Betty and Bob Godwins never had it so good as it did the other day. They filled their new pool for the first time! Understand the sparkling backyard swimmin' hole was duly initiated first of this week.

THEY'RE GOING TO gather gleefully for Glee Thursday night at the Hawaiian Restaurant. What and who dat? Glee Duncan, thaswhol'er. The alumni of Long Beach City College are having a big dinner for her to celebrate her retirement. Which doesn't mean they're glad she's getting out of the school business but just glad for her as she begins annual year-long vacations! George Marrison is spearheading the shindig with help from Glenda (Mrs. Archie) Long and Lois Guyser. All CeeCee alums are welcome—just call George.

WISH WE COULD say Ruby Bothwell went to Las Vegas and got lucky. Instead we'll have to admit she went to Las Vegas and got mumps. Doc diagnosed 'em Tuesday; promptly sentenced her to two weeks in bed. Well, unlike a lot of people we know, she did, at least, bring SOMETHING back!

THEY TELL US the boys were handsome and that their girls were positively crazy about them! The boys, all members of Comus Club at Poly, dated their mothers last Sunday morning for Mother's Day, treating them, as they have every May for years and years, to a fashionable breakfast party. Among couples present at the Petroleum Club were Mary and Todd Jageron, Betty and Bill Barbee Jr., Marie and Dennis Sechrest, Erma and Rodger Wheeler, Kay, Gary and Dave Miller and lots of other "guys and moms."

SPEAKING OF THE Cheneys and the Settles—Julia and Bill and Pat and Ralph should look like they've just been freshly painted by the sun this weekend. New tans were brushed on evenly during an ocean going fishing trip Thursday and Friday aboard Jean and "Ebb" Hadley's beautiful 65-foot yacht, "Ebb Tide." They all met at the Kona Kai Club in San Diego Wednesday night for dinner before boarding the boat for leisurely cruising in search of yellow tail! abacore? rock bass? It didn't matter to the fishermen because no matter what was biting you can be sure they were catching their limits of fun!

AND NOW Barbara Eckert has three men to contend with in her family. Or we could put it another way and say that Warren has two sons to side with him in future decisions on family policy. ("Dad sez we can so too keep the snake we found. He promised!") Robert Walter arrived home from Seaside last Saturday all oblivious to how partisan certain male relatives are secretly counting on him to be come some years' hence on snake, frog, beetle or bee gathering expeditions!

Dinner Fete for Mothers

Long Beach Bachelorettes Club members honored their mothers at a recent dinner party and fashion show in the Silver Saddle Inn, Downey. Red carnation corsages were presented to each guest.

During a brief recognition time, Miss Joy Seeden, president, awarded bouquets of red carnations and white stock to Alice Solberg, Diane Booth and Virginia Downs for representing Bachelorettes in the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest.

Meet Wednesday

Relief Corps Auxiliary, Grand Army of the Republic, will meet Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. in Veterans Building. After a social hour the business meeting, beginning at 12:30 p.m. will feature a convention report.

WATCH FOR THIS POSTER!

American Cancer Society dance committee members (from left) Mrs. Don Bowers, general chairman Bob Bearson, Mrs. Jimmie Whetmore and Francis Cannon show Jim Wilkes posters which herald ticket sales for the affair. Many stores are displaying the "Tickets on Sale Here" signs; the committee invites other business establishments to participate in ticket distribution. The philanthropic dance is slated for Friday at Lakewood Country Club.—(Staff)

Traditional Spring Dinner Fete

The Third Nighters, local dance group, held its traditional Spring Dinner Dance Friday evening in the Officers Club of the Air Force Base on Spring St., as the guests of Maj. and Mrs. Eugene A. Morath. Tables were gay with baskets of colorful spring flowers to carry out the theme. Following dinner members and guests danced to the music of Sammie Stone's Orchestra.

Maj. Morath has served as president of the group during the past year; its silver anniversary year. In speaking of the 25 years of organization, the major named those who still are active members who also were charter members. Among them were Mrs. Earl P. Wheeler (Lucille Todd) now of Los Angeles; Mrs. Edmond Sheeran (Lydia Dornbush) of Long Beach; Mrs. Ralph Pillsbury (Bernice Richmond) of Long Beach; Mrs. Herbert Van Daniker (Myra Miller) of Los Angeles; Mrs. E. N. Bailey (Helen Moore) of Long Beach; Mrs. Herschel Hart (Rada Metcalf) of Long Beach; Mrs. Eugene A. Morath (Ruth Todd) of Long Beach.

THE SPRING Dinner Dance always is the occasion for installing the new officers of the group, and Maj. Morath relinquished the gavel to O. T. Johnson, incoming president. Serving with Johnson will be: Ray Sites, vice president; Mrs. A. L. Ward, secretary, and Charles M. Johnson, treasurer. The group will have its traditional picnic in June (Helen Moore) of Long Beach; Mrs. Herschel Hart (Rada Metcalf) of Long

Mac Todd and Pat and Johnny Brennan.

WESTERN LIVING at its California best is being enjoyed this weekend by the 11 American Field Service foreign exchange students who have lived here this year plus the Long Beach high school students who will go to Europe on the exchange plan this summer—all guests of Peg and Ray Webb on their resort ranch at Lake Elsinore. Chaperons and chauffeurs assisting the Webbs are Margaret and Bob Sully and Helen and Bud Westerlund. This is the kind of thing that's going to put a continental reverse twist on that old citty, "How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm, after they've seen Paree."

THERE WASN'T anybody at Stanford University who took more pride or pleasure in the recent dedication of the new Lloyd Noble Laboratory of Petroleum Engineering—with its Will J. Reid Memorial Wing—than special guests from Long Beach; Clarice Innes (who has carried on the late Mr. Reid's work in Ducks Unlimited, Inc., so devotedly); "B" and John Hancock and their sons, John (a senior at the Farm) and Richard; and Fred and Virginia (Reid) Moore.

Banquet for Presidents' Club Noted

"Mutual Aid, a Way to Peace" will be the topic of an address to be given by Rev. Emerson G. Hanger, president of the Long Beach Council of Churches, at the banquet of the Presidents' Club May 28 at 6:30 p.m. at the Lafayette Hotel.

Others to appear on the program will be Lynda Sue Marks, vibra-harpist, and Miss May Winston, monologist. A special guest of the evening will be Mayor Raymond S. Keeler.

All former club presidents and members of the Presidents Club are invited to attend. Election of officers will be conducted at 6 p.m. preceding the banquet with the installation of those elected to be conducted following the evening's program by Mrs. Cornelia Pollard. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Rose Berry, chairman, not later than next Sunday, May 25.

Cancer Society Benefit Dance Scheduled Friday

Sparked by the enthusiasm of Bob Bearson, general chairman, and his committee of service-minded Lakewood and Long Beach residents, plans for the annual American Cancer Society Dance, to be given Friday at Lakewood Country Club, forecast an evening of pleasure. There will be a buffet supper, entertainment and, of course, dancing—to the music of Jimmie Whetmore's orchestra. Don Loker will be master of ceremonies.

Sponsored by Greater Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, headed by Francis Cannon, dance preparations have been made at no cost to the American Cancer Society and all proceeds will be given to that organization.

Mrs. Brougher Is Regent of DAR Chapter

Mrs. Russell M. Brougher was installed as regent of Gaviota Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when the group met in the home of Mrs. D. Leroy Leart, 3955 Myrtle Ave.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Brougher were Mmes. E. J. Weller, vice regent; L. H. Walter, second vice regent; Charles E. Ernst, chaplain; Hardy A. Wray, recording secretary; Paul Maull, corresponding secretary; Fred D. Ward, treasurer; Harry C. Bowen, registrar; Elizabeth M. Tracy, historian; and W. H. Gillis, librarian. Mrs. H. P. Dunlop conducted installation ceremonies.

TICKETS, modestly priced at $1.50, are available at many markets, drug stores, banks, department stores and other business establishments in the area, and also will be for sale at the door, ticket chairman Mrs. Don Bower and Jim Wilkes announce.

Among public-spirited volunteers adding impetus to the event are Paul Hoover, Thomas Mattis, Harry Stanley, Fred R. Wagner, D. B. Morgan, Charles Baker, Lee King, S. B. Hartman, Elda Barry and Mrs. Jimmie Whetmore.

Whistlin' Dixie — and Eatin' Chicken!

Ah say, Colonel, y'all heah about that theah party they'all ah havin' come Saturday night? Heah tell theah gonna import several yands of Mason-Dixon line to string around foh decorations. Handy to hog-tie any dang-yankee that might be lurk-in the shadows, too.

"Y'all listenin'?"

Gonna be in Magnolia Park Estates and all the folks, whistlin' Dixie as they stroll, gonna go fast to Belle Waters—that's Virginia and Franklin Waters plantation—foh to sip mint juleps. Then they'll jest naturally follow the scent of fraid chicken waffin' out on the evenin' ayah from Gaylord Manor, which, as y'all know, is Virginia (now ain't that a purty name, suh?) and Charles Gaylord's place.

Finally, theah rebel yells growin' quiet and smothered-like from all that good food, they'll meandah on ovah to Shirley and Chuck Plantings foh pecan pie. Yes suh, Colonel, about 50 gonna sing these lyrics to "Song of the South" includin' Betty and Bob Buffum, Jean and Clyde Dunlap, Harriett and Bob Wood, Marge and Keith Utterback and Margaret and Wayne Frederick.

Three Happy Fetes

By ILKA CHASE

The other day I had the rare and unexpected pleasure of lunching with my husband. It was the good man's birthday so he agreed to forgo his usual provender of weenies or a hamburger cooked on the office grill by his secretary and gulped between the last patient and the moment he leaves for the hospital. He would, he said, relax with me in one of the town's swanker bistros by way of celebration.

We chose the Colony with its slightly old-fashioned cozy air—not a chromium tube nor a piece of plate glass in the place, but cream-colored paneled walls and red banquettes and the bar striped in gay white and blue.

When the headwaiter heard it was the doctor's birthday—he was indulging in holiday with the artichoke when more prudently he should have been having sauce vinaigrette—he disappeared and with the coffee came a sweet tiny birthday cake with a chocolate greeting: Happy Birthday, Norton. We were both touched and munched it happily while nodding to a couple of friends who were members of a large luncheon party given by the Larry Lomans, Salvador Dali with his slim fierce waxed mustachios and Iva Patcovitch, the publisher of Vogue and House and Garden.

ANOTHER BIT of gaiety

was the Players Club annual Ladies' Day reception. The two famous actors' clubs of New York are The Lambs and The Players. The Lambs always seems to me a bit more vaudevillian and The Players more conservative; they also have a few non-actors, writers, architects and such, but they are both solid establishments where the gents of the theater do themselves very well indeed.

The Players' invitation is charming. Engraved on the card along with the request for the pleasure of the lady's company is the quote from Shakespeare, "A Day in April Never Came So Sweet." Flattering.

The club is in Gramercy Park and the grass was green and the trees in bloom on this April afternoon. The old building was packed with happy guests among them a large group of aged actresses making inroads into the opulent buffet. I have always noticed that theater people have good appetites.

Dorothy Stickney was an acting host in place of her husband, Howard Lindsay, who was laid up with a cold. Mary Martin was there with her husband, Dick Halliday, wearing what appeared to be a two-piece black trapeze—Mary was that is—and looking quite smart. Her hair is now bright auburn, cut close and smooth as a man's with a little pad of curls on top. It isn't the world's most flattering coiffure but its beautifully shiny and well-cared for.

I was introduced to Joyce Grenfell, the English monologist, whose one-woman show is a collection of sketches that are little gems of observation and humor. Miss Grenfell has a good deal, being easy to look at as well as gifted. Another lady in the same field was my old friend Cornelia Otis Skinner.

Cornelia is just back from two performances in Alaska and is crazy about it. She said they wrote and asked her if there was any peculiarly Alaskan thing she would like to do and she replied that she would love to mush in a dog sled. When she arrived in Juneau, however, her hosts were slightly embarrassed. Dog sleds are apparently not the big thing at this season and in that part of the world, but they amiably offered to gather together the local poodles and dachshunds and see if they couldn't whip up a little team.

ANOTHER PARTY this week was the reception given by the Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban and Mrs. Eban in celebration of Israel's 10 years as a nation. The party was held in the Delegates' Dining Room of the United Nations Building with its great terrace and sweeping view of the East River. It was crowded and made colorful by the groups of Chinese and Indians as well as Europeans and Americans.

Mrs. Eban is a remarkably pretty woman with a golden-bubble haircut. She wore a long string of beads and a champagne-colored chemise dress belted around the knees. Oh dear. It's those belts. I think, that are the mistake.

Parents Tell Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hughes last Sunday entertained more than 300 guests in their lovely Cedar Ave. home to reveal the betrothal of their daughter, Diane, to John Wilson Perduk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Perduk of Highland Park, N. J.

Guests learned of the engagement and June 21 wedding date through a bride couple dolls aboard a boat floating on the swimming pool.

A large bouquet, also afloat in the pool, bore a huge ring fashioned of styrofoam with a silver carnation representing the diamond.

Hostesses for the fashionable affair were the bride-elect's Godmother, Mrs. George Plummer of Lake Arrowhead, Mrs. Gene Burgess of West Covina, Mrs. Cecil Roberts of Long Beach and an aunt, Mrs. Mabel Speck of Rio Linda.

The attractive bride-to-be was an honor graduate from Jordan High School and holds life membership in the California Scholarship Federation. She attended University of Redlands and was graduate cum laude from Woodbury College in Los Angeles where she affiliated with Eta Upsilon Gamma Sorority.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick, N. J., and now is a junior at USC where he is majoring in industrial management.

Symphony Installation

By JEAN B. MOORE

In a brief but impressive ceremony this week in Virginia Country Club Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker assumed the presidency of the Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Assn. Mrs. John Persons was installing officer.

The auxiliary, whose responsibility is raising funds enabling the Los Angeles Philharmonic to give concerts in Long Beach, has a capable board serving under Mrs. Yunker.

It includes Mmes. William E. Webb, first vice president and program chairman; William P. Ellery, second vice president and concert chairman; Howard Coy, ticket chairman and concert vice chairman; Victor A. Mingers, third vice president in charge of continuance fund; Lewis T. Dorgan, continuance fund chairman, and Miss Ruth Grant, her assistant.

ALSO MMES. Arthur Buell, membership; Dominic N. Cavaliere, recording secretary; Mark H. Keating, corresponding secretary; Reese D. Hansen, financial secretary, and William S. Reid Jr., treasurer.

Others are Mmes. John L. Graves, auditor; John Persons, parliamentarian; H. G. Randall and Floyd Williams, symphony concert magazine chairman and co-chairman; Stanley D. Weiss, ways and means; Edward Lovell, junior coordinator; C. E. Grogerson, publicity and roster; Chris T. Conway, reservations; Leroy Carlisle, social and decorations; Logan Nesbitt, hospitality; Logan Goodknight, youth concerts; Alexander Kedvany, opera chairman, and Lee R. Denny, historian.

Colin Barraclough, assistant manager of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, assured the group following the luncheon that Edward van Beinum plans to return to the orchestra for the 1939-40 season.

Knots involved in obtaining conductors and artists for the concert season were explained interestingly by Barraclough. Arranging variety in logical sequence has symphony managers working a year ahead, he revealed.

TERMING THE forthcoming concert season in Long Beach well balanced, he said the conductors will include Eugen Jochum, Sir John Barbirolli, Georg Solti and Erich Leinsdorf.

Soloists will be Rudolf Firkušny, pianist; Nathan Milstein, violinist, and Nan Merriman, mezzo-soprano.

Mrs. Carl Dumbolton, chairman of the communities committee of the Philharmonic Orchestra, told the auxiliary of the necessity of pooling creative thinking in order to have smooth running operation. Main purpose of the committee, she said, is to unify the efforts of the auxiliaries to achieve maximum benefit for the common cause—great music in Southern California.

Invited to Meet

Unaffiliated PEOs are invited to attend the regular meeting of Chapter OL Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Harry Roy, 5478 E. 25th St. Reservations may be made with the hostess.

island in a maze of make-up tables and wardrobe closets, symbols of her profession.

She designed the college's little theater and taught drama there for 20 years. Although she has retired from play directing, her interest never has diminished.

For 12 years she served on the building committee for the college's new auditorium.

"I fought, bled and died for things there," she says, recalling countless sessions with architects and contractors. "When plans were blue-penned for improvement or equipment backstage, I got them back. I didn't study speech for nothing!"

PLANS FOR THE radio music and art building took shape on the dining room table of her California Heights home.

These modern buildings that grace the Lakewood campus today are a far cry from the days of '33 when the earthquake forced plays al fresco.

Miss Kennedy recalls with relish the tall, barefoot gardener in Recreation Park who always managed to slough work and wangle a front lawn seat for the plays, his bare soles aimed at the actors.

"I wouldn't want to repeat the earthquake, but neither would I have missed it. It's a strange thing, but it shaved the frills off the students and got them down to brass tacks."

SHE TAUGHT techniques of acting on bleachers after the quake; later, when classes moved into the board and canvas tents, the canvas sides were rolled up in warm weather and passing students hung their arms over the board walls to watch.

Two years ago, when she broke both her arms, Kathryn Kennedy gave up producing drama and turned primarily to speech instruction.

"This is a vocal age," she explains. "Eventually everyone has to say what he thinks in front of others. It's good to be competent enough not to get the jitters."

For students entering City College she conducts speech testing in which the student talks on a subject of his choice before a microphone.

Invite Many to Realtors Wives Tea

Invitations have been extended to 150 guests to attend the annual Realtors Wives membership tea from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Jack W. Cassidy, 3806 Olive Ave.

A pink theme will be stressed in decorations arranged by Mmes. John Bohan and Arnold Berg, while program plans are being made by Mrs. Cliff Wall.

Guests will be greeted by Mmes. Reg DuPuy, Herschel Hart, George Merrill, Verne Morrill, E. C. Rosewurm and Max Livoni. Invited to pour are Mmes. Joseph Reed, H. E. Theissen, George Massey, Olive Graham and Larry Miller.

His talk is recorded and played back, with suggestions for improvement given by Miss Kennedy. One student discovered from the recording that she lisped. No one ever had told her, and she was 50 years old when she took the City College courses. Measures to correct the defect were begun immediately.

THE TEACHING SIDE of the drama rather than the part behind the footlights, always has interested Kathryn Kennedy.

Looking out the window to the verdant campus, she is reminded of a reason she likes teaching.

"The nicest thing on this campus is the young women in their 30s whose children are of school age. They come back working toward an elementary teaching credential, and they do beautiful work because they have a serious aim."

Former students keep in touch with her, too. Many are familiar names—Frank Coss, radio announcer; Ken Graue (City at Night); Barbara Britton, movie actress; Robert Cornthwaite, motion picture and TV actor; Kenny Baker, Raymond Burr (Perry Mason) and many more.

SHE LOVES HER home, and, like Miss Duncan, claims culinary prowess. She designs and makes much of her wardrobe (she dismisses the chemise with "It's a good place for the amateur seamstress to start.")

Although she has been abroad, she confesses that she never has been across the channel to Catalina.

Her consuming interest outside the college is closely akin to her field. Her eyes shine. "Oh, I go to the theater! I don't miss anything. I like to travel some, yes, but this part of California is so rich in entertainment that it's tempting just to stay home."

Carol Nelson Wed in Church

Mrs. Gary Martin Thomas

North Long Beach Methodist Church was decorated with baskets of white stock and gladioli for the wedding ceremony which united Carol Lee Nelson and Gary Martin Thomas. The Rev. Roy Mason officiated at the double-ring service in the presence of 300 guests.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Nelson, 2310 Termino Ave., was escorted down the ribbon-marked aisle by her father. Her gown, a Maurer original, featured a short-sleeved bodice of Chantilly lace and a tulle skirt appliqued with lace. A seed pearl tiara held her illusion veil and she carried a sweetheart bouquet of stephanotis, lilies of the valley and white orchids. A strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom's mother, was her only jewelry.

MAID OF HONOR Edith Hubers was gowned in American beauty chiffon; bridesmaids Patty Squibb, Mrs. Les Parks, Mrs. Joe Womack and junior bridesmaid Cathy Johnson wore pink chiffon.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Thomas, 5575 Campo Walk, asked Gale Thomas to serve as best man and Ralph Procopio, Greg Thomas, Dick Series and Norman Jacobs to usher.

The pink and white theme of the wedding was repeated in appointments for the reception which followed immediately at the church. The couple left for a honeymoon at Palm Springs, then will reside in Oakland.

BOTH YOUNG persons attended Wilson High School and Long Beach City College. She was LBCC song leader, served on the executive board, won the five-jewel award, was vice president of AWS, and belonged to Ramayana and Kassai. He affiliated with Tong fraternity.

Both also have been active in Long Beach Community Playhouse and he has taken part in Lakewood Players productions.

Election of officers is planned when Loyalty Club meets at noon Monday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. Wives of Scouts are welcome to participate in the luncheon and afternoon of cards. Mrs. Leland June will preside.

Miss Carole Cena

Colorful Tea Announces Forthcoming Wedding Rites

A tea to introduce her future daughter-in-law, Miss Carole Cena of Covina, was given last week by Mrs. B. Tuckley Thompson, 5471 El Jardin St. Miss Cena's engagement to Larry Thompson was made known to the 100 guests who arrived in the Thompson home that afternoon.

Both young people are students at Chapman College in Orange, and both were cheerleaders during this school year.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Judi Nelson of Burbank, niece of Mrs. Thompson, and Catherine Cena, sister of the bride-elect. In the receiving line were Miss Cena, her mother, Mrs. Charles Cena, and Mrs. Thompson.

WITHIN THE HOSTS' home were colorful arrangements of yellow and white ranunculus, daisies, stock and snapdragons. Covering the table was an Italian cutwork cloth centered with a crystal epergne overflowing with yellow and white daisies, baby breath, primroses and fern. Crystal holders held yellow tapers.

Asked to pour were Mrs. Guy Gillespie, grandmother of the bride-to-be; Mrs. Lynn

Cameraman to Appear at Ebell Club

The story of Greece will be portrayed in an all-color film lecture by Clifford Kamen before the Ebell of Long Beach on Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Kamen is a top cameraman. He has been interested in and has traveled and recorded the things he has observed on his travels ever since his early teens. He studied at UC and Northwestern University.

The very word "Greece" lifts men's thoughts to the splendor and power of an ancient democracy, and the sublime art and learning of man's greatest cultural age. This film brings into balance and perspective the amazing story of one of the world's most significant nations.

The film shows the ruins of man's golden age of architecture. Included are the historic sites of Athens, Delphi, Marathon, and others which have been vital in both ancient and modern times.

Mrs. Arthur A. Knoll will introduce Kamen.

Chairmen of departments will be presented by Mrs. C. F. Wisner, curator, at the business session preceding the program.

The last luncheon of the year will be served by members of Group M, Mrs. Henry C. Lamb, chairman. Mrs. Arthur F. Bonzer will preside.

Lorene Cryer to Head Club

Lorene Cryer will be installed president of the Nazareth Shrine Social Club at a ceremony Monday in the Hard of Hearing Society clubhouse, 124 W. 14th St. Mrs. Ellen Oyaas, retiring president, will conduct the ritual.

Others assuming new duties will be Edith Huntzinger, vice president; Catherine Borst, secretary, and Olive Ward, treasurer.

Marjorie Bjorkman, luncheon chairman, will be assisted by Bea Ann Hancock, Minerva Kifer and Inez Cutler.

Rick Racker Dance to Fete Provisionals

Large pink net butterflies will lend a touch of fantasy to proceedings in Cavalier Room of the Lafayette Hotel Saturday evening when Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary to the Long Beach Assistance League, honors new provisional members and their husbands at the traditional spring dinner dance.

Furthering the spring garden theme will be several large white wheelbarrows trailing ivy and filled with pink and lavender spring flowers. Candelighted tables will repeat the theme with the use of centerpieces of smaller organdy butterflies.

spring flowers and ivy. Each new provisional will find her place marked by a brandy snifter filled with pink and white shells, pink asters and fern.

Dancing will be to the music of Roger Bacon's Orchestra.

Prior to the dance, the entire group will gather for cocktails at the home of one of the members, Mr. and Mrs. Les Callahan Jr., 5393 Lonna Linda Dr.

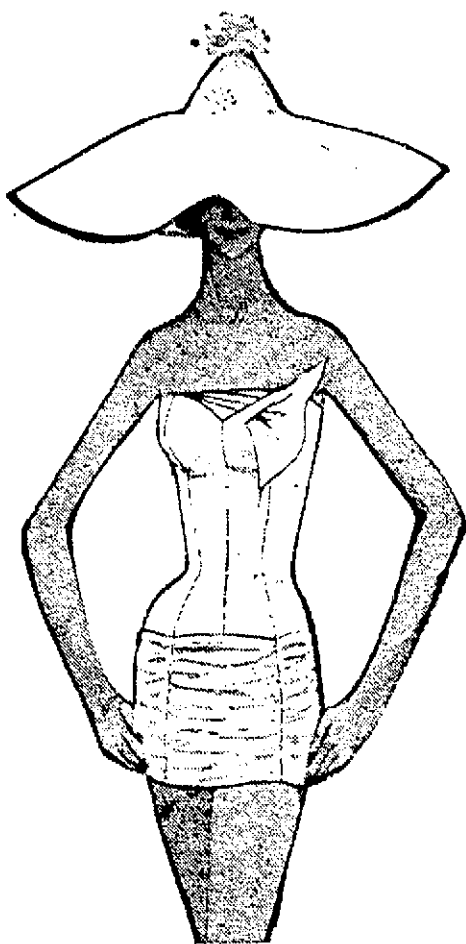

PROVISIONALS and their husbands being honored are Messrs. and Mmes. C. Robert Langslet, Malcolm Lucas, Patrick Phelan, Sverrir Runolfsson, Leslie Weed and Travis White.

Other Rick Rackers planning to attend are Drs. and Mmes. John Arnold, Jess Cooper, Greg Hoskins, Ray Kelso Jr., Joe Nolan, Earl Wallace, Messrs. and Mmes. Children's Fashion Show Saturday in United Church

"Togs for Tykes", a children's fashion show for the benefit of the equipment fund of Congregational Cooperative Nursery School, will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Fellowship Hall of Los Altos United Church, 5530 Atherton St.

Designed as a family outing, "Togs for Tykes" will feature pre-school models and their brothers and sisters. Fashions will be by Penney's Los Altos, and favors and door awards for youngsters and parents are being donated by Los Altos merchants.

"Living dolls"—3, 4 and 5-year-old Congregational Coop youngsters—are distributing paper doll advertisements hoods to aid with ticket sales for the event.

PRE-SCHOOLERS who will model summer fashion are Janet Garrison, Mary Clare Metcalf, Carol Payne, Judy Reese, Kathy Rhodes, Cindy Schall, Debbie Sherman, Gregory Comments, Scott Clayton and Donald Kennelly. Other models will be Jeff Loomis, Barbara Kennelly, Linda Sogge, Steve Garrison, Mrs. William Reese, Mrs. Donald Loomis and Mrs. Maurice Pachett.

Mrs. Thomas J. Clark Jr. general show chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. Loomis, tickets; Mrs. Burt Marter, commentator; Mmes. Robert Payne and William Holmes, decorations; Mrs. William Reese, models; Mrs. James Sogge, refreshments, and Mmes. Sterline Clayton and John Metcalf, publicity.

Congregational Coop meets three mornings each week at Los Altos United Church under the direction of Mrs. Maurice Pachett.

Card Party Monday

District 5 will be the hostless group for the Altar Society of St. Anthony's Church card party Monday at 8 p.m. in Catholic Center. Bridge, canasta, 500 and pinocle will be played and refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

BPW Installs Mrs. Mundal

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Attractive, capable Mrs. Marion Mundal accepted the president's gavel of Long Beach National Business and Professional Women's Club at the Victor Hugo Restaurant recently in ceremonies conducted by Cravens Douglas, junior past president of Sierra Mar District, BPW.

Inducted with Mrs. Mundal were Lena Field, first vice president; Blanche L. Stevens, second vice president; Dorothy Sweetland, recording secretary; Dorothy Dalton, corresponding secretary; Ruth Bailey, treasurer; Vinnie Neudeck, auditor; and to the board of directors, Louise Gorman, Florence Eachus, Lucinda Robinson and Katherine Campbell.

Outgoing President Gladys McPike conducted the meeting, introducing special guests Lily Lee, president of Margaret Ives BPW, Sadie Michnick, president of Manuela Nieto BPW, the incoming president's husband and daughter, Grace Carrier, C. W. Duncan, "Andy" Anderson and Ethel Avis, now of Pomona and a charter member of the Long Beach group.

MRS. MUNDAL, a graduate of Metropolitan School of Art, New York, and the National Academy of Design and Fine Arts also studied editorial practices and make-up at Columbia University and has held executive posts with various eastern publications including that of editor in chief for six years of a national astrology magazine.

Assisting with installation ceremonies were Kathryn Campbell and Alice Brock. Soloist for the program was Tom Nourse, accompanied by Dorothy Christie.

All business women are invited to attend this meeting, which the club feels will be especially valuable. However, paid reservations in advance are necessary for those who are not members of the club.

National Secretaries

By train, plane, bus and auto secretaries from throughout the state converged on Monterey Friday, including several members of Queen Beach Chapter of National Secretaries, to attend the sixth annual California Division meeting which concludes today. Attending from Long Beach are La Von Lutz, delegate, Dorothy Burke, Wilma Conde, Norma Gilcrease, Jeanne Hissner, Marge Hunter, Edna Ley, Betty Mahoney, Phyllis Trepinski and Betty Willcoxon.

Desk and Derrick

The newly opened Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave., will be setting for the Wednesday dinner meeting of Desk and Derrick Club of Long Beach. Guest speaker will be Dave Goodwill, area superintendent of Standard Oil Co., La Habra.

Mothers of members will be guests of the night, a post-Mothers Day courtesy.

Most recent field trip, one of the regular educational tours sponsored by the club, was a visit to the Wilshire Oil Co. refinery in Santa Fe Springs hosted by Earl Allen, vice president of the company, and Warren Hillgren, public relations director. Following the tour the 55 members participating were guests of the oil company at a dinner at Candlewood Country Club, Whittier.

Dear Abby

What an Odd Elopement!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 19 and is engaged to a fine young man of 21.

They've been engaged a year. They want to marry this summer, but his mother said if they did, it would have to be without her consent, so they plan to elope. My daughter wants me and her dad to go with them to see her married, but I've never heard of a couple eloping with her parents along. Have you? If we go, his parents will think we arranged the whole thing, but that's not true. The kids would elope anyway. We'd like to see our daughter married, but don't know if we should go or not. Should we go?

—MRS. UNCERTAIN

DEAR MRS.: Try to get his parents to go along. If they refuse, you have a right to see your daughter married. (This is an elopement?)

DEAR ABBY: I am kind of fat and my husband is very thin. I cook real good because I want to put some weight on my husband but instead I put on the weight myself and he stays thin. What should I do? —FAT.

DEAR FAT: Don't eat the fattening foods you cook for your husband. Get a diet from your doctor and stick with it.

DEAR ABBY: This fellow I go with is considered a jerk by everybody including me. He brags, is conceited, and I have caught him in many lies. But I can't get him out of my mind. He is going into boot training and tells me if I want to write to him OK—but not to expect any letters from him. I am considered a very good looking girl and could have many other dates but I still prefer this lunkhead. What should I do? —TINA.

DEAR TINA: Give this guy the boot before he goes into boot training.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 45, and my husband has been dead six years. I have two children who are 19 and 21. I met a nice, respectable, single man who is a common laborer. My children say if he comes to this house they will walk out so I have to meet him out somewhere. Please advise me if I should stop seeing this man or let him come to my home in spite of my children? I think I should have some companionship at my age.

—UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Let him come to your home. If your children walk out, let them walk out. They are old enough to make lives of their own and you deserve some companionship.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DONE WRONG": Don't worry. The label "ILLEGITIMATE" is no longer used on birth certificates.

FOR A PERSONAL reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Worry Clinic

Preacher Must Be Forceful in Pulpit

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE Y-306: Norman N., age 35, is a scholarly clergyman, but the kind that cannot hold his audience. For he kept dropping his eyes to his notes and reading sections of his sermon.

That's the sign of an amateur on the public platform. A new pastor in his first year might be excused for such indirectness.

But no man after even one year as a public speaker ever should break his eye-to-eye contact with his audience except for an occasional moment to look at his notes.

And a speaker's notes should not be voluminous nor of the full sentence variety. A dozen "key" words are all that any real orator needs.

Norman started out properly by telling a story concerning an incident that occurred in a previous parish.

But he couldn't even narrate the tale! Instead, he read part of it and dropped his eyes literally a dozen times to finish that simple two-minute episode.

I'M NOT exaggerating, for he grew so boring I decided to time his motions. At intervals of every 2 to 11 seconds, he would drop his gaze to his notes and read them.

Can you imagine Christ or St. Paul having to spend more time looking down at notes than facing their eager listeners!

Clergymen like Norman certainly should have had an internship of a few months at door-to-door selling. For a salesman soon realizes he MUST keep his eyes glued on his prospects constantly.

Otherwise, while he is looking down at his notes, the housewife may shut the door in his face!

Something is sadly wrong with the homiletics departments of our theological seminaries when they graduate men who cannot keep their eyes on the audience for 30 seconds without weakly leaning on the "crutch" of notes. And clergymen who read their manuscripts or even long passages therefrom are as out of step with modern platform psychology as the dodo bird.

It takes a live-wire in the pulpit to electrify a congregation!

But the "current" must be turned on to get full effect. Whenever a speaker drops his eyes, he figuratively turns off the current!

Topnotch speakers watch their audiences like a hawk. They don't break contact by lengthy and repeated glances at notes.

AND ANY clergyman who is full of his subject shouldn't need more than a dozen three-second glances at his notes for a 30-minute address!

I'm being very strong in my indictment today for anybody who makes his living as a public speaker should certainly know how to SPEAK. "You can't fill a church till you fill the pulpit," is an old truism.

An indirect speaker who can't look his audience in the eyes almost steadily, definitely is not filling the pulpit.

Get off your forensic crutches (notes) and stand on your own feet. And for a quick summary of "Public Platform Strategy," send for that booklet, enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Even if you left the seminary as a poor speaker, you can become a good one in short order by following the tested formulae in that booklet.

(This feature appears Tuesday and Thursday in the Independent.)

Sacrifice Bid Pans Out Well

TAKE a look at the South hand only. The game is duplicate and East has raised West's opening heart bid to two.

Duplicate or not, you certainly should try a bid of sorts and your best choice is to bid two spades in spite of the nine-high suit, West

Opening lead—♥K jumps to four hearts and the bid is back to you again. Now, what do you do?

When Myrna Verner of Tahoka, Tex., held this hand she decided to bid four spades. Her opponents had bid decisively and confidently and it appeared to her that they would be able to make their contract. In that case they would score at least 620 points and Myrna could afford to take a three-trick set.

If West had chosen to go on to five hearts, Myrna's gamble would have done her no good. North would have opened the ace of spades and West would have made five odd.

As it was, West chose to double and opened the king of hearts. Myrna ruffed that lead and played ace and one spade. With trumps breaking three-two, she was able to escape with the loss of two trump tricks, one club and one diamond and had managed to save a game at the trifling cost of 100 points. A mighty good result in any type of bridge game.

By TED KREC

A lot of people like me, and a lot of people don't like me—but one thing they ALL have to admit, friends and foes alike, is that I'm not a proud man; I'll do ANYTHING!
While most people know me only as a man in a white shirt, tie and suit, there are occasions when I put aside these trademarks and get hog dirty.
Take last weekend — and the weekend before that — for example. While most men were slouched in easy chairs, swilling down can after can of cold beer as they listened to the baseball game or watched programs on TV, what was I doing? Helping my wife as she redecorated our apartment.
It all started when she decided she would like draperies instead of Venetian blinds. That sounded simple enough (I can't make draperies and neither can she—she doesn't have time with her job), so I said: "Fine — I think they really would do something for this place!"
THAT WAS all I had to say. Remember when you were a kid and you used to roll a little snowball off the top of a hill? By the time it got to the bottom it had assumed gigantic proportions. So it was with the draperies. After selecting the material, she was sorry, but the paint in the living room just wouldn't go with the new draperies. So, the living room had to be repainted.
"I'd love to help you," I said, "but Dr. Cowley told me after my recent operation that I wasn't to lift anything heavier than a loaded Martini glass — or two — at the most!"
She agreed with this — and gave me a light paint roller instead of a heavy brush.
So, I doffed my white shirt, tie, and suit, donned an old pair of tennis shoes, a T-shirt and shorts. Good thing I did, too, for that first roller full of paint, fully sympathetic with the pull of gravity, slid down my arm instead of clinging to the ceiling. I soon learned there's a knack to this sort of thing — you don't put much paint on the roller. This makes you work twice as long and hard, but at least you keep your arm dry.
So while you sluggards were dozing there in your armchairs, awakening only to reach for a tasty club sandwich or some potato chips, I was reaching for paint—and more paint—and more paint.
Finally, the job was finished (and I almost was!), and my wife stepped back to survey the "new look."
"It's wonderful, dear," she said, "but that paper in the dinette NEVER will do!"
I have an idiosyncrasy — I occasionally lapse into the vernacular and use a few good round oaths when I'm having a good time; and I must have been having a DANDY time when she made her announcement about the paper.
ANYHOW, WE changed the paper. Unfortunately, I'm a bit unhandy at this, so my activities were confined to cutting the paper into prescribed lengths and applying the paste.
Just think of it — while most men were idling away their time going to a good show or to a nice restaurant for dinner, I was spending MY time constructively measuring, cutting and pasting. When we were through I stood my paint-and-paste-stiffened garb in the closet and took a shower.
As I emerged, she was looking at the wrought iron furniture we have in the dinette. "You know something?" she said. "A lot of people will answer that in the negative." I replied, "She ignored me. I think we're going to have to do that furniture over," she continued. "I'll never go with that new paper!"
Unfortunately, I do NOT have a spraying outfit or I'd be GLAD to tackle it. But as it is, the furniture now has been yanked from my home for a new coat of paint and new seat covers — in matching shades, of course. And I understand the rugs are next.
So there you are, men. Aren't you sorry you wasted your time? Don't you envy me my active life? I feel pretty good about it myself. I didn't fitter away MY time. By the way, is there anyone more beer left — and how did the Dodgers make out in that game?

MOLLY MAYFIELD
Mystery of Name in Bible

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My mother died two months ago, and I have been going over the things she left. Today I was leafing through our old family Bible that lists the names of those who have been born in our family. There was my name and the names of my two older brothers. But on the last line I found a name that I did not know.
The name was "William" and the date that was given fell during my last year in college while both of my brothers were overseas in service. I asked my father who was "William." But he merely turned on his heel and left the room in stony silence.
He refuses to discuss the subject at all with me. As a matter of fact, he scarcely has talked with me since I pointed to the page in the Bible. My brothers know nothing about "William." My aunt, Mom's sister, merely smiled quietly when I mentioned the matter to her. I'm frantic to know the truth, and nobody will tell me. Whoever "William" is—or was—he must be my brother. How can I possibly find out?—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED: Perhaps this is one mystery that is better left unsolved. In discovering the identity of "William" you might be opening a Pandora's box that will haunt you all of your life.
But, if you must know, I would check first at the Bureau of Vital Statistics where "William's" birth should be recorded. If, of course, there ever was a "William."—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My husband and I have been married for three years and have two small children. We had to get married, but we were planning to get married anyway.
After the first year of our marriage he stopped showing me in any way that he loved me. He never kisses me, or holds my hand; he is never considerate, kind, or loving. He doesn't seem to care.
He works at night and is away from home most of the time—or is sleeping. I've told him many times how I feel. He just shrugs and laughs it off. I left him once, and he assured me he was willing to leave it that way.

We did finally go back together because of the children. All he said was that he hoped I'd learned my lesson.
Molly, do you think I'm being silly to want to be shown that I'm loved and appreciated? Can you help me?—DEPRESSED.

DEAR DEPRESSED: I wish your letter didn't read like so many others that cross my desk. Alas, it does.
I could suggest that you lessen the tension in your home by being a cheerful comrade, much kinder and more considerate than your husband is—in the hopes this might wake him up.
I could suggest that you go all out to look attractive and be interesting. Let me explain here that being interested in what he does and says sometimes is the key to being interesting.
I might even suggest that, by exchanging baby-sitting chores with kind neighbors, you get out more to attend group meetings, or go with girl friends, and show your husband you aren't completely dependent on his whims.
Will any or all of these suggestions work? I can only hope.—M.M.

Days of Forty-Niners
LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS
by PLACER MINER

A look to the past before we talk about current happenings at Long Beach State.

Friday night the Alpha Phi's gathered at the Hacienda Hotel for their annual dinner dance. Forty couples were on hand.

Even earlier in the week—last Tuesday—the Delta Alpha chapter of LBSC Zeta Tau Alphas journeyed up (we weren't told where) to help Beta Epsilon chapter celebrate its newly remodeled house. Incidentally, ZTA is making final arrangements for their first annual Crown Formal at the Hacienda Hotel next Saturday.

A VISIT FROM a Tau Kappa Epsilon spokesman brings us up to date on the Tekes, who have been more or less inconspicuous in this column lately: People in the news at the recent TKE Red Carnation Ball... Barbara Smith, Tekes Sweetheart... Outstanding pledges—Bert Seidenberg (fall) and Don Gabriel (spring)... Bullthorwer of the Year, Lowell Kolb... Tekes of the Year, Larry Lucas... Special awards for service to TKE—Gail Gilbert and Carolyn Poyet. The Tekes have a barbecue exchange with Delta Zeta this afternoon and a beach party outing with Delta Delta Delta a week from today.

LAST NIGHT Mrs. Ula Sutherland of the Gamma chapter of Omega Alpha Delta was elected second national vice president at that organization gathered in Coronado to celebrate its silver anniversary. At the same time, Miss Helen Monroe was named to a council representative post for the 1938-39 year.

Today the LBSC Newman Club is at Plux X High School in Artesia for their annual retreat. Some 30 Newmanites under the leadership of Ed Martin began the day of reflection with Holy Mass at 9 a.m. The event will close with devotions late this afternoon.

A LITTLE CLOSER TO HOME, members of the Associated Women Students entertain their dads this afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Soroptimist House. Coffee and brownies make up the refreshments. Lynette Budnick plays the piano, and Dean Francis J. Flynn will talk to the assembled fathers on the building program, of which the latest evidence—initial work on the home economics building—will be plainly visible, just a few feet to the east of them.

TUESDAY AT 7 P.M. in the Soroptimist House, ACE Jr. (Association for Childhood Education) gathers for the group's last meeting of the current school year. A panel of new teachers will hold the center of attention as they relate their experiences during their first year with the youngsters. Sandra Sundstrom, Yvonne Richert, Anne Dugger, Janice Andreana, Pat Holdgrafer, and Mike Coppersmith will provide the discussion. Dr. Bob Kindred will moderate, and when the talk has cleared away refreshments are on tap.

Chamber Trio Pianist Slated for Ojai Fete

Southern California musicians will be well represented in the 12th annual presentation of the Ojai Festivals, scheduled for May 23-25. Heading this list of established artists will be Leo Smit of the UCLA music faculty, one of America's leading younger pianists and composers, who will be featured with the Ojai Festival Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Aaron Copland, on Saturday afternoon, May 24.

The program on which Smit will appear will consist of works by Rossini, Copland, Ravel and Haieff, including the first West Coast performance of Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" and Haieff's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra."

A FEATURE of this year's festival will be an evening of chamber music presented by the Immaculate Heart Trio, all members of the order of the Immaculate Heart Sisters located in Los Angeles.

These three nuns, Sisters Mary Denis, Mary Anthony and Mary Mark, are members of the same family, having been playing chamber music together since their early years in Seattle, and had appeared professionally many times before they joined the Order of the Immaculate Heart. They will present the Saturday evening (May 24) program of the Ojai Festival, consisting of Beethoven's "Trio in B Flat" (Archduke), Copland's "Vitebsk," and Brahms' "Trio in B Major."

Italian Film at Museum

One of the most successful Italian movies, "La Strada," will be presented at 7:40 and 9 p.m. Friday at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

A winner of numerous film awards, the motion picture received the Academy Award for best foreign film in 1956, and it was the grand prize winner at the Venice International Film Festival.

The intriguing story is like a modern morality play, set in the fringe of urban society against constantly shifting backgrounds of circuses and small towns. Accompanied by haunting music, it is the story of a man's loneliness and a search for a way of life.

Tickets for reservations, for which there is no charge, are available now at the museum on a first come, first served basis. Two tickets to a person are allowed.

Young Dancers Preparing for 'Coppelia' Ballet

"Coppelia" (the doll who came to life), a fairy tale ballet, will be presented by the Valerie Silver Theatre Arts Foundation at Long Beach City College Auditorium, 4901 E. Carson St., on Friday and Saturday.

Seats will be reserved for the Friday evening performance at 8 p.m. On Saturday a matinee performance will be given at 1:30 p.m. for children and adults who wish to come at this time.

Directors and members of the foundation will have an opportunity to have as guests many Long Beach and Southland friends who have shown an interest in the foundation. Not yet a year old, the foundation is a non-profit corporation, incorporated under the Educational Code of California, conducted solely for educational and cultural purposes. It is dedicated to the development of the young through the arts.

Guests Saturday will be a group of crippled children and their schoolmates from one of the elementary schools in Long Beach.

MAIN PURPOSE of the foundation is to encourage all children, whether performing in or watching a ballet, to feel they have a part in creating the beauty. The cast (ages 7-20), is looking forward to meeting these new friends.

Miss Silver, producer-director and choreographer, has long been recognized throughout the Southland for her presentation of children's ballets on the classical level. Special scenic effects and lighting by Maxine Merino, who is an outstanding artist in her field.

General chairman of the production staff is Mrs. Frazer Merritt, assisted by Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Tarp, Roy E. Blakeney and Norman Leslie. Mrs. John Sarry and Mrs. Cecil Weaver.

June Concert

Charles Magnante, accordion virtuoso, will visit Southern California for a single concert and workshop under the auspices of the Accordion Guild in the Lafayette Hotel in Long Beach at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon, June 1, announce the Guild's local representatives. George Howell, Elva C. Grace, Peggy Potter, Stella Thomas, Albert Fanelli and LaVoy Halle.

Ross Shattuck, artist ill in Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, has an exhibition of 21 oil paintings, mostly landscapes with a few portraits, which will open today in The Studio, 1009 Ximeno Ave.

The artist, who will be brought from the hospital in a wheelchair and his wife, Margaret Ettinger, Hollywood publicist who was a "Woman of the Year" last year, will be honored at a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today. Doug and Ann MacFadden, owners of The Studio, will be hosts.

Guests, according to the MacFaddens, will include Arthur Miller, art critic; Louella Parsons, motion picture columnist, and Walter Lantz, cartoonist.

Shattuck, former MGM art director, also served as art director of the N. W. Ayer and J. Walter Thompson advertising agencies. He is credited with originating movie star testimonials in advertisements.

Included among his landscapes will be scenes in New Orleans, San Francisco, Virginia City and Mexico.

The exhibition will run through June 28.

ERNEST ZIEGFELD, 21 39th Pl., jewelry designer

whose work is included in the U. S. exhibition in the Brussels World's Fair, will discuss jewelry design and demonstrate working with silver at the Long Beach Art Assn. meeting Tuesday evening in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

He also will have a craft exhibit of his finished jewelry.

Ziegfeld, who has taught at University of Minnesota, Stanford University, Teachers College Columbia University and Long Beach State College, also has been head of the visual aids section, Navy Electronics Laboratory in San Diego.

For a number of years he made jewelry as a hobby following training from Dr. Kenneth Winebrenner and Charles Martin at Columbia University. In 1956 he received a grant from the American Craftsmen's Foundation, and resigned from teaching to devote full time to jewelry. His work is exhibited and sold in galleries and shops throughout the United States.

BEN MESSICK and Velma Hay (Messick) of Long Beach and Franz Brasz of San Pedro Saturday judged and gave awards for first, second and third places in each media in the San Pedro Art Assn. non-juried, all-membership exhibit.

The show opens at the Gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., San Pedro, with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. today. The gallery will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. daily through June 1.

The judges were entertained at dinner at the Hacienda Hotel by the Art Assn. and afterwards at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Butcher where they saw color slides of spring flowers taken on a trip to San Francisco and Bishop. Mrs. Butcher is president of the San Pedro Art Assn.

MARINER GIRL SCOUTS of Long Beach will sponsor an exhibition of watercolor drawings of historical sailing vessels and modern cargo ships by Emmett Hoskins, retired seaman of San Pedro, May 26 in St. Luke's Episcopal Church Parish Hall, 7th St. and Atlantic Ave. Hours will be 2 to 9 p.m.

In the fall the drawings will go to the Mariners' Museum in Newport News, Va.

FOUR JAPANESE films, "Colorful Nikko," "Japanese Carpenter," "Winter in Japan" and "Japanese Inn," will be shown, free to the public, at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Little Theater, Long Beach State College, 6101 E. 7th St. The films will be shown by the Art Department and Associated Students of State College with the cooperation of the public library.

COMMUNITY ART League has a membership show during May in the Kiwanis-Girl Scout Hall, 9302 Laurel St., Bellflower. Winners will be shown in the Bellflower library in June.

The winners: Oils, first, John Schopfle, Pico; second, Gladys Kimbro, Bellflower; third, Evelyn Carpenter,

Lakewood; honorable mention, Mozelle Townsend, Lakewood; Dorothy Clapp, Downey, and Pearl Jones, Long Beach.

Magnolia Theatre-Goers May Catch 'The Brass Ring'

"The Brass Ring," Irving Elman's comedy that delighted Broadway in 1952, will open Friday at the Magnolia Theater, 2409 Magnolia Ave., in the first showing on the West Coast.

The dream-filled, night-haunted play centers about the life of a man who lives a placid existence with his family. About the only member not involved in the turmoil is the wife who goes serenely on keeping her loved ones on even keel.

Scenes in the comedy shift rapidly from reality to dream sequence involving the father's youth and his efforts to follow his young sweetheart onto life's merry-go-round. Bound in straight-jacket, nailed in a coffin or on trial for his life, his flights of fancy are enough to drive him permanently into a dream state.

Symbolically, the brass ring represents a free ride along life's gay white way. The combination of humor and satire promise to take the audience back over the years to the good old days when life was one big carousel ride.

The comedy plays Thursdays through Sundays. The box office is open from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. and 4-9 p.m. daily. Special club rates are offered.

Organ Concert to Feature Music of The Netherlands

Several important musical compositions will have their Los Angeles premiere at a concert of Netherlands organ music to be given by Leslie P. Spelman at Immanuel Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, on Friday at 8:30 p.m.

Spelman, director of the school of music at the University of Redlands, and chairman of the Far Western Region of the American Guild of Organists, is a concert organist of international reputation.

A unique feature of the program will be the singing of several Dutch psalms by members of the audience. Climax of the concert will be the thrilling Concerto for Organ and Brass by Marius Monnikendam of The Hague.

KNOW HER?

18th Century 'Pinkie' Goes Modern in '58

Remember William Sanson, Long Beach artist who a couple of years ago painted "The Modern Blue Boy"?

An adaptation of Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" which hangs in the Huntington Library in San Marino, it showed the lad in blue jeans, blue shirt, blue sports shoes, tattered blue straw hat—but in the pose and against the background of Gainsborough's satin-clad subject.

"The Modern Blue Boy" was purchased by Smith Brothers of Carthage, Mo., manufacturers of working clothes. It has been adopted as the company's insignia and appears on its calendars and publicity.

SANSON, 218 Linden Ave., has just finished "The Modern Pinkie," an adaptation of Sir Thomas Lawrence's "Pinkie," also in the Huntington Library. Lawrence painted his "Pinkie" in a white ruffled dress with a wide pink sash and a fetching hat.

The Long Beach man has done his "Modern Pinkie" in pink and white striped sweater, pink pedal pushers and a wide straw hat, but the pose and background are similar to Lawrence's.

What will he do with it? "I don't know," he says. "Maybe some manufacturer of girls' play clothes will want it."

Chicago Season

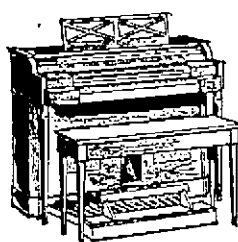

Ravinia Park, Chicago, will open its 23rd festival season July 1, with Fritz Reiner conducting the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Five celebrated guest conductors will occupy the podium during the season. They are William Steinberg, Walter Hendel, Igor Markevitch, Georg Solti, and Edouard van Remoortel.

Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano, will be the first of eight distinguished soloists. Following her will be the internationally-famous pianists, Guiomar Novaes, Benno Moiseiwitsch, Byron Janis, Leon Fleisher and Eugene Istomin; the noted violinist, Joseph Fuchs, and harmonica virtuoso, John Sebastian.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

Last week we described how Dr. Richard Hageman made his first trip to America as accompanist of Yvette Guilbert.

Two years later he joined the Metropolitan Opera Co. as an assistant conductor. One day Toscanini, with a long face, confided to Hageman that he was loath to go to Philadelphia that night to conduct "Faust."

"Let me conduct it for you, Maestro," begged the young hopeful.

It was agreed.

Arriving at the opera in Philadelphia, Mr. Hageman boasted proudly to another assistant conductor that he was conducting "Faust" that evening. It so happened that the other fellow was there to play the organ in the church scene. It also happened that he had been an assistant conductor for eight years, but never had been given a performance.

So when the church organ cue came, no organ responded—only a written note saying, "I've gone back to New York."

Poor Dr. Hageman!

But always "Johnny on the spot"—he quietly moved over to the piano in the orchestra pit and while directing the orchestra with one hand, he poured out the doleful chords of the church music with the other. That made him a hero over night and he forthwith became a regular conductor with the Metropolitan, a post he held for 18 years.

ONE WOULD SURMISE

that such a post would be all-engrossing of one's time and energy. But during these years Dr. Hageman not only accompanied all the great singers in concerts, but he was also composing beautiful music. He even composed an

Now You Can Match Shoe Covering to Your Outfit

The ingenuity of a Long Beach housewife has produced a "do-it-yourself" kit that makes changing your shoe covering as simple as changing earrings.

Mrs. Edna Thornberry, 49, a mother and grandmother, hit upon the idea in August 1954 while she watched her husband's band, the Charles Thornberry Orchestra, play for dancing.

Seeing the way women attempted to match dancing shoes to their dresses, she said to the drummer's wife:

"Isn't a shame we can't just glue fabric on our shoes to match our dresses?"

NOT ONE to let a good idea go begging, she promptly began experimenting and about a year later the kit—a bottle of adhesive devised by a Costa Mesa firm—a brush, and a simple pattern sheet—were on the market.

"Actually you don't need a pattern," she explains. "You just cut the material and glue it on. When you want to change colors, peel off the covering and put on another."

You can wade through water, dance—anything—and the adhesive bonds perfectly."

In addition to making a custom look for each pair of shoes possible, the kit can be used for covering purses, gloves, jewelry, cuff links or almost anything else imagination dictates. One reason the product has been received so enthusiastically by women from teenagers to grandmothers, Mrs. Thornberry suspects, is that, besides being simple, quick and fun, it is creative.

"YOU COME UP with your own designs. They're original, inexpensive, individual, can be varied endlessly, and best of all—you do it yourself."

For the name of stores where the kit is available phone HEmlack 5-1161, Ext. 249, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or write Dept. A, Independent Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE EXHIBITION of 50 prints by contemporary British artists is lent by St. George's Gallery in London. Lithographs, drypoints, silkscreens and engravings are among the prints included by outstanding British artists, Henry Moore, Cori Richards, Graham Sutherland and many others.

The exhibition of paintings by Bettina Brendel is shown in the upstairs gallery and includes five prints and five paintings. They are all recent works by the artist completed within the last year.

On Top Again

CHICAGO (UP)—The Everly Brothers' recording of "All I Have to Do Is Dream" was atop the United Press "Top 20" record survey for the second straight week.

Only three new songs made the pool—"Zorro," "I Wonder Why" and "Let the Bells Keep Ringing."

Concerts at St. Gregory's

Two Sunday afternoon concerts are planned by St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Willow and Oakbrook Sts. The first, today at 3:30 o'clock, will feature Robert Hannah, baritone, singing the first public performance of Charles Farmer's Six Verses of Walt Whitman, taken from the poems, "When Li-lacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd," "Tears," "On the Beach at Night," "A Noiseless Patient Spider," and "The Last Invocation."

The Long Beach City College Madrigal Singers, directed by Royal Stanton, will sing madrigals and part-songs of the 16th to the 19th centuries.

ON SUNDAY, May 25, at 3:30 p.m. in the church, soloists will be Patricia Powelson, soprano; Harold E. Hanson, bassoonist; and Charles Farmer, pianist.

The program will include songs by Stradella, Handel and Godard; the B flat Bassoon Concerto of Mozart; Bach's G major Partita and the Symphonic Etudes by Schumann.

Suds Discs in Cold Water, Say Experts

When was the last time you "dunked" your favorite phonograph record under the faucet and washed it off?

If you're a careful record collector, says HiFi & Music Review magazine, you'll make a habit of regularly "laundering" your records under a faucet. To remove destructive dust, lint, and grit from the soft vinyl grooves of your records, you should wash them off in cold water using a detergent and a cellulose sponge.

This is one of 10 suggestions offered to record collectors who want to begin a cleanup campaign in their collections. The other nine suggestions are:

1. Clean your records EVERY TIME you play them. Once ground in by stylus, dust never gets out again completely.

2. Blow out lint from your record jackets.

3. Don't touch the grooved part of the record. Touch only at rim and label.

4. When sliding records in or out of jackets, squeeze the jacket sides outward to prevent chafing of record surface.

5. When wiping records, use moist cloth. Moisture neutralizes static dust attraction.

6. Move cleaning cloth only in direction of record grooves, not across them. Only camel's hair or sable brushes are soft enough to flick dust from record.

7. Use anti-static spray sparingly.

8. Store records vertically. This prevents warpage and also keeps lateral pressure from grinding in dust.

9. Sweep dirt from stylus with stylus brush.

Sen. Kuchel Stirs Up Soup

By MILDRED FLANARY
L. P. T. Home Economics Editor

He proudly bears the title and the responsibilities of a United States Senator, but his affinity for chocolate cake is as profound today as it was in childhood. Today's Chef of the Week, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, Chef No. 500, incidentally is equally consistent in other ways, too. . . . He was a politician and diplomat at the age of 5. His warm, friendly attitude throughout the years has won many friends.

The Senator, a native of Anaheim, is of English, German and Irish descent. His father, the late Henry Kuchel, was a pioneer newspaper publisher, born in San Francisco in 1859. His grandparents were among the original settlers who founded Anaheim in that year. The Anaheim Gazette has been owned by the Kuchel family for the past 48 years.

KUCHEL, who has a solemn sense of humor, always has had that rare ability of being contented, but never satisfied. His skill as a leader, was apparent early. President of his junior and senior classes in high school, he edited the school paper and accumulated trophies in track. He joined the school band, too, armed with a saxophone.

At USC where he received his B.A. degree in 1932 and his law degree in '35, he continued his role as a leader. He was student body president his junior and senior years and of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, too. He also pledged Phi Kappa Phi (scholarship) and Phi Delta Phi (legal) fraternities. Kuchel was admitted to the state bar in 1935, and except for his period of military service in the Navy during World War II, practiced law actively in Orange County until his appointment as state controller.

KUCHEL took active part in politics during his undergraduate days. He first was elected to public office as member of the State Assembly from Orange County in 1936 . . . was re-elected Assemblyman in 1938 and was sent twice to the State Senate.

In 1940, Kuchel, 30, was elected chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, youngest man ever to hold that post. Appointed controller by Gov. Earl Warren in 1946, he was elected to that office the following November by the largest vote ever received by a candidate. This procedure was repeated in 1950.

It was in December 1952 that he was appointed United States Senator — and was elected to the two-year balance of the term in November 1954. At the general election in 1956, he was elected to his present six-year term. He is married to the former Betty Mellenthin, and they have a teen-age daughter. He is a member of the Episcopal Church and belongs to the Masons, Elks, American Legion-Anaheim Post 72, and the Native Sons of the Golden West.

AN ARDENT golfer, and a good one, our "chef" has no culinary characteristics . . . eats pretty much what his wife serves, but loves to "go elaborate" on occasion. His recipe today is for the famous Senate Restaurant Bean

Soup . . . a "must" on the Senate daily menu. SENATE RESTAURANT BEAN SOUP
Take two pounds of small navy pea beans, wash, and run through hot water until beans are white again. Put on the fire with four quarts of hot water. Take one and one-half pounds of smoked ham hocks, boil slowly approximately three hours in covered pot. Braise one onion chopped in a little butter, and when light brown, put in soup. Season with salt and pepper to taste just before serving. (Eight persons.)

On Thursday the Service Club of the organization will meet for luncheon, business and cards at 11 a. m. in Linden Hall. Luella McClintock will preside; Edith LaTuren and Mildred McCann will serve.

Story League Devotes Its Program to Fantasies

Story League enjoyed a tea and program at the home of Mrs. Ann J. Cooper, 1332 Belmont Ave., with Mrs. Lucille Arvin, daughter of the hostess, assisting. Maypoles and spring flowers added to the occasion.

Miss Hazel F. Burns, program chairman, introduced the narrative family of fantasy, explaining that, unlike the folktale, the fantasy or literary fairy tale has an author. It often begins realistically enough, she said, but merges quickly into strange adventures—astonishing and dreamlike. It has magic of a sort, Miss Burns continued, and a definite attempt at being artistic but lacks the simplicity and directness of the old folk tales.

Penney Co. Sales in L.B. Reflect Business Upturn

By KEN CHILCOTE
Independent, Press-Telegram Business Editor

A definite upturn in Long Beach retail business which saw April sales well exceed those of a year ago, is continuing to gain momentum, reports Vernon Fay, manager of the downtown Long Beach store of the J. C. Penney Co.

"Our store showed a decided increase in business over the previous April and it must be remembered that in 1957 the month of April included the heavy Easter volume while this year Easter came earlier," he continued.

FAY REPORTED that sales so far in May also are running well ahead of the comparative period of last year.

"We attribute most of this sales increase to the wonderful response to the advertising we have been carrying in the Independent, Press-Telegram."

"With the talk of a slowdown in business, we decided it was no time to retreat. Instead, we increased our advertising promotion and the response was immediate."

"WE FOUND the customers more than a year ago. We have never had a more wonderful response from advertising that we did with this campaign."

"Perhaps they are a little more value-conscious. I don't mean they are strictly bargain hunting, but they are a little more cautious and want real value for their dollar."

"We launched our advertising program along that line and found the public spending more than a year ago. We have never had a more wonderful response from advertising that we did with this campaign."

"IT PROVED a definite upturn in business and it showed that the public has the money to buy and is willing to buy if you go after the business," Fay said that most of the many J. C. Penney stores in Southern California report good results from April promotions. Nationally the company's sales declined 2.3 per cent in April.

The national report shows that Southern California is well ahead of most of the nation in a revival of business and improved economy, Fay commented.

Bratt to Ad Agency

R. L. (Dick) Bratt, manager of the Chamber of Commerce Public Relations Department since November, 1955, has joined the advertising firm of Sarver-Witzman, 2232 American Ave., it was announced Saturday.

Bratt will be an account executive and handle several of the firm's many accounts according to John Sarver and Joe Witzman, agency partners.

While at the chamber he handled the public relations, publicity, photography and was secretary for the tourist and public relations committee, Breakfast Forum and the Century Club. He was also editor of the chamber's official weekly publication, Chambergram.

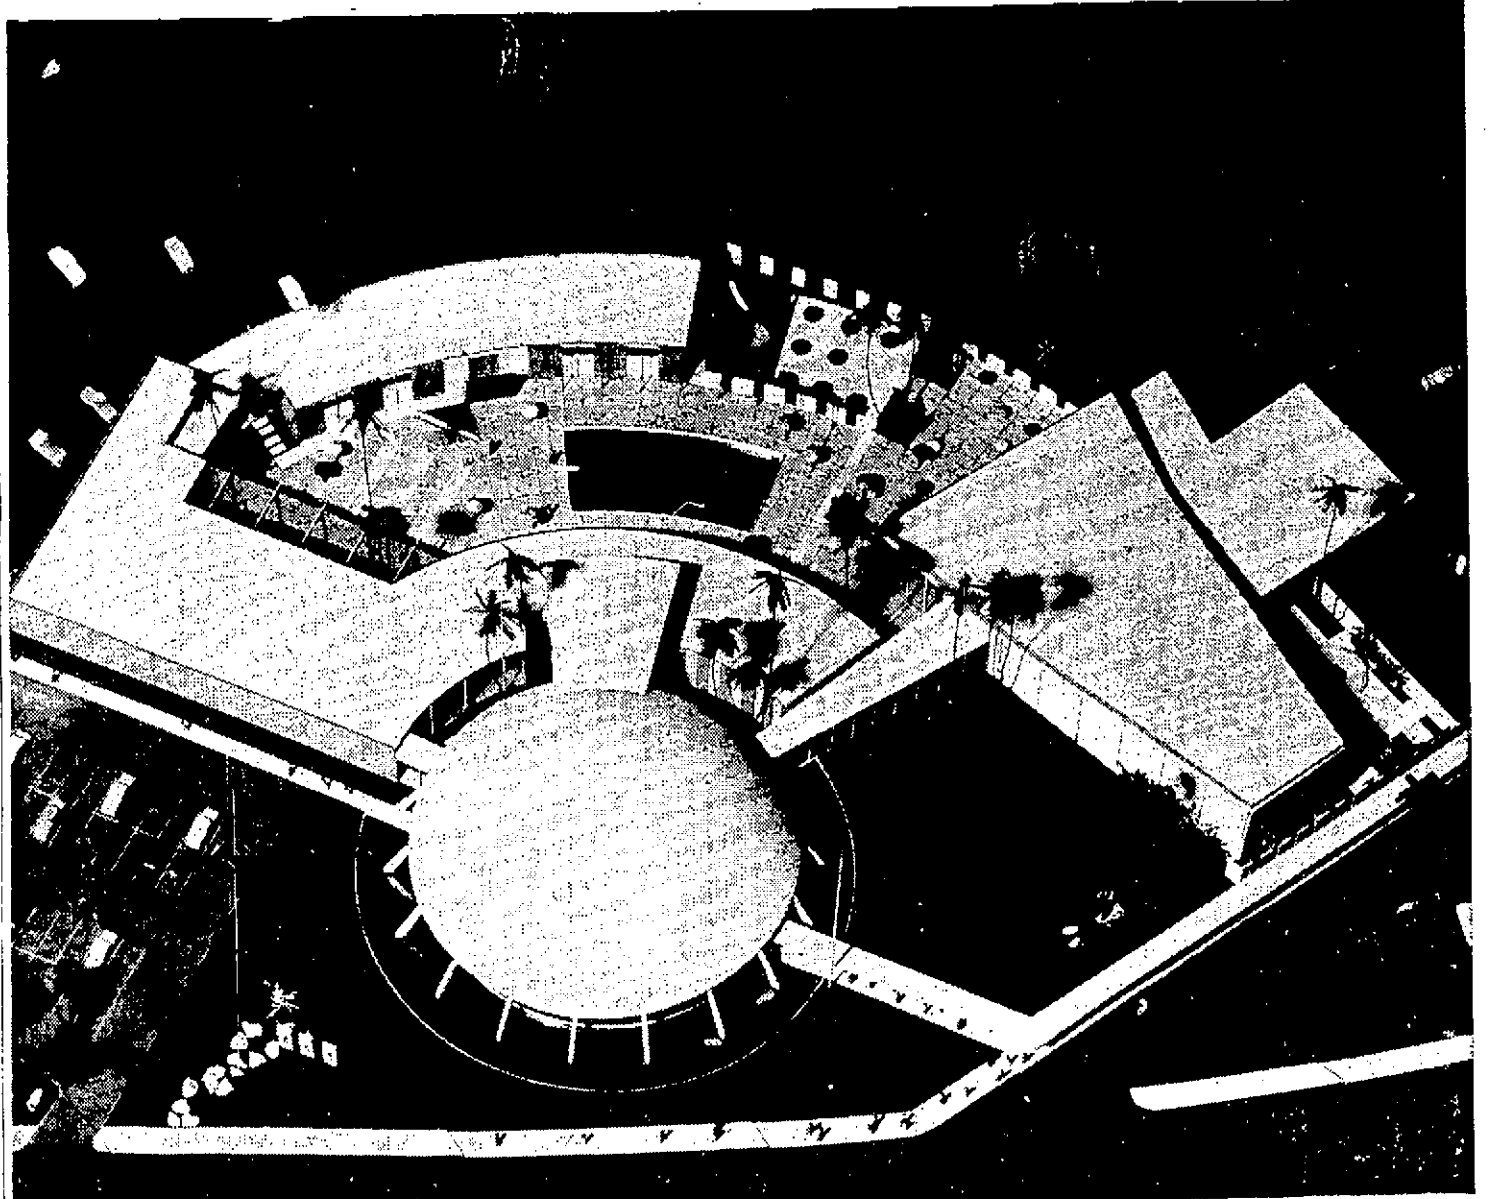

Prior to joining the Chamber of Commerce staff, Bratt was publicity director for the Los Angeles Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

During the Korean War, Bratt was in the public relations office at Camp Pendleton. A native of Duluth, Minn., Bratt attended high school there. He also attended Los Angeles City College, majoring in advertising.

Elks Plan $1,400,000 Home

PICTURED IS A MODEL of the planned $1,400,000 new Elks Lodge No. 888. The lodge already owns the site on the north side of Willow St. between Redondo Ave. and Lakewood Blvd., and is now conducting a big membership campaign to raise additional funds for the project. The lodge, with 5,000 members, is the fourth largest among the Elks Lodges in the nation. Officials said they hope to get construction under way so the big structure can be completed early in 1959. Their present building at Ocean Blvd. and Cedar Ave. will be sold to help defray the cost of the new building.

Proposed New Elks Home One of Finest in Nation

One of the most spacious fraternal homes in the nation is planned by Long Beach Elks Lodge No. 888, an organization of 5,000 members and the fourth largest among all Elks lodges in the nation.

The property already has been purchased on the north side of Willow St. between Redondo Ave. and Lakewood Blvd. It is just one and one-half blocks from the actual geographical center of Long Beach, the building committee points out, making it a convenient location for the big membership.

TO COST $1,400,000 the new home is being planned to care for 6,000 members and the new lodge room will seat 1,000.

The present building owned by the lodge at Cedar and Ocean Blvd., can not meet the needs for attendance is limited to 500 by the Fire Department.

In the proposed new building the wives and families of members have been given much consideration in the designing of the building and grounds.

The big patio and swimming pool, is for family dinners in the evenings. There will be a spacious banquet room for dinner dances. The large patio will have tables with umbrellas. The swimming pool has adjoining locker and shower rooms.

The lodge room will be on the second floor of the central portion of the building. It will be of circular design. On the ground floor of the circular section will be the offices of the lodge officials, meeting rooms and a library and reading room.

THE WEST WING of the structure will be for exclusive use of the members and will contain a television room, committee meeting rooms, a large game room, billiard room and space for buffet service for the rooms.

North of the central portion of the building will be a bar and booths in a semi-circle with full glass windows facing the patio and swim pool.

The right wing will contain two small banquet rooms and two large dining rooms which may be thrown together as one large room. They will face the patio with large windows. Adjacent will be a large activity room with a stage and dressing rooms which will be used for banquets, dances or dinner dances. With sliding partitions it may be used separately or in connection with the two dining rooms to give seating capacity of 1,000. Centrally located to these rooms will be the kitchen. All of these rooms will be available for rental to other organizations when not in use by members.

The club now has considerable money available for the building and will realize much more when they sell the present building. Members are now engaged in raising $500,000 to complete the fund.

An organization of 320 committeemen, divided into 5 divisions, is directing the fund drive with Clare McCord as general chairman and Robert Mohrbacker as chairman.

L. B. Man Perfects Driver Training Aid

Eldon Dale, owner of the Dale Engineering Co., 6744 Oriyaba Ave., has developed a machine to test driving skill. One model is coin operated for commercial use at amusement centers.

Dale also is developing a model for use in driver-education programs to encourage alertness and awareness of safety factors. The operator will face a simulated traffic conditions of every nature, including speed zones, intersections and emergencies.

The driver-education device will have a full set of automobile controls as well as a speedometer and instruments to record reaction time for braking. An automatic point system rates the ability demonstrated on each "dry run." Dale, who has made a study of the habits of American drivers, believes that driver-training should begin at an early age. He feels that if principles of good driving were instilled years before actual operation of a vehicle that the American driving standard would become greatly improved.

Dale has been inventing and developing amusement devices since 1938 and holds six U.S. patents while six more are now pending. During World War II he served with the Special Devices Section of the Navy and developed a rocket-powered aircraft model that was used for anti-aircraft practice.

FOR DRIVER EDUCATION

Eldon Dale, right, owner of Dale Engineering of Long Beach, has invented this device which will test the skill of a motorcar operator by simulating actual road conditions. Pictured with the device are Clyde Doron, art designer, and Bill Cassle, production chief of the Dale firm.

How TV Producer STEVE MARTIN—Star of "Open House"—FOUND HIS HOME!

3 Bedrooms plus Family Room, 2 Generous Baths and Dozens of other FEATURES

STEVE MARTIN, FAMOUS TV PERSONALITY... presents thousands of homes to the many viewers of his KTTV, Channel 11 television program, "Open House." Off the air, Steve is an active boating enthusiast. "The sea offers fun and sport but even more... a complete way of life like no other," Steve says. Steve first saw Marina Bay while planning a telecast of the resort area development. Realizing that beach property was becoming increasingly valuable as it rapidly diminished, Steve said: "When I discovered... Marina Bay Homes where I dock my boat... were luxuriously designed, affording maximum living area, both inside and out... and were offered on the new, convenient G.I. terms... it didn't take me long to make up my mind that a Marina Bay Home was for me and my family." You, too, can fulfill your dreams... at Marina Bay Homes!

MARINA BAY HOMES

Just 2 Miles South of Long Beach on Pacific Coast Highway

Marina Bay Homes Attract Big Crowd

"Last weekend's boat show at Marina Bay Homes—Brighton-Built planned community 'by-the-sea,' two miles south of Long Beach, drew the greatest crowds of prospective buyers to date," it was announced by James Young.

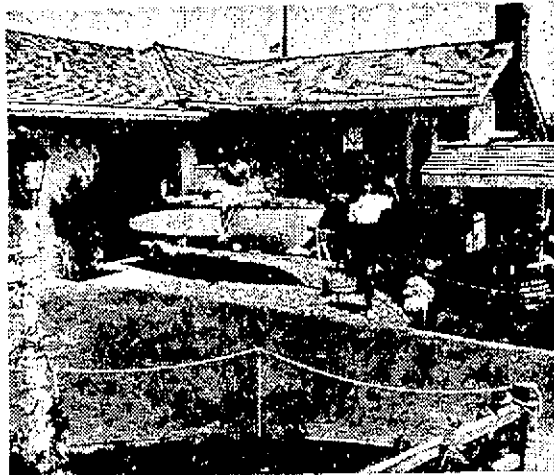

"The sales recognition afforded these spacious, resort-area homes has been more than encouraging," Young added.

"We have found that a large proportion of Southern Californians desire the full-scale living possible in a home development located just three blocks from the beach and the new, beautiful Long Beach Marina boat harbor. This shore-side community offers family-sized homes priced moderately in one of the nation's fastest-growing resort areas."

These homes feature exterior design in a modern variety of styles. A wide variety of floor plans, including 3 bedrooms, family room, and 2 baths with all-glass stall showers, is offered. Many "extras" have been added, such as sliding glass doors in the living room, leading to the paved patio, breakfast bar, ash-paneled living areas and a scenic mural wall, built-in O'Keefe & Merritt rotisserie oven and surface units, 2-car garage and connecting boat port, brick fireplace and shake roof, front and rear. Six-foot-high redwood fencing is included, as are Frigidaire washer, dryer, 12.3 cu. ft. refrigerator in color at no extra cost.

The shore-area dwellings are priced from $20,950, and are available to veterans under the new government-insured financing. No down payment is required for veterans who may purchase the homes on 4% per cent interest loans.

To reach the model homes of Marina Bay, take Pacific Coast Hwy. two miles south of Long Beach to Seal Beach and Marina Bay.

ATTRACTIVE HOME

Here is one model typical of the Marina Bay Homes, just south of Long Beach in Seal Beach, where a boat and home show was held last weekend to depict shore-side living. Carolyn Paneri and Charlene Voorhees of Long Beach served as hostesses.

Attractive Entry Court to Windsor Greens Home

A unique feature attracting wide acclaim at the Windsor/2 1/2-bath homes are full priced Greens community in Lake-wood from $29,750. Buyers may make a down payment as low as $4,475 or trade in the equity of their old home. Financing terms are arranged to suit the buyer's needs.

Through widely varied in styling from the Hawaiian Luani design to the traditional Lakeside model, the popular entry courts create a setting of privacy, charm and relaxation for every Windsor Greens home.

The in-town Windsor Greens community enjoys the conveniences of nearby major shopping centers and modern schools, and at the same time has the pleasurable surroundings of the Lakewood golf course.

BUILT BY LARAMORE

Here is one of the models in Magnolia Manor Unit 7 built by the Laramore Co., and selling from $12,200 on a low payment.

Magnolia Manor's Unit 7 Ideal for Growing Family

Newest designs for enjoyable family life are found at Magnolia Manor No. 7 in Garden Grove, a spokesman for the development declares.

The homes are specifically designed for convenient, easy maintenance and living freedom, state Laramore Construction Co. officials. With the increasing desire for leisure activities, these homes are especially suited to young growing families, says Frank H. McFarland, sales agent. He pointed out that each of the three floor plans contains over 1,300 square feet of living area, plus double garages, and are scientifically planned on efficiency-rated tests.

MODERN housewives welcome the easily adaptable room arrangements which radiate from a convenient central hall. Consideration for large family groupings is evident in the spacious front or rear living rooms with open access to adjoining dining areas. Economy-engineered kitchens offer every working convenience. Features include Formica sinks with disposals, vinyl tile floors, hardwood cabinets and plenty of utility and storage space. Three to four bedrooms with ample closets and large windows are designed to permit utmost comfort and privacy. One and a half or two big baths are finished in non-spitting Lamidall and easy-to-clean vinyl tile.

Moderately priced from $12,200 to $12,500, the homes provide long-term investment protection because of sturdy construction, according to McFarland. He pointed out that the low $195 down payment with only $90 move-in cost permits immediate occupancy for average budgets.

These Orange County homes can be reached in minutes from Long Beach. Drive east on 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Huntington Beach Blvd., south to Westminster and east to Westminster and east to Magnolia Manor 7.

Rossmoor Sales Continue Over $1 Million Monthly

First-quarter sales at Rossmoor totaled $3,160,000, reports Bill Cheney, of Walker & Lee, sales agents for the 1200-acre community near Long Beach. March was the third consecutive month which accounted for sales exceeding $1,000,000, Cheney noted.

Easy Terms on Sherwood Rancho Unit

With just $490 required to move into the new 3-bedroom family room and 2-bath Sherwood Ranchos homes in Costa Mesa, prospective homeowners are touring models and setting the same rapid sales pace noted in previous Buccola developments, including Clarendon Park in Anaheim.

Available in a variety of nine elevations with rambling ranch, provincial, contemporary, colonial and farmhouse among the architectural designs, the homes are spacious both inside and out. Living area measures 1544 square feet, it was noted, and the homes are built on extra-wide lots to accommodate a number of outdoor living facilities.

THE PREFERRED East side of Costa Mesa near Bay is the location of the new development, conveniently close to new schools and churches, shopping centers and a great variety of famous Southland recreational activities. Just three minutes from the beach and the bay, Sherwood Ranchos are one-half block from a public school and two blocks from a parochial school.

A planned community, the homes contain features usually found in far more expensive dwellings, Buccola noted. These include O'Keefe and Merritt built-in gas range and oven, extra heavy shake roofs, forced air heat, tile drainboards and Pullman, glass shower doors, fireplaces with loglighters, hardwood doors, ash cabinets, colored fixtures, sliding glass doors, abundant closet and storage space, two-car garages and many more.

Open on Orange Ave., Sherwood Ranchos are reached from Los Angeles by driving out Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor, south on Harbor to Newport Blvd., left on Newport to Virginia Pl. and continue to the homes. These luxury homes are priced from $14,950.

Newest Unit of Imperial Homes Open

Public response to the preview showing of Imperial Estates No. 17, Emblem Homes' new community of large-family residences at Norwalk and Centennial Ave., was extremely favorable, according to Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., sales agent for this new development in the Norwalk area.

Available to veterans for no formal down payments except the usual costs and impounds, Chandler said, on long-term VA loans at 4% per cent interest, the homes are fully priced at $12,750, $12,950 and $13,000. Monthly payments, Chandler pointed out, are as low as $66.68, including principal and interest.

ATTRACTIVE California ranch-style residences, offered in a variety of exteriors, have flexible plans designed for comfortable family living. Included are three bedrooms or two bedrooms with den, and there is a choice of front or rear living room. Added convenience factor is the separate service porch.

From Long Beach, model homes are reached by driving east on Carson which becomes Lincoln. Then left (north) on Pioneer to Centennial, then right to Norwalk Blvd.

Chandler Heads Project Sales

Frank C. Chandler, general sales manager of the Key Land Co., has been appointed to handle sales of a portion of Salton Sands development, it was announced by Bill Dehn, general manager of the Salton Sands Co.

Dehn pointed out that Chandler heads one of the Southland's most aggressive real estate sales forces and he is pleased to have Chandler's group associated with him to handle Salton Sands sales.

"This is one of the finest investment opportunities I've ever been associated with," Chandler said.

The Key Land Co. office is at 2149 S. Atlantic Blvd. in Monterey Park.

Rossmoor provides a choice of seven floor plans and 30 exterior designs in California ranch house, Starlite Modern and Traditional Two-story home stylings.

Rossmoor ranch-style homes, available in 5 floor plans, are priced from $19,100 and include living room and den, paneled mahogany and white birch, with a choice of cathedral, drop or beamed ceilings. Kitchens have built-in dishwashers, ovens and ranges, a choice of wall-refrigerators and built-in automatic washers and dryers.

RANCH HOUSE exteriors are of redwood board and batten with wide overhanging roofs of shake shingle construction. Some 1440 to 1658 square feet of living area are provided in these homes, available on lots 70, 72 or 74 feet by 110, which are large enough for patio and swimming pool.

Rossmoor's modern motif is represented by the Starlite Modern series of homes. Outstanding feature of this series is the unusual floor plan which sets the living room, family room and kitchen in one wing and sleeping rooms in a separate wing. The 15'8" x 19'8" living room features walnut paneled walls and slumped fireplace; 4 bedrooms, a family room, two baths and a 2-car garage.

STARLITE all-electric, built-in kitchens include walnut cabinets, fully automatic electric ovens, platform ranges, dishwashers, garbage disposal units.

BUILT BY HUNSAKER

Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, designed to give home buyers generous living area with three bedrooms and two full baths, are moderately priced and ready for immediate occupancy. S. V. Hunsaker & Sons are builders.

Named to New Post
in Bankers' Assn.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., (AP)—Election of Ben C. Corlett, San Francisco, to a new office of senior vice president of the American Bankers' Assn., was announced by Joseph C. Welman, Kennett, Mo., the president.

Welman, attending the Kansas Bankers' Assn. meeting, said Corlett will take charge of the association's Washington office next month.

Sunshine Homes Offering
High Value at Low Price

Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, designed to give home buyers maximum value at moderate price, can be purchased for $195 total down and monthly payments less than rent, according to Stan Rossi, sales manager.
Families will appreciate generous living area provided. Homes have 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths, large closets, and kitchens that include an extra dining area. Other provisions Rossi lists as forced air heat, front or rear living rooms, Maticork floors, acoustical ceilings, aluminum sliding windows, and Vinyl tile, natural finish birch cabinets, and garbage disposal in kitchen.
Garden Grove Sunshine Homes, built by S. V. Hunsaker and Sons, have furnished models on display daily on Bowen St. in Westminster, just north of Westminster Ave. They are ready for immediate occupancy.

Vets Asked Nothing Down for Big Home in Park Westminster

"For only $179, total closing costs and imposts to move in, veterans can take advantage of the no down payment GI privilege at Park Westminster. Bright-Bill's home development in beautiful Westminster, James Young, vice president announced.

"Located in the heart of the Southland's resort area, these quality-built, moderately-priced homes offer both vets, and non-vets under FHA, real California living at prices they can easily afford," Young stated. "And with more and more people spending their leisure time in this resort area, our sales are soaring as the summer season approaches."

Veterans need pay only 4 1/2 per cent interest on their V. A. loans, and $66 per month (including principal and interest). Non-vets or vets who have used their GI privileges require only 3 per cent down (plus 1/2 per cent mortgage insurance), and 5 1/2 per cent interest on FHA terms. There are no hidden charges, no second trust deeds or balloon payments, and all buyers receive a grant deed. The experience-designed homes are priced as low as $12,495.

THE SPACIOUS, three-bedroom feature 3 bedrooms and 2 baths. An imaginative range of exterior stylings is introduced, offering either 2-car garages or car ports. Many "extras" have been added, including Roper built-in ranges and ovens in matching colors, garbage disposals, confectionery kitchen flooring, large linen closets, weather-stripped exterior doors, all natural mahogany doors, maticork flooring throughout, six-foot high tile in showers and tile splash over all tubs. King-size lots offer ample expanse for future outdoor projects. Fencing, side boating and airfield installations are scheduled at an estimated cost exceeding $20 million.

Salton Sands Grand
Opening Set Today

Salton Sands, impressive new community development at Salton City, will place choice residential lots on sale for the first time this week-end as an integral part of grand opening activities at the $20-million, 19,600-a-cres, 28-square mile desert-sea resort.

Debut of the desert home sites was made official yesterday by Bill Dehn, general sales director, who noted widespread advance public interest in the desert oasis.

"Although first actual sales are just being made, Salton Sands already has reservations for more than 50 per cent of the first unit," Dehn declared.

THOUSANDS OF potential home buyers and home-site investors are expected to visit Salton Sands this week-end. The scenic property, on the shores of the legendary Salton Sea, is being developed 32 miles south of Indio and 10 miles south of the Riverside Imperial County line on U. S. Highway 99 in Imperial County, on the west side of the natural, warm salt waters.

In addition to existing attractions at Salton City, plans call for a new golf course, resort hotel, playgrounds and club facilities. Immediate projects such as streets, water-

NEAR LAKEWOOD CENTER
Park Lakewood offers only a limited number of homes such as this. They are located within walking distance of Lakewood Center.

Stress Good Location of Homes in Park Lakewood

New Park Lakewood homes, cabinets, ceramic tile on all counters and built-in pantry. A 7-foot fireplace with raised hearth, mantle and log-lighter, oak hardwood floors, sliding glass doors opening onto extra large paved patios and color-matched plumbing fixtures are one block from an elementary school, near churches of several denominations, a golf course, and the Lakewood Civic Center. New, low FHA and conventional terms have been acquired. Furnished model homes are available for viewing daily and may be reached by driving North on Lakewood to Candlewood, then turning east on Candlewood to Fidler and proceeding to furnished models.

New Section of Exclusive Lemon Heights Now Open

Lemon Heights West in Santa Ana's exclusive Lemon Heights district, new community of distinguished custom homes now nearing completion, invites prospective home owners for an "early bird" inspection and selection of choice sites, according to officials of Schwartz-Yedor Building Corp.

Sales Are Opened in Salton Riviera

A whole new resort city — Salton Riviera — is coming to life on the shores of Salton Sea, California's largest inland body of water.

"We believe Salton Riviera will be bigger in every way than anything our company has done in the past — in Arrowhead, in Big Bear, in Baldwin Park, Palmdale, Lancaster or Hesperia," announced Joe Karbo, vice president of the company.

Salton Riviera is the only place in North America where you can swim in warm salt water in January, surrounded by snow-capped mountains. Or bask in the summer sun on the only salt-and-sea breeze air-conditioned desert in the world. Salton Riviera is made to order for a major resort.

Plans for the development actually started years ago, and included from the outset a marina, yacht club, country club and golf club, gun club and riding club. The $2,500,000 recreation facilities will be administered by a non-profit Recreation District in the new city.

Homes and homesites, business and income property went on sale officially Saturday. A free booklet: The Salton Story, has been written and is available to anyone who writes M. Penn Phillips, Dept. NP, 1111 Foothill Blvd., Azusa, Calif.

Hughes House Open for Public to See

Termed one of the most luxurious homes built in the Southland in years, the Hughes of Distinction will be open at 3655 Country Club Dr., adjacent to Lakewood Country Club.

Located in the Country Club Estates where Realtor Gene Nebeker is offering estate-sized lots in about the last of the premium locations in Long Beach, the Hughes House is a showcase for gracious living.

M. L. Hughes, general contractor and builder, has included virtually every ultra-modern convenience and feature to suit the comfort of the most discriminating home buyer.

WITH THIS HOME as a model, he is offering his services in custom building a home for others who purchased the Country Club Estates sites. He will provide the planning, construction and financing for a home suited to the personality and needs of any family, said Nebeker.

The Hughes House has 4 bedrooms, 2 3/4 baths, family room and an extra room that may be used as a private office or sewing room. There is a large 3-car garage. The homesite is fenced, lawn sprinklers installed, landscaped in the front and rear and is about perfect for built-ins.

The massive kitchen has a built-in O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, built-in Servel refrigerator and deep freeze. Each bedroom has so many built-ins that only a bed is needed to occupy each.

Complete carpeting and drapes have been provided by Ray Dudley.

OF GENUINE lath and plaster construction with a shake roof, the home is of only the finest materials and the detailed finishes are eye appealing in each room.

In the kitchen the built-in oven and countertop range, roaster and refrigerator are colored. The double-tile sink has a large work area adjoining. Hood and ventilating fan cover the cooking units. In the cabinets will be found a built-in lazy Susan and there is a large, walk-in pantry.

The utility room has generous built-ins for storage and much work space.

Bathrooms are Pullman styled in a selection of colored tile fixtures with many built-in cabinets and glassed-in tile shower.

THE BEDROOMS have large walk-in closets and there are built-in desks, built-in bookcases and other outstanding features.

The huge living room and adjoining family room make artistic use of stone in the fireplace and planters. Walls are of birch panel with glass sliding doors and view windows.

A dining room is included for gracious entertaining.

A patio and pool, if desired, add to the outdoor living motif.

There is 2800 square feet of living space in the Hughes House. All interior woods in doors and molding are in natural finish.

Thermostatically controlled forced-air heating is provided in each room. Touch-Plate electric switches are used throughout. The wall color or wallpaper show perfection in color coordination.

The home faces the beautiful Lakewood Country Club fairways. It may be viewed by driving on Carson St., midway between Cherry Ave. and Lakewood Blvd., and turning north to Country Club Estates.

Nebeker's office with Robert Budd as sales manager, will be open at the unit to show other big homesites that are available.

Hancock Oil Co. Receives Award

For its work in smog abatement, the Hancock Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Hancock Oil Co., Long Beach, has received a citation from the County Air Pollution Control District. The citation was presented W. T. Hancock, president of the chemical plant, by Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, who is chairman of the pollution control district.

"It is with pleasure to present a Clear Air Award to your firm, which was one of the first to be recognized for outstanding accomplishment in air pollution control," said Dorn.

"The fact that so many of our industries have done such a very fine job further emphasizes the fact that the control efforts of the Hancock Chemical Co., had craft Co., will speak on "Big to be exemplary to be worthy of particular mention."

SELLING PREMIUM LOCATIONS

Gene Nebeker, Realtor, right, and his sales manager, Robert Budd, are shown with a tract map of Country Club Estates which they are selling. An outstanding luxury home built on one of the sites will be open for public viewing today. It is the Hughes House built by M. L. Hughes, contractor and builder.

UNIQUE SALES OFFICE

This unique and attractive sales office is the headquarters of the Gene Nebeker Realty Co., which is selling the homesites in Lakewood Country Club Estates. It is at the entrance of the area.

Southland

LONG BEACH, CALIF. MAY 18, 1958

OUR COVER

From Hwy. 395, which traverses the Owens Valley east of the High Sierra, thousands of fishermen and other vacationers turn westward to Casa Diablo Hot Springs into the Mammoth Lakes area. Here in a huge, mountain-rimmed basin lie more than 30 lakes. Major ones reached by good roads include Twin Lakes (Southland's cover), Mary, Mayme, George and Horseshoe. Well-marked trails lead to the others, and nearly all are within a radius of about four miles from Lake Mary. The region was named for 11,034-foot Mammoth Mountain and the mining town of Mammoth. The gold boom literally collapsed under a 28-foot snowfall in 1880, but there still are fragments of the mine's massive machinery to be seen, and hard-rock prospectors still are seeking new veins among the cliffs and ledges. Millions of trout are planted annually in the crystal lakes and streams of Inyo and Mono Counties. Twin Lakes and Lake Mary have boats for rent to casters and trollers. The Mammoth Lakes region also has stores, Forest Service campgrounds and several excellent lodges. This also is the home base for three outfits with guides and horses for pack trips into the spectacular back country of the High Sierra.

NEXT WEEK

You're probably planning a trip to Catalina this Spring or Summer, because just about everyone is. When you go, you'll have a good time, of course. And you're also going to be agreeably surprised at the changes made on the island in the last year. New construction to make your stay more pleasant, innovations in the harbor area to delight and accommodate more visitors are in evidence. Southland takes you to Catalina next week for a preview of what's been done.

TRAVEL

Mirror Pond at Bend, Ore., is in the heart of the huge Central Oregon recreational area, famed vacation spot.

Pacific Northwest, Land of Beauty

Thriving city, Portland is the gateway to the beautiful Columbia River country for Pacific Coast tourists.

By
Grace Kirkpatrick

WHEN you visit the Pacific Northwest, which includes the five-state area of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and also the Province of British Columbia, you can travel in circles and thus find the widest variety of attractions.

A glance at a map will show that here are Theodore Roosevelt National Park; nearby the International Peace Garden and the new vast recreational area of Garrison Dam in North Dakota on the area's eastern border.

In Montana are the wonders of Yellowstone and the Shining Mountains of Glacier National Park. In Idaho are the Craters of the Moon, Sun Valley, the lakes of the Panhandle and the famed canyons of the Snake and the Salmon Rivers.

Mt. Rainier, Mt. Baker, Mt. St. Helens, the San Juan Islands, and Olympic National Park are in Washington; and to their south, and nearest to California are the great beauty of Mt. Hood and Crater Lake in Oregon.

This makes no mention of the sandy ocean beaches where the sky dips into the Pacific from the edge of the evergreen forests, nor of dude ranches, fishing lakes and streams and boating galore.

IF YOU HAVE time to make the grand circle of all these states, a pleasant trip is to drive across eastern and southern Oregon and into Idaho—the Sun Valley area—and cut northeast into Yellowstone.

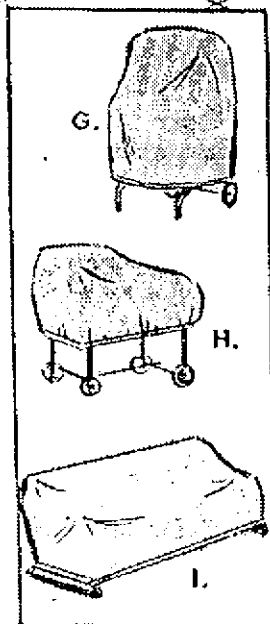

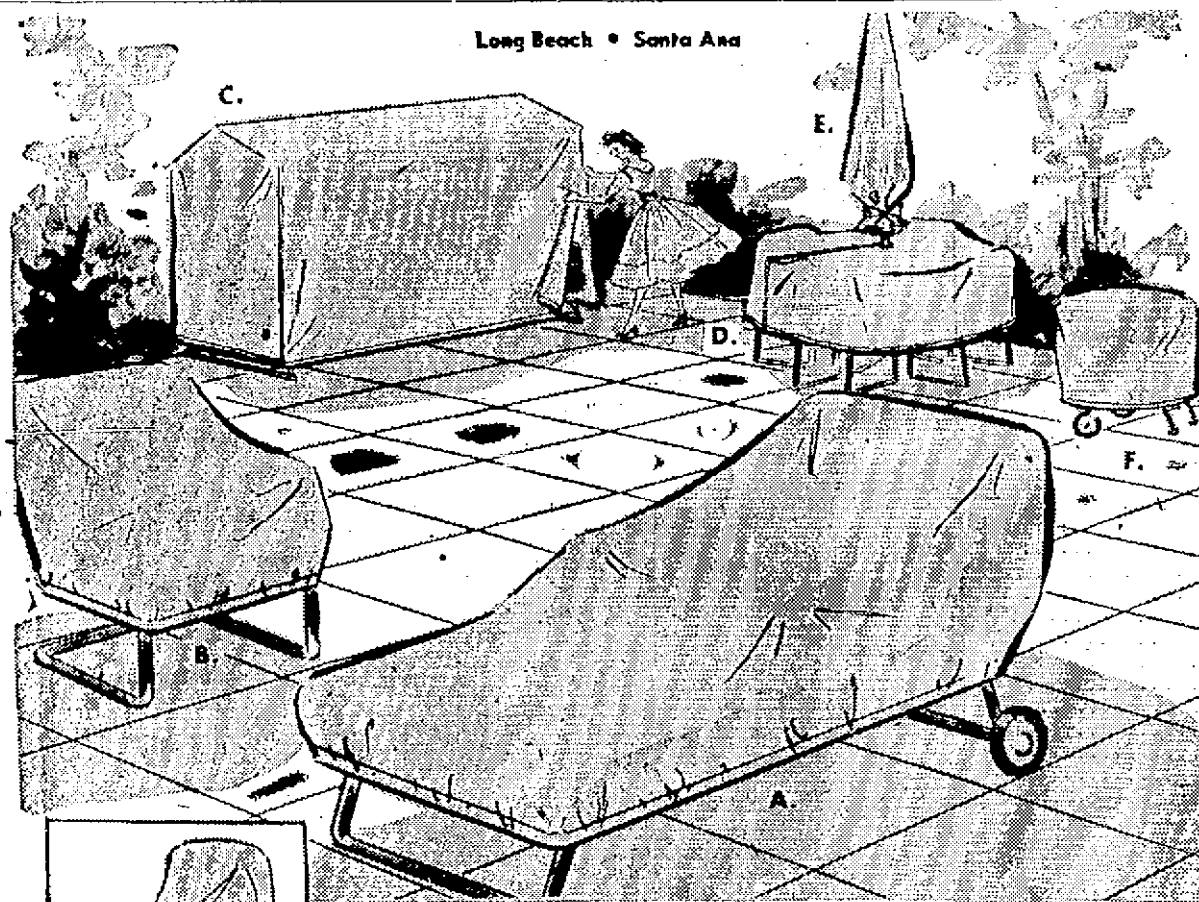

The northeast gateway trip to Yellowstone over the scenic Red Lodge Hwy. includes the historic places where Custer fought his last battles with Indians and the interest of the Dakota Badlands and the open range country of the eastern Montana cattle country, but if your journey must be shorter, you can turn westward from Yellowstone to Virginia City, Mont. One of the first settlements in Montana, Virginia City has been restored to entertain as it would have in pioneer days.

Next along the pathway north and west lie Montana's Lewis and Clark Caverns, a state park where the mammoth caves are equipped with a tramway to carry you to a mysterious underground world. Out again in the sunshine—and nowhere is it clearer and brighter than in this mile-high region of open spaces and circling mountain ranges as you drive into Butte—colorful, unusual, the greatest copper mining city of the west.

NO ONE SHOULD leave Montana without turning into Glacier Park, crossing the famous Going-to-the-Sun Highway and again heading west to Helena, to Flathead Lake or to Missoula.

Traveling from Montana and still bearing west, you cross the Idaho Panhandle skirting the shores of the famous lake of Big fish—Lake Pend d'Oreille, and next Lake Coeur d'Alene. These are very large lakes, they are rimmed with woodlands and offer resorts and motels to appeal to those who wish to stay long enough for days of fishing, or for those

DEPLANE

TOKYO

"As this is our first trip, we would welcome almost any advice about travel in Europe."

FROM travel agents' estimates, this summer will be even more crowded in Europe. This means get firm advance reservations in all capitals—you get these through a travel agent in the U. S.

You need a passport. You need a smallpox vaccination with certificate, dated within the past three years. You need air or boat or train reservations throughout. If you are going to rent or buy a car, better reserve on those, too.

This makes a tight, relentless schedule and is certainly not as much fun. But Europe has not built hotels for the increasing tourist trade. And, so far as I can see, is not going to build. When the jets begin to fly and with the new lower economy fares, I think European travel will become a herd-like movement of guided tours. The outlook is depressing.

"... some ideas on buying in the Orient?"

BEST BUYS are in Hong Kong. This is a free port and the Chinese merchants are very competitive.

For instance, Swiss watches are a better buy here than in Switzerland. German cameras, silks, Indian sari veils, ivory carvings, tailor-made clothing, English woolens, Irish linens. All duty-free buys.

On Chinese-made goods you have to be careful. They import rugs and furniture, for example, from Red China. And these things will NOT pass U. S. Customs. For Chinese goods, you get a certificate from the U. S. Consul in Hong Kong that they were made in Hong Kong. Not Red China.

The merchants often enough will tell you this is not necessary. Or they will assure you THEY can give you a certificate. Not true. Window shop. Then call the Consulate and ask.

IN JAPAN: Japanese cameras. The Nikon is best in the Leica-style class. The Minolta Autocord Model L is best in the reflex style. It is about half the overseas price of the Roliflex on which it is modeled.

The china sets are wonderfully patterned. Wako seems to be the best of the department stores. But it is well worth while to go to several. Get an elevator to the top floor and work down.

I have seen some fine sets of patterned china at about $20 for 100 pieces. As a visitor, you do not pay the 10 and 15 per cent tax on anything you buy. Nor on hotel bills, restaurant checks or night clubs. Be sure they take it off and sign your name and passport number to the bill.

Except for the Igorot wood carvings and native fiber cloth, I have never seen anything worth buying in the Philippines. The carved salad bowls might be worth while. So are made-to-order carved mahogany doors and screens. Be sure you bring the measurements with you.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent-Press-Telegram, 614 N. Pine, Long Beach 42, Calif.

Their well-planned vacation holds fun, relaxation for this pair at Yosemite.

By Harry Karns

IN THE SPRING a man's fancy turns to what the women have been thinking about all winter—a vacation. . . . Sparkling sunshine, long stretches of beach, breathtaking mountain vistas, cascading waterfalls, and the song of the open road. . . . All very pleasant; but don't forget that behind every blissful vacation is a road map and some hard-headed, practical plans. And now is the time to shape those plans.

The first question, of course, is: "Where shall we go?"

As a Southern Californian, your problem is not that of finding a place to go, but of choosing. No one has a wider selection of magnificent vacation spots within easy traveling distance.

You can take your vacation at home, visiting the sunny beaches, going surf fishing, camping out in the nearby mountains, or going on junkets to Hollywood, Knott's Berry Farm, or Disneyland.

OR YOU CAN MAKE IT an away-from-home vacation that takes you to one of the famous playground areas of the great 11-state western portion of the United States. This is America's vacationland, and you are not too many hours away from most parts of it.

North of you in California are Sequoia National Park with its towering redwoods, Yosemite with more tall trees and beautiful waterfalls (these are especially impressive this year), and Lassen Volcanic National Park. At all these spots you can relax by camping, riding, hiking and fishing. In between the natural wonders, you can take in San Francisco's famous Fisherman's Wharf or visit California's first state capital, old Monterey.

Oregon offers you 20-square-mile Crater Lake, the Oregon Caves, and the Douglas fir. Washington has Mount Rainier and Olympic National Park. Idaho provides Hell's Canyon and rugged timberland. In Montana there is Glacier National Park, and in Wyoming, Yellowstone with its Old Faithful geyser, its waterfalls and canyons. Utah has the Great Salt Lake. There's Lake Tahoe, Virginia City, Reno and Las Vegas in Nevada. Arizona offers Hoover Dam and Grand Canyon. New Mexico's great natural wonder is Carlsbad Caverns, containing a cave "room" 300 feet high.

THE LIST IS ENDLESS, and part of the thrill of a vacation, of course, lies in adding your own discoveries to it. Naturally, where you go and what you do will depend on the amount of time you have and the cost involved. It is always wise to determine these factors before rather than after the trip has begun.

Read your newspaper travel sections, clip the stories and ads that interest you, and send for more details about routes, places to stay, costs, and attractions. In a very short time you can assemble all the information necessary for sensible planning. A handful of postcards will bring you an avalanche of folders, maps, and booklets from states and agencies interested in tourist promotion.

PLAN, THEN RELAX

AND ENJOY

For many Americans, a vacation is a swift trip by car to a single destination. For others, it is a leisurely trip with stops along the way to pitch camp and enjoy the scenery. Still others prefer the vacation budget trips offered by airlines, railways, bus companies, and steamship lines. Summer traveling has increased at such a pace in recent years that travel during the peak of the season can be crowded and sometimes inconvenient, whether you go in your own car or by other means. Consider an early or late-season vacation.

BUT IF YOU DO PLAN to go at the top of the season in one of the new luxury buses that travel the Pacific coast, in a streamlined domeliner train through the Rockies, or aboard a coast-to-coast aircoach, get your reservations early. While you're at it, ask the airline or train clerk about the arrangements they have for a rental auto for you at almost any airport or rail station in the United States.

As usual this summer, however, the ticket for most vacationers will be the gasoline credit card. Eight out of ten vacationing Americans will ride the highways in the family flivver. For them, these few words of advice:

1. Don't plan to go too far in one day. Three hundred miles a day is a comfortable average. Neither driver nor passenger gets much fun out of more mileage than that.

2. Check your brakes and tires and have your car completely serviced before you start. Get it serviced as needed along the way. Check the oil daily.

Planning worries over, this young vacationer is enjoying Sun Valley golfing.

3. Get an early start. Despite all the humorous articles written about this advice, it's still good. Get your driving over early in the evening and start looking for your accommodations for the night.

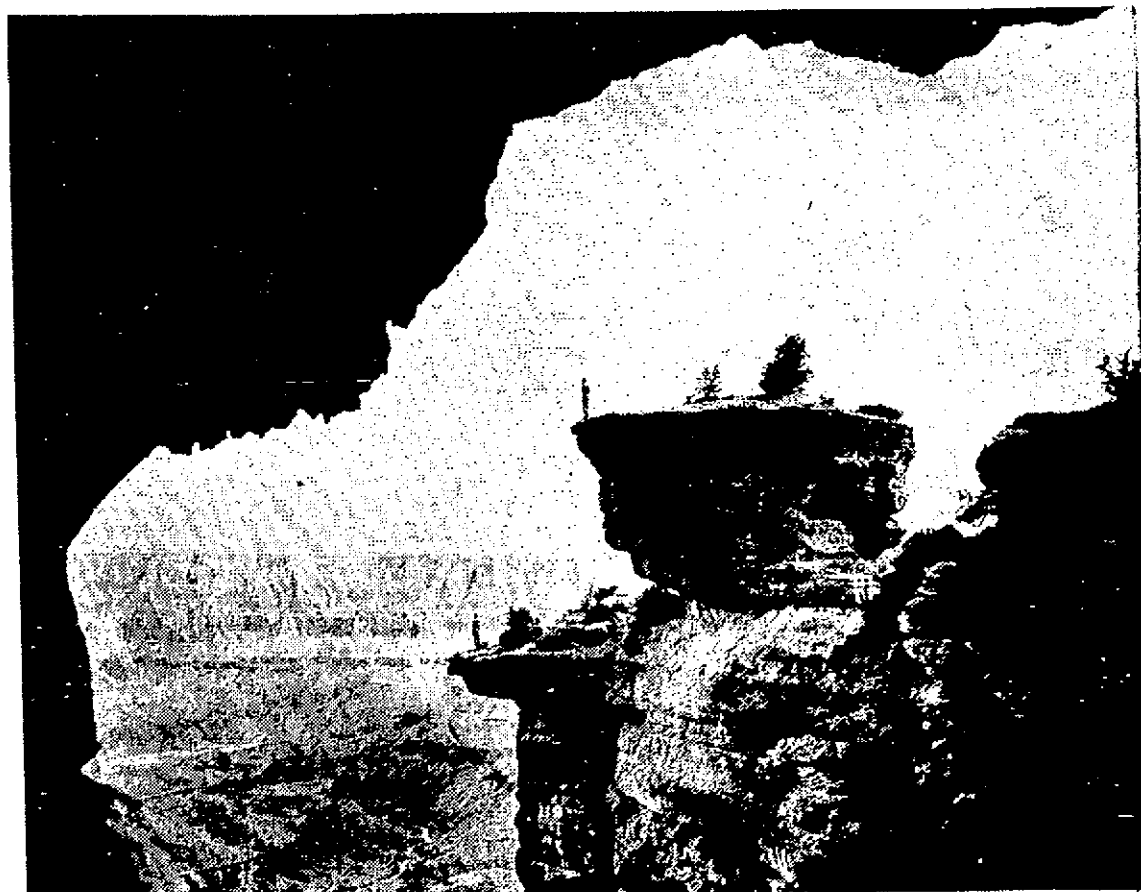

4. "Travel light." Eliminate all unnecessary luggage, and put as much as you can of what you do take in the trunk compartment or the luggage rack so your ride will be comfortable.

5. Make sure your headlights and tail lights are working properly.

6. For safety's sake, let someone else read the maps while you're at the wheel, keep your speed within reason, and give the other driver the benefit of the doubt.

Remember, it's a vacation—not a stock car race or an endurance contest.

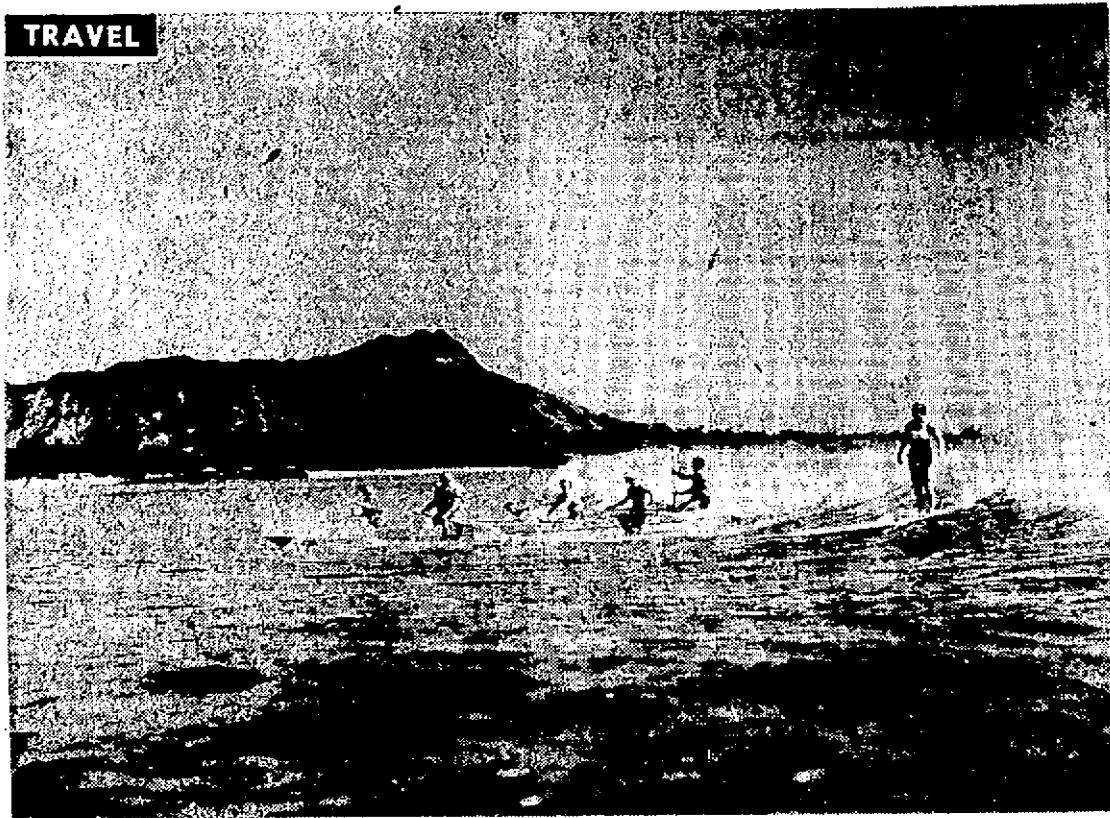

Plan it, then relax and enjoy it.

TRAVEL

Seeing the Pacific must include Hawaii's attractions. Many fine hotels provide top accommodations in islands. Package tours of the Pacific offer air-sea travel.

Call of the Pacific

British roadsters dodge rickshaws, pedicabs in Victoria, Island of Hong Kong.

By Lee Craig

MORE SOUTHLAND residents than ever before are expected this year to respond to the urge to "get away from it all" with a vacation visit to the largest and fastest growing tourist area in the world—the wide Pacific.

In 1952, the whole Pacific area drew 100,000 tourists from all over the world. In 1957, 300,000 Americans alone traveled in the Pacific—almost half as many as those who went to Europe—and they spent approximately $160,000,000.

This year, expanded service by sea and air will enable nearly half a million tourists to travel in the Pacific.

Part of the increase in facilities will come with the formation of a new Pacific ship service from Long Beach involving triangle voyages between here and other coast ports, the Orient and the South Pacific.

LOCAL TRAVELERS will be able to board these and other fast, new passenger liners bound for exotic Pacific islands on schedules designed to fit every vacation plan.

Or, for those who prefer to fly, every week 90 planes take off from West Coast airports, including Los Angeles International, for Pacific places.

There'll be room for everybody out there, too. Pacific hotels offer accommodations for nearly 6,000 more visitors than a year ago and new hotels are under construction everywhere.

For the convenience of travelers, most agencies

offer two new services—the "go now, pay later" plan and the option of flying one way, leisurely voyaging by steam the other way. All travel agents can explain the plans in detail.

JAPAN AND HAWAII presently are most popular tourist meccas.

Hawaii, this year, expects 198,000 visitors—an increase of 20 per cent over 1957. To help house them, there will be nearly 1,000 more hotel rooms added at Waikiki, plus three new hotels under construction at Kona, island of Hawaii.

Busiest time in Hawaii is June through August. Most summertime visitors think of Hawaii in terms of Honolulu and Waikiki, on Oahu. But, since World War II, an increasing number of travelers have been discovering the other islands in the 390-mile chain. Of these, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai are most popular.

The "big" island of Hawaii is best known for its twin volcanoes of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea. The latter rises to 13,784 feet and is, in a sense, the world's highest mountain, since its base is on the ocean floor 18,000 feet below sea level. Four volcanic eruptions have occurred since the end of the war.

Maui's attraction lies in a spectacular but extinct volcanic crater containing a lake and rare plants. There's also a village, Lahaina, once the capital of the Hawaiian kingdom and later a Pacific whaling port.

VISITORS TO KAUAI will be surprised by the "barking sands," which are a mixture of lava and coral particles. When rubbed during the heat of the day, the white sand gives a sound remarkably like that of a barking dog.

Tourist volume in Japan has jumped from 72,000 visitors in 1952 to about 150,000 last year. To aid in their bid for visiting foreigners' nourishing currency, Japanese officials have relaxed entry and exit procedures and have improved monetary regulations.

Other top Pacific attractions include Alaska, Australia, Fiji, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Korea, New Caledonia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Tahiti and Taiwan. Each has its own off-beat appeal.

HOW MUCH do these trips cost? Here are some rough ideas.

Minimum fare from here to Hong Kong is about $340, by passenger liner. Plane fare to Hong Kong, tourist class, is about $200 more. Australia is the farthest point on the South Pacific route, and getting there costs about $320 by ship (seeing Hawaii, Fiji and New Zealand on the way). By plane to Australia is approximately $540.

You need at least a month to see the Pacific properly. Two months is better. Travel agents offer a number of packaged plans for varied routes and methods of travel.

About the most you can see in three weeks without killing yourself by being on the move all the time is on a circle plane tour of the South Pacific or of the Orient, each for about $1,500.

A better, buy is a two-month trip rounding the entire Pacific for about $2,300. Month-long tours usually cost about $2,000.

Japan's famed geisha girls entertain a touring couple over sukiyaki at Hisamatsu Inn, Tokyo. Tourism has increasing attractions in Japan for traveling Americans.

The King's Highway

By Ralph Buffon

ANY TIME OF THE YEAR, for a vacation, motorists will thoroughly enjoy every mile and minute discovering The King's Highway that follows the footsteps of the padres along the California Mission Trails from San Francisco to San Diego.

Across broad fertile valleys, around rugged mountains that kneel down to meet the blue Pacific, the California Mission Trails are America's only naturally air-conditioned highways—truly 600 miles of breath-taking beauty through a vacationer's wonderland of sports, rest and relaxation.

The warm friendly welcome that greeted travelers along the trail of the 21 missions is as genuine today as it was a century and a half ago when the Franciscan fathers established the mission chain.

These missions, founded by Fr. Junipero Serra and his followers, built a day's journey from each other, were developed to educate the native Indians and convert them to Christianity. Then, as now, they stand as a beacon of hospitality in their original sites along the Pacific shore. Originally the missions were connected by a rough trail called El Camino Real, "The King's Highway." Today, however, the California Mission Trails, a system of modern highways, supplements the rough riding and dangerous trails of the padres. Now one may travel leisurely, any time of the year, in cool comfort along this fascinating trail of the historic missions which are nestled in the unsurpassed beauty of California's coastal range.

THE MISSION FATHERS created their own architecture in building the missions, using materials and rough skills available—handmade adobe bricks that take on pastel hues in the quiet hours of early day, or in the fading light of day when the angelus is rung. Tiled roofs, domed towers, thick walls with tiny window openings, create a peaceful setting among the whispering tropical palm trees of Southern California, the wind-swept pines of Monterey, and the lovely lacy eucalyptus trees of Northern California.

The first mission was founded by Father Serra in a sheltered valley near the harbor of San Diego, and was named "San Diego de Alcalá" for St. James of Alcalá. The city of San Diego, with a climate so temperate it always seems like June in January, is an exciting hub of industry and activity. Home of the San Diego Naval Station and one of the largest airplane manufacturing centers in the world, San Diego is a happy combination of an historic past and a bustling present that is fun and exciting to visit.

Just south of San Diego is the famous lighthouse on Point Loma, built in 1851, and the Cabrillo National Monument, named for Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the Portuguese navigator who discovered California in 1542. Just north of San Diego is La Jolla (pronounced Lah-hoy-uh), a city of lovely homes and resorts, overlooking a jagged coastline where the pounding surf has cut huge caves in the ocean cliffs.

UP THE MISSION TRAIL is Laguna Beach, famed art colony and loved for its atmosphere and shops, inns and eating places.

Near Laguna is Mission San Juan Capistrano, famed for the legend of the swallows, and founded in 1776.

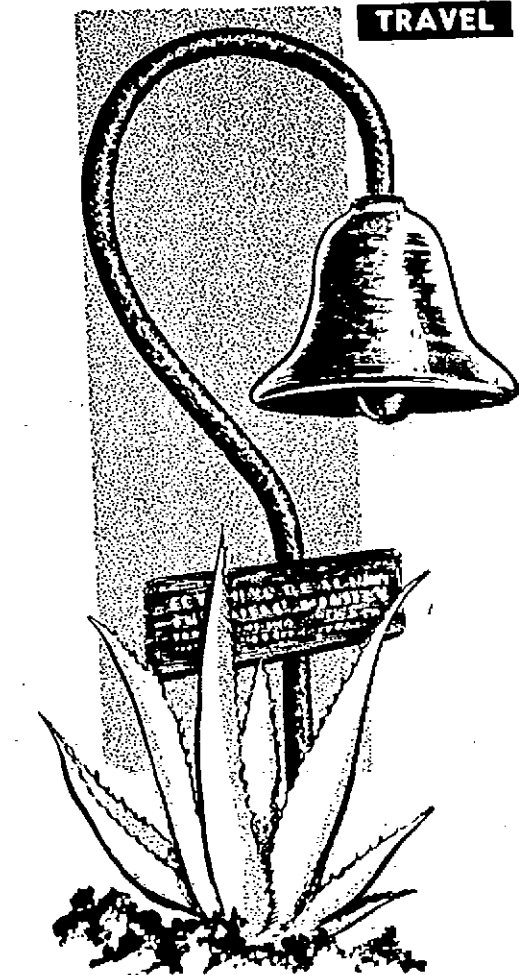

Los Angeles, Long Beach, Santa Monica and Malibu are among the next towns. The first oranges in California were grown in the orchards of San Gabriel Mission, just east of Los Angeles. Architecturally, San Gabriel is one of the most distinctive missions with its identifying photogenic companion (bell tower).

Mission Santa Barbara, at Santa Barbara, 100 miles north of Los Angeles, often called "Queen of the Missions," is beautiful, imposing. Services have been conducted continuously here since its founding in 1786 by the Franciscan Fathers.

On north through historic Gaviota Pass is Mission Santa Ines and the picturesque little Danish village of Solvang.

JUST NORTH OF PISMO BEACH (known for claims as well as scenery), is San Luis Obispo, site of Mission San Luis Obispo, and a bit east and inland from Paso Robles, almond-growing center of the world, is San Miguel Mission, dating from 1797. This mission contains original wall paintings and designs created by Indian neophytes during early mission days.

Continuing on the Mission Trails, motorists pass through the fertile Salinas Valley to the Monterey Peninsula where Carmel-by-the-Sea, picturesque as its name, lies in its rustic setting within the tree-studded hills. Carmel's art colony proudly boasts finest names in art, music and literature, and its shops display the creations of local craftsmen that many tourists take home to become the heirlooms of tomorrow. Here, too, is peaceful Carmel Mission, where Father Serra, founder of the mission chain, is buried.

Between Carmel and Monterey is "17-Mile Drive"—17 miles of spectacular beauty. Midway point on the drive, with its famous cypress, is probably the most photographed spot on the Pacific Coast. Nearby is famed Pebble Beach golf course, Bing Crosby's favorite links which he shares with his friends and Bob Hope.

AT THE EDGE of 17-Mile Drive is Pacific Grove, where each fall come hundreds of thousands of huge Monarch butterflies to nest in a grove of pine trees. This migration, as regular as clockwork, is considered by naturalists one of the strangest phenomena known to this science, and draws thousands of visitors to Pacific Grove each year.

Quaint Monterey rests peacefully on the shores of the half-moon Monterey Bay. The seat of the government during the Spanish and Mexican rule in California, many of the century-old buildings still stand in Monterey. The customs house dates from 1814.

San Diego de Alcalá was the first mission to be founded in California by Fr. Serra. Tiled roofs, domed towers, thick walls—all are in keeping with the Mission styling.

'Broadway in the Sagebrush'

SO YOU are going to Las Vegas!

How will you get there!

What will it cost?

What will you see and do?

It's 300 miles, east of Long Beach. Drive east on Carson St., and stay on Highway 91 which takes you straight to Las Vegas 6½ hours driving time. The route takes you through Riverside, San Bernardino, Barstow, Yermo and Baker.

The Union Pacific has four trains a day into Las Vegas. Buses leave from 144 Pine Ave. to take passengers to the East Los Angeles station. Free buffet meals are served on the streamliner City of Las Vegas.

Greyhound makes nine bus trips each day into Las Vegas. Long Beach passengers catch the bus at the local station, 226 E. 1st St. and transfer at the Los Angeles terminal. Two buses each day are expresses, with the first stop at Barstow and the next at the Las Vegas Strip. They make the trip in six hours. The other buses, which are transcontinental with frequent stops, take eight hours.

Western Air normally has 8 flights daily into Las Vegas, and United and TWA each have three daily. Limousines may be caught at the Wilton Hotel.

And do you know about the "package deal" Las Vegas tours out of the Long Beach Municipal Airport? A DC-3 leaves daily at 5:30 p.m. and returns at 4 a.m. (in time to get a little shut-eye before getting to work.) DC-4s are expected to be added this summer. Three "package deals" are available—the evening tour, "overnighter" and "weekender." The evening tour includes round-trip transportation, buffet supper and show at one of the "strip" hotels; the "overnighter" adds a room, bottle of champagne, $5 in chips, two free rounds of golf including clubs and four chances to win $5,000 by making a hole-in-one on the golf course. The "weekender" of course is for two nights, instead of one, plus all the other attractions.

All right, now what does it cost? Transportation can be de luxe or economical, and so can a stay in Las Vegas. The average cost of a double room at the Desert Inn, for instance, is $8 to $17. Desert Inn management figures that $10 per day per person is a generous sum for meals. Figuring an average room at $12 a day, two days would be $24 and food would be a total of $40 or a grand total of $64 for three days (two nights).

These are the costs if one does not gamble.

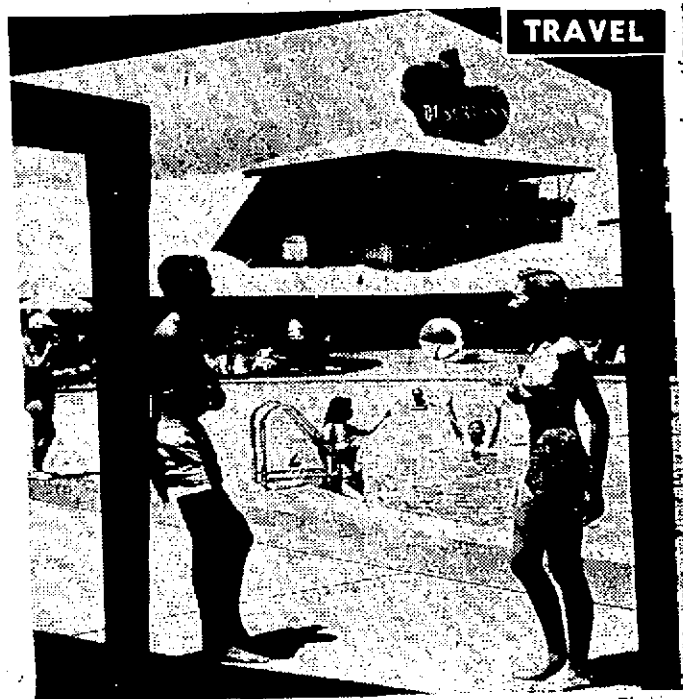

What is there to see in Las Vegas which in a handful of years has grown from a small town to a resort city whose principal occupation is playing host to vacationists?

Along its five-mile hotel "Strip," a virtual "Broadway in the sagebrush," guests in formal clothes or cowboy regalia dance to name bands, see top flight floor shows, swim, ride, play roulette and rub elbows with film stars.

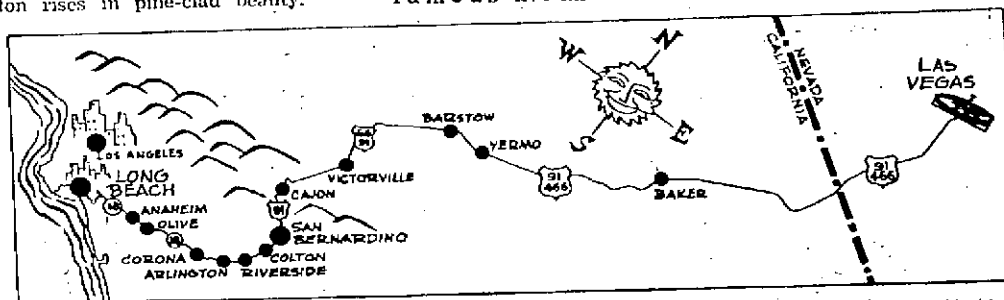

Radiating from town in every direction are scenery, sports and fun for the whole family. Lake Mead is a yachtsman's paradise with miles of water for cruising. Black bass answer the lure of the fisherman and the season never is closed. Rainbow trout in the Colorado River below make for an entirely different type of sport fishing. Hoover Dam, the combined utility and sightseeing wonder which divides the lake and the river, draws more than two million visitors west.

To the west, Mount Charleston rises in pine-clad beauty.

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

All Play and No Work

IN THE HIGH desert of Southern California is a vacationer's paradise, Apple Valley, where no work and all play add up to real summer enjoyment. The average mean summer temperature is just 73 degrees. Here is the home of the world-famous Apple Valley Inn, with excellent accommodations, celebrated cuisine, golfing, swimming, riding through picturesque desert trails and trout fishing in both streams and lakes.

Just two hours from Long Beach, Apple Valley is the center of desert activities all year long. Guests at the inn may see a movie or television company on "location." Twice a week there's real outdoor Western steak fry followed by campfire entertainment, while every night there's dancing and entertainment for vacationers.

Apple Valley is easy to reach, too. It's just five miles south of U. S. Hwy. 66 on California Hwy. 18. Two railroad lines travel through Victorville where the inn station wagons meet guests on notice, and Bonanza Air Lines has two scheduled flights daily to Apple Valley from Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

You Name It--Mexico Has It!

Bamerette Terrace, Hotel Bamer, offers Mexico City's skyline and good food as its lure for tourist trade.

By Carol Miller

DESCRIBING Mexico in a few words is always a challenge. Our neighbor to the south, so near, so accessible, and yet so foreign, encompasses a gamut of sights, climates, and activities.

Mexico's climate varies according to altitude. The coastal lands are humid and tropical. Plateau country is brisk, as a rule, but warm at high noon. The high lands, in the mountains, are cold, and Mexico claims several perpetually snow-capped peaks, many of them within easy view of banana palms, coffee bushes, and tropical blossoms. Contrast is Mexico's middle name.

Mexico may now be reached by several good highways. "All roads lead to Mexico"—Mexico City, that is... from Nogales, Ariz., El Paso, Tex., Laredo, Tex., McAllen, Tex., and Brownsville, Tex. Highways have been recently renovated, and in some cases, as in the brand new superhighway connecting Saltillo with Queretaro, constructed from scratch to eliminate previous bad stretches of road. On all highways service stations and food facilities are sufficient. But always be on guard for cattle, which roam unfenced on the open ranges of Northern Mexico.

STEAMSHIP SERVICE has been resumed since World War II, and now travelers may enter Mexico through Acapulco, Veracruz, or any other port at which special arrangements can be made for a stop.

First class pullman buses enter Mexico at all points, and like the Mexican National Railway, connect with corresponding lines at border entries.

Air service has increased due to many bilateral agreements in the past six months. Western Air Lines, Mexicana de Aviacion and Aeronaves de Mexico enter Mexico City from the West Coast area.

Mexico City is the heart of the country in every way, as Rome was its empire in other days. A traveler making headquarters in Mexico City finds it easy to take side trips in a rented car or through a planned tour at one of the many reliable travel agencies; or, if he's adventurous, entirely on his own. Mexico City boasts ten hotels in the first class category. The highly fashionable, fine service, and an excellent location in the heart of the smartest shopping district in the Republic. There are other fine hotels also: Reforma International, Continental Hilton, Alfier, Del Prado, Plaza Vista Hermosa, the perennially popular Geneva, the intimate and modest Prince, and the soon-to-be-opened, super-duper luxurious El Presidente.

OF RESTAURANTS, Mexico has many, of all types, and all styles. Elegance, superior food, and the unexpected are the only things you can be sure of. Food, by the way, is not hot. The heat comes in a small jar of sauce supplied upon request and added at the discretion of the consumer.

Mexico is a shoppers' paradise. Smart shops, quaint shops, shops featuring the best of native popular crafts, or the ultimate in chic. The best buys: hand loomed fabrics and native woolsens, metal work, especially silver, pottery, basketry, hand carved wooden articles such as furniture (if you're driving and have room), perfumes, tequila, and the delightful native coffee liqueur called Kahlua. Be sure to check the individual customs regulations of your state before trying to enter the United States with liquor or tobacco.

Of pastimes Mexico has an abundance also: whirlwind night

life ranging from one of this hemisphere's most glamorous night clubs, The Jacaranda, to the total negation of glamour in tiny, back street cantinas where mariachis stay till dawn appears. Between the two extremes, and including them, is a wide range of thoroughly enjoyable and completely unforgettable diversion.

SPORTS are offered in variety: Spectacular bullfights, thrilling rodeos and "jaripeos," horse races in the most beautiful race track, according to a consensus of opinion, in this hemisphere; jai-alai, cock fights, soccer, ice hockey, and of course "beisbol" and "futbol Americano."

THE BANFF ROUTE

By John Ronson

SOME TOURISTS seem to enjoy risking the chance of becoming bear bait. They are injured often, too, in spite of warnings prohibiting the feeding of bears in national parks. Such an incident was photographed in Yellowstone when what was supposed to be a cute teddy-bear picture resulted in a near-tragedy last summer.

A brown bear eagerly ambled toward a young man who was tossing crackers. The youth held a cracker in his right hand toward the bear. In his left hand he kept a supply from which he selected one at a time to offer Bruin. Tourists stopped to watch in fascination or got out to take pictures. But the half-grown bear became nervous, probably feeling himself surrounded. He had spied the crackers in the youth's left hand and suddenly lunged for them. As the bear retreated to the woods, the young man viewed with horror his bloody, scratched hand. A sobered bunch of drivers took off.

BEARS ALONG the roads cause frequent traffic jams in national parks, especially Yellowstone. After we sighted a pair of cubs wrestling in a pine tree, a block long line of cars soon lined up in both directions with ours. Cubs learn to sit up and beg by waving their arms and seem harmless if you forget that their mothers are watching. A bear victim who was hospitalized in Yellowstone last year was watching black bear cubs when the mother bear approached from another direction, reached in the car and bit her. This lady was confined overnight after wounds in her upper arm were repaired. Many reports to Yellowstone rangers simply state that "the bear put its head in the car window and bit me," according to the report on Yellowstone Bears for 1957 by the superintendent, Lomuel O. Garrison, issued in Feb. '58.

TRAVEL

Warnings by rangers and naturalists through talks, literature, posters, signs and personal advice, inform visitors that it is contrary to regulations to feed, molest or tease animals in the parks. "Yet, there are those careless, thoughtless, intrepid or foolhardy ones among tourists who insist on becoming too familiar with bears," Garrison says. Because of such actions four persons were arrested last summer and numerous others were stopped and warned of the danger. Twenty of the 91 casualties in Yellowstone during 1957 involved feeding bears, in 11 cases nearby persons were feeding the bears. Only seven attacks were considered unprovoked.

"DANGEROUS" is the title of a leaflet given every visitor entering the park by National Park Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior. It pictures a black bear in a menacing attitude with teeth bared and claws outstretched. This leaflet explains that park bears and other animals are wild and that bears cause many injuries to visitors. Travelers are instructed to pull off the road and stay in their cars while watching bears. "In Yosemite, bears continue to be one of the biggest attractions but at the same time, one of the biggest wildlife management problems we have in the park," according to Delmer M. Armstrong, park biologist.

"Today, most personal injuries are received by visitors who are feeding or molesting the bears," Armstrong says, "and property damage occurs when food is left in cars, camps and other places where it is necessary for the animal to break in to get it."

Careless campers are the ones who are bothered. The answer is to keep a clean camp and a minimum of odorous foods. An accumulation of garbage is a direct invitation and any food container which emits an odor is a natural target for bears. Other utensils left near will suffer by contact and bears may cause considerable damage getting to food stored in a tent. If possible, suspend food between two trees out of a bear's reach. Surplus food should be sealed in clean wrapping material or in air-tight containers and kept as cool as possible. Leftover food containers, including tin cans, should be burned along with all garbage in back-country camps where there are no rubbish collections by the park service.

IN YELLOWSTONE last year bears were responsible for 123 incidents of damage to property, 102 of which were visitor cases.

Drastic action is required occasionally to avoid further injury to people and damage to property. Therefore, 23 culprits definitely identified in Yellowstone during 1957 were disposed of. In each of these cases, the rangers prepared a full indictment, listing the bears' crimes and unsuccessful attempts to reform them. Only then did the superintendent reluctantly sign the death warrants.

IN AN ATTEMPT to eliminate or at least reduce the number of bear injuries at Yellowstone, park authorities have called upon the 1957 victims for their suggestions. Letters were sent to each of the 91 persons hurt and a few replies received. In each of these the park was absolved of any blame, one victim admitting "it was my own fault."

These persons found out from experience that it is bad to bait the bears, and worse to become bear bait.

Last to be founded and also northernmost of California missions is San Francisco de Solano at Sonoma.

The King's Highway

(Continued from Page 9.) Bay is an exciting playground with fishing, swimming, and of particular interest to the young-in-heart, is the amusement pier with its rides and games, cotton candy and hot dogs, and never-ending excitement.

NORTH OF SANTA CRUZ in the San Lorenzo Valley is the Henry Cowell Redwood State Park, where stands the southernmost grove of giant redwood trees. These huge trees, old when Christ was born, stand as a living monument to the past, preserved for present and future citizens of California.

Inland on a broad highway, over rolling wooded hills, the bountiful Santa Clara Valley is first seen. In the valley is Mission Santa Clara, now a part of the campus of the University of Santa Clara.

From San Jose, commercial and industrial center of Santa Clara County, the Mission Trail leads up the San Francisco Peninsula through the residential communities of Palo Alto (home of Stanford University), San Mateo and Burlingame, boasting some of America's finest restaurants.

And finally, fabulous, exciting San Francisco. Father Francisco Palou, one of Serra's trusted assistants, founded the mission there in 1776, and named it after St. Francis. Probably this origin of the name prompts most San Franciscans to admonish visitors not to call their beloved city "Frisco." After all, a patron saint should not be nicknamed.

SAN FRANCISCO is one of America's truly great cities—a visitors' paradise. Chinatown, Fisherman's Wharf, exquisite Golden Gate Park, the wobbling cable cars scooting up and down San Francisco's hills, are all part of the Golden Gate symphony.

A trip along California Mission Trails is a pleasant page for any memory book. Plan to take as much time and see as much as possible. Relax, enjoy it—watch the Pacific surf booming on sandy beaches—walk among the giant redwoods—dig a Pismo clam—attend one of the many fiestas—see a rodeo—go deepsea fishing.

The spirit of hospitality and friendliness has been a tradition along California's Mission Trail since the days of the Dons, whose gracious words of welcome were, "Our house is yours." Today, with these same words, the modern day citizens of the Mission Trails communities invites holiday travelers to share with them the romance, beauty and fun of this enchanted land.

'Skunk' Train

By Bettie Payne Welles

Willets to Fort Bragg over 40 miles of twisting rails is the run of the "Skunk," a novel bit of railroading.

TRAVELERS along U. S. Highway 101 this summer will not want to miss a trip on the little "Skunk," as the California Western Railroad calls its diesel-powered motor cars. The road offers one of the nation's crookedest and most scenic railway excursions. It connects Willets with Fort Bragg on the Pacific Coast. The little "Skunk" with its 40 miles of track snakes over mountains, through vast redwood forests, over 44 bridges and trestles, through two long tunnels, up steep grades and down inclines, over the meandering Noyo River before it reaches its destination. From the car windows, passengers see nature lovers on hikes through the woods, fishermen by clearwater streams casting leisurely for trout, campers enjoying tent life, and families of ranchers and loggers who sit on the porches of their homes and wave as the "Skunk" passes.

an unforgettable panorama of wild life in its native habitat, thickets of wild berries, and clear running streams.

SOME VACATIONERS may want to linger in this wilderness for a while. A camping permit may be obtained by making an application to authorities at Fort Bragg. Since the railroad follows the course of the Noyo River, almost any spot along its banks is accessible, and supplies and daily mail are delivered almost to the camper's door. For those who do not enjoy getting too close to the rugged side of nature, there are lodges and cottages, places "to rough it" with more ease and comfort.

Boy Scouts of Sonoma and Mendocino districts have a summer camp at Camp Silverado. A Catholic Youth group has a camp at St. Albert, and a San Francisco Boys Club uses Camp Marwedel.

In Fort Bragg, there is a two-hour wait between "trains." This is a good time to get acquainted with fellow passengers and is also a good time to do a little exploring of the business district. Since Fort Bragg is famous for its deep sea fishing it has restaurants that serve good fish dinners.

Vacationers near Willets or Fort Bragg will enjoy a ride on the little "Skunk" with its 40 miles of some of the "crookedest track in the world!"

Paris is still most popular tourist magnet in Europe. Some 400,000 Americans will visit there during 1958.

TRAVEL

Europe, Here We Come

BARRING a war scare, more than 1,500,000 Americans — many of them from the Southland — will pack their bags and sally forth this year on what is expected to be the biggest overseas travel spree in history.

So far, at least, the current economic droop has failed to put a damper on the outlook for a banner year. Travel agents say the way reservations are pouring in, berths on steamships and seats on trans-Atlantic planes will be scarce if not actually sold out by the mid-summer peak in June and July.

Why the boom?

ASIDE FROM the impetus stemming from "go now-pay later" plans, chairman Luis A. Bolin of the European Travel Commission gives three reasons for the heralded surge of Americans to Europe this summer:

1. The Brussels World Fair — "A terrific magnet," he says, which is expected to draw 25 million visitors to the Belgian capital.

2. The centennial celebration at Lourdes, France. Tens of thousands of Americans have signed up for pilgrimages to the famous shrine.

3. Introduction of new economy class transatlantic air travel — providing round-trip passage for about the same price as one way de luxe. Airlines predict the economy feature will attract an additional 200,000 passengers on flights to Europe this year.

Hitting the overseas trail in unprecedented numbers, Americans will scatter roughly two billion dollars around the world, incidentally providing the raw material for Europe's biggest single dollar-earning industry. And they'll bring home millions of dollars worth of souvenirs ranging from potted Scottish haggis to Turkish tarbooshes.

NEARLY HALF of the American tourist crop will descend on western Europe.

Bolin, whose European Travel Commission represents the official travel bureaus of 21 countries, predicts 675,000 U.S.

citizens — a peacetime record — will swarm across Europe. Aliens residing in the United States will swell the Europe-bound total from this country to 900,000.

More than 400,000 Americans will visit Paris, still the No. 1 tourist mecca. About 270,000 will visit London, 250,000 Rome and 200,000 Madrid.

The U. S. Commerce Department, which keeps tabs on such things, says American travelers last year spent an average $1,565 for a European trip, including $660 for fare and $905 for food, lodging, souvenirs, etc. Average expenses were $16.45 per day.

THIS YEAR they'll spend a little more. Travel fares have remained about the same as they were at the end of World War II, but prices in foreign countries have risen just as they have in the United States. Federal passport authorities urge would-be travelers to apply for their passports at least four weeks ahead of departure date. And not to forget proof of having been successfully vaccinated against smallpox within the last three years to re-enter the United States.

U. S. tourists don't need passports to travel to Canada, Mexico, Caribbean Islands, Central America, and most South American countries. Americans going to those places, however, should take along a birth or baptismal certificate, driver's license or other documentary evidence of their U. S. citizenship and identity.

At present the State Department does not issue passports for travel to Albania, Bulgaria, Communist China, Communist North Korea, Hungary (except in special circumstances) or Communist-controlled Viet Nam.

But you may travel to Russia, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Poland and Rumania if you can get a visa from those Soviet bloc countries. A visa to Russia costs only $1.25.

'Jumpin' Jiminy' Rainbows

Leaping and fighting the hook, a 2-pound rainbow gives the angler a thrill on British Columbia's Nimpo Lake, where such sights are common occurrence.

Two limits for the author and his wife, Lenora. And this time biggest fish honors were taken by his wife.

By Donnell Culpepper

NIMPO LAKE in western British Columbia provides a sight that probably no other lake in North America can equal—beautiful rainbow trout that leap three to six feet out of the water.

They leap for no apparent reason at any time of the day in spring, summer and fall. There's no way to count the fish because of the vastness of Nimpo's surface, but it's easy to see that hundreds sometimes are in the air at one time.

We stood on the dock at Duncan's Resort the first afternoon and watched the sight. There was only one exclamation to describe it: "Jumpin' Jiminy!"

THERE IS, of course, an explanation for the rainbow aerial circus at Nimpo. Biologically speaking, the rainbow is trying to escape from Lernaea, an almost invisible copepod crustacean, which, for reasons known only to the Lernaea, just loves to ride on a rainbow's tail.

Now if you wish to reduce Lernaea to the vernacular, just call it a sea louse, the same kind that infest salmon in the ocean and on their runs upstream to fresh-water spawning grounds.

Don't be alarmed by Lernaea. The crustaceans do no harm to the fish's flesh.

By our own human standard of comparison, let's put it this way:

Nimpo is one of three lakes—the others are Little Anahim and Big Anahim—which are formed by the Dean River on the Chilcotin Plateau. The Dean meanders rather slowly across that plateau, but later drops precipitously down toward the Pacific. So steeply, in fact, that there is no chance for ocean-run salmon and steelhead to leap its great falls and reach the plateau region. For that reason, the fish in the Dean and its lakes are strictly rainbow trout, possibly the most beautifully colored rainbows in this hemisphere.

NIMPO IS the most popular of the three lakes which lie close to each other along the Dean. Certainly, it is one of the biggest trout producers in British Columbia. All of the Dean River, above and below the three lakes, is tremendously productive in trout, so much so, in fact, that the B. C. Fish and Game Commission has made many studies of the stream to find out why it continues to yield such great trout catches although other waters may decline in productivity.

The one conclusion is that the Dean has so much plant life, important in supplying oxygen and food for the trout.

In one respect, there is a wide variance of opinion of fish and game authorities in B. C. and in California. B. C. ichthyologists encourage the dumping of fish entrails and tailings into the Dean to provide fertilizing properties for plant life. Do the same in Southern California and you'll end up just short of the gray walls of San Quentin.

NIMPO AND DEAN RIVER rainbows range from 1½ to 5 pounds. A few in the 6-to-8-pound classification have been taken.

Fishing is no problem even to the amateur in that country. Nimpo is a natural lake for trolling and most spinners and lures that are successful elsewhere work just as well in Nimpo. At times, Nimpo affords excellent fly fishing at its inlet and in some of the coves. Strangely enough, trolling in the center of the lake is more productive than along the shores. The reason is that the Dean River channel goes right down the center.

It's a slightly different story on the Dean between Nimpo and Anahim. Fly fishermen have a field day along the shores of the Dean. Spinning produces results equally as good. A limit of 12 fish is no chore within an hour or two. Actually you can pick your fish, releasing the smaller ones and keeping those just right for the skillet and for smoking.

Cecil and Marjorie Duncan operate Duncan's Resort, one of three camps on Nimpo. The Duncans originally were in business in Bellingham, Wash., and spent their summers touring B. C. searching for ideal fishing locations.

When they finally tried Nimpo, they returned to Bellingham, sold their business and went back to build a modern, (Continued on Page 27.)

Highway of Death

By Betty Hardesty

OFTEN splattered with human blood, the road from Tucson, Ariz., to Nogales, Mexico, is called El Camino de Muerta. This ominous name, The Death Highway, is appropriate in early days because of raids and massacres by blood-thirsty Apache Indians, is commonly used by Mexican and Arizona newspapers in reporting deaths on this heavily traveled section of U. S. Hwy. 89.

Being the best route between Nogales and Tucson, the 60 miles is used by U. S. servicemen from bases near Tucson and university students seeking diversion and bottled goods in the closest Mexican town. Many Nogales residents go to Tucson for shopping and amusement while tourists in southern Arizona journey along this route to see places of historical interest.

HEADING SOUTH, the good concrete highway passes between irrigated fields of cotton, then follows the valley of the Gila River. Dude ranch buildings and cattle ranches nestle beside still waters of man-made ponds. The terrain is hilly, desolate, dry and covered with desert plants except at cultivated spots. The good pavement invites speed but drivers are cautioned by the sight of numerous white wooden crosses which mark some locations of fatal auto accidents. We stopped counting at 102.

Along one stretch, the road takes on an old world character because of many wayside shrines built by Catholics of Mexican ancestry. There seem to be more here than along roads in Mexico, itself. The shrines are built of local rock made into arched, shell-shaped grottos about 6 by 6 feet. Each contains a figure of the Virgin Mary, placed upon a pedestal of stones. Colored candles and artificial flowers in profusion tell of worshipers devotion to Christianity which they learned from the Franciscan Fathers and Jesuit priests who established missions along this route.

One mission in use today is at Tubac, a tiny settlement where porches of adobe houses are hung with bright strings of red chili peppers. Tubac is unique as the site of an early American mining center which was a self-governed post on the territory's lawless frontier. The Mormons who settled here in 1852 issued their own paper money, boletas, redeemable in silver, and published the first American newspaper in Arizona. Claimed first by Spain in 1737, Tubac was garrisoned in 1752 for the purpose of protecting the church missions but the terrors of Apache raids brought about its abandonment about 1863.

APACHE raids, also, caused abandonment of Tumacacori Mission in 1848 when the devout Indians of Pima and Comanche tribes left, carrying the church furnishing to San Xavier Mission near Tucson. Now protected as a national monument, Tumacacori is located 48 miles south of Tucson.

In addition to preserving the church, the park service has built a museum which houses exhibits on early Indian and Spanish history, all colorfully arranged.

Built in the late 1800s, the mission of San Jose de Tumacacori was a northern outpost of the Sonora mission chain begun by Jesuit missionaries. The present church was in use by 1822 but its glory was short-lived. Mexico won its independence from Spain, and the Spanish soldiers departed.

TODAY, FARTHER down the highway, motorists may turn into a dirt road leading to Bill Kitchen's dusty old ranch, the first cattle ranch of the region. Nogales is the next stop. There, twin border towns are divided by a 25-foot wire fence. Mexican officials in profusion escort one through. Nogales, Mexico, is a clean little city, the near portion being the main business district filled with brightly painted shops for tourists.

Returning to Tucson, a motorist's attention is caught and held again by small crosses and wayside shrines along the Highway of Death. He concentrates on the hazards of driving and is glad that Apaches no longer make war on El Camino de Muerta.

"Who says women aren't practical about vacation travel?"

My wife loves to travel in style. A trip is a big event for her and she likes to make the most of it.

When she suggested taking the Domeliner "CITY OF LOS ANGELES" on our vacation this year, her eyes fairly sparkled over actually dining in the famous Dome Diner, and living it up in the luxurious Dome Lounge.

But, reluctantly, I mentioned our "budget."

That's when I discovered how really practical my wife can be!

She pointed out that with the Family Fares she'd be going round-trip for just the one-way fare. So would Judy, 13. Bill, who's 7, would go for only half the one-way fare. (And, incidentally, youngsters under 5 ride free!)

What's more, we'd have no baggage problems, no highway hazards, no driving strain, no where-to-eat-and-sleep problems.

Yessiree... mighty practical woman, my wife!

IT'S MIGHTY PRACTICAL TO "SHIP UNION PACIFIC," TOO... for the finest in modern freight service, including Union Pacific's new 24-hour faster freight service to the West Coast from the East and Midwest!

Plane Travel Rides High

By Stella George

NOT LONG AGO a woman made 11 long-distance calls to friends on a flight between Milwaukee and New York! Fantastic as it may sound, air-to-ground telephone service is now a reality, and this is just one of the many innovations which air lines are perfecting for the comfort and pleasure of their passengers. With a "nothing is too good for our customers" policy, air line companies have tried and succeeded in making this type of travel not only luxurious but economical.

Many average families find that 10 days to two weeks constitutes the total time for their summer vacation. Visiting friends across the country or even making a trip to Europe is not out of the question with the superb and well-planned flights now available. The trip itself becomes an important part of the vacation when it is not long and tedious. As a special help for those who are unfamiliar with air line travel the companies have informative booklets and brochures answering every possible type of question. For example, one company has a booklet with such fascinating chapter headings as "What You Should Know About Luggage and Travel Accessories," "Specifically for Her," "Specifically for Him," "Specifically for Little Ones," "On Packing," "Purchases Made Abroad," and so on, all of which go into complete detail designed to help the prospective traveler.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE the mistaken idea that air travel is a luxury to be enjoyed by those who are well-to-do. This is not the case. While menus which include the finest, most expensive wines and costly entrees are available, simple fare is also attainable and popular. In short, there is a type of flight to suit every purse. However, since flying itself is an adventure, every effort is made to make each moment thoroughly enjoyable whether one is eating, resting or merely enjoying beautiful scenery down below.

Delicious meals are part of the service of today's air travel. Patrons of air lines are truly "riding high."

Something new and interesting is always happening with airline service. For example, one air terminal recently installed the first television system to enable passengers and airline personnel to watch flight schedules from numerous vantage points. The receivers are spotted strategically around the airport premises and are linked by closed circuit to the firm's operations offices where a camera is focused on a master flight board. As changes are made they are noted on the board and immediately are visible on all television screens.

Airline menus are famous throughout the world, but here again something new is always taking place. Expert chefs see to it that sumptuous menus (whether bedtime snacks, full-course dinners, or fancy breakfasts) are served, and even the most fastidious diners are usually delighted with the food.

PHYSICAL COMFORT is given major consideration on both long and short flights. New planes are built with a view to catering to the customer's every whim and fancy. One such plane features extra wide seats with individual lamps; sound-proofing materials throughout the passenger compartment; slit-type night lights; full-length berths; and, of course, smiling, attractive stewardesses.

With all their conveniences and luxuries, airline companies do keep the average family's pocketbook and budget in mind. One company offers many ways to travel value, such as a time pay plan, family fares, tourist flights, thrift season travel and other budget-wise ideas. Whether it's destination New York or Rome, Catalina or Seattle, there is a flight service scheduled to meet every demand.

When a modern air liner takes off, every consideration has been given to the comfort of passengers, every effort is devoted to making trip happy.

AUSTRALIA'S ROUND-THE-WORLD AIRLINE

Falls With a Ribald Past

By Nell Parks

SEEING Niagara Falls today in all its turbulent scenic beauty makes it difficult to believe that for 70 years the resort had a lure of a far different nature.

As far back as 1817 tourists visited the falls and by 1825, when the U. S. border had barely reached the Mississippi and Indians scoured the midwest, people were flocking by the thousands via land, the rivers and canals. They used the transportation of the era: oxcart, horseback, buggy, schooner, flatboat and other watercraft and bicycle.

The escarpments on both the Canadian and U. S. sides were controlled by a group of businessmen and showmen who were for the most part unsavory in morals and methods. The stretch between what we know now as Oakes Gardens and Table Rock was called "the Front." Hotels were fabulous, their attractions bawled out by ribald hucksters. Their "take" was supplemented by bazaars, curio shops, museums, tattoo artists and lewd shows. Niagara was the place to go and a strange assortment of patrons was attracted.

IN OLD HOTEL registers, there is proof that Southern gentry visited the falls before the Civil War, arriving en masse with their servants. Abraham Lincoln's name was written in the register of the Cataract House, which stood for more than 100 years, then burned.

Cabbies waylaid tourists before they could reach the escarpment, luring them to whatever hotel or establishment would kick back a percentage. In contrast to thrill seekers

Costly Practice

The coddling of tree insects can be very expensive to home owners having valuable shade trees on their properties, warns the National Arborist Assn. To be on the safe side, an annual inspection of your trees by an arborist or tree expert company is advisable, it is stated. Insects are coddled when they have free rein to multiply and destroy the trees.

Here's a typical case: a home owner coddled the insects by ignoring them. The result was four 50-year-old beautiful shade trees destroyed. Estimated loss $2,000 plus $100 for removal of the stumps and debris.

Inspection and spraying by a tree company would have cost about $50.

Travel in Comfort

When you travel, travel in style and comfort. Leave your small handbag at home and treat yourself to a great big handbag, one large enough to hold paperback book, plane ticket, passport, cosmetics, wallet and odds and ends with ease.

who came to see the exhibitionists who threw themselves into the rapids, walked tightrope across the gorge or sailed watercraft to destruction, and in a class by themselves, were the honeymooners, whose international tradition has persisted over many generations.

ONE WIDELY ADVERTISED "come on" was the pirate ship Michigan which sailed with a load of frantic animals into the falls.

The Travel Agent Can Help You

GOING on a trip? Baffled about tickets, what to see, rate of exchange, what to wear, how much to tip?

How about an authorized travel agency?

In Long Beach and its immediate vicinity are authorized travel agencies, ready to help you whether you plan a quick business trip or a long, luxurious vacation. And not only is the service free, but a good travel agent actually saves you money.

AUTHORIZED agencies can obtain plane, steamship, train, bus tickets and hotel reservations for you—and they will cost you no more than if you bought them at the airport, the station, the hotel.

As a matter of fact, many times travel agencies can obtain tickets for you when you cannot get them directly from airlines, railways, steamship lines.

A good travel agency can line you up, too, for regular tours or excursions, or tours "tailor-made" for you so that you may go to exactly the places you want and see exactly the things you want to see.

THIS DOES NOT END the service of a travel agency. It supplies you with maps, folders of the places where you are going so that you feel at home when you get there. It advises you about what clothes to wear and what to take—women, especially, are inclined to take things that they never use and thereby add to the burden of extra luggage.

Going to Venice? London? Israel? Australia? The travel agent will help you, and his assistance is free.

A travel agency will help you through the mysteries of visas, passports. It will give you advice on how to get a birth certificate that will enable you to get out of the country and then get back in.

It tells you about the rate of exchange, and gives you advice about the best places to exchange your money. By guessing wrong, you can lose a part of the value of your American dollars.

A TRAVEL AGENCY will help you work out a budget for a trip, so that you can see the most for your time and money. It wants to help make your trip pleasant.

It will give you advice about where to buy what—there are cities and shops that will rook you, and cities and shops where you can buy art objects, souvenirs, etc., that will be lifelong joys.

Then there is the matter of tipping. How much should you tip? If you don't tip enough, you'll get lousy service. If you tip too much, you'll be a "pigeon" and everyone will have his hand out. A good travel agency can tell you how much to tip and when.

Land of Beauty

who have only time to spend a night.

They are close to the Washington border and the major east-west highways along these northern states draw together as they enter Washington and converge at Spokane, 25 miles west of the Idaho line.

In eastern Washington again there are a multitude of lakes and streams and vacation areas to appeal to all, but of supreme interest among them travelers turn to the gigantic Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River, 89 miles west of Spokane; and to the alpine beauty of Lake Chelan as it stretches into the high peaks of north central Washington.

ON THE EASTERN slopes of the high Cascades are the fertile fruit orchards of the Wenatchee and Yakima Valleys. By crossing the mountain range on any of four easy, well-paved passes, you find yourself in the verdant forests of the western slopes that carry you to the Puget Sound country with its fresh water lakes, its snowy peaks, the salt water beaches and resorts, its cities such as Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham, Bremerton. The waters everywhere are dotted with the thousands of islands of the San Juan group, and the larger ones like Bainbridge and Vashon. The sun sets in rose and splendor on Mt. Baker and Mt. Rainier and Mt. Adams on the eastern horizon and still to the west rise the rugged and spectacular peaks of the Olympic range.

Regular ferries will carry you to the beauty of Victoria in British Columbia, or you can drive the shores to the city of Vancouver. You can also ferry or drive to the far western stretches of the Olympic Peninsula and continue along the coast of Washington to Oregon. Or you can drive inland on U. S. 99 and again to the Columbia River which you cross by bridge or by ferry to Oregon.

A ferry at the mouth of the Columbia will take you to the historic city of Astoria on the coast or a great interstate bridge will carry you to the heart of the city of Portland via the more inland route. Here rises the beauty of Mt. Hood, here is the beautiful Columbia River highway and the Crown Point vista, here is the Rose City.

There is no place more beautiful than the coast of Oregon when the rhododendrons are in bloom. They form a bank of pink loveliness against the background of great spruce and fir trees, then growing lower than the pink blossoms are the yellow flowers of the Scotch Broom — across the highway stretches the blue of the Pacific.

IN ALL THIS AREA there are a multitude of vacation possibilities—the famous Rogue and Mackenzie River resorts, the Oregon Caves, the Sea Lion Caves, the wilderness Wallows, the haunt of elk and big game.

Throughout all these Pacific Northwest states and British Columbia there is a wide range of accommodations from luxurious hotels to moderate and good cabins to fit your purse with reasonable ease.

Remember also that this is the west, the land of outdoors, so there are places to camp in abundance. These may be in state parks, in the national parks and certainly in the many camps in the national forests, for in these states is the largest concentration of national forests in the nation.

Lessons from the Campfires

Joy in the freedom of nature's countryside is expressed in this photo of children at play in a park. Here they learn to guard such happy resorts.

By Willma Simpson

IN THE COMING summer, in the redwood forests and the Great Smokies, in the Great Lakes area, the woodlands of the north, along a network of flowing waters, through every state where foliage or stone shelter and scenic attractions may be found, there will be people, by the thousands, building camp fires.

The people are not "just anybody." The people are America's families, enjoying camping, the family recreation. Camping covers a multitude of activities. Climbing children in the trees; canyons echoing happy shouts, boys from seven to seventy casting fishing lures into stream and lake and, back at the camp, bluejeans of all shapes and sizes hang besides flapping white diapers to signal that mother and baby, too, are camping out.

CAMPING MEANS much more than change of pace and relaxation. For the back-packing Scout troop building a cooking fire beside a high trail; for the family members cooking out beside their tent or trailer; the wonderful, exhilarating essence of camping is freedom.

There is freedom from routine, of course; there is freedom to choose from a variety of recreations, and freedom to see and gain renewal from intimate association with the wonders of nature.

Above all, this freedom under the open sky is an unparalleled opportunity for parents and leaders to instill in children a sense of national responsibility that is as vital as the need to establish in them a sense of responsibility for the family's living room furniture and automobile.

AS FAMILY LEADERS, parents can show appreciation for freedom — can preserve and strengthen it — by helping children to understand that they own a share of, and are responsible to help preserve, the nation's parks, monuments and roadside beauties.

We can teach respect for our country's "living room furniture" by making certain that no one defaces trees or plants or natural wonders.

We can teach respect for the good works of our fellow men when we point out, obey, and preserve trail and camp signs.

We can aid in preserving the nation's health by teaching children not to pollute streams, rivers, and lakes.

We can help keep our nation's house in order if the whole family joins in leaving a clean camp.

We can keep our campsites beautiful and maintain camping privileges for all if we make certain that fires and fire-making tools are kept always under control.

Carport also serves as an entryway into Stein home. Oiled redwood siding, white stucco form exterior.

good proportions for livable qualities and dignified appearance.

The site is a peculiar, wedge-shaped slice of land that slims down from a conservative 60-foot frontage to a mere surveyor's minute and 10 inches at the rear. However, the 120-foot length of the lot permitted construction of a well-proportioned house at the wider end.

Stein is employed in Long Beach and was interested in establishing a home that required a minimum of yard and house work. The modest bungalow they bought five years ago seemed suited to their particular desires. Its compact, open-beamed, easy-going qualities seemed ideally suited to its beach-area location. Plenty of windows admit sunlight from all directions, and small side yards seemed to suggest themselves for intimate outdoor dining areas. In short, the little house seemed almost ideal to the Steins who had just arrived in California.

OILED REDWOOD siding combines with stucco for an exterior that presents a completely conservative, modern front to the street. A flat, crushed-rock roof, cantilevered on beams to form a two-foot overhang, characterizes the house. But one of the most interesting exterior features is the way in which the attached car port has been decorated to double as an open-front party area.

One of Stein's brilliant-hued abstract oil murals hangs against the white-stuccoed rear wall of the car port. On another wall an interesting nautical effect has been created with a large impressionistic seascape, painted in oils, over which has been hung a huge antiquated verde green anchor. The smooth cement floor is made-to-order for dancing. And, inasmuch as entry to the house requires passing through the car port, an interesting gimmick was employed to set aside, visually, the walkway from the garage floor itself. Separating the two is a long, open planting area, devoted to a low, tropical hedge.

The walkway leads to a small porch off which the door to the house opens to the right. To the left (in back of the sheltering car port) is a tiny Oriental garden located in such close proximity to the house that it is handy for al fresco dining and open-air partying.

THE FRONT DOOR opens to a small hall that serves to connect every room in this exceptionally compact house. To the left is the living room—a relaxed and sunny area that opens itself to three exposures, and overlooks the pie-shaped garden beyond.

Throughout the house are reflections of Stein's fondness of Oriental decor. With this prevailing mood he has combined treasures collected over the years so that the resultant effect is a rather eclectic one—altogether informal, informative and welcoming.

Pure white walls and flat, exposed ceiling beams, also white, set the mood for the living room. Grass green carpet carries the cool garden effect into (Continued on Page 43.)

Pass-through and serving counter shown here were created by Stein, linking kitchen and living room. The counter is fabricated from a birch slab door.

NOW! a hygienic room deodorizer!

Double-Action WIZARD now fortified with germ-fighting TD-4

ATTACKS GERMS IN AIR AS IT SPRAYS AWAY HOUSEHOLD ODORS!

Guard against infection from disease-spreading germs in the air you breathe. Germ-fighting TD-4 has been added to WIZARD Spray Deodorizer... long used by millions to stop unpleasant household odors.

One touch of the handy push-button and WIZARD's hygienic, odor-killing mist vaporizes in the air. It attacks many invisible germs and viruses... thus helping to protect your family's health by reducing the danger of infection.*

Use double-action WIZARD throughout your home to sanitize the air — in the kitchen, bathroom, sickroom, nursery, everywhere. Make indoors pleasant as all outdoors by choosing either of two delightful scents — fragrant pine or spring bouquet — sold at all leading stores. Insist on push-button WIZARD, the new hygienic room deodorizer.

*When used as directed, WIZARD temporarily reduces the bacteria count in the air... thus reducing the danger of infection by airborne germs.

You Name It--And Mexico Has It!

cities, bearing in their exquisite churches, cobbled streets, delicious regional food and gentle ways, the charm and history of this country.

Acapulco is, truly the "Pearl of the Pacific." There is perhaps no more beautiful spot in the world. It is also very Mexican and very earthy, for all its boundless beauty and breathtaking scenic grandeur. There are several fine new hotels, most notably and luxurious Hotel Pierre Marques, and the unique Club Las Brisas, which features 36 private "cocktail sized" swimming pools, 55 pink and white striped jeeps, a novel location clinging to the sides of 800-foot cliffs, and no tipping.

OTHER SEA COAST resorts offer good fishing and fine

recreation: Mazatlan, Guaymas, Manzanillo, Veracruz, Progreso.

To enter Mexico, on pleasure, the only papers required are a tourist card, available at any Mexican consulate or Mexican Government Tourist Bureau office; and in some cases through the air lines. These are good for six months, one entrance and exit to the country, and cost $3.

Climate varies, but these are the only things to remember. High heels for the woman and ties for the men in Mexico City. Flat shoes and sport shirts anywhere else. A coat or light wrap in the winter for Mexico City is nearly 7,500 feet high, and tends to be chilly. A raincoat in the summer, for this is the rainy season. Each evening brings a brief downpour. Then the rain is gone and everything is warm and clean.

Purified water is available anywhere. Food in the better hotels and restaurants is completely safe and clean, and most vegetables have been washed in chlorinated water. Most pools are filled with purified water.

To travel pleasantly in Mexico is not "cheap" as many people wrongly assume. But in the long run our neighbors to the south offer the most delightful and diversified vacation in the world at probably the most reasonable overall sum possible, since it is not necessary to travel so far to reach Mexico.

As the natives say, "Como Mexico, no hay dos." There aren't two like Mexico. It is unique.

Europe, Here We Come

foreign hotels don't supply it. Don't refer to the people in other countries as natives.

Don't harp on things you find strange, disagreeable or uncomfortable. Don't compare them unfavorably with things back home.

And finally a word of advice from Miss Frances G. Knight, director of the U. S. passport office, in her campaign to eliminate the traditional "criminal mug shot" look of passport photos.

"There is no need for a grim, startled look in your passport picture," she says. "Relax — and smile."

restful camp amid the spruce, jackpine and aspen. They make Nimpo their home from early April to November, then return to the States for the worst winter months.

Best months are those of the summer and early fall.

SEPTEMBER IS IDEAL for some outdoorsmen, inasmuch as the hunting seasons begin. The country is famed for its moose, deer, ducks, geese, grouse and prairie chicken. An Indian guide may be obtained through Duncan's Resort and his motto is "Me take you hunt moose. Get moose, $100. No moose, no pay."

Duncan himself has become an expert guide on smaller game and can send most of his guests in the right direction for ducks, geese, grouse and prairie chicken. It goes beyond saying that he and Marjorie know where the trout are hiding.

An angler may take three limits of trout from Canada into the States. If he has an ice chest, the fish may be taken out fresh. If not, a smoker is available at Nimpo. Smoked trout is becoming extremely popular with many fishermen.

A GOOD HIGHWAY leads north from Bellingham to Sumas, the B. C. border entry point, then 300 miles to Williams Lake through picturesque canyons of the Fraser and Thompson rivers and such historic towns as Cache Creek, Spences Bridge, Clinton and others.

Williams Lake is the jumping-off point for the westward journey, 198 miles to Duncan's Resort on Nimpo. The road is graveled and, at times, in good condition. At others, particularly after heavy rains, it is washboardy and rutty and rough on cars and nerves unless driven with discretion.

There's one thing to do when at Williams Lake: Determine to drive 20 or 30 miles an hour to Nimpo instead of 40 or 60. Then settle down in the seat, prepare for some gorgeous views and try to forget the road—and the dust.

Chicken or Ribs...but Barbecued!

Barbecued chicken de luxe, baked stuffed onions and tomatoes, garlic bread and a relish tray—these should set taste buds tingling for a patio party.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

THAT TIME has arrived to polish up the outdoor grill and plan some meals for dining in the sunshine or under the stars. The meals can be just as glamorous as those served in the dining room and much more fun.

Probably the most enthusiastic member of the family will be Father, for the hearty meats and savory sauces that are served from outdoor grills have extra appeal when eaten in the cool breeze and away from the formalities of routine, inside dining. There's something about a gathering under the skies, family and friends enjoying appetizing food, that has won a special place in America's affection.

For those who are just starting to enjoy outdoor cooking and those who want to add to a repertoire of "cook-out" dishes, here are two tried and true recipes. One is for Barbecued

Chicken and the other for Stuffed Barbecued Spareribs. Each can be prepared in a rotisserie, an oven or on a grill.

Barbecued Chicken De Luxe

Capon or roasting chicken, about 6 pounds

- 1 package exotic herbs salad dressing mix
- 1 cup white wine
- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 6 drops Tabasco sauce
- 1/2 cup chopped celery

Place chicken in bowl or pan. To make marinade, combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Pour mixture over chicken and let stand 8 to 12 hours in refrigerator, turning chicken occasionally. When ready to cook, place chicken on spit and set in place in rotisserie unit. Turn motor control to the "on" position and set dial for "roasting." Cook until tender, about 2 1/2 hours, basting frequently with marinade.

Note: Chicken may be placed on rack in roasting pan and cooked, uncovered, in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.), following above procedure.

Barbecued Spareribs, Stuffed

- 1 large onion, minced
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 4 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Planked Porterhouse Steak

- Beef Porterhouse steak, cut 2 inches thick
- Salt
- Pepper
- 2 cups cooked spinach, drained
- 1 cup cooked diced carrots
- 2 cups hot cooked potatoes
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 egg yolks
- Salt
- Pepper

Set regulator to broil. Place steak on broiler rack. Insert broiler rack and pan so the surface of the steak is 3 inches from the heat. Brown on one side, season and transfer to a heated plunk or fireproof platter, placing browned side down. Arrange cooked, seasoned spinach in "nests" around steak and fill with buttered cooked carrots. Prepare Duchess potatoes by beating potatoes with butter or margarine, egg yolks and seasonings. Make a border around other food on the plunk by forcing the potatoes through a pastry tube, or by shaping them with a spoon. Place the plunk under the broiler until the steak is browned on the second side and the vegetables are heated through. Steaks cut 2 inches thick require 30 to 35 minutes for rare; 35 to 45 for medium done. If the steak is especially thick or if you wish to serve it well-done, partially broil the steak on the second side before adding the vegetables and place them on the plunk the last 15 minutes of cooking time. Four servings.

SERVE WITH: Tomato Juice, Parsley Potatoes, Grilled Tomatoes, Assorted Breads, Jellied Gingerale, Fresh Fruit and Cake.

SEA BASS AU GRATIN

This Is Easy To Prepare and Makes a Very Nourishing Main Dish

- 2 Cups Flaked Sea Bass Fillets (See Note)
- 1/2 Cup Chopped Green Pepper
- 2 Tablespoons Butter, Melted
- 2 Tablespoons Flour
- 1/2 Teaspoon Salt
- 1 Cup Milk
- 1/2 Cup Grated Cheese
- 2 Tablespoons Lemon Juice
- 2 Tablespoons Butter
- 1/2 Cup Dry Bread Crumbs

Saute green pepper in butter until tender. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add cheese, lemon juice and fish. Place in a well greased casserole. Combine butter and crumbs, sprinkle over casserole. Bake in a hot oven, 400° F. for 15 minutes or until brown. Garnish and serve hot. Serves 6.

NOTE: Place 1 pound Sea Bass Fillets in 1 quart of boiling water and 1 tablespoon of salt. Cook and return to boiling point. Simmer 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

Tahitian Hula in Hawaii

The exciting Tahitian hula, once seen, is never to be forgotten. Gyrating hips and gesticulating hands tell a story as old as time. In Hawaii, the hands tell the story; in Tahiti it's the rapidly undulating hips. This Polynesian charmer performs her dance on the beach at Waikiki in the shadow of romantic Honolulu.

Tours Folder Ready

If you are contemplating a European tour, you can get a quick once-over of 1958 tours of Europe by studying a "summary" folder of Spring, Summer and Fall escorted tours available, without charge, at Cook's Travel Service or your local agent.

This "Summary" lists sailing dates from New York, Montreal and Quebec, places visited, total number of days and inclusive fares for more than 100 escorted tours of Europe. Fares are given for both steamer and air crossings.

Ranging in duration from a short 26 days, if crossing by air, to as long as 56 days with steamer crossings, the tours listed in this Europe summary folder are priced from $898 to $2,448. The higher fares include minimum-cost first class steamer accommodation, and will run higher if better ship space is chosen.

Itineraries include a choice of Grand Tours, 6 Country, Heart of Europe, Classic, Popular Vacation and Old World

Tours following a circular route thru England, Holland, the Rhineland, Switzerland, Italy and France. All include the World's Fair in Brussels.

If you are looking for a tour to Scandinavia, Germany, Holland, England and France, you may find what you want in a Northern Scenic Tour. Young people of college age can travel as members of several college Vacation Tours. Southerly travel through the Mediterranean is offered as a feature of a series called Picturesque Tours of Europe.

Hotel Tax Goes

Israel's 10 per cent municipal tax on tourist hotel bills has been abolished. Word received by the American Society of Travel Agents states that travelers who have paid for accommodations in advance will receive a refund. The 10 per cent service charge in hotels remains, however.

OUR TRAVEL SERVICE IS FREE

Why bother yourself with the trouble of making reservations? At no extra cost to you, we can arrange your entire vacation including transportation, hotel accommodations, sightseeing tours everything.

Berlin Abustle

Berlin is abustle preparing for the Eighth International Film Festival to be held from June 27-July 8, according to the Berlin Tourist Office. Forty nations have indicated that they will send entries, with the deadline for entering still three weeks away. Since it has received one of the three highly-coveted "recommended" ratings for film festivals, the Berlin event will be of exceptionally high quality.

The opening ceremony June 27 will take place in the American Congress Hall in the Tiergarten, with a gala film revue scheduled for the next day at the newly-rebuilt Deutschlandhalle.

On June 29, the German Film Prizes for 1957 — Germany's Oscars — will be awarded, and that evening there will be another gala program at the Waldbuehne, largest open-air theater in the world.

On July 5 there will be another special program in the Waldbuehne, followed by the Film Ball at the new Funkturm Palais on Berlin's Fair Grounds. Gold and Silver Bears will be awarded by an international film jury on July 8 at the closing ceremony. Feature films, documentaries, cartoons and educational films will be entered, all new productions never shown before at a festival or in any country outside the producing nation.

Passport Ruling

Passport applicants who apply to an authorized clerk of court and establish their identity to his satisfaction no longer need an identifying witness. Information released to the American Society of Travel Agents reveals that personal knowledge of the applicant by the clerk, a driver's license or any other means of identification containing the signature and physical description of the applicant is now sufficient.

Movie Home Not on Tourist Maps

A MOVIE HOME not on the maps.

That's Jungleland at Thousand Oaks on Ventura Blvd. off Hwy. 101, just 32 miles northwest of Hollywood.

Movie animal stars and not movie human stars live in this interesting home.

Here one may see "Dynamite," said to be the only black panther allowed to work on an open movie set with people; the famous racing camels; Satan, tiger star of "Gladiators;" Tusko, impish baby elephant actor.

THE SAVAGE-LOOKING lions who stalked Melvin Koonitz in "Daniel in the Lions' Den," make their home here, as do Bonza, star in "Francis Joins the Wacs" and little "Chim," chosen to co-star with Gordon Scott in "Tarzan."

Animals from Jungleland are used in the Tennessee Ernie, Art Linkletter and Queen for a Day programs.

By Neoma Weed

Not only are wild animals used in movie and television jungle scene, but in historical production, circus movies, religious and educational pictures.

BETWEEN TOURS, Mable Stark, considered by many to be the greatest tiger trainer of all time, may be seen here training her pets and giving shows. Her autobiography "Hold That Tiger" is the basis for a movie.

Melvin Koonitz may be seen daily in a comic act with lions; Henry Tyndall may be seen with chimpanzees.

Since animals must be trained daily to be kept in condition and taught to perform without paying attention to confusion around them, visitors may see the entire process of training in open areas every day except Monday.

Jungleland is open 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. Sundays the wild animal circus is from 1 to 4:30 p.m., weekdays from 2:30 to 4 p.m. The training period is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. A nominal charge is made.

CHILDREN MAY ride the elephants, and other rides are provided for them. There are plenty of picnic tables and refreshment stands, with ample parking on the grounds.

Jungleland recently changed hands. The new management has increased the area to 80 acres and has added elephants, zebras, a white camel and white peacocks.

Baby animals are featured for the children. Live music is provided Saturdays and Sundays. An old time callopie brings back nostalgic memories.

VISITORS OFTEN remark about the healthy condition of the animals. They get good care and activities are under the supervision of the American Humane Society.

FULLER'S SPECTACULAR NEW HOUSE PAINT ADDS AT LEAST 2 EXTRA YEARS OF PAINT BEAUTY TO YOUR HOME

Revolutionary new kind of paint for wood! Gives your home a fresh new-painted look for 2 years longer than the finest paint you've ever used! Holds its colors, keeps its gloss for years! Spreads faster, easier than the best of them! Dries hours sooner! And costs no more than ordinary house paint!

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A PAINT LIKE IT BEFORE...

The original formula was developed in 1951.

Fuller chemists, through know-how and continuous research, found that by combining certain new "miracle" materials, they could produce an exterior paint so resistant to wear, so amazingly superior in every way that it made even the finest house paint seem old-fashioned by comparison.

Two of America's largest chemical laboratories tested and confirmed these findings.

FULLER WANTED TO BE SURE

Out into the field went Fuller's men. Homes all over the West were painted with this astounding new kind of paint. As the number of these test-painted homes grew... and today there are hundreds of them... Fuller's chemists watched, tested, compared.

RESULTS WERE PHENOMENAL

Fuller House Paint met every rigorous test of weather and wear... it outperformed the finest house paints.

Today, because of this tremendous 7-year field experience, Fuller can offer you this revolutionary new house paint, without qualification, as THE FINEST HOUSE PAINT YOU CAN BUY.

If you're going to paint... get 2 extra years of beauty for your home... at no extra cost! Get new Fuller House Paint!

W. P. FULLER & CO.

HERE'S HOW NEW FULLER HOUSE PAINT COMPARES WITH THE FINEST PAINT YOU'VE EVER USED

	Finest traditional house paint	New Fuller House Paint
General appearance:	Can resist rigorous Western weather only a few years.	Keeps fresh, new appearance at least 2 years longer than the finest house paint.
Gloss:	Starts to lose glossy appearance after first few months.	Keeps glossy lustre for years.
Colors:	Starts to fade after about 6 months.	Keeps color brightness for years.
White:	Readily stained with rust from nails, screens, gutters, etc.	Cannot be rust stained.
Application:	Goes on fast and easy.	Goes on faster and easier than finest house paint.
Drying:	At least 6 hours; target for dust, leaves, fog, rain.	Dries dust free in 2 hours. Fog or rain won't harm it.

For stucco surfaces where a flat finish is preferred, use famous Ful-Color Exterior Latex Paint, 42 beautiful colors.

and the end product must be appealing, properly prepared and tasty.

This is the formidable task that daily confronts the unsung hero of the kitchen—the fry cook.

It can be a frustrating job. To do it, the white-capped cook must face a rapid-fire series of order-calling sometimes for hours at a stretch, keep his efficiency high and his temper low and have an almost infallible memory.

WHETHER HIS JOB is in a Long Beach restaurant, a Kansas City cafe or a Times Square hotel dining room, the tension, the high speed and the weird vernacular will be about the same.

If he becomes unnerved or "swamped," he is undone.

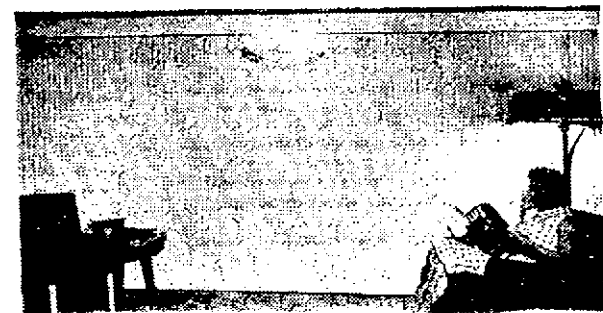

In a big kitchen, there will be a chef, a first and a second cook and a fry cook, plus pantry men (for salads) and various helpers.

The chef, the buyer for the kitchen, makes out the menu each day. The first cook prepares it. The second cook is in charge of the ovens. The chef usually wears the tallest white hat among the kitchen crew.

The fry cook is stationed before a grill, a battery of deep-fry baskets, a broiler and a steam table. Between these and the refrigerators he must keep his movements at a minimum or he'll be swallowed in a swelling tide of orders; he arranges the shrimp, scallops, three or four varieties of cold

Scientifically
designed to fit
baby's mouth—new hollow side ribs
provide continuous flow of formula

Here at last is a nipple that significantly reduces air swallowing.

The Curity Rib Nipple is the result of years of development and hundreds upon hundreds of clinical tests.

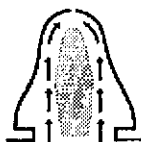

It has been heartily endorsed by obstetricians and pediatricians.

For a Better Baby

Probably the most wonderful thing about this new nipple is the way it helps your baby to be a better baby... the kind baby wants to be.

It helps make finicky feeding a thing of the past... end those long-night vigils.

As you might expect, the Curity Rib Nipple costs slightly more than others (35¢ for 2 nipples or complete nurser). When it comes to your baby, don't you want the very best?

Hollow side ribs make feeding easier because they:

- provide continuous flow despite biting
- fit the mouth, reducing air intake
- permit use of naturally pliable rubber—more like breast feeding

Lois Lawson poses with easy-to-make hose reel.

Build This Hose Reel

By Steve Ellingson

THERE'S one thing that can be said for the American people; they use lots of water, in fact, 250 billion gallons every day.

It takes from two to 20 gallons for a man to shave. To wash the evening dishes takes from five to 50 gallons. It requires 10 gallons of water to produce one gallon of gasoline and 25 gallons for a pound of paper.

But these figures are small when you stop to think of the volume of water used to keep up lawns and to water gardens, shrubs, flowers and things of that kind.

Under the circumstances we have come to the conclusion that a garden hose is a very vital piece of equipment. It needs to be taken care of, not only to preserve the hose itself, but to maintain a neat looking yard.

THE DAISY-LIKE hose reel pictured here with NBC's television actress Lois Lawson is not only good looking and sturdy, but also handy and inexpensive when you build it yourself. It may be fastened on a water pipe, on the wall of your home, on a fence or anywhere else that's convenient for you to store your hose.

This reel is particularly handy because in a matter of seconds you can crank as much as 200 feet of hose on it. That's so much nicer than having the hose lying all over your lawn or flower bed where it kills the grass and flowers and deteriorates in the sun.

BUILDING THE REEL is easy when you use the full-size pattern. You simply trace the pattern on wood, then saw out the parts and finally put them together. To paint it, you merely trace the flower on the wood and paint over the tracings. The pattern tells how to fasten it to a water pipe as well as on the wall. Simple hand tools are all you need.

To obtain the full-size hose reel pattern No. 178 send 50¢ in coin to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Press-Telegram, 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

BOOK REVIEWS

An Editor's Fight for His Life

FREEDOM of the press and the courageous, uphill fight of a dedicated, provincial editor to keep it that way, are the components of "The Northern Light," a fine new novel by A. J. Cronin (Little, Brown, $4).

The scene is England where Henry Page, editor of a small town newspaper once operated by his grandfather, is puzzled when an unscrupulous syndicate dealing with sex and scandal moves in to buy him out. Big trouble starts when he refuses to sell and editor Page finds himself squarely in the middle of the fight of his life for his paper and the good name of his family. But, like Dr. Cronin's principal theme in "The Keys of the Kingdom" and "The Citadel," right succeeds after a desperate struggle.

Even if it were not the June selection of the Literary Guild—Dr. Cronin's sixth book to gain such a distinction—and a Readers Digest Condensed Book for July, "The Northern Light" still would rise high among the best sellers of the year. It is a book to be read, remembered, and read again.

Other new fiction:

"THE AFFAIR" by Hans Koningsberger (Knopf, $3.75): This author with a talent for subjectivity portrays a Dutch student refugee in Switzerland who, determined to have an affair, picks up an attractive young woman artist and does just that. Eventually the young man finds himself deeply in love, but torn by jealousy through knowledge that the girl is a weekend mistress for another man. In this, his first novel, Mr. Koningsberger has succeeded in making his characters and his situations very real.

"THE DAY AFTER THE FOURTH" by Turnley Walker (Appleton—Century—Crofts, $4.50): The old man had built an empire of ranches and cattle, but since his death it had wasted away. About all that is left to bear his mark is his grandson. The townsmen do not realize the two are so much alike until the day after the July 4 parade when the flashy new chief of police tries to arrest the boy for riding off with a girl. Suspense builds and builds to a violently powerful conclusion.

"RECKONING AT YANKEE FLAT" by Will Henry (Random House, $3.50): Henry Plummer, hidden under a front of respectability as a peace officer was the scourge of the Montana mining camps in the 1850s, robbing and murdering wherever he went. William McCandless was a newspaperman sworn to bring him to justice—and he did. But not until Plummer had left a long trail of violence and had stolen the girl McCandless loved. Henry wrote the story as a novel but hewed closely to historical facts; for Henry Plummer was, indeed, one of the West's bad men.

"THE ITALIAN WIFE" by Emyr Humphreys (McGraw-Hill, $3.75): Here's an old, triumvirate of love at work again, but this one adds up to an intensely readable drama of human motives. The protagonists, of course, are an immensely wealthy business tycoon, his young second wife, and his 23-year-old son. The author: a producer for BBC television drama in London.

Non-fiction titles:

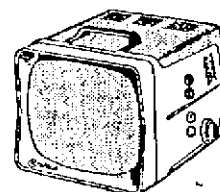

"THE RACE," photography by Bob Verlin, text by Angelo Angelopolous (Bobbs-Merrill, $10): A photographer-sports reporter team which has covered America's most spectacular automobile race for upwards of 10 years combine talents to present a picture story of that event, the Indianapolis 500 Memorial Day Classic, from the Preparation to the Postscript. Concentrating their story on the human involvement with the race, they present a drama of brave and skillful men, anticipative, toiling and sweating, hoping, in triumph and in despair. And they do a beautiful job!

"THE MOVEMENT WEST" by E. J. Murphy (Alan Swallow, $4.50): The not-very-well-known part that organized advertising played in the building of the West; how organized advertising helped build San Francisco into a great city of the world after its destruction by earthquake and fire in 1906 (People never went back to Carthage. They never rebuilt Pompeii); how the same has performed numerous general welfare services, including the prevention of many forest fires and improvement of health—all this and more to the credit of advertising is told in this extremely interesting little book. In brief, it shows that advertising goes hand-in-hand with progress in almost any field.

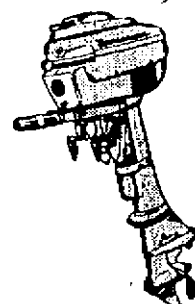

PAPERBACK ORIGINALS (first time published in book form) just out: "The Modern Meat Cookbook" by Jeannette Frank (Dell, 50c); "The Red and the Black," a French classic by Stendhal (Bantam, 75c); "The Art of Barbecue and Outdoor Cookery" by Tested Recipe Institute (Bantam, 50c); "Low-down," a novel of the pop record business by Richard Jessup (Dell, 35c); "The Big Country," a novel of Texas in the 1880s by Donald Hamilton (Dell, 35c); "The Accused," murder and violence by Harold R. Daniels (Dell, 35c); "A History of the United States" by William Miller (Dell, 75c).

Fry-Cook Talk

Steaming through a hot day in the busy kitchen of a thriving restaurant, a fry cook has no time to listen to long orders. His language, therefore, has been shortened into a strange jargon, usually understood only by waiters, waitresses and the fry cook. Here are a few of the terms explained:

- 86—Item sold out.
- Money Bowl, — A la carte soup.
- D. P. One—Hamburger cut in half.
- 21 — Two hamburgers and a side order of French fried potatoes.
- 42—Same as 21, but doubled.
- Graveyard Stew—Milk toast.
- A. C. Melt—American cheese, melted, sandwich.
- Short Stack—Two pancakes.

Short Stack!

meats, the sauces and dressings accordingly. THE PLANNING may make the difference between success and failure. Too many extra trips between refrigerators and grill and he may be lost. Before him may be a bicycle-type wheel, on which order slips are placed in their proper sequence—a technique that may avoid angering a customer by bypassing him.

And the job can be frustrating. I know; I'm a fry cook. Once I was so busy with a grill full of steaks and chops and about 30 hamburgers that I unwittingly assembled one 'burger without the crucial component. The customer, engrossed in conversation, ate the whole thing before he noticed the oversight. I told him we couldn't make any money by putting meat in the hamburgers and he laughed. Needless to say, all mistakes don't end in laughs.

SOMETIMES AN IDEA can help an overloaded memory. In a crowded restaurant recently, four girls were calling out orders to the fry cook at a terrifying pace. He filled the orders seemingly without difficulty and his composure remained serene in spite of it all. I couldn't wait to congratulate him on his professional prowess.

When I went behind the counter to shake the hand of a fry cook extraordinaire, there he was, with a handful of poker chips. When an order came for "two beef," he would toss out two blues. For "one pork" he would flip a white; for "one baked ham" he would throw a red. He wasn't remembering a thing.

WORKING FRANTICALLY

with food does not always do the best things to an appetite. Not long ago, doctors diagnosed the 'death' of a man as malnutrition. His job? A fry cook. Possibly he had been surrounded with food and without a spare moment to eat. Probably when he was off shift he had had more than enough of the continuous aroma of food.

THE FIRST ONE HUNDRED YEARS—The world did not exactly beat a path to the door of the first elevator shop on the banks of the Hudson River at Yonkers, N. Y. Otis elevator sales at the end of the first year, 1853, amounted to precisely $900. The total inventory was $122.71, including a secondhand lathe, two oil cans and the account book in which these figures were written. Read this 44-page booklet and find out about the amazing growth of this interesting industry from the past to the present day.

Play Pen for Parakeets

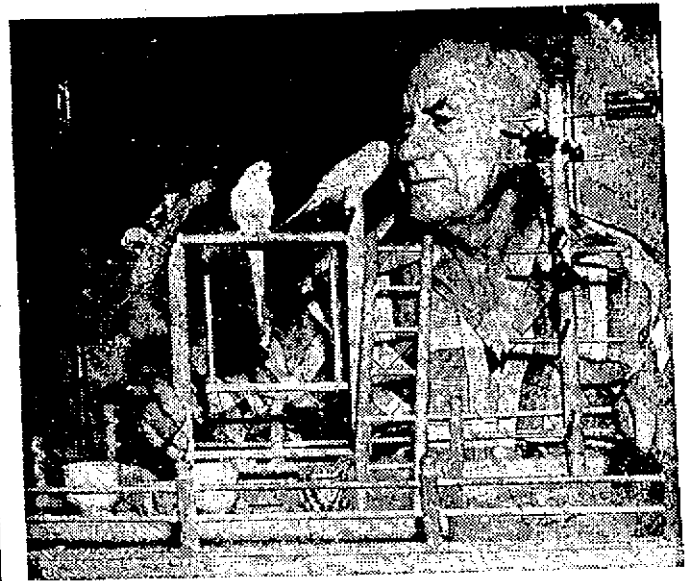

By Charlie Jackson

FREE AS A BIRD is a phrase that has been given new meaning for parakeet owners by George E. Ringler of 637½ Atlantic Ave. Ringler conceived the idea for a parakeet play pen a couple of years ago, and has made half a dozen of them since for friends.

"Birds are easier to train when they have more freedom," Ringler says. "They show off to better advantage, and I think they have more fun out in the open."

A CABINET MAKER for 52 years, now retired, Ringler

makes the pens mostly by hand, following no set pattern. Made to install on a stand or table (a folding snack tray will do), a typical parakeet play pen measures 18 inches wide by 24 inches long, and is constructed of smooth, unfinished maple, except for its pine plywood panel bottom.

George Ringler puls around with two parakeets as the birds enjoy a play pen which Ringler devised, made.

A two-inch baseboard around the edge of the pen prevents feed from falling on the floor. This base board also supports 10 three-inch posts, each pair connected by two quarter-inch dowels. Spaced about six inches apart, posts are set at each corner, with center posts on each short side and two posts along each longer side. This "fence" gives the play pen a corral-like appearance.

A movable ladder leads from the floor to the bottom of the pen. Two perches, one with several levels, can be reached by a similar ladder. A feeding area, connected by dowels to the two perches, lifts out for ease in cleaning. Bells, toys and gadgets can be added as desired.

RINGLER ESTIMATES such a pen costs $15 to build, but smaller pens, using other woods, can be built for much less cost. Non-cabinet makers may do less dowseling, or use either nails or glue, instead of both, as Ringler does.

Whatever woods are used, they should be left unfinished, as parakeets eat paint, Redwood, Ringler warns, is poisonous to parakeets.

Ship Travel Up

The first quarter of 1958 saw a 23 per cent increase in transatlantic steamship traffic over 1957, according to information released to the American Society of Travel Agents by the Trans-Atlantic Passenger Conference. The figure — representing an additional 10,000 passengers — also represents a 13 per cent plus over the same period for 1956. Atlantic ship travel from Canada to Europe during the same three months was up 20 per cent. Prospects for the balance of the year are hopeful, too, with advance bookings as good or better than the 27-year record set last year.

Skinny Back Yard

the inside of the house mint-and-white, full-length draperies of striped cotton reflect the same tone. Through the windows at the back of the living room one may enjoy the beauty of the tiny garden beyond. Pressing close to the window is a gnarled old tree from which trail vivid pink geraniums in hanging baskets of redwood. Before the windows stands a diminutive, gate-leg dining table that folds itself away in the hours between dinner parties.

IN ANOTHER AREA of the room is a conversational grouping composed of a contemporary daybed-sofa, peel chairs and an interesting old chest that doubles as an accomodating cocktail table. Over the armless sofa (upholstered in eucalyptus green and lurex tweed) hangs an intriguing arrangement of miscellaneous trivia Stein has gathered throughout the Orient. Six handsome, delicately sealed Japanese lithographs in narrow bamboo frames are flanked by a pair of black-iron candle sconces hung one over the other; completing the group is a conversation-provoking cane of carved wood, originating in the Philippines. Over the sofa, accessorized with multi-colored velvet and harlequin-print pillows, hangs a Japanese parchment lantern.

Adjacent to the sofa is a tiny table with ceramic tile top holding an iron hibachi. Sitting atop the squat little stove is an equally squat iron tea kettle of Chinese derivation. And there—on the hibachi and right in the living room—tea is brewed . . . a hospitable ritual when company calls.

High windows along the south wall of the living room are hung with split-bamboo, roller-type blinds. Reed-like shafts of southern sunlight slant down on a long bench placed against this wall. On the bench stands a natural birch, double caned-doored Hi-Fi cabinet. For the sake of visual texture, this long south wall was papered in an off-white, brick-patterned wallpaper, against which art objects arranged on the low bench assume especially interesting stature. An unusual three-tiered display table also stands against this wall, displaying three Japanese dolls, the uppermost an exquisite figure of a Geisha dancer garbed in traditional attire. This—one of Stein's most valued objects—was sent to him recently by a family in Japan.

Against another wall, separating the kitchen from the living room, stands a simple, contemporary birch chest. On it is a trio of pale green, antique apothecary bottles; and on the wall over the chest hangs an antique bullseye mirror dating from 1851.

Over the pass-through hangs an old but decorative tinware lantern. Actually, this serving counter is a rather recent addition to the house. Stein, determined to effect a greater openness between the two rooms, partially removed a wall and installed the counter which he contrived from a slab door of birch. Then to increase the feeling of unity, the brick paper was extended right into the kitchen area without interruption from the living room. With it, pale walls are combined in the preparation area.

A charcoal and pink bath features a tropical motif carried out in dramatic wallpaper. The adjacent bedroom is furnished to double as a small study for Stein. Birch furniture, a lime green carpet and a bedspread of terra cotta, cocoa and beige set the scene. Hand-blocked wallpaper patterned with white, terra cotta and black Chinese lanterns on a chocolate background provides the Oriental motif on one wall. Mrs. Stein's bedroom, as feminine as the former is masculine, is decorated in shell pink and grey.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the origin and coat-of-arms of BAILEY — C.B., F.B., Long Beach; L.B., Anaheim.

C.B., L.B., F.B.: The English and Scotch surnames Bailey, Baylles and Bailly were handed down from the French occupational title "Bailli" meaning a caretaker or steward of a nobleman's properties. Early references show Henry Le Baillie in the Writs of Parliament, 1307. The Bailey shield is ermine-covered, with three black bars across the center. William Bailey, born in England in the early 1600's, settled in Rhode Island before 1669.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the meaning and genealogy on VIVIANO and VIVIAN. — C.V., Lakewood; C.T.V., Harbor City.

C.V., C.T.V.: VIVIANO and VIVIAN are derived from the ancient Latin word "vividus" meaning "the lively one." The Viviano lineage have an Italian background. In some cases Vivian is shortened from this name. The family coat-of-arms has a golden sun on a silver stripe across the upper part of a blue shield. In addition to an Italian origin, the surname may be English. Records show John Vivian of London in 1292. The coat-of-arms of the Vivians of England has a blue chevron between three gold rings and three lion heads on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of ZUFELT. — Mrs. G.B., Long Beach.

MRS. G.B.: Zufelt is a German name describing the locality where the family once lived. In the old spelling "Zu-Feld" it meant "at the field." The English surname Atfield originated in the same way. No coat-of-arms is available for the Zufelts.

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you give data on the surnames SWEET, SWETT and SWETS. — A.S., H.S., Bellflower; H.M.S., T.S., Long Beach.

SWEET, SWETT and SWETS originated in an early Saxon-English baptismal name "Swete" for "the pleasing, enjoyable man." Walter Swete lived in Somerset, England in 1327. The family coat-of-arms has two gold chevrons under two gold stars, with a gold rose below the chevrons. These emblems are on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on ARCHIBALD — C.M.A., Long Beach.

C.M.A.: The baptismal name Archibald meaning "noble and bold" became an English and Scotch surname in the 13th century. Richard Archebold who lived in 1451 was among the ancestry. The coat-of-arms of the Archibalds of Scotland has three red stars and three silver crescents on a diagonal blue stripe across a silver shield. The family motto "Ditat servata fides" means "Faith, kept, enriches."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of RARICK. — MRS. M.W., Long Beach.

MRS. M.W.: RARICK is taken from the Irish Gaelic clan name MacRuadraic meaning "Sons of the famous ruler." The early Erse name was modernized to Magrorkick, Rorick and Rarick. The lineage originated in County Westmeath, Ireland. No coat-of-arms is listed for this family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would appreciate the analysis of WARD. — B.O., C.W., D.W., Long Beach.

B.O., C.W., D.W.: WARD was the term for a warden or keeper of a castle in medieval England. The "Ward" was the chief guard of a manorial residence in the days when there was no protection from the government against marauders. The Ward coat-of-arms has a gold cross with a fleur-de-lis at the end of each arm on a blue shield. The family motto "Sub cruce salus" translates as "Salvation by way of the Cross." The primary family ancestor in America was John Ward of Harverhill, Suffolk, England who came to Massachusetts in 1640. The city of Haverhill, Mass., was named after his English home.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., for the origin and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

He Dudes Up Film Cowpokes

By James Bacon
Associated Press Writer

A BROOKLYN-BORN tailor who once had a thriving business making G-strings for burlesque queens has hit the sartorial bigtime by designing resplendent costumes for movie cowboys.

He goes by the single name of Nudie which he says is his real surname. He declines to give his first name.

Film cowpokes pay more for their clothes than other stars. The average outlay for a suit is $750. Nudie once concocted a 24-carat gold lame suit for Elvis Presley that cost the rock 'n' roll singer $10,000.

"But that doesn't count," he says, "Elvis is not a cowboy."

He numbers Roy Rogers, Gene Autry, Rex Allen and oilman Glenn McCarthy among his Resplendent in own fancy duds, tailor Nudie exhibits last word in range rider attire for actor Rex Allen.

customers, but none of them is as flamboyant as Nudie.

His specially-fitted car draws stares even in Texas, where he's often asked to appear in parades. The seats are upholstered in unborn calfskin. Door handles are six shooters. Carvings of longhorn steers adorn the instrument panel instead of the usual chrome. Nudie says the car, a popular price model, cost $11,000 when he was finished with it.

NUDIE WAS BORN about 56 years ago, and is the son of a bootmaker who taught him how to stitch two pieces of material together.

Nudie tried other things first. After a spell as a prizefighter and a movie extra, he turned to sewing and by 1926 he was whipping up costumes for screen stars like Gloria Swanson. It did not satisfy his inner craving.

"I always yearned to be a cowboy," he said. "They are the real, down-to-earth people of this business." His own business soon failed and there followed a bleak period when "everything I touched went broke."

HE DRIFTED BACK to New York after a side trip to Mankato, Minn., where he met his future wife. Next came a job of sewing brassieres for a garment company. Nudie's G-string business was an outgrowth of this.

But he still longed for the West, and in 1940 moved to Los Angeles. A tailor shop he started folded. About 10 years ago, he heard that Tex Williams was organizing a western band.

"I had always been interested in anything western so I went after the contract to make the costumes," he said.

At the time, Nudie lacked the $150 to buy a sewing machine and even Tex was broke. This was just before Tex hit with his record of "Smoke That Cigarette."

"But Tex did have a horse and saddle that we auctioned off for $150. That got the sewing machine and the woolen goods came on credit."

THE BUSINESS got off to a bad start — he made the pants too long for his first customer.

"I hired a fitter who got drunk during the fittings. After I sewed up the costumes, I found out I not only made the pants too long but also too short. The first pair came only to the man's navel. On the next the pants came up to his neck."

Nudie doesn't know whether it was the costumes or not, but Tex soon was drawing 2,500 fans instead of the 250 or 300 expected.

"Tex paid me for the costumes and I was in the western business for good."

Cowboys have certain trademarks in their clothes. Rex Allen has an Indian motif while Roy Rogers wears lots of fringe. Autry's suits are stitched with butterflies and flowers. No two stars have the same designs.

Those three along with Williams, are among the best dressed cowboys, says Nudie.

Nudie's biggest customer is Andy Devine. He's a six horse size — it takes skins from six horses to make a jacket and pants for him.

MOST vacationists who go camping are intrigued by the chatter and the acrobatics of squirrels and their cleverness in devising ways to go wherever they wish. One is fascinated, also, by the perky question-mark tail of the lively chipmunk, its impudent waggle, and its high-pitched inquisitive "talk." And if there is a deer nearby, the vacationer usually leaps for his camera because this creature is one of the most beautiful of all wild animals.

Should you want to make temporary pets of these forest inhabitants, let your No. 1 rule be: Do not try actually to own them. The thrill of seeing these animals at close range and the joy, perhaps, of having them eat out of your hand is enough reward for your patience and quietness and the food you will need to offer in order to win their confidence.

SINCE SQUIRRELS have two litters of babies each year there are usually plenty of them around a camping area, so long as domestic pets do not frighten them or campers do not molest them.

To tame a squirrel, sit very still in a place you know it frequents. With no jerky motions, roll a nut or fruit pit a few feet away from you. Before long the squirrel may come up and take grain and nuts from your hand. Your forest pet may even burrow into your pocket for food. Name the little creature and speak gently to it.

Squirrels like suet so well that they will snatch a whole lump and carry it away. Attach a wire soap dish to a tree base and keep suet in that so the animals will stay to eat instead of running away with your offering.

TO TAME A CHIPMUNK, put nuts, grain and fruit pits on the ground 20 feet from where you plan to sit. Each time you feed the little rodent place the food closer to you. Make no noise or sudden motion. If the chipmunk eventually eats out of your hand, do not catch him. He turns into a ball of terror in the prison of your palm and fingers, and will bite. With patience, however, you can get the chipmunk to take food from between your lips when you are reclining.

Deer love salt licks, hay, grain, bread, watermelon, and most any food. (No banana peels!) Put offerings out regularly in early morning and early evening, then watch from a distance. Shorten the distance each day. In time the deer will take food from your hand, and if you eat outside, he will help himself from your table in no time at all! In fact, you will need to shoo him away. Do this carefully, however, for the deer is quick and agile and may strike out with his front hoofs.

IF BIRDS CHIRP around your camp, make a special feeding and watering place for them too high for deer and unavailable to squirrels and chipmunks. Wild creatures eat what they find and are not thieves when they take food meant for another. Feed birds fruit, berries, grain, nuts, bread crumbs, suet, peanut butter and similar tidbits.

Take along a bird call available at pet stores to attract birds if you wish many to come to your camp.

PRACTICE MATCH: San Pedro Obedience Training Club, May 24, at 325 Neptune, Wilmington. Entries taken from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fee $1; with additional class 50 cents.

CAMERA ANGLES

Cameras Go on Vacations, Too

they'll beat you youngsters every time, if you don't watch out.

PERHAPS YOU JUST want a snapshot record of where you are going and who is along. Anything from a simple box camera to the most expensive domestic or foreign imports will do here — any camera will serve for such casual shooting.

Perhaps you are after color slides and a story of a trip to the Tetons, to Hawaii, Europe, the Caribbean — then be sure you have the type of film you need and a good lens in your camera. Your light meter will be a help, but don't count too much on the readings in say, Hawaii, where the light will shift so fast your readings will change before you can snap the shutter — all because of the great, and beautiful, clouds that roll across the sky and alter the sunlight. You'll either have to wait out the light or use a general setting that will allow in-between shooting.

Perhaps you are just a born gadgeteer — in that case, no use to tell you what to take; you're going to take along everything you've got in the camera line, use less than a fourth of it — and, perhaps, buy more before you get home!

PERHAPS YOUR PICTURE taking will be movies. Be sure your equipment is checked over and in good order before you leave. Again, plenty of film if you are heading off the beaten track. And a little still camera is a handy auxiliary to have along.

Whatever the vacation, a minimum list for your camera includes plenty of film, a light meter, a filter or two to cut haze or for cloud effects, a tripod if you are going in for scenic or shots with slow film or natural light, a gadget bag of no more than necessary size. Travel as light as you can and still do the desired job.

A dark bag and holders are necessary if you are heading into back country and are using cut film that must be loaded.

YOUR CAMERA DEALER can help you select the items you want. He'll be glad to answer questions.

Whether you are carrying simple or complicated equipment, be sure you are prepared in advance; don't wait until you get there to figure out the routine mechanics — save some time for yourself to see the sights. Don't be constantly with an eye to the lens and have to get home before you can see what you saw.

Remember that heat is the enemy of cameras and film. Don't leave them in glove compartments of cars or in bright sunlight. You risk damage if you do.

And remember, too, to process film — particularly color film — as soon as possible after exposure. Many a good shot has been spoiled by long delay in processing.

Now, go shoot that vacation trip . . . and have fun!

EASTMAN ANNOUNCES publication of a new booklet containing data needed to select the proper 16mm Kodak movie film for every type of job. It answers the need for this type of information of the professional who makes movies for industry, science, sports, and education as well as the amateur who makes movies solely for home use. The booklet, "16mm Kodak Movie Films — Data and Selection," tells when and why to use reversal or negative-type film, color or black-and-white movie film, and provides advice on loading, film storage, processing, duplicating, and the use of magnetic sound coating. Copies of the booklet may be obtained without charge, from Eastman Kodak Co., Sales

COME next winter, what will be left of this summer's happy vacation hours? Just memories, you say? Well, you're right — that is, you are if you didn't take a camera along.

And that raises a good question: What to take along for photo treatment of your vacation?

The answer is "that depends"

. . . depends upon what kind of camera record you want to make.

Perhaps just a few choice shots will satisfy, conjuring up a whole store of memory pictures. Most ordinary cameras will do this trick; with, perhaps, a filter or two and flash attachment.

Perhaps you are going hunting for some real fine photo art—something you might want to use commercially or in a contest. Some such hunter-lensmen go well equipped with gadgets, fine cameras, sets of lenses, light meters, color film, black-and-white film, film of many speeds, etc., etc. Others just lug a long a big old camera of ancient vintage, but with a good lens, perhaps a light meter and a filter or two and film. They'll wait out the light until it's right, then shoot. These are the oldtime "pros" and

See the Heavenly New Vertical venetians

Revolutionary New "DOUBLE ARC" Slats Make All the Difference

Now you can have vertical venetians that look and operate just like draw draperies . . . with all the advantages of venetians, besides! With the new double-arc slats, Eastern's Star has a flowing "one-piece" appearance when closed . . . looks for all the world like the luxurious folds of fine draperies. It opens and closes as a unit, too.

What's more, Eastern's Star verticals are so sturdy they don't need tapes or bottom tracks. And to add to their "drapery-like look," they feature a magnificent textured finish and are available in a galaxy of lovely colors.

Plus all these advantages!

★ Complete control of ventilation, light, view and privacy. Perfected mechanism of turn cord assures even turning of slats. When they are wide open, you have a far clearer view through fewer, wider, stronger slats.

★ Full closure of slats in either direction. The double arc slats don't just overlap . . . they interlock to lock out light, and to give wall-like privacy when used as room dividers.

Annuals Fill Flower Season Gaps

By Joe Littlefield

THERE ARE annuals galore to plant for summer color and cut flowers. Two of many others that are fairly quick-blooming are petunias and zinnias. In fact, if there was only enough space in your sunny flower bed to accommodate a few annuals, tall and low, zinnias and petunias might furnish you all the combinations of colors you would desire.

Zinnias furnish bright warm colors, the petunias add some colors of their own, plus shades of blues which zinnias lack. Tall zinnias like the dahlia flowered, shaggy cactus, or the somewhat tall pompons are planted at the back part of the flower bed, petunias in front of them.

In addition to these two colorful annuals, asters, African marigolds, and French marigolds, and several others, add their share of color and lovely flowers.

SHADE GARDENS, too, can be color pepped up for the summer by planting some coleus, impatiens, torenia, mimulus, and bedding begonias.

When camellias finish blooming, there's a lack of shade-loving shrub-like plants that bloom all summer and fall. This color need is met when you plant fuchsias in between and in front of camellias. Should you live in a hot, dry area, selection of fuchsias for this purpose becomes somewhat limited. However, there are some varieties that stand lots more heat and dryness than others. Some of the fuchsias that take these conditions are Mephisto, Cardinal, Checkerboard, Glendale, and perhaps several others your local nurseryman may recommend.

You'll help these shade plants grow better by providing a loose loamy soil. Work some compost soil, peat moss, or leaf mold, into the soil before setting out the plants.

While planting annuals, don't overlook perennials. Especially adding more chrysanthemums to your collection of these welcome fall and early winter blooming plants. Two of the many different types of mums that aren't as generally known as the hardy, exhibition, spoon, spider, and pompons, are the Northland daisies and the Cushion mums. These two are earlier blooming than most of the other types.

IN ADDITION, they are lower growing. Cushion mum stays low, to about a foot, has smaller, pompon-like flowers. Makes an interesting edging planting bordering a lawn, rose bed, flower bed, or planted in front of taller plants or shrubs.

Northland daisy grows about foot and a half tall. The single flowers are attractive. Top of foliage is glossy, different from the other types of mum leafage.

Tuck the northland daisies in among other perennials, or in groups planted in the annual bed.

ANOTHER KIND of garden planting one may do at such times is redoing an old lawn, putting in a new grass or dichondra lawn. Weather still should be cool for a number of weeks. Seeds sprout fairly fast, but grass grows slower, encouraging a deeper root development. Lawns don't need quite as much watering as they will later, when new lawns are put in during the hot weather.

Dichondra grows much quicker in warm to hot weather, but doesn't grow together as fast, as do grass lawns.

Some folk can't bear to hear the name Bermuda grass, also called devil grass. That may be due to their trying to eradicate Bermuda from grass or dichondra lawns. Perhaps it gets its name devil grass because it is devilishly hard to eliminate, particularly from grass lawns. In dichondra lawns, that's a different story. Your nurseryman has a product which kills out devil grass in dichondra lawns, but not for grass lawns, because the material also kills the grass lawn.

New Lilac for Western Gardens

For those who yearn for the old-fashioned lilac of the East, new Lavender Lady lilac grows well in the West.

By Walter Finch

ALL western greenhumpers, at some time, have yearned for the big blooms and heady fragrance of eastern dooryard lilacs. But the wonderful old-fashioned lilacs sulked in the mild parts of the West. Not enough chilling winter temperatures and therefore the folks who planted them enjoyed only runty little spikes.

Today that's all changed—thanks to the wizardry of Dr. Walter Lammerts, America's premier hybridist. The exciting new Lavender Lady Lilac, now being introduced to the garden public, yields clusters normally 6 to 8 inches long and about 6 to 8 inches wide. Individual blooms range up to 3 inches wide.

The lilac, which has been tested for seven years in different parts of California, sometimes develops even bigger flower trusses. There are records of them running up to 10 inches long and wide.

HERE IS THE background: In 1942 Dr. Lammerts was given the best of the lilac seeds which the late Walter Clarke of San Jose had grown. Clarke had spent over 20 years selecting and re-selecting lilac strains that offered good blooming promise under mild winter conditions.

Dr. Lammert's work, in turn, was just beginning. Back to UCLA, where he grew the seeds, then over to Descanso Gardens at La Canada where they were matured and observed, and finally all but a few were discarded.

The remaining lilacs were then crossed and re-crossed, brought into bloom, and "rogued" again. More tests followed and Lavender Lady here won her laurels. By the early Fifties she had proven herself and earned a United States plant patent.

Now, the big-bloomed lilac with the exciting lavender tones is ready for the public.

GROWING FACTS: Lavender Lady grows easily. A fertile, well-drained soil in a sunny spot is best. The soil should be slightly alkaline. Treat the insides of the planting holes with dieldrin granules to stop soil pests.

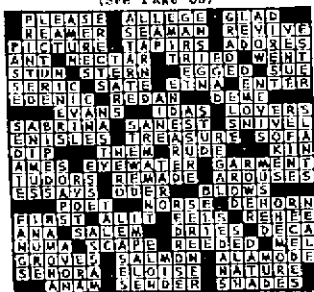

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . As the weather warms up, the bug population in your garden will multiply with the same speed that your plants grow. This is the time to start an effective pest control program: Both garden insects and plant diseases should be sprayed or dusted once every 10 to 14 days.

During unexpected hot spells, your fuchsias will react favorably to a cold water shower.

At night, when you are asleep, the so-called "nocturnal" prowlers—slugs, snails and their associates—are undoubtedly on a rampage in your garden, devouring choice morsels of tender growth. These pests are easy to eradicate with modern pellets.

Junipers Are Garden Handy Andys

By Bob Gilmore

JUNIPERS take a variety of forms and there is a juniper for almost every garden purpose. They range in height from 20-inch specimens used as ground covers to the upright varieties that may grow to 15 feet at maturity. One of the most desirable features of the juniper is its ability to look well even when subjected to persistent abuse and given a minimum of care.

Junipers belong to the pine family and during ancient times the genus name of juniperus was believed to indicate a plant that was "forever young." Even modern-day junipers bear out this interpretation for the oldest specimens have a young and healthy look. There are a large number of separate varieties although the average nurseryman stocks only about five or six types.

PRACTICALLY ALL varieties of the commercially available junipers thrive to perfection in this area. The only possible exception is the shore juniper, which cannot tolerate hot, desertlike conditions. The best known junipers range in foliage tone from gray-green to blue-green, although some of the Savin junipers are almost black-green.

The creeping junipers are of course recommended for ground-cover purposes and all of these prefer an open exposure and plenty of sun. The better varieties in this group will remain under 2 feet, although all respond favorably to pruning. Some of these produce both scale-like and needle-like foliage on the same plant.

The upright-growing forms may be employed toward the rear of borders, as dividers and for screening purposes. These junipers range in height from about 8 to 15 feet. Many make massive-sized shrubs at maturity. One of the most notable in this group is Pfitzer's juniper, which has been grown in this area for many years. It is fast-growing and produces gray-green foliage. Some varieties have greenish-yellow leaves.

ONE OF THE MOST popular spreading varieties for Southern California is Juniperus sabina tamarix. Because of its ground-hugging appearance nurserymen

If you desire large, colorful blossoms and beautiful green foliage, this is the time to enhance your fertilization program with some of the much-needed mineral elements which are either lacking in our soil or locked up because of high degree of alkalinity.

The commercial fertilizers you use at this time of year give your plants an incentive to start to grow but you must fortify the soil for the long season ahead with the things your plants are going to need if they are to continue to be healthy throughout the summer. I suggest that you select a product containing these mineral elements and use it in your soil now. It is such a simple process to give these things to your soil, requiring no great amount of labor and assuring you of a successful garden.

Junipers fill many needs in home landscaping. Here a low-growing specimen fills a corner as accent plant.

refer to it as a prostrate-growing type. It seldom grows higher than 18 or 20 inches, although in time it may attain a lateral spread of close to 6 feet.

Entirely different in appearance is the narrow Irish juniper recognized botanically as Juniperus communis hibernica fastigiata. This should be used where height, rather than width, is desired. The plant grows to about 7 feet but seldom exceeds 20 or 22 inches across. It is at its best in either full sun or part shade.

One of the more novel varieties is Juniperus chinensis twisted, its name being due to the twisted appearance of the plant. This is a compact-growing, semi-dwarf variety seldom going beyond a height of 7 to 8 feet.

Water Them Right!

Some hot summer evening you may have an urge to give your garden a sprinkling. Well, control that urge. The light sprinkling that seems to cool things off really does the plants you love no good.

All plants must be watered to the very limit of root growth.

Vicki Van Hook of Long Beach, "Junior Miss" of water skiers, recently won a college scholarship for skill.

BOAT TALK

They Fly Over Water

By Bob Ruskauft

ONE THING which hasn't been discussed in this column—and it rates big in a now-vast sport (boating, y'know)—and that is water skiing.

Water skiing at its best is considerable of an art and this was forcibly brought home the other day in announcement of a new honor won by one of the greatest in the nation and a resident of Long Beach.

For her splendid performance at San Diego last year, Vicki Van Hook, blonde, comely and talented daughter of Bev and Yvonne Van Hook, 4157 Gardena Ave., was acclaimed the national junior girls water ski champion.

Now, Vicki, 14, has just been awarded for her feat a $500 one-year college scholarship from the Kiekhaefer Corp. (A Winter Haven, Fla., boy, Roger Ray, won a similar honor.)

THE AWARD is one of a scholarship series set up by the company to help deserving young people who have won honors in fields of marine sport, to help finance their education.

Two previous winners have been Craig Dewald, young outboard star of Reading, Pa., and John Ross, blind water skier from Minneapolis, Minn.

So, in the water ski sport, how great rates Vicki's honor?

Look at it this way: At the moment in the U.S. there are 3.5 million people who water ski and, according to Jim Rusing, the U.S. senior ski king (whom we met as head of the troupe performing at Sunshine Springs, Fla., last October), there are more than two million additional now learning the art.

VICKI IS, incidentally one of at least two Long Beach lasses who are slightly terrific on these galloping slivers. Another, Martha Ann Williams, has won a sea of honors. And, let's face it, the gals are also terrific rivals.

There are no flies for national honors on Micky Amsbury of Orange, whose dad (Fred) taught him the tricks; nor on Chuckie Stearns of Bellflower. Nor several other local lights.

Cmdr. Bud Dansby of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club has, in fact, his hands full of talent.

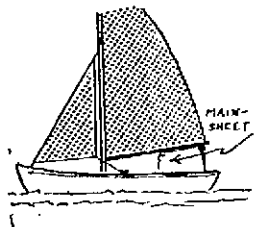

It's a great sport. But as one who fell off one of the things a time or two while covering that big "screwball" race of the 1930s, from Avalon to Hermosa Beach:

Whatever happened to aquaplanes?

BOAT HOOKS: The A. A. Adams and Son Challenge Trophy race off Balboa; Newport Harbor YC's 1958 opening program; an 80-mile stock outboard marathon at Blythe; inboard action at Bakersfield—these are the highlights on today's marine sports bill in the Southland.

THE MAINSHEET

Never make the mainsheet fast in any small sailboat. This is bad practice because it may be necessary to slacken the sheet quickly if you run into a hard puff. If there is danger of capsizing, ease the mainsheet, and put the tiller over a little to leeward.

BOB LEMON

Caricature by Milt Reppert

Patrons are Having a Ball

ALTHOUGH Bob Lemon is now associated with the management of Ricart's, 4363 Atlantic Ave., the hostesses don't shout "Play ball!" across the dining room and the waiters definitely don't pitch dishes at the patrons.

An elegantly-designed restaurant, Ricart's has been noted for years for its quiet dining atmosphere. In recent weeks, ever since Bob's new post was announced, that atmosphere has been heady with discussions of fast balls, sliders, curves, high flies, pop-outs and all the other language of baseball. Though Bob so far hasn't been able to spend too much time at the restaurant, the customers (especially Cleveland Indians' fans) have had a ball chatting about his remarkable pitching career (207 games won so far in the majors) and making predictions of where his team will wind up this year in the standings.

WHILE ALL this talk has been going on, the customers have also been enjoying the superb cuisine put out by Ricart's new owner, Virgil Heckelmann. The quality of the restaurant's famed prime ribs of beef au jus, served from a copper cart, has never been better. The regular cut — a generous, tasty masterpiece — is $3.75. The gargantuan Jim Brady cut is $4.95. Both are served with chilled tray of appetizers, choice of soup or a magnificent tossed green salad with croutons, chopped eggs and choice of dressing, choice of potatoes, hot fresh garlic cheesebread, beverage and after-dinner mints.

Ricart's steaks are handsome and delicious, ranging from the charcoal-broiled New York cut to filets, top sirloins and tenderloins. A new steak item is the lady's top sirloin for $3. Among the many other entrees are these, all served with the elaborate complete dinner: marvelous chopped sirloin steak, $2.25; broiled beef sirloin en brochette, $2.75; flaming shish kabab, $3.25; broiled whole baby lobster, $3.50; Catalina swordfish steak, $2.25; and glazed Long Island duckling, $2.95. Also, very popular is the $2.50 a la carte broiled tenderloin steak sandwich.

Cabinet member Folsom looked like this (L.) at 10. R.: Miss Lila today, still working with growing things.

I'll always remember...

A teacher named Lila

by MARION B. FOLSOM U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

The author today

I was 10 and in the fourth grade in McRae, Ga. My teacher was Miss Lila Windsor, an important person in our community. We admired her and looked up to her with respect. Most of the adults in McRae today passed through her class during her 38 years of teaching. I'm sure they never will forget her, any more than I will. For she must have wielded a great influence on their lives — as she did on mine.

To me Miss Lila is Exhibit A of top-quality teaching. She had the talent of stimulating a desire in her pupils to learn. Whether the subject was geography, reading, spelling or arithmetic, she communicated her own enthusiasm, her lively interest.

When she spoke to you, in encouragement or occasionally in reproof, you knew she was genuinely interested in you and your welfare. She wanted her pupils to do their best. And she made them want to do their best.

It happened my own particular strong point was arithmetic. Miss Lila fostered and encouraged my interest. Soon her encouragement paid off in a practical way: I found I could help in my father's general store, where I worked after school, by taking inventory. I would list the price of items, then multiply the price by the number of items in stock.

There was a double benefit, for this also gave me practice for my arithmetic in school. Before long I was keeping the store's books, and when I was 14 I installed a new bookkeeping system which saved the store both time and money.

This interest in figures led to a career in which I have made extensive use of mathematics. And I still am grateful to Miss Lila.

When I saw her not long ago — now 82, retired, but with that interest and enthusiasm intact — I once more was reminded how America needs more teachers like her. Such teachers are the builders and protectors of the foundation of democracy. To them we owe much for the free and abundant way of life that has become our American heritage.

On Parade

On the cover is an actress to watch, Christine Carère. Brought from France last year to play opposite Rissano Brazzi in the film version of Françoise Sagan's novel, A Certain Smile, Christine has been doing some watching of her own. Object: American women. For her conclusions about them, see pp. 32-33.

Incidentally, the heroine of Mlle. Sagan's novel is 17, so Christine's studio announced her age as 17. This charmed Christine, who happens to be 27. It's OK, though. She looks 17.

Every day or so someone writes in for reprints of a PARADE article, or for permission to reprint one in another publication. For example, you probably read the quiz, When Is Your Signature Valid? (Feb. 16). So did the publishers of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Regarding it as useful reading for their salesmen, they requested — and received — permission to reprint 1,000 copies.

Out in Saudi Arabia, the Arabian American Oil Co. wanted to reprint three of our driving-safety quizzes. They had to be modified a bit to fit Arabian law. Otherwise, no problems.

Then we gave the green light to the Baklwin Public Library, Birmingham, Mich., to reproduce for its patrons the list of 30 books no child should miss, from What Should Johnny Read? (Dec. 8).

There are lots more — but that should give you the idea.

Belated letter from Mrs. Margaret Ness, Levittown, N.Y.: "I'm happy to tell you I won a refrigerator in a contest with your needlework pattern, Indian Summer. Thank you for putting the pattern in the paper."

Nice work, Mrs. Ness. Today's pattern is on p. 31. Contests, anyone?

Which kind of success are you on your way to?

If you can answer "Yes" to the following questions, you may be headed in the right direction for one important kind of success: financial. Start here:

Do you have money left over after your living expenses are paid and emergencies provided for? YES ☐ NO ☐

Maybe it hasn't occurred to you, but one of today's necessities is to provide for your future. A time when you may not be working—or may not want to work. When you're spending today's income, isn't it wise to use part of it for your future?

Do you know how owning common stock may help you meet expenses both today and in the future? YES ☐ NO ☐

Ownership of common stock makes you part-owner of a company. As an owner you can share in profits through dividends, or in any future growth through increase in the value of your stock, or both. Dividends can give you income that may continue long after you've left your job—income to help pay today's bills—and tomorrow's.

Do you know how much money you need to buy stocks? YES ☐ NO ☐

You can buy stocks in some of America's greatest companies for as little as $40 every three months, up to $1000 a month, on the Monthly Investment Plan. More than 8½ million Americans own stock. Two out of three have incomes under $7500 a year.

Can you name the four precautions to take when investing? YES ☐ NO ☐

Keep them handy:

- (1) Use only extra money left over after bills are paid and emergencies provided for.
- (2) Remember that the prices of stocks go up and down, that a company may not grow, may not pay a dividend.
- (3) Always get facts before you invest. Never depend on tips or rumors.
- (4) See a broker for good advice—and make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

Have you a copy of DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS? YES ☐ NO ☐

This fascinating booklet is a wonderful place to start planning your future. It gives interesting facts about investing and lists more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 years to more than a century. It tells which have paid 5 to 6 percent dividends at recent prices, which are preferred by large institutional investors...plus much more. And it's free.

Drop in to get acquainted with a nearby friendly broker. Make sure he's with a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. He'll help you plan a sensible investment program—and charge nothing for his advice. He'll help you buy or sell. Ask him whether bonds might be better for you than stocks. And from time to time ask him to review your securities with you.

Ask, too, for your free copy of "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." Or send the coupon and a copy will be sent you promptly. It may head you in the right direction for success.

Life begins at eight to the bar

HOLLYWOOD.

The 77-year-old grandmother above, along with 21 other grandmothers older and younger, has found an upbeat formula for staying young: music.

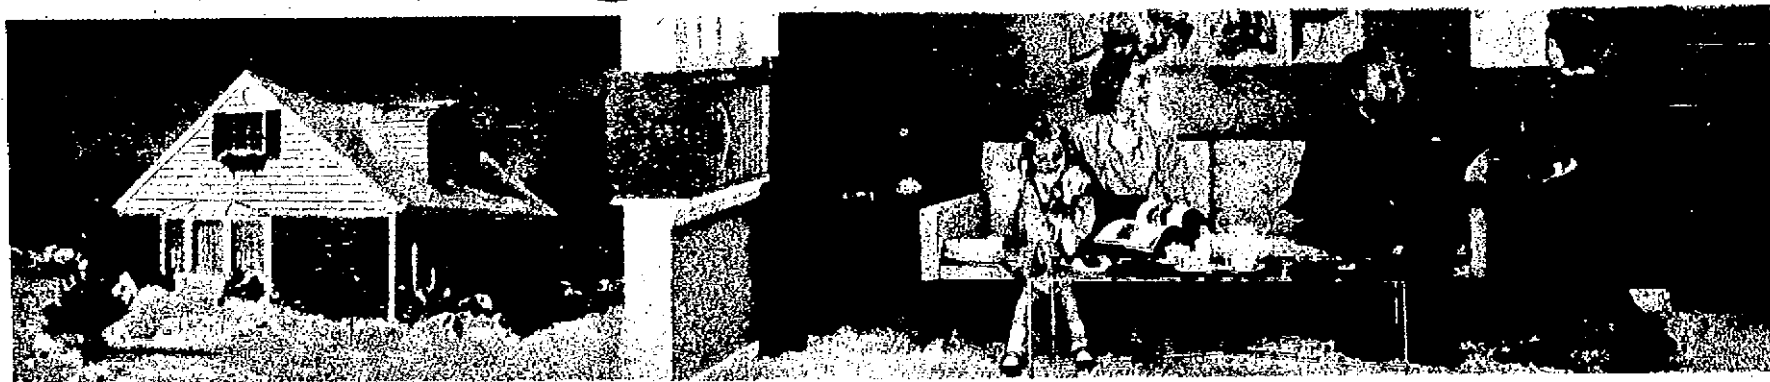

She plays trumpet in a remarkable new symphonic ensemble called the All-Grandmother Orchestra, now rehearsing here for a debut concert. It was formed by Jean Wald, retired theatrical agent and onetime band leader. She had known many women musicians in show business. One day she asked: why shouldn't they still be making use of their talents?

After months of scouting for former outstanding players, Miss Wald got an orchestra together. Today "her" grandmothers are starting a new life.

To these able musicians, age is no barrier

The musical grandmothers, ranging in age from 41 to 78, are all former professionals. Some now are music teachers or copyists for arrangers. One solos in a cocktail lounge, another is a photographer's model. Still others are clerks, saleswomen or stenographers.

Under the baton of James Shelton, 32-year-old Hollywood musician, the orchestra is shaping up into a "pop" ensemble, with a repertoire ranging from light opera to rock 'n' roll. Radio and television dates are being set.

Happily back in the world they love, the grandmothers use suitable introduction music—When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver—and an even after theme song: Young at Heart. ■

FIDDLE sings again under fingers of distinguished-looking Marguerite Moss, 72, once a specialty-act headliner. Ensemble also includes song-and-dance "girls," a comedienne.

DRUMS vibrate with life under the agile hands of the orchestra's "baby," Jean Lutey, aged 41.

CAREFREE SMILE hides possible concern over his successor as Nikita Khrushchev, current boss of all the Russias, waves from train window after a visit to East Berlin. With him is Anastas Mikoyan, a possible candidate for the post.

If Khrushchev died tomorrow...

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The four words which form the title of this article pose perhaps the most intriguing, most vital question now facing the world's statesmen. Intriguing because, to borrow a Churchillian phrase, the inner workings of the Russian political-machine remain "a riddle wrapped in an enigma." Vital because any sudden change in the Russian leadership must have a profound effect on the temperature of the cold war. It could produce a startling thaw, or a return to the sub-zero temperatures of Stalin's last days.

Every envoy in Washington (and 80 countries are represented here) is watching the signs, comparing discreet opinions and tidbits of information. It is a jigsaw puzzle whose pieces change shape from day to day according to the news from Moscow. But like most jigsaw puzzles, it has an overall pattern. To find it, PARADE talked to State Department officials, allied and neutral diplomats, intelligence agents, even representatives of Communist countries.

This, in brief, is the picture which has emerged. If Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev died tomorrow...

- The Presidium, the 13-man inner core of the Communist Party, would rule by "collective government" (as after Stalin's death) until a new strong man emerged.
- Russian pressure for a Summit meeting would probably diminish overnight.
- New attempts to bully the neutral nations of the Middle East and Asia could be expected.
- Within Russia and her satellites, a drastic step-up in war propaganda would be almost certain.
- There would be no basic change in long-range Soviet goals.

No Line of Succession

Most of these would be signs of nervousness, not a reaction against Khrushchev's policies. For the central fact is that the Soviet political machine, which holds nearly 200 million people in thrall in Russia alone, has no line of succession for the replacement of a leader.

If a U.S. President dies or becomes incapacitated, the Vice President takes over. If a premier dies in a democracy such as Britain, his deputy assumes power until new elections can be held. In any case, national policies and commitments are continuous.

Not so in the Soviet Union. Just as nobody knew what would happen after Stalin, today nobody knows what will happen after Khrushchev. The latter was himself a dark horse who suddenly came up on the rails to beat the favorites. The Western world knew little about him until, in quick succession, he toppled Beria, Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich, the great Marshal Zhukov and finally his running-mate Bulganin. Now, like Stalin, he stands alone on the peak of the Soviet pyramid. But the peak is a perilous place.

First, what are the chances that Khrushchev may die? He was 64 last month. He comes of tough peasant stock, takes good care of his health. He has a reputation for being a heavy drinker, but it is more simulated than real. (Most of his party indiscretions have been carefully thought out in advance.) And he has cut down heavily on the vodka. Most doctors would give him a good bill of health for his age. Yet he is no more immune than the next man to heart failure (he is obviously overweight), a stroke, the wiles of his enemies — or an assassin's bullet.

As you read this, he may well take a look at the

MIKHAIL SUSLOV, like Mikoyan, has a chance to succeed Khrushchev.

FROL KOZLOV has a modest edge in the great succession sweepstakes.

ALEXEI KIRICHENKO looks most likely to give Kozlov a close race.

Khrushchev, Bulganin, Kaganovich, Malenkov, Molotov — and one man who still has at least some power: Mikoyan.

Who would run Russia? Would Soviet policies change? Would the U. S. be affected? This exclusive forecast has the answers men around him, at the machinery they can manipulate, and wonder: "After me, who?" Reportedly he is grooming his successor — but the process is unfinished, and in Russia no dictator can be sure his protégés will outlive him. As of today, the man most likely to succeed Khrushchev is one of four close associates. Two are of the Old Guard, men about his own age, who like him have come up the hard way through the treacherous labyrinths of the Communist hierarchy. Two are of the New Guard, his own elected. All are important in Russia.

The "Big Four"

Those of the Old Guard are Anastas I. Mikoyan, a first deputy Prime Minister, and Mikhail A. Suslov, a high Communist Party official. Both are extremely powerful, but have certain weaknesses. Mikoyan, a trade expert, is an Armenian. Coming from such a small minority group, he can have little hope of ruling Russia alone. Suslov is a man of tremendous ambition but is tainted with Stalinism — the harsh, almost reactionary attitude that was Stalin's hallmark. As of now, he has no broad base of support either among the Party officials or in government circles.

Those of the New Guard are Frol Kozlov, 50, who shares with Mikoyan the rank of a first deputy Premier, and Party leader Alexei Kirichenko, also 50, as close to Khrushchev as any man can be in the cold Kremlin. Khrushchev has boosted both up the Communist ladder for services rendered in his own climb to power. So far as Kremlin intrigue is concerned, they are men to be reckoned with.

Kozlov, white-haired and handsome, looks not unlike a younger John Foster Dulles. He was a big wheel in Leningrad and personally conducted the removal of Malenkov's friends in that key city when Khrushchev became the big boss. His reward: the premiership of European Russia, most important of the Soviet "republics." Later, when Khrushchev took over supreme control, Kozlov was swiftly moved up to his present post. Kirichenko, once a tractor driver, has been associated with Khrushchev for 20 years. They first joined up when Khrushchev took over an 11-year leadership of their native Ukraine, and their stars have followed a parallel rise.

It is among these four men — Mikoyan and Suslov, Kozlov and Kirichenko — that the struggle would rage if anything happened to Khrushchev. None of the experts believe Malenkov or Molotov could stage a comeback from their exiles — Malenkov as manager of a power station in Siberia, Molotov from his minor diplomatic post in Outer Mongolia. Bulganin has even less political strength. Marshal Zhukov is a figure of mystery, still loved by the Army but probably unable to raise sufficient support for a coup.

There are four main ways to power in Russia: through the ranks of government bureaucrats, through the Communist Party, through the Army and through the Secret Police. Of these the Party line is the most important, and Khrushchev, an old Party plotter, intends to keep it that way. The main Party body is the Central Committee with 255 members, of whom only 130 have a vote. Khrushchev knows how to seize and hold those votes. Then comes the Presidium.

How to Fool the Masses

If Khrushchev died, the Presidium would be the focus of "collective government" — but not for long. The power struggle would start all over again. It would be during this period of indecision, claim the experts, that the cold war would be intensified. The purpose would be to divert the attention of the Russian people from the wranglings of their rulers. To know that ambitious and ruthless men once more were striving for control might begin to sap Russian faith in Communism, arouse desires for a more stable form of government. But a call to patriotism almost never fails to weld any nation together. Thus the West would be made a target to distract the masses' attention.

Fear of revealing weakness to the West would, it is believed, clamp the brake suddenly on negotiations for a Summit meeting. It is one thing for a supreme leader like Khrushchev to meet the Western leaders across a table and make commitments. It is another for an uneasy team, hardly broken into harness.

Khrushchev, who has bitter memories of Stalin's tyranny and the upheaval which followed his death, is known to have taken precautions against any of his henchmen building up private empires. Under Stalin, for example, the evil Beria had control of the secret police, Malenkov the Party and Molotov foreign affairs. When Stalin died, each was a power in himself.

Beria made a backstage bid for the top job. Zhukov rallied the Army, surrounded Moscow with tanks and canceled out the secret police. Beria was arrested and executed. The politicians breathed again, but they had learned a valuable lesson. Never again would they lose control of physical force. The men with the guns would be kept in their place as the servants, not the masters, of the Kremlin. Today Serov, the new secret police chief, is little more than a lackey, and no military marshal struts the stage.

How well do the four key men under Khrushchev get along? State Department experts say they appear to be friendly enough and there seems to be much less plotting in the Kremlin than of old. The best guess is that Khrushchev is too firmly in the saddle for the Old Guard of Suslov and Mikoyan to tackle. And the New Guard have nothing to gain by attempting to shift him. Every day that he lives gives them time to do what he did himself: gather their own protégés around them, ensure their loyalty with the pick of Party jobs, get them made voting members of the Central Committee and the Presidium. Kozlov and Kirichenko do not want a showdown now.

But if and when the showdown comes, the two K's will be making the headlines. As of today Kozlov probably has the inside track — but the race ahead will be long and hard.

STRAWBERRY-PINEAPPLE MOLD

8-Cup Mold
2 packages strawberry flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 9-oz. can crushed pineapple
Cold water
1 pint fresh strawberries, washed and hulled
1 cup Evaporated Milk, chilled
icy cold in refrigerator tray
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Chill bowl and beaters. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Drain liquid from pineapple. Add cold water to make 2 cups; add to gelatin. Measure gelatin mixture into two portions approximately 2¼ cups and 1¼ cups. Chill. Arrange strawberries in bottom and around edge of 8-cup mold. Hold out ten berries for garnish. When smaller portion gelatin is partially set, spoon over berries in mold. Chill until firm. Beat Evaporated Milk in chilled bowl until thick. Add lemon juice. Beat until it is stiff and will hold a peak. Add crushed pineapple to remaining 2¼ cup portion of partially set gelatin. Fold whipped Evaporated Milk into this. Spoon onto strawberry layer in mold. Chill until firm, four hours or more. Turn onto plate. Garnish with berries.

Note: 1 package (1 lb.) frozen whole strawberries may be used. Thaw and drain, saving liquid. Add strawberry liquid to pineapple liquid; add water to make 2 cups. Add liquid to dissolved gelatin and use as above. Arrange strawberries in bottom of mold. Cover with the 1¼ cups slightly thickened gelatin.

DONATIONS from shoe stores for possible NOSE use make a welcome pile in Mrs. Feldman's living room.

When two lefts can

Thousands of unfortunate people have one foot larger than the other. This California woman solves their need: shoes

by CHARLES G. FRANCIS

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

A pretty blonde, working as a railroad ticket saleswoman in Chicago, recently gave her employers a shock. She refused to accept a promotion to chief receptionist in the office of the company president. Quizzed by her puzzled supervisor, she burst into tears.

"It's my shoes," she sobbed. "They're so plain and ugly. Nobody sees them when I'm at the ticket window. But in the front office, meeting people, I'd be just miserable!"

Through the years, by purchasing

two pairs of shoes at the same time — one 5AA and one 7B — she had managed to keep shod. She could wear only one shoe from each pair and had to throw the mismates away. This doubled shoe costs, forcing her to purchase cheap footwear, often in unfashionable colors and styles. And she often wore shoes long after they should have been discarded.

Problem Answered

Now, thanks to the help of a unique organization called the National Odd Shoe Exchange, the young woman has taken the receptionist job and is being groomed for a better one. She learned about the Exchange shortly after she had turned down the receptionist position. Through it she got in touch with a young Des Moines housewife who had the same foot problem in reverse — 5AA shoe on her right foot, 7B on her left. The two women simply exchanged the shoes they once had thrown away. And the receptionist now visits Des Moines regularly to meet her "sole mate" for a joint shoe-buying spree.

These women are typical of thousands of persons who have been helped by the National Odd Shoe Exchange. Founded in St. Louis in 1943 by Mrs. Ruth Rubin Feldman, who now lives here, NOSE (as Mrs. Feldman calls it) has the motto: "When Odd Shoes Are Left, To Trade Them Is Right."

Pleasant, red-haired and a registered occupational therapist, Mrs. Feldman knows the problem of mismatched feet from personal experience. At 10 she was stricken with polio and left with one foot smaller than the other. She couldn't afford custom-made shoes. Buying two pairs at a time was a financial hardship. The rationing of World War II made it worse.

"I got to wondering," she says, "if there weren't others like me who, because of injuries, disease, accidents or amputations, had shoe problems."

To find out, Ruth obtained a list of the members of a St. Louis polio club and mailed out 200 postcards. She offered to help people needing odd-sized shoes to get together and trade.

"The response," she says, "was immediate and overwhelming. I found myself with a going project on my hands."

Today, NOSE has some 5,000 members in all 48 states and several foreign countries, and is growing steadily. They come from many walks of life and financial status. Mrs. Feldman has arranged for swaps of almost every kind of shoe made, from strapless evening sandals to $100 cowboy boots.

Love and Marriage

Many inquiries come from hospitals and other organizations in behalf of patients or members. Every amputee is a candidate for NOSE, because a shoe on a good leg will wear out three times as fast as a shoe on an artificial leg.

For a $2 annual registration fee, which just about covers Mrs. Feldman's overhead, NOSE members receive the names of several potential swappers. These are nearby if possible, though not always. A telephone operator in Honolulu trades shoes regularly with a coed in Boston — 8,000 miles away.

Such swapping often leads to warm friendships, or even more. Once a young woman in Nashville asked her salesman brother to visit her "shoe pal" the next time he was in Atlanta. He did, fell in love and married the girl.

Then there was the depressed Korean veteran in Philadelphia. With one leg amputated, he used to burn his extra shoe whenever he purchased a new pair. "An emotional orgy of self-pity," he calls it. "I couldn't stand that extra shoe in the closet staring at me."

Through NOSE, he located another amputee in Trenton, N.J., who could use his spare shoe. His moodiness evaporated, he found a job with an insurance company and soon became his former self. He credits NOSE with the mental "lift" that made this possible.

In general, men are more of a problem in matching feet than women. An ex-infantryman from Virginia wanted to trade combat boots, no special trick until you consider the size: 13½ EE.

The National Odd Shoe Exchange has won Ruth Feldman a legion of friends. At Christmas a shower of cards and gifts descends upon her. When NOSE members take a trip to California, they often stop here just to say "Thanks."

Blue Suede Splurge

Her own "sole mate" is Millie Cummings, a former nurse in Burbank, Calif. They get together whenever one of them feels a need for new footgear.

"Trading shoes can be a real adventure," she says. "I'd never worn blue suede shoes — too expensive. But one day Millie suggested blue suede and we went out and splurged. I feel like Mrs. Rockefeller every time I wear them!"

For one reason or another, NOSE members sometimes drop from the rolls. But they don't usually stay away long. A young lady in Maryland recently wired Mrs. Feldman and apologized for falling behind in the fee payment.

"Being married soon," the telegram continued. "Want to start buying my trousseau. Please put my feet back in your file."

If you're interested in joining the National Odd Shoe Exchange, here's how:

- 1) Write to Mrs. Ruth Rubin Feldman, 1415 Ocean Front, Santa Monica, Calif. Enclose $2.
- 2) By return mail she will send you a registration form.
- 3) Fill out and return this form. Mrs. Feldman will match it up with other foot-troubled people and send their names and addresses to you. ■

Rearing, Mustafa works his feet into outsize pajama arms at owner Schumann's command.

Nuzzling, Mustafa is rewarded with a sugar lump.

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK.

Perhaps aware of the fact that royal Arab blood runs in his veins, Mustafa, the stallion shown in these photos, disdains to sleep in the raw like ordinary horses. Instead he sleeps in pajamas — tops only — in a bed close to 12' long.

Actually, this pajama game is part of Mustafa's act as top attraction of the Max Schumann circus. In an extraordinary feat of training, Schumann's wife, Vivi, taught the 8-year-old stallion how to get into the nightwear, lie down on a special bed and appear to sleep.

Mustafa really needs a pajama top. As Schumann explains with a straight face, he always kicks off the covers.

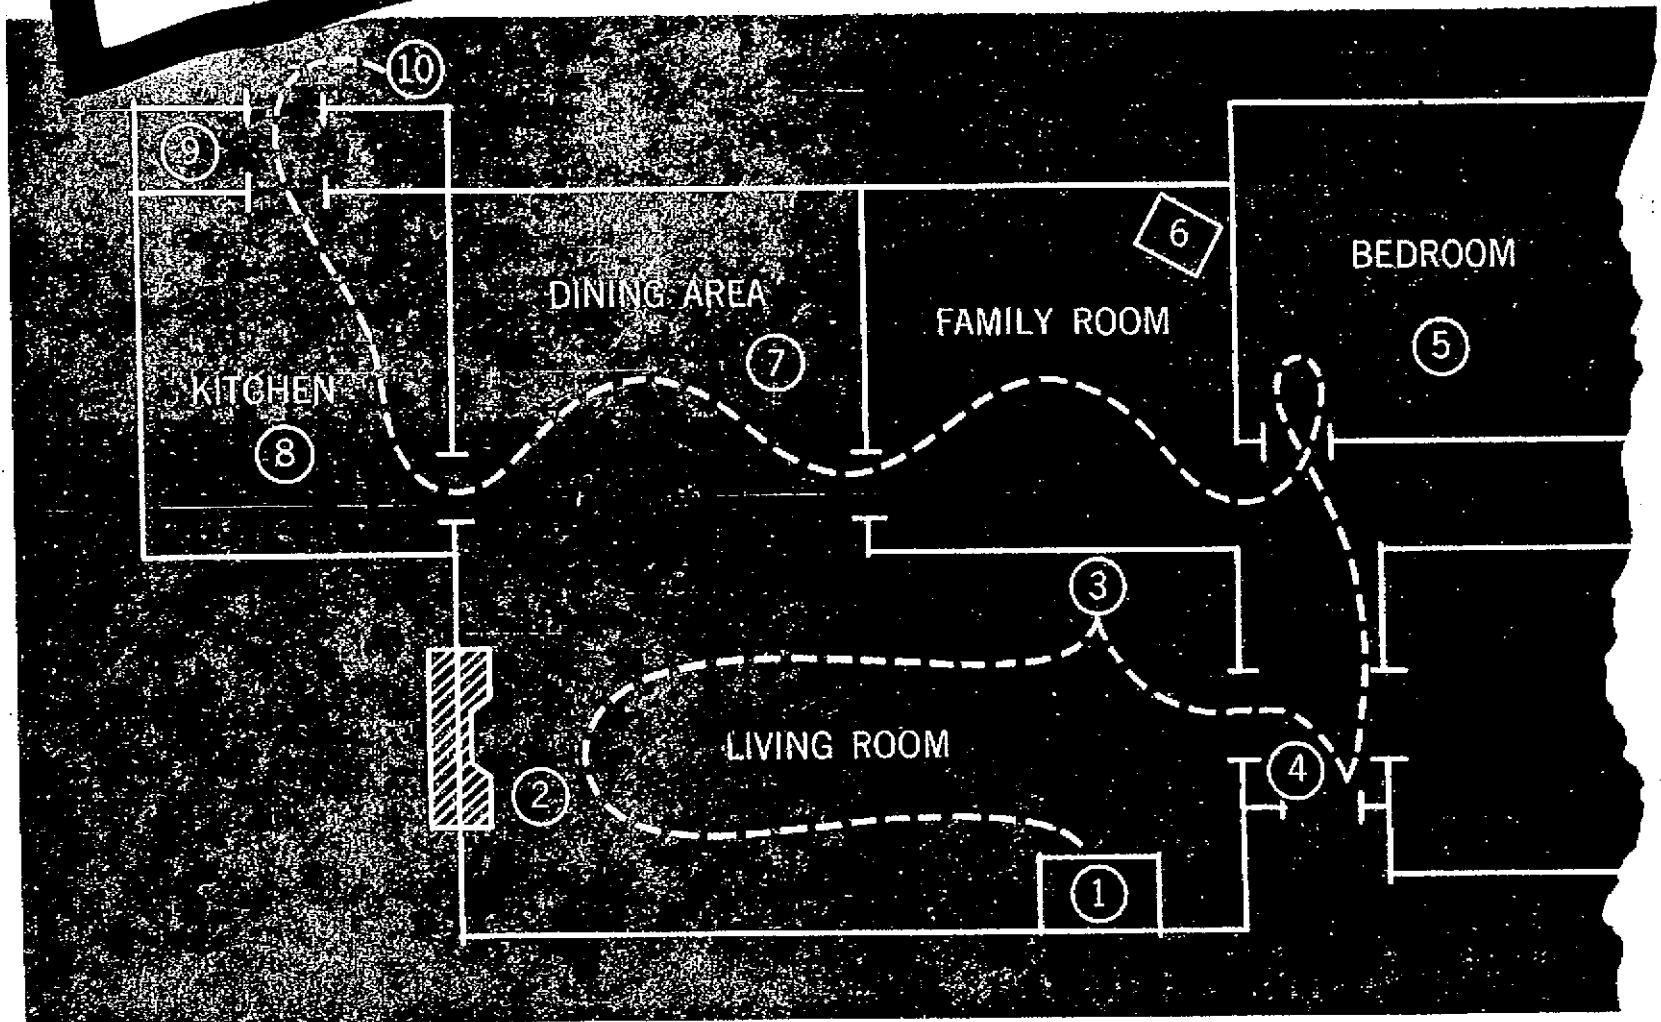

Climaxing his act, Mustafa stretches out with feet dutifully drawn up, head on pillow.

Scene: The Nelson home. Time: A Saturday evening

1 The desk where Mr. Nelson opened his month-end bills and wrote an indignant letter to the electric company, protesting against their advertising that electricity gives more value for every dollar than any other item in the family budget.

2 Where Mr. Nelson looked at the electric clock over the mantel to see if he had time to mail his letter before dinner.

3 The hi-fi set that he turned off as he left the living room.

4 Where Mr. N. paused to see if the porch light should be turned on to guide the dinner guests.

5 His daughter's bedroom where he stopped a moment to watch her drying her hair with the electric hair dryer and admire the dress she had just ironed for her date.

6 The TV, with Junior parked in front of it watching "Masked Riders of the Range."

7 The electric coffeemaker and toaster, ready and waiting to do dinner duty.

8 The all-electric kitchen, where dinner was cooking and Mrs. Nelson was taking trays of tinkling ice cubes from the refrigerator—and where the electric dishwasher and clotheswasher and dryer were waiting to do the clean-up chores ahead.

9 The back porch, where Mr. N. paused to think things over—realizing that his family was putting electricity to work in dozens of ways all over the house... ways he often forgot. So maybe the electric company was right about the value of his service.

A SCIENTIST YOU SHOULD KNOW...

Wonderful Willie from Brookhaven

He's an electronics expert who can play the accordion, call a square dance and 'do anything with an egg'

SCIENTIST AT HOME: As Willie Higinbotham squeezes out Wearing of the Green, his whole family—(l. to r.) Robin, 5; Mrs. Higinbotham; Billy, 2; Julie, 7—joins in.

Scientist at work: Willie checks "memory tubes" of a computer being built at Brookhaven.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

UPTON, N.Y.

"Willie, there's a call for you. Extension 248."

In the Electronics Building of Brookhaven National Laboratories here, an otherwise dignified secretary is speaking. The "Willie" in question is William Higginbotham, 47, 5'4", 125 lbs. and bespectacled, one of the army of American scientists whose work has helped shape the world. He also is the secretary's boss.

This seemingly casual use of his first name ("Almost everyone calls me Willie") is deceptive. Higginbotham played a major role in World War II radar discoveries, invented an ingenious device to "listen" to radioactivity, helped fashion the first A-bomb, worked tirelessly for peaceful adaptation of atom energy. For 11 years he has headed the instrumentation division of Brookhaven, a group of laboratories run by nine Eastern universities for research (much of it classified) in many fields. In this job Willie supervises production of instruments for all Brookhaven.

Some of the instruments are almost incredibly complex, such as a digital computer now under construction. Others, like a device to measure the blood pressure of mice, are what Willie calls "simple."

Willie himself is far from simple. On the job he might remind you of TV's "Mr. Peepers." But at home, in nearby Bellport, he likes nothing better than to strap on his accordion and sing — loudly — with family or friends. "I like pop and folk music," he says. His repertoire runs from Bluetail Fly to Mood Indigo.

The Lawn Brigade

Or you might find Willie — accordion and all — at Brookhaven Labs calling an after-hours square dance for some of his fellow-toilers.

Willie also likes to cook. His approach is to go to the refrigerator, take out everything in sight and start "mixing stuff together." This once resulted in what Mrs. Higginbotham refers to as the most unusual creamed clipped beef she ever ate. Undaunted, Willie says he can "do anything with an egg and make it taste good."

When he is preoccupied with lab problems, Willie sometimes comes home and impresses his three small children by working at their toy blackboard. But their biggest thrill comes when Willie decides to cut the lawn. He hitches a sulky to his power mower, ties two little red wagons to the sulky, sets the children in the wagons, sits in the sulky — and off they go.

Willie himself is one of six children. He was born in Bridgeport, Conn. "My father was a Presbyterian minister, and so we moved a good deal," he recalls. At Williams College he majored in physics — "because it was easy for me." Then, because the depression was on, he did graduate work at Cornell for four years.

Thereafter he worked as a technician in the Cornell

NOTHING...smooths, softens, satinizes skin better than Lanolin Plus Liquid

Exclusive formula. 5 times richer in pure lanolin, begins where nature leaves off. to help skin stay gloriously young

To look young and radiant, your skin needs a steady supply of vital oils. But, as skin matures, nature often becomes stingy with these oils. Then come dryness, lines and wrinkles.

That's when you need LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID. Its exclusive patented formula contains five times more lanolin than any other cosmetic. It restores to dry skin nature's closest duplication of your own skin oils. At its touch, your skin becomes petal soft ... so fresh, so smooth, younger looking. Use LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID as cleanser, make-up base, night conditioner. Five-times-richer LANOLIN PLUS LIQUID is also the ingredient in all LANOLIN PLUS Aids to Beauty.

When this scientist talks about America, statesmen listen

physics department until World War II, when he joined the Radiation Laboratory staff of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as an electronics specialist. Electronics is a tough word for some, but Willie has a workable definition: "Electronics involves circuits, vacuum tubes and other equipment to measure, count or perform some other needed task. This means about 25 per cent of an atom sub, 50 per cent of a modern military airplane, almost 100 per cent of the ground equipment for launching guided missiles and lots of the makings of your TV set."

In 1941, Willie and a team of scientists were assigned to a hush-hush radar project. Less than a year later, American planes were flying with the first airborne radar. The viewing scope in their planes was largely Willie's work. At MIT he also helped design an outstanding electronic bombsight.

In December, 1943, Willie shifted to Los Alamos, N.M., to work on the atomic bomb. He oversaw the design of an electronic device which, in effect, "pulled the trigger" of the A-bomb. He also invented the Higinbotham Scaler, which counts impulses given off by radiation and is used in Geiger counters. Friends say he mentally firmed this up while tossing sleeplessly after a big dinner of lobster, his favorite food.

A Move to Washington

After World War II, Willie took his deep convictions to Washington (at the behest of atomic-science groups), to help inform the U.S. of the peacetime implications of atomic energy. He stayed two years, long enough to work with the late Sen. Brien McMahon on a bill which created the Atomic Energy Commission.

In addition, Willie helped man the National Committee on Atomic Information, which disseminated facts to the U.S. public about the atom. He was a founder and first chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, a nation-wide group which now boasts more than 2,000 members.

Gradually Willie Higinbotham emerged as a scientist to whom statesmen listened. They still are listening, even though he mostly has been away from Washington since 1947, when he accepted his present job. Here are some of the subjects he feels strongly about:

On continued testing of A- and H-bombs: "Such tests should stop if all the world's major powers agreed to this as part of overall disarmament."

On the present world-wide arms race: "It makes war much more likely. With more arms available, irrational actions on the part of nations are far more likely to occur."

On government secrecy and classification: "Sometimes it's necessary. Generally speaking, it is overdone. Science should be kept largely free of classification. Secrecy in the fusion [hydrogen] field has delayed . . . practical applications for H-power."

The Task Ahead

On scientific manpower today: "We should be concerned about our needs. It is true that the Russians are ahead of us in certain areas. But we shouldn't over-concentrate on getting scientists and engineers. We must develop a citizenry mentally and morally able to cope with international problems and issues here at home. Most important, the citizenry should be able to understand and safeguard our American heritage and freedoms."

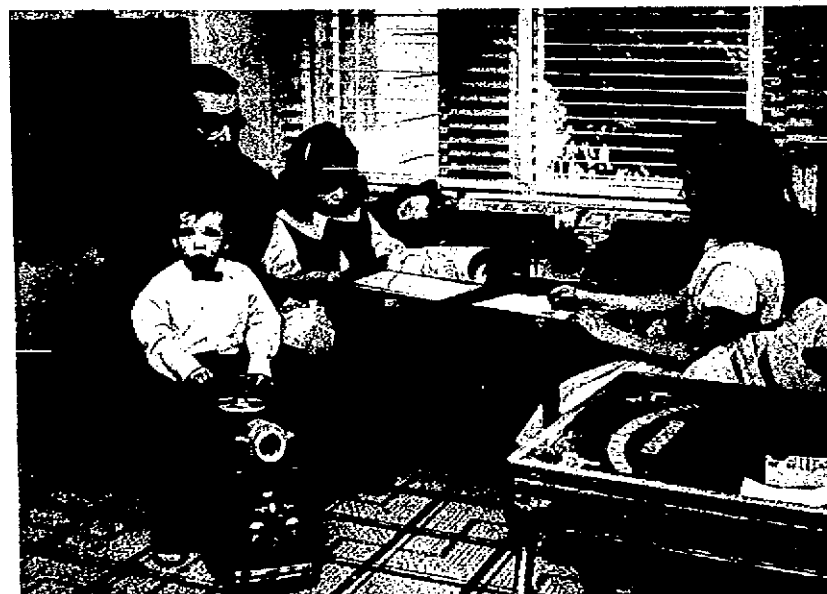

"These are, after all, precious possessions which our enemies cannot offer their people."

This is Willie Higinbotham and these are some of his views. They may not be brought to your attention again, for scientists are uncomfortable in the spotlight. It distracts them. And right now, Willie has a project he wants to get on with.

He's working on ways to measure the speed at which atoms emit radiation, down to one-billionth of a second. What may result? New frontiers in the use of atom power for weapons — and for peacetime electricity.

COMBING Robin's hair is a common chore for Willie. He has also become quite adept at diapering.

ANSWERING a question from Julie interrupts Willie's "homework" for a moment. In bringing problems home with him, he also finds he thinks well pattering in the garden.

PARADE VACATION

PANNING FOR GOLD helps visitors to visualize Denver's mining-camp past. Here the Newberrys of Tennessee—Debbie, Carolyn, Karen, George—try their luck. Yield: one piece of ore.

Denver: A city to

You'll know your America better when you know its

by ED KIESTER

NEW FRIEND for Karen and Debbie Newberry is a Denver Zoo calf named April.

DENVER, COLO.

A few years ago, the late historian Bernard DeVoto referred to this city as the "most cosmopolitan" of U.S. cities. The same week, building tycoon William Zeckendorf implied it was just a "cow town." To the vacationing Newberry family of Knoxville, Tenn., Denver is both. A city of contrasts, with a Wild West past and a space-age future, Denver seems to catch in its streets the breadth of history.

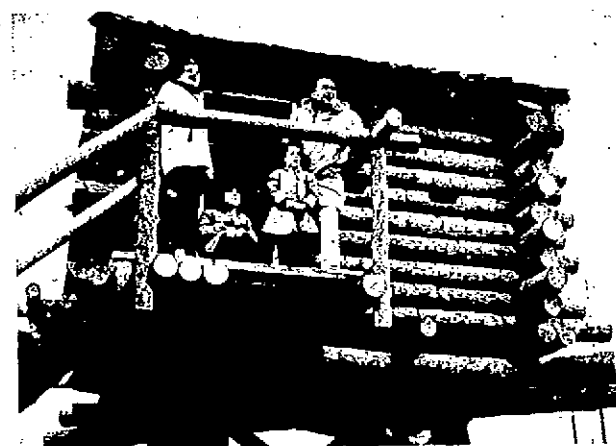

The Newberrys — George, Carolyn, Karen, 7, and Debbie, 4—spent a few days here recently as part of their vacation. They visited the grave of Buffalo Bill Cody. They panned for gold (with minor success) in nearby Turkey Creek. They visited Denver's antique, gold-plated State Capitol.

Contrasted with these mementos of Denver's past, they learned that, in Denver's back yard, the Air Force is building its weapon of the future — the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile.

Denver was founded 99 years ago, a slapdash mining camp born of the Colorado gold boom. As it grew, Denver became territorial capital, then state capital. It became mining headquarters, stockmen's headquarters, oil headquarters, banking headquarters. After its first splash, Denver settled down to quiet growth, then mushroomed again after World War II.

COLORADO CAPITOL makes a background for this family shot. The 15th step of its west entrance is exactly one mile above sea level.

CAVALRY FORT is a feature of Magic Mountain, a Disneyland-type amusement-education venture opening outside Denver this summer.

remember

unique cities—like this one

Today it is a city of half a million, with a metropolitan-area population of 800,000.

In the story of that growth the Newberrys found a lesson about their country. The expansion of the U.S. from wilderness to world giant has been led by its great cities. As Denver grew from mining camp to metropolis, your own city and other cities grew and America grew. The cities made America and America made the cities. Denver is not unusual but typical.

And yet, the Newberrys found, Denver is in many ways unique. Perhaps the explanation is that Denver is a city on the high plains facing the majestic Rocky Mountains. It is a cluster of buildings in the midst of the wide-open spaces.

On their visit to Denver, the Newberrys spent much of their time in the wide-open spaces. They capitalized on Denver's far-flung system of mountain parks. The most famous of these, 20 miles from downtown, is the Park of the Red Rocks, where a 10,000-seat amphitheater, boasting perfect acoustics, has been hewn from the rock. The Newberrys attended a Denver Symphony Orchestra concert there. Musical programs are held regularly during July and August and most guests eat picnic suppers while they listen.

George Newberry, a college instructor, is an ardent hunter and fisherman, and he is training his daughters

YOUR RECIPE FOR

Mile-High Lemonade Chiffon Pie

CRUST:

Melt 3 tablesp. Butter or Margarine in a 10-in. skillet. Add 1½ cups Coconut (about 4 oz.) and stir over medium heat until coconut is golden brown. Press mixture firmly on bottom and sides of 9-in. pie pan. Let stand at room temperature until cool.

FILLING:

Chill 1 cup PET Evaporated Milk in ice tray until almost frozen around edges. In a 3-qt. bowl soften 1 envelope Knox Unflavored Gelatine in ¼ cup Cold Water. Add ½ cup Boiling Water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add ½ cup Sugar and 6-oz. can Frozen Lemonade Concentrate. Stir until lemonade thaws, then chill until mixture is very thick, but not set. Put ice-cold PET Milk into a cold 1-qt. bowl. Whip with cold rotary beater by hand, or with electric beater at high speed, until stiff. Fold into chilled gelatine mixture. Put into coconut crust. Chill until firm, about 3 hrs.

RED ROCKS AMPHITHEATER, a natural outdoor arena in the foothills west of Denver, seats some

to love the outdoors as he does. One of his "must" stops was at Genesee Mountain Park, also part of the mountain parks system, where buffalo, elk and deer live and even pose for photographs.

Another trip took the family up a winding, spectacular road to Lookout Mountain, where Buffalo Bill is buried, and a third to Lake Evergreen, where George played golf. The mountain parks system also has 20 other areas, with something for every taste, including ski areas, campsites, picnic facilities and boating.

Denver brings its feel for open spaces even into the heart of the city. City Park, in the midtown section, has one of the West's most complete zoos and a highly rated Museum of Natural History. Like many zoos, the Denver model boasts a children's section and here Debbie struck up an enduring friendship with a burro named Lulu Belle.

Downtown Contrasts

In Denver's downtown district, the Newberrys found, the contrasts of the city show up most vividly. At Colfax Ave. and Broadway, the city's main corner, Denver's sentimental reverence for its past and faith in its future are symbolized side by side.

On one hand, the Newberrys saw the State Capitol, massive and classical in style, with a dome coated with $22,000 worth of gold. On the other hand, they saw Denver's new downtown skyline, made over in the space of just five years. (Incidentally, Zeckendorf changed his mind about the "cow town" sufficiently to build a new Radio City-type development and a new hotel.)

The Newberrys ate dinner in Denver's world-famous hotel, the ornate, mid-Victorian Brown Palace. In the lobby they saw women in evening gowns and men in tails — and cowboys in jeans and boots.

Denver has other lures: minor-league baseball; horse and greyhound racing; the Rocky Mountain News "Showwagon," which takes troupes of entertainers from park to park; the famous amusement park, Elitch's Gardens, which houses the nation's oldest summer-stock theater; good restaurants and quiet night clubs. The Newberrys sampled all they had time for.

A recent study of vacation spending in Denver shows that a family of four will spend about $30 a day for rooms, meals, transportation, souvenirs and incidentals. Motels — most now come equipped with swimming pools and TV — cost about $10 to $20 for four. Meals are about $1 to $1.50 for lunch, and a steak in the evening usually is in the $3.50 bracket. But most of the public attractions cost nothing.

A listing of Denver's attractions probably doesn't sound too different from your own city's. Perhaps it shouldn't. Perhaps it simply takes a visitor from another part of the country to see this city with fresh eyes, as the Newberrys did.

Love That Sunshine

And yet, George Newberry would insist, Denver is different. Maybe it's the climate — sunshine is the rule, the air is dry, and there is no smog. Maybe it's the surroundings — like the Newberrys, many vacationing families settle on Denver as a headquarters from which to explore the attractions of the West. Maybe it's simply the quality of the city and the people which seems to say, "Welcome, stranger."

If you want to know more about Denver, start by writing for information from the Colorado Visitors Bureau, 225 W. Colfax Ave., Denver, Colo. Here on the plains at the edge of the mountains you may find a few days — or weeks — of vacation fun, and a lesson about America for the whole family. ■

It's the old-fashioned kind, but so easy you can make it 'from scratch'

by BETH MERRIMAN

Parade food editor

When you're in the mood, it's fun to whip up a cake "from scratch." How about one of those mother used to make? They taste just as good as you remember them — and they're surprisingly easy to put together. A case in point is the kind of chocolate cake that is almost black, with moist, spongy texture and a rich, full taste of real chocolate. This recipe, requested by today's cooking standards, proves amazingly thrifty. The rich frosting, another old favorite, does add to the cost — and to the calorie count — but it's worth it. Try it for yourself and see why.

FUDGE CAKE

- 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
- 1 cup boiling water, divided
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add ½ cup boiling water; stir until custard-like in consistency. Remove from heat. Add sugar and salad oil; mix well. Beat egg; add. Mix and sift dry ingredients; stir in. Add vanilla. Add remaining boiling water. Bake in greased 8" square cake pan (350°) 45 to 50 minutes. Cool on cake rack. Split into two layers. Fill and frost.

Mocha Frosting

Cream ¼ cup butter or margarine; add 1½ cups confectioners' sugar (10X) while continuing to cream. Melt 1½ squares (1½ oz.) unsweetened chocolate over hot water; add. Add 1½ cups confectioners' sugar and enough strong cold coffee to make frosting fluffy and easy to spread. Makes enough to fill and frost 8" layer cake.

One good degree deserves another

FORMER PRESIDENT Harry S. Truman has an honorary degree from Oxford — though he never did undergraduate college work.

ACTRESS Katherine Cornell is a leader of stage people with 10 degrees. Typical citation called her "Great savior of art..."

EDUCATOR most honored by his fellows is Dr. Harold W. Dodds, retired president of Princeton. He holds 26 honorary degrees.

...or so it appears, now that honorary-awards time is here

Whatever the temperature during the next month, one thing is certain: there will be plenty of degrees in the air. For this is the season when American universities indulge their urge to bestow honorary degrees on the nation's distinguished sons and daughters. And 1958 should see the urge reach a new peak. Says E. R. Moore, head of the largest firm supplying academic garb for these occasions: "We are custom-tailoring more hoods for honoraries this year than ever before."

No matter who wins the most degrees this season, the all-time record-holder won't be threatened. His name is Herbert Clark Hoover, and only last month his 84th degree was scheduled — a scroll and citation from the University of the State of New York. Among Mr. Hoover's rare academic prizes are an honorary medical degree from Jagellonian University of Cracow, Poland, and an honorary diploma from the Argentine School of Music and Declamation.

The former President's nearest contender, Ralph Bunche, has 49 degrees and some cordial citations. ("People are his chief concern and nations are his classroom," bubbled Boston University in 1954.) After Bunche comes Charles F. Kettering, inventor, former president of General Motors and co-founder of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research. He gets his 40th scroll this spring.

Leading Ladies

Mildred McAfee Horton, wartime head of the WAVES and former president of Wellesley College, holds 24 honoraries — apparently tops on the female side. Eleanor Roosevelt, who might be thought to rank high, lists just one, from Russell Sage College (Troy, N. Y.) in 1929.

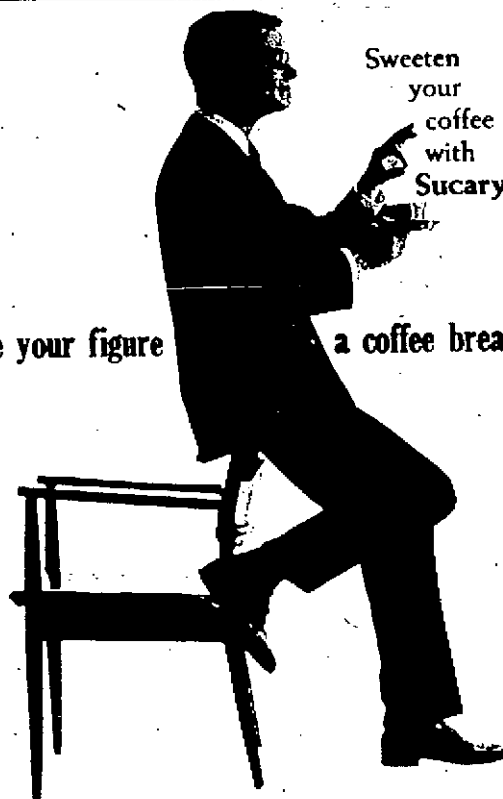

All this is symbolic of American democracy. Lacking government honor societies to reward notable citizens (such as Britain's Knights of the Bath), the U. S. has been doing it via sheepskin salutes ever since Harvard conferred our first honorary degree in the 17th century. Today the larger universities try to hold down honoraries to a select eight or 10 a year. But with 1,500-odd institutions of higher learning in the country, the annual total runs to thousands.

One characteristic of many honoraries is a tendency toward word-intoxication. Poet Carl Sandburg has been a particular victim. "Migratory songster of the prairies, whose stark, pungent, vibrant and whimsical verses have caught and cased in amber forevermore the idiom and spirit of mid-America..." That's what his scroll from New York University says.

By contrast, consider songwriter Cole Porter. From Princeton University he got this terse accolade: "We may well characterize him by the title of one of his own songs: You're the Top."

What will 1958 produce? Wait and see.

Know the new secret of balancing your baby's menu?

Ever try to disguise baby's "un-favorite" foods by mixing them with favorites to balance his meal nutritionally? Chances are you didn't fool your little friend much—he probably made a face, and refused the whole plateful!

• There's an easy new way to make sure your baby gets a balanced diet: Serve him Heinz' High-Meat Dinners—the new protein-rich meat-and-vegetable combinations many doctors have asked for. These tasty "main dish" meals give baby over 3 times the usual amount of meat—a triple helping of those important high quality meat proteins!

• Other bonus benefits: extra iron, to enrich your baby's blood; plus plenty of vitamins A, B, B₁, B₂ and Niacin. Made with garden-fresh vegetables, oatmeal and other nutritious ingredients—Heinz' High-Meat Dinners are a wonderful source of energy, too, which your active baby needs in his business.

• All it takes for a nutritionally balanced meal is Heinz' High-Meat Dinner, baby's milk or formula, and strained fruit or fruit juice! To give your cherub a nice change of taste, Heinz' High-Meat Dinners come in four delicious meaty flavors: Beef with Vegetables, Veal with Vegetables, Chicken with Vegetables, Ham with Vegetables.

• In exclusive baby-food kitchens Heinz' High-Meat Dinners are carefully prepared by specialists, in both Strained and Junior versions. Heinz' High-Meat Dinners are packed in glass—to guard Heinz better flavor, color and texture. In just one jar, High-Meat Dinners balance baby's menu for you!

MOISTURE-PROOF your baby against diaper irritation

Here's How:

When changing diapers, apply soothing ZBT Baby Powder generously. ZBT protects like oil... guards tender skin against urine scald and diaper rash.

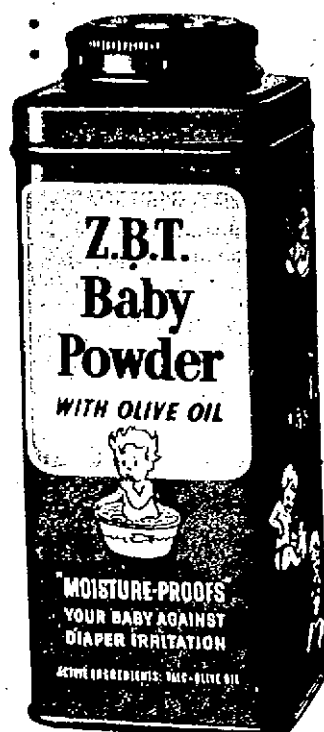

After baby's bath, sprinkle entire body with ZBT to protect against chafing and prickly heat.

Make this test! Smooth ZBT Baby Powder on palm... add drops of water. See how ZBT Baby Powder repels moisture, where ordinary powders absorb it.

Used by hundreds of hospital nurseries

- ZBT BABY POWDER CONTAINS OLIVE OIL
- Soothes like powder
- protects like oil

Tigers in the parlor

NEW YORK. Pet? Toy? Kiddie comforter? The "Jungle Rugs" shown here at a pre-kindergarten slumber party are all these and more, a cuddly version of the sleeping bag for young nappers. It all began with a tiger fashioned of plush by Mrs. Dorothy Stevens for her own daughter. Now it's a menagerie that includes a leopard and a duck, and keeps a Pennsylvania factory busy meeting the demand. Also made in corduroy and terry cloth, with plastic foam heads, plastic whiskers, tongues and claws, Jungle Rugs can be put through washer and wringer — and often are.

SETTLING DOWN after active play seems to appeal to these small "Rug" wearers. Mothers also like the protection from floor drafts. Plush versions sell for $22.95; others, $12.95.

Get after Athlete's Foot FAST!

BEFORE THIS—

Raw, red cracks between the toes, maddening itch or peeling are the first signs you've got Athlete's Foot

BECOMES THIS!

Left untreated, Athlete's Foot fungi burrow, spread. In advanced stage, like ringworm of the foot above, see your doctor

Live Athlete's Foot fungi grow in the mold you see in the test tube, left. These fungi can lie dormant for months on the skin—flare up when it becomes moist and warm

Athlete's Foot fungi killed fast! When Absorbine Jr. was added to identical fungi, it killed all the Athlete's Foot fungi in less than 5 minutes! (See tube on the right.)

Absorbine Jr.
KILLS 100% of Athlete's Foot fungi in less than 5 minutes!

Famous laboratory grows millions of Athlete's Foot fungi in test tubes, and reports every single one killed by Absorbine Jr.

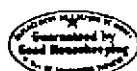

That tingling sensation tells you Absorbine Jr. is busy killing all the Athlete's Foot fungi it reaches. And liquid Absorbine Jr. gets into tiny cracks better than powder or salve.

Carefully controlled clinical tests on patients have proved how wonderfully effective Absorbine Jr. is. Doctors reported Absorbine Jr. brought successful relief fast to the great majority of sufferers.

Although deep cracks between toes usually disappear after treatment with Absorbine Jr., use it morning and night for two weeks to protect yourself from reinfection.

Absorbine Jr. has successfully relieved more cases of Athlete's Foot than other remedies. Get Absorbine Jr. wherever drugs are sold.

America's No. 1 Formula for Athlete's Foot

from American women

by CHRISTINE CARERE

Last May, Christine Carère, a pert, beautiful French actress of 27, went to Hollywood to star in the film version of Françoise Sagan's best-selling novel, A Certain Smile. It was Miss Carère's first visit to the U.S. Over the past year she has seen enough of American life to explode some cherished myths, especially about American women. In this exclusive article, she does so. — THE EDITORS.

Before I came to America, a year ago, I thought most American girls were cold, materialistic, standoffish, not chic, career-obsessed, idle, intelligent, masculine, lucky and domineering.

In Europe this is what one hears about American women — how well off they are, how hard they drive their husbands, how they think all the time with their heads and never with their hearts. We are told that European women make better wives. We are told that American women can learn plenty from us — how to cook, how to be gracious, how to flatter the husband, how to dress, how to be alluring.

After a year here, I can say just the opposite is true. European women can learn plenty from American women.

Good Neighbors

American women are friendly, frank, warm and sentimental. There is an immediacy in their friendship which is unheard of in Europe. For example, when I first came to Los Angeles last May, my agent found me a furnished bungalow-apartment. I could speak no English, so the studio hired Edward Manouk, an old friend of mine from Paris, to translate the script so I could memorize it phonetically.

After one day, I was visited by a neighbor, Mrs. Lena Baron. She bade me welcome, then invited me to a party she and her husband were giving that night. All this was translated for me by Edward, because then I could understand nothing except the woman's kind voice and friendly smile.

I accepted the invitation, thinking all the while that this would never happen in France. There women regard each other with suspicion. You can live next door to a woman for years, and all she will say is, "Bon jour."

In November I returned to France and married Philippe Nicaud, an actor. Five days later I came back to Hollywood to concentrate on my English. The studio would not let me visit France and spend

"I used to hear that American women were too career-minded, that this made them less feminine than we. That's not true."

Christmas with my husband. They wanted me to talk English only. I tried to tell them that my husband could speak good English, that we would speak English all the time together. They said they knew better. So I had to stay in Los Angeles.

Again the neighbors came to my rescue. Lena Baron showed me how to use the washing machine at the Laundromat. Other neighbors invited me to watch TV with them. Still others showed me the town. Dusty Anderson, who is married to Jean Negulesco, the director of A Certain Smile, had me for dinner. Everywhere I found warmth and confidence and no suspicion. American women are open-hearted and open-handed, with very little to hide.

And they are much more versatile than Europeans. The average housewife here knows how to use a screwdriver, how to replace an electric fuse. She can fix her child's bicycle. She knows what a spark plug is, and a fan belt, and pistons. In Europe all these are mechanical mysteries to women.

We say, especially in Paris, that we are the world's best dressers, that we know how to dress for men, that American girls do not. Don't believe it! American women are just as chic, just as sexy as we are. They like nice clothes, perfumes, a change of lipstick and nail polish. They are well-groomed when they want to be. Compare the secretaries of Europe with those of America, and I am sure the Americans would win. They know how to shop, how to dress, how to make a few dollars go a long way.

I used to hear that American women were too career-minded, that this made them less feminine than we. That's not true. The average American housewife is just better educated than we are. She regards herself as her husband's equal, not his servant. She is prepared to work for her family but she wants an equal voice in how things are run. European women act subservient to their husbands because they feel subservient. American women do not. They are proud of being women.

"American women are just as chic as we French. They like nice clothes, perfumes, a change of lipstick and nail polish."

I have met a lot of career women in Hollywood. Mary Wills, who designed my clothes for the picture, is one. Mary is married to Leonard Doss, our color consultant. She has children plus an outstanding career. Phoebe Ephron, wife of our producer and a writer of known ability, also has four children. I found Mary and Phoebe just as feminine and motherly as European women.

The typical American girl also has a sharp sense of humor. I find her quick to laugh and quick to trade jokes. She is alert and not withdrawn. She catches on very fast. She is au courant with the latest gags. European girls are not quite so quick.

Versatile Housewives

The foreign belief that the American housewife is wasteful, idle and pampered cannot be supported by anything I've seen in your country. Housewives in the U.S. are everything: hostess, nurse, shopper, baby-sitter, club woman, careerist, cook, budget-manager. In fact, the American housewife has far more to do than the European, who usually is limited to the home — with the result that she is not nearly so creative or broad-minded as the American housewife.

I have a feeling that Europeans are hard on Americans because secretly they are jealous of them. You make your women healthy, attractive, democratic, independent, friendly, humorous, versatile and creative. In Europe they make us sophisticated, suspicious, exotic or just plain simple.

Summer jobs

Let's face it. It isn't going to be easy to get a summer job this year. And, according to Lila Rosenblum, Director of Research for the National Child Labor Committee, it is going to be especially hard if you're under 16.

After talking with her and with 19-year-old Robert Day of New Bedford, Mass., who in three summers has washed dishes, worked on a farm, helped build a church, I've put their tips into eight sets of questions to help you decide what you can do—and want to do. Ask yourself:

- 1 What is my main objective—to earn money, to get started in some field I may later go into, to "see the world" or what?
- 2 Do I have a skill or talent or experience—typing, gardening, carpentry, child care, just a strong back?
- 3 What jobs are "best bets" in your area? Jobs in camps, parks, playgrounds, hotels, refreshment stands, supermarkets or other stores? Jobs as life guard or attendant at beach or swimming pool, as golf caddy? Full-time baby sitting? Lawn or garden-work? Construction?
- 4 Have I consulted the persons who can best advise me—school guidance counselor, favorite teacher, state employment service? (You may have to write the Department of Labor at your state capital.) How about parents, relatives, family friends? Bob says: "Don't turn up your nose at a job relatives or friends may offer. A job is a job, especially this summer."
- 5 Why should I be hired? What have I to offer? What do I know about the job? Can I tell a prospective employer why I am qualified?
- 6 Do I know how to dress for and behave during an interview? (Miss Rosenblum says the way you walk and sit and talk, your poise or lack of it, impresses a potential employer. She adds: "Dress for the interview, not the job. Don't be sloppy or 'casual,' but don't overdress.")
- 7 Do I need working papers? (Your school or state labor department will tell you.)
- 8 Do I have to make money? (Bob's church-building job was non-paying but took him a thousand miles away from home and supported him there, under supervision. He knows a girl who worked in a camp for underprivileged city children. Your school or a social agency may know of a job which doesn't pay anything but will make you feel good or let you travel. Just be sure, Miss Rosenblum says, you treat this kind of job as seriously as you would a paid one.)

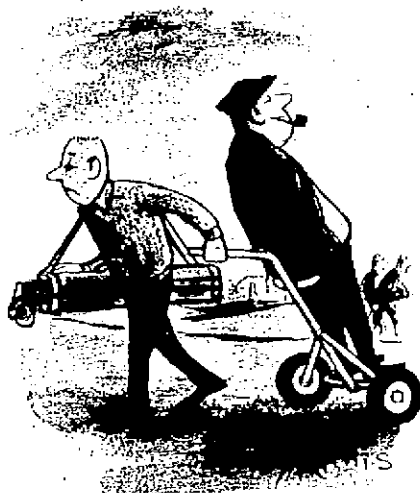

There it is. Though summer jobs will be hard to get, some of you will get them. If you've already landed one—or even if you haven't—tell me your experience in looking. Maybe I can pass it along.

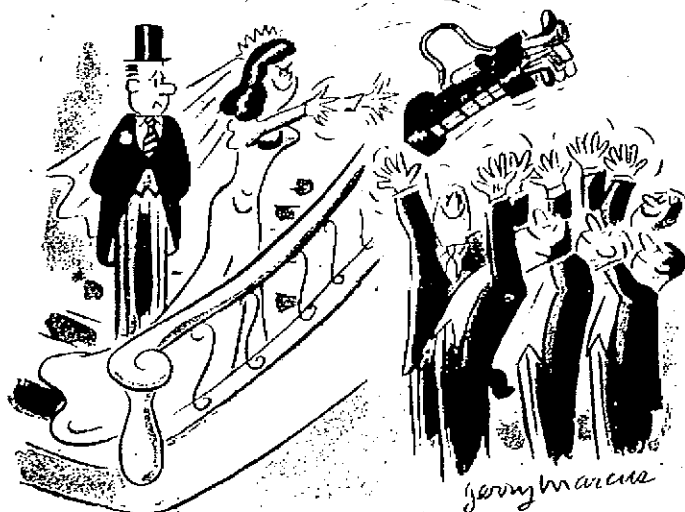

"Lucky for me it turned out to be a fine day for golf. Promised to take the wife to see her mother if it wasn't!"

This is a GAME?

To golfers it's fun. To wives it's a headache. To these cartoonists — thank goodness — it's a source of quiet joy

"I'm pooped. Do you want to quit now or try the second hole?"

Bob, let's cancel the baby sitter. With this upset stomach, I can't go out tonight.

Sure you can, Liz!

Safe, Nutritional Formula Containing 27 Proven Ingredients: Glutamic Acid, Choline, Inositol, Methionine, Citrus Bioflavonoid, 11 Vitamins (Including Blood-Building B-12 and Folic Acid) Plus 11 Minerals

To prove to you the remarkable advantages of the Vitasafe Plan . . . we will send you, without charge, a 30-day free supply of high-potency VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES so you can discover for yourself how much healthier, happier and peppier you may feel after a few days' trial! Just one of these capsules each day supplies your body with over twice the minimum adult daily requirements of Vitamins A, C, and D . . . five times the minimum adult requirement of Vitamin B-1 and the full concentration recommended by the National Research Council for the other four important vitamins! Each capsule contains the amazing Vitamin B-12—one of the most remarkably potent nutrients science has yet discovered—a vitamin that actually helps strengthen your blood and nourish your body organs by stimulating your bone marrow to produce more energy bearing red corpuscles.

Glutamic Acid, a natural substance derived from wheat gluten and thought by many doctors to help nourish the blood cells for more power of concentration and increased mental alertness, is also included in Vitasafe Capsules. And to top off this exclusive formula, each capsule now brings you an important dosage of Citrus Bioflavonoid—the anti-cold factor that has been so widely acclaimed. This formula is so complete it is available nowhere else at any price!

WHY YOU MAY NEED THESE SAFE HIGH-POTENCY CAPSULES

As your own doctor will tell you, scientists have discovered that not only is a daily minimum of vitamins and minerals, in one form or another, absolutely indispensable for proper health . . . but some people actually need more than the average daily requirements established by the National Research Council. If you tire easily . . . if you work under pressure, or if you're over 40 or subject to the stress of travel, worry and other strains . . . then you may be one of the people who needs this extra supply of vitamins. In that case, VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES may be "just what the doctor ordered"—because they contain the most frequently recommended food supplement formula for people in this category! You can use these Capsules confidently because U.S. Government regulations require that you get exactly what the label states—pure ingredients whose beneficial effects have been proven time and time again!

WHY WE WANT YOU TO TRY A 30-DAY SUPPLY—FREE!

We offer you this 30-day free trial of valuable VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES for just one reason: So many persons have already tried them with such astounding results . . . so many people have written in telling us how much better they felt after only a short trial . . . that we are absolutely convinced that you, too, may experience the same feeling of health and well-being after a similar trial. In fact, we're so convinced that we're willing to back up our convictions with our own money. You don't spend a penny for the vitamins! All the cost and all the risk are ours. A month's supply of similar vitamin capsules, if it were available at retail, would ordinarily cost $5.00.

AMAZING NEW PLAN SLASHES VITAMIN PRICES ALMOST IN HALF

With your free vitamins you will also receive complete details regarding the benefits of an

HOW THE VITASAFE PLAN OPERATES TO SAVE YOU MONEY

When you receive your free 30-day supply of vitamins, you are under no obligation to buy anything. With your vitamins you will also receive a handy postcard. If after taking your free Vitasafe capsules for three weeks you are not satisfied in every way, simply return the postcard and that will end the matter. Otherwise, it's up to us—you don't have to do a thing—and we will see that you get your monthly supplies of vitamins on time for as long as you wish, at the low, money-saving price of only $2.78 per month.

amazing new Plan that provides you regularly with all the vitamins and minerals you will need. This Plan actually enables you to receive a 30-day supply of vitamins every month regularly, safely and factory-fresh for exactly $2.78—or 45% lower than the usual retail price. BUT YOU DO NOT HAVE TO DECIDE NOW—you are under no obligation to buy anything from us whatsoever. To get your free 30-day supply and a guaranteed opportunity of regular worthwhile savings on your vitamin purchases, simply fill out the coupon and mail it to us today. We'll rush you your free month's supply of high-potency VITASAFE C.F. CAPSULES along with information regarding the benefits of the Plan. During your free trial period you can decide whether or not you want to enjoy the benefits and tremendous savings offered by the VITASAFE PLAN. In any case, the trial month's supply of 30 VITASAFE CAPSULES is yours to use free.

Now, since the supply of capsules that we can give away free is necessarily limited, we urge you to act at once. You risk nothing; the cost of the capsules is ours. So don't miss out on this marvelous opportunity. Fill in the coupon now and send today.

AT DUSK, LANCE AND BIG FALLON SURVEY BILLY BENEDICT'S ENCAMPMENT...

WE'RE ONEY ONE THING UP ON 'EM, LANCE: WE KNOW THEIR P'SITION AND THEY STILL FIGGER US FER MILES OFF! WHUT'S YER THINKIN'?

LET'S ADD IT UP: WE'VE GOT SURPRISE ON OUR SIDE. THEY OUTNUMBER US FIVE TO ONE... BUT, JUDGING FROM THE SINGING AND YELLING DOWN THERE, THE 'LIQUID DISTEMPER' IS FLOWING PLENTY HEAVY!

IT'LL STILL TAKE SOME DOIN'! ROSEY OR SOBER, 200 HOMBRES CAN FLING A MESS O' LEAD! WE GOT ONLY 40 MEN!

FORTY MEN PLUS 200 HORSES, FALLON! IF WE GET THOSE HORSES MOVING, THEY'LL STAMPEDE OUT OF THAT DRAW AND TEAR THE CAMP APART!!

GIVEN EIGHT HOURS, BLAZE AND 20 MEN CAN CIRCLE THE VALLEY AND HIT FROM THE REAR! WE'LL CHARGE THE FRONT!

WE'VE SEEN ENOUGH! LET'S GO!

AS THE TWO SNAKE THEIR WAY BACK TO THE RANGER POSITION, LANCE'S MIND RACES: HOW TO STAMPEDE THE HEAVILY GUARDED ENEMY HORSES USING AS FEW MEN AS POSSIBLE....

BY THE TIME THEY REACH BIVOUAC, HE HAS THE ANSWER. A STAFF MEETING IS CALLED...

HERE'S A CHART OF BENEDICT'S CAMP. BLAZE, YOU'LL TAKE 20 MEN AND CIRCLE THE HILLS TO THE WEST. GROUP FOR CHARGE AT THE MOUTH OF THE VALLEY. ONE HOUR BEFORE DAYBREAK, THEIR HORSES WILL BE STAMPEDED... SOME WILL HEAD YOUR WAY. USE THEM FOR COVER AND DRIVE THEM BACK INTO CAMP....

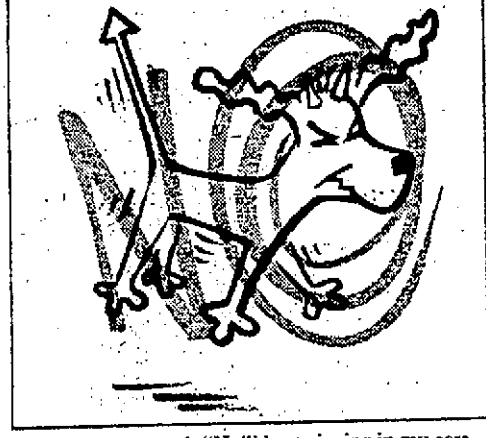

HOW YOU AIMING TO STAMPEDE THEM HORSES? THE GUARDS CAN FIRE INTO 'EM AND TURN 'EM BACK, CAN'T THEY?

MY GUESS IS THE GUARDS WON'T BE AROUND AFTER THE RUN STARTS!

SEND THE INDIAN HUNTERS IN ON YOUR WAY OUT, WILL YOU? AND GOOD-LUCK, BLAZE!

My master started me on the Milk-Bone training plan. Whenever he caught me chewing things I shouldn't, he tossed a magazine at me.

Oh, how that word, "No!" kept ringing in my ears. Everytime I heard it, I jumped a mile high. I was becoming a nervous wreck!

Training had its bright moments. After every lesson, my smart master always rewarded me with tasty, crunchy MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS. It was fun and I caught on fast with Milk-Bone.

Today, I am a good dog. My master's property is safe—and my natural craving for chewing is satisfied by Milk-Bone. Tasty Milk-Bone, the famous bone-shaped dog biscuit sure beats chewing shoes any day!

Train your dog to behave better—the Milk-Bone way

Here's fun for every member of the family. After every lesson, hand your dog MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS. This easy training procedure works wonders. Even experts like Lee Duncan, trainer of Rin Tin Tin, are surprised how fast dogs learn when they're rewarded with tasty MILK-BONE.

MILK-BONE DOG BISCUITS are naturally good for your dog. High in nutrition and food energy. Contain the whole milk that helps build strong teeth and healthy gums.

You'll enjoy your dog even more when you train him the Milk-Bone way—with America's largest selling dog biscuit.

Get complete Milk-Bone training booklet. Send one Milk-Bone box top plus 10¢ to Milk-Bone Dog Behavior Clinic, Box 17, Brooklyn 1, N. Y.
